ATTEMPT TO EVADE RACE-BIAS BAN CHARGED

Six LBSC Sororities Suspended

By LEE BROWN

Six of Long Beach State College's seven sororities have been suspended from campus activities and face even more severe sanctions, Dr. Carl W. McIntosh, LBSC president, disclosed Saturday.

The sororities, LBSC chapters of Alpha Phi, Delta Delta Delta, Delta Zeta, Gamma Phi Beta, Sigma Kappa and Zeta Tau Alpha, were placed on probation effective Aug. 2.

According to college officials, the six sororities bolted college supervision of the annual "rushing" (recruiting of new members) procedures, and sorority alumnae early this summer rented an office at 3903 E. Anaheim St. in which to undertake independent rushing activities.

Only one sorority, Delta Gamma, is conducting rushing activities as usual through the college activities office under the supervision of Dr. Lois Swanson, dean of activities. Another group, Columns Club, a "colony" of Alpha Epsilon Phi, also is rushing in cooperation with the college. Neither is affected by the probation order.

In a letter received Saturday by sorority chapter presidents, Dr. McIntosh wrote, "I shall continue to insist . . . " that sororities be bound by college policy. He decried the "unilateral action taken . . . by those who usurp the right to act as free agents in opposition to policies and procedures established by the college."

Besides establishing a rushing office off campus "in full knowledge that such action was violative of . . . procedures," three other specific charges were made in the letter: refusing to discuss the issue with Dr. Karl A. Russell, LBSC dean of students; using the name of the college in connection with off-campus rush activities after having been instructed not to do so, and scheduling an off-campus public rushing meeting in violation of college policies.

His letter also stated, "Unless we have satisfactory response from you by Oct. 1, we will regretfully withdraw recognition of your sorority on the campus of LBSC."

According to college officials, the insurgent sororities' move to off-campus rushing is merely a "nominal" issue. They contend that the move is to avoid a statewide legal ban on racial or religious restrictions on sorority and fraternity membership which takes full effect in September, 1964.

A letter circulated to members of Alpha Phi sorority, signed by alumni president Mrs. Nellie Krahenbuhl, confirmed the official's suspicions by stating that the sororities were moving off campus to save college officials from "having to accede to certain pressure groups in their demands for so-called 'rights'."

The California Administrative Code provides that "no state college shall recognize any fraternity, sorority . . . or other student organization which restricts membership on the basis of race, religion or national origin."

Next year, LBSC campus organizations will be required to sign a statement certifying that "student members of (the sorority chapter) are free to choose and accept new members without discrimination on account of race, religion or national origin."

Dean Swanson pointed out that, far from forcing integration, the statement "merely says that the national sorority organizations cannot tell the local chapters whom they may not pledge."

If LBSC withdraws all recognition of the sororities, college officials say that even continuation of sorority houses, all located off campus in Long Beach, will be threatened. Sororities must be recognized by the college in order to obtain and maintain a city zoning permit.

The California Administrative Code states that withdrawal of recognition would end "the granting by a state college of any benefit, resource, or privilege whatsoever, or allowing the use of college facilities."

Representatives of the sororities either declined comment or could not be reached Saturday.

WHITE HOUSE EXPLAINS

Reaction Sharp to Byrd's List of JFK Vehicles

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—White House sources reacted sharply Saturday to a criticism by Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., who wondered aloud whether all those planes, yachts, and helicopters really are needed by President Kennedy.

Byrd, in a speech for his annual apple orchard picnic at Berryville, Va., Friday, noted that a House subcommittee had approved the President's request for two new twin-jet helicopters costing $1,125,000 each.

Maybe the President could get along with less, Byrd said, and ran down the list of planes, boats and such.

A White House source commented on Byrd's list, item by item:

Byrd — "The 10 helicopters."

Comment: "This is a fact. The President has available 10 helicopters which is the same number which was available to the Eisenhower administration. Of these, two are new helicopters since President Kennedy came into office to replace older and slower models. . ."

Byrd — "The President's private $8-million fan-jet Boeing 707-320 aeroplane . . . Three Boeing 707s assigned to the White House by the Air Force. . . One Air Force Douglas DC-6B for airports that can't take jets."

Comment: "There are such airplanes in the special air missions of the Air Force. They are available to the President as well as other top officials of the government. The fact of the matter is the one new plane, which is the $8-million fan-jet, was ordered at the start of the Kennedy administration because of its greater speed and longer range. It is, however, used by other government officials and for other government purposes. The other three Boeing 707s were in the same pool when President Eisenhower was

Celebrity Choices Sought

The pulse of a city beats only as strong as the people who give it life.

Long Beach has enjoyed vigorous health and steady growth because of many dedicated citizens who had the foresight to plant deep roots and to nurture them.

Many have carried the city's fame to all corners of the earth.

These are the people who will receive special acclaim during Long Beach's 75th anniversary celebration.

* * * *

SEVENTY-FIVE outstanding personalities of Long Beach heritage will be selected for special recognition during the city's Diamond Jubilee Celebrity Ball, Nov. 15, at Long Beach Arena.

The ball, social event of the century, will be highlight of a month-long celebration which will include a musical spectacular, parades, special salutes and city-wide celebrations.

According to Bill Boyd, manager of the Long Beach Diamond Jubilee, more than 5,000 people are expected to attend the gala event, which is under sponsorship of 20 prominent local organizations.

SELECTION of the 75 individuals to be honored is under direction of Ev Hosking, chairman of the celebrity selection committee.

It promises to be no small chore.

"We're asking for nominations from the public," Hosking said Saturday, asking that I, P-T readers submit names of friends, relatives or acquaintances who, they feel, are deserv-

EIGHTY-YEAR-OLD Fred Ashbridge displays form which enabled him to ski to Catalina Saturday.

By CHARLES SUTTON

Fred Ashbridge, a spunky, rooster-legged octogenarian who doesn't know the meaning of the word retire, successfully completed his fifth water-skiing trip across Catalina Channel Saturday.

And if it weren't for a couple of spills he took off the west end of Catalina Island as he neared the end of his 38-mile journey, he'd have bettered his record of 1 hour, 22 min., he said.

As it was, the 80-year-old sportsman and boat builder had to settle for an elapsed time of 1 hour, 30 min.

He broke one record though. In making his Saturday crossing he used a ski that has traveled more than 3,000 miles.

Ashbridge, who celebrated his 80th birthday Aug. 20, started off from Marineland around 11:15 a.m. behind his boat, the "Lake Queen of Elsinore," a rugged 25-foot runabout with a 375-horsepower engine.

"I was astonished when they told me I'd made it in an hour and a half," he commented after the trip. "I lost between 15 and 20 minutes during those two falls. That means I was traveling at a pretty good clip."

Price Sloan of Rosemead, who piloted the "Queen," estimated that Ashbridge averaged about 25 miles per hour while he was on his skis.

Ashbridge said he fell over backward on each spill.

"The current was running against the ground swell, and both times the waves hit me like a wall of water," he explained.

Except for the rough seas off the west end of the island, the water was "lumpy but fairly smooth

'Mounties' Scatter 150 in Protest

PLAQUEMINE, La. (AP) — Mounted state police, electric cattle prodders in their hands, galloped headlong into a crowd of some 150 Negro demonstrators here Saturday night.

The Negroes broke up, screaming, running wildly across lawns. The horseback policemen followed in close pursuit.

The marchers were on their way to the home of Sheriff C. A. Griffon Jr. after police arrested 31 demonstrators who staged "freedom sings" in frunt of three cafes and a movie theater here earlier Saturday. (Another 38 demonstrators were arrested during the night, police said.)

* * * *

PLAQUEMINE, a south Louisiana community of 8,000 some 20 miles southwest of the capital at Baton Rouge, has been the scene of demonstrations since Aug. 19. On that day, James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, arrived to push voting and integration activities.

At a press conference after the demonstration, Farmer said he believed about 15 persons were injured. They were between the ages of 10 and 18, he said.

Dr. Bertrand Tyson, local Negro physician, said at least five will need hospitalization including Diane Scott, 15, who appeared to have a stomach injury. Farmer said a horse had stepped on the girl.

* * * *

HALF A dozen Negro children, with cuts and bruises showed up at the press conference.

Farmer called the scene "the worst demonstration of police brutality I have seen in five years." He said it was the first time he had known of horses being allowed to trample children.

Farmer said he sent a telegram to Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy informing him of the incident. He added he planned to file an affidavit with the Justice Department complaining of a violation of civil rights.

IN ADDITION, Farmer said he intended to ask for U.S. marshals to come into the town and for an appropriate subcommittee of congress to investigate the situation.

U.S. Gets Tougher With Viet

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI) — The United States appeared Saturday to be heading for a diplomatic showdown with the South Viet Nam government of President Ngo Dinh Diem. Indications pointed to new attempts by Washington to pressure Diem's regime into abandoning its anti-Buddhist campaign through diplomatic means.

An American Army general in charge of U.S. forces fighting the Communist Viet Cong from North Viet Nam told reporters that Vietnamese military leaders were not involved in Diem's repression of the Buddhist majority and were not informed in advance of the action nor of the decision to impose martial law.

Some sources interpreted the general's statement as an invitation to leaders of the South Viet Nam army to seize power from Diem in a coup d'etat. The general said he was aware of the implications of his remark and that it contradicted a statement by Diem.

The Diem government, generally believed led now by his brother Ngo Dinh Nhu, indicated Saturday it was not changing its viewpoint. About 30,000 persons, most of them civil servants or soldiers in civilian clothes, staged a rally in downtown Saigon in support of the Diem stand.

* * * *

GOVERNMENT press reports of the meeting said 200,000 persons attended and enthusiastically heard speakers denounce Buddhist leaders as "political speculators." Actually the crowds were much smaller and the only enthusiasm came when they were freed to return home.

Club Eases Relations of Civilians, Military

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the seventh and last in the series examining the relationship between military installations and neighboring communities. This article tells of a unique organization in Ventura County which is fostering the friendship of service and city leaders.)

OXNARD—At 5 p.m., the Drinking Lamp is lit, Chief Elbow Bender George Poulos mixes the first cocktail and the screwiest club in the world comes to order.

By order, the Rest and Aspiration Club—"We rest while aspiring to greater things," explains a member—means keeping quiet when the big ship bell is rung.

The silence generally is ordered so that a member can take the microphone and tell a good joke.

But the end result of the club has been no joke. Though the military and civilian members of the club may not discuss "business" during a meeting, friendships formed at the sessions have led to understanding and cooperation in city and county chambers and military headquarters.

In an area of increasing air traffic from Oxnard Air Force Base, the U.S. Naval Air Station at Pt. Mugu and the County Airport here, the Hi, Joe-Hi, Tom attitude" of "Rest and Aspiration has been the lubricant of possible community friction. It is interesting to note that the two military airfields are the base of the latest supersonic — and noisy—jets. In addition, jet airliners serve the county airport.

An example of the harvest of friendship of R&A is that the Chamber of Commerce only last week held its monthly meeting at Oxnard Air Force Base—and heard the Air Force story.

"Before a problem develops," explains one member, "it's easier to call up a buddy on the telephone and say, 'Let's you and I get together and head this thing off.'

"There's no red tape, no sitting in a cold waiting

California Leading Death Toll

By United Press International

California took an early and nearly unbeatable lead Saturday in the sweepstakes of death being laid out on the nation's highways during the four-day Labor Day weekend.

Californians have eliminated themselves and one another in traffic accidents roughly at the rate of one an hour.

At 11 p.m. the traffic death toll stood at 26. One person drowned and another died in a fire. New York trailed with seven highway fatalities.

A United Press International count at 12:30 a.m. (EDT) showed 178 persons dead in traffic across the nation since the start of the holiday at 6 p.m. Friday.

L.A.C. Says:

Your Hidden Taxes

We all realize that we personally pay large sums in sales, excise and other taxes which we rarely compute. We accept them as hidden taxes and part of the game. Many of us care not at all about the taxes paid by corporations or other individuals. But actually, all these are hidden taxes we all pay in the price of goods we buy and consume. Unless we take an interest in such other taxes, we will pay ever increasing amounts.

Some time ago we quoted Union Oil Co. on what its employes paid out in taxes over a 40-year period. It said: Suppose one of our employes started to work for the company at age 25 and retired at 65. Suppose further that he earned the same salary of $600 a month throughout his career. At $67.68 a month for taxes in 40 years he will have paid out $32,488.40 in taxes on this income. Then suppose the employe had invested this $67.68 a month in a 4 per cent compound interest savings account. In 40 years—at age 65—he would have $79,300. Of course, very few people would do this—but it is a picture of what taxes cost and if saved what they could produce.

I found many of our readers were quite shocked by the totals. Now before us is another example given by Union Oil in one of its advertisements. It says: "In 1932 the company taxes—city, county, state and federal—added up to $1.6 million. By contrast, that year its employes received $13 million in wages and its shareowners received $5.2 million in dividends. In 1962 —30 years later—its employes received $57 million in salaries and wages—its shareowners got $20 million —but taxes totaled $34.5 million.

"Payrolls and dividends have increased approximately four times in 30 years—while taxes have increased 21 times. In addition, the company was also required to withhold $9.6 million from employes' paychecks and pay $1.9 million in payroll taxes. Then the shareowners, on only a 20 per cent income tax basis, paid out another $4 million. The total of $50 million taken by government was $2.6 million more than all the employes—working full time—received." All of this $50 million taken by government had to be paid for in the prices consumers paid for the company's products.

A lot of figures are used in the above. But I believe most of my readers want definite figures to back up the statements that are made. Unless the great majority of people realize that in many industries government is taking more money than all the workers receive, there is little hope for them. These industries employ the people—build the products and provide the services on which our economy and comforts are dependent. They have given us the highest living standards ever known in the world. These standards are endangered by the costs of government.

Let me repeat another startling fact which should concern all the lower bracket income taxpayers. It is that 86 per cent of all federal income taxes are collected from the 20 per cent — lowest — income tax brackets. Only 14 per cent of total taxes are collected from the higher brackets—even though they pay as high as 91 per cent of their top tax incomes in taxes. This is because there are so many in the lower brackets, and so few in the upper brackets.

This is not written to suggest sympathy for the upper income group. Few of us care about what happens to the fellow who has more than we have. But it is written in the hope that all the people may some time come to realize that the increasing tax load is their load—because more taxes can come from only the large group where the vast amount of income is. Unless that group awakens and protests against ever increasing government spending, there is little hope for them—or any other group. When government takes more money from an industry than do all the people working for it—the time is here to do some protesting.—L.A.C.

Conference Wednesday to Study Transit Route

Possible rapid-transit routes between Long Beach and Los Angeles will be discussed at an area-wide transit-development study conference at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Harbor Department Building, 925 Harbor Plaza, Port of Long Beach.

The conference called by Metropolitan Transit Authority, will review two principal proposed routes and the role of the Long Beach Corridor in area-wide rapid-transit development.

The two routes are:

1. Along the Pacific Electric right-of-way south from Santa Monica Freeway, continuing along the alignment to about Carson Street. The alignment would then follow the east bank of the Los Angeles River to a terminal at Ocean Boulevard.

2. South from Santa Monica Freeway along Santa Fe Avenue to Vernon Avenue. It would then cure into Pacific Boulevard and Long Beach Boulevard, continuing to Ocean Boulevard in Long Beach.

Possible variations from the above proposals provide for a combination of both alignments with possible routings via either Randolph Street in Huntington Park, through North Long Beach or near San Diego Freeway.

Representatives of government, business and civic organizations in cities and communities between Long Beach and Los Angeles have been invited to participate in the conference.

C. M. Gilliss, MTA executive director, says, "Routing is the prime factor in determining the total cost of a rapid transit system.

"It is the routing which determines the construction cost, the right-of-way costs and, most important, routing which determines the greatest revenue to help pay for the system.

* * * *

"IT HAS been demonstrated that while the Long Beach Corridor is an integral part of the total area to be served by a comprehensive rapid-transit system, no system can be built in the corridor at this time solely from the farebox."

He says cities and communities to be served by rapid transit in the Long Beach Corridor should agree as soon as possible on the most desirable alignment for their area.

"We can then determine how we can best finance construction," he points out.

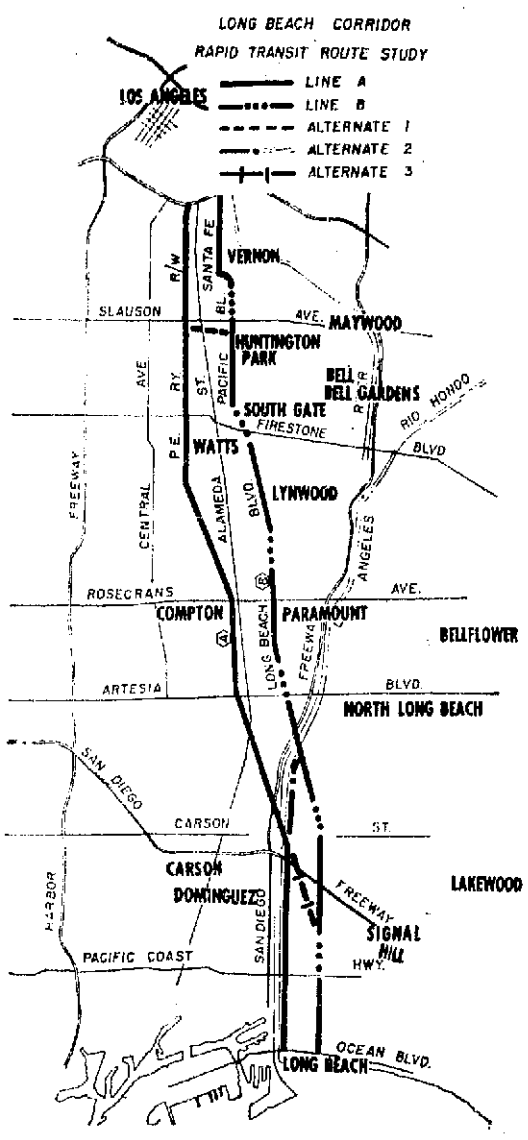

The state legislature has enacted legislation to allow in-lie-tax funds as a means of financing rapid transit. If the County Board of Supervisors authorizes the tax, MTA estimates that $14 million could be received annually to aid in rapid-transit construction.

* * * *

MTA spokesmen say the $14 million per year would enable approximately $300 million in private funds to be raised through revenue bonds, according to investment bankers.

MTA has under study a proposal from the Alweg monorail organization to build and finance a 43-mile system from Westwood Village to El Monte with a branch to Van Nuys. The offer is effective until Wednesday and Gilliss has asked Alweg to extend the offer for 60 days. The MTA conference study for this area is set for Sept. 10 in Los Angeles.

Neither Alweg, nor Goodell, another monorail proponent has made a proposal to cover service in the Long Beach Corridor.

TWO PRINCIPAL routes and alternates proposed for a rapid-transit system in the Long Beach Corridor are shown in above map.

CHINA NO UTOPIA

GI Turncoat Tells of Hunger, Terror

HONG KONG (UPI)—A former U.S. Army sergeant who spent 10 years in Communist China "looking for Utopia" said Saturday he had gone hungry so his children could eat meat and had watched friends being taken to prison for criticizing the regime.

Albert C. Belhomme, a Belgian citizen who married a Chinese woman and now has three children, returned from China Friday. He said he left so his children could have a better future.

* * * *

THE 34-YEAR-OLD Belhomme, whose mother lives in Ashland, Pa., showed by his description of life in China that even favored foreigners find it hard to get by on their higher rations and pay.

"I was looking for Utopia," he told a news conference. "and it isn't to be found. I think I've stopped looking now."

Belhomme, who plans to return to Belgium with his family, was the second American soldier to leave China in August Lowell D. Skinner of Akron, Ohio, reached Hong Kong Aug. 1 and now is in the United States.

Belhomme said he refused repatriation at the end of the Korean War, along with 20 other U.S. soldiers, because he was looking for "a better society — better conditions than I'd experienced in the past."

He said the brainwashing he received as a prisoner did not influence him much.

"It was mainly my own quest for a better life, and a touch of adventurism," he said.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH Belhomme's description of life in China was grim, he said "I think it was worthwhile. Although I saw hard times, I found my wife there."

The news conference was held in the luxurious new Hilton Hotel here and Belhomme contrasted his surroundings with those in China. "You have a different type of life there—definitely not what it is here."

L.B. Airman Shoots Way to Rifle Title

Airman 1/c Middleton W. Tompkins of Long Beach has regained his title as National High Power Bolt Rifle Champion, the Air Force announced Saturday.

Tompkins, 25, an instructor in the Air Force Marksmanship School (Lackland AFB, Tex., in matches now being held at Camp Perry, Ohio, regained the title he first won as a civilian.

He also shattered the existing national match record for the seven major trophy matches which comprise the championship.

Tompkins, of 2925 Vista St., attended Long Beach City College for two years before entering the Air Force.

Big Increase Seen in World's Oil Use

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — World crude oil reserves that seemed overwhelming a decade ago now look more manageable and desirable.

This was the report made this week by an industry publication in its 18th annual survey of international oil trends.

World Oil magazine said mushrooming consumption of the past 10 years will continue.

World demand for oil is expected to increase from 27 million barrels a day this year to 56 million in 1975.

The trade publication estimates United States demand will increase about 2½ per cent annually with areas outside the United States increasing about 8 per cent a year.

"Sharp gains abroad will reflect both growing use of energy and oil's increasing share as the source of energy," the magazine said.

"By 1975, Western Europe, for example, will be using much more energy than now and oil will then be supplying 60 per cent of its energy needs, or double the present proportion."

Oil's share of total energy consumption in the United States, however, is expected to remain relatively constant.

L.B. Medics Report on Fungus Data

By BEN ZINSER
I. P-T Medical Editor

A fast, accurate and inexpensive method of isolating a disease-producing fungus from the soil has been developed by a team of Long Beach researchers.

As a result of the new procedure, scientists for the first time will be able to track down sources of infection within a matter of days instead of weeks.

The isolation procedure, developed by scientists at Long Beach State College and Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital, will be reported next Tuesday in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, to the International Congress of Tropical Medicine and Malaria.

* * * *

THE REPORT will be delivered by one of the researchers, Dr. Betty Hester Kazan, professor of microbiology at State College. Senior author of the report is Dr. F. E. Swatek, chairman of the microbiology department.

The procedure is one in which scientists seek to find a yeast-like fungus called Cryptococcus neoformans, the causative agent of a systemic disease known as crpytococcosis. The disease may involve any organ of the body but it has a marked predilection for the brain. The disease can prove fatal if it involves the central nervous system.

* * * *

DR. KAZAN, a U.S. delegate to the international congress, says the new isolation technique will enable scientists to make epidemiological sense out of the disease.

Scientists now will be able to rapidly track down soil areas that may be sources of crypto fungi.

Key to the new isolation technique is pretreatment of the soil sample with the antibiotic cycloheximide, also known as Actidione.

Temporary exposure of the soil sample to the antibiotic stops the growth of all organisms except Cryptococcus neoformans, Dr. Kazan explains. Otherwise, all the varied organisms in the soil specimen would flourish in the culture media.

As a result of Actidione treatment, only the crypto, if present in the soil, will grow.

* * * *

RESULTS are available in seven to 14 days. With an earlier method employing laboratory mice, five to six weeks and tedious autopsy procedures are required.

Besides Drs. Swatek and Kazan, authors of the research report include Dr. S. William Becker, chief of the VA Hospital's dermatology section; Dr. J. W. Wilson, a dermatology consultant; and D. T. Omieczynski, laboratory technician.

room, or talking to a stranger about a community situation. It's talking to a buddy about it."

The purpose of the club is serious, but there's a heckuva lot of fun, too.

At times, Poulos, local restaurant manager and one of the founders of the club, bangs the bell to fine members for such flagrant violations as standing on the furniture.

If George feels like it, he will allow the violator to take the microphone in self-defense and speak at a dollar a minute.

Members of the club, the military and civilian leaders of Ventura County, take it in pleasant stride and pay—with a smile.

TONIGHT, George—dressed in yachting cap and bedecked with medals as befits one who mingles with military brass—has taken offense because one of the club members is being transferred by his company to New Orleans.

"You are leaving our club," George moans, "so I will have to fine you.

"Actually, I'm not going to fine you. I'm just going to extract a few dollars from you."

At about this time, George remembers that the treasurer is absent—"he telegramed us from New York on his way to Switzerland"—and bangs the bell again.

"I want Ken Murphy to take the dues," he intones. (The weekly dues are $3 for civilians and $2 for the military.) "Since Murphy has four kids, the club couldn't sue him.

"So let us pray he deposits the money in the bank tomorrow morning."

CLUB meetings are held every Tuesday beginning at 5 p.m. when the Drinking Lamp — actually a large red ship light—is lit. It is extinguished at 7:30 p.m. "unless we have a lively one going," says George.

The sign by the Drinking Lamp explains: "It shall be shown in all weathers during such times as R&A is in formal session and unlimited imbibition is in order . . . and extinguished when all hands are seven sheets to the wind."

The sign also cautions that the Lamp "shall be extinguished when necessary to prevent riots, avoid bloodshed, make announcements, discipline unruly members and/or restore order."

DESPITE its unholy attitude, the unique club is surprisingly orderly.

Lt. Col. Edwin H. Brewer, a squadron commander at nearby Oxnard Air Force Base, calls it "A terrific line of communication between military and civilian leaders." Says Capt. Karl Van Meter of the U.S. Naval Air Station at Pt. Magu, "It is a wonderful way to engender community relations."

Enthusiastic members on transfer from Ventura County have formed club chapters in Washington, D.C., San Diego, Okinawa and Colorado Springs. There is none in the Long Beach-Orange County area where military-community relationships have been strained in the past.

The club was born when business leaders and Army antiaircraft officers began meeting in the back room of George's market here in the early days of World War II. Soon, the back room was too little and the club moved into more spacious quarters.

* * * *

"AFTER 19 years in our second headquarters," one member recalls with awe," we found out why we never received a monthly gas bill for heating.

"We had hooked up our line to a neighboring tenant's."

After that, the club moved its Drinking Lamp and bell to its third and present headquarters, a large wood-paneled room with a few garden-type wooden chairs and plenty of standing room.

In the years of growth, in addition to such military leaders as Gen. James Doolittle, civilians like U.S. Chief Justice Earl Warren and Gov. Pat Brown have joined the organization.

* * * *

ASIDE FROM Poulos, a prime backer of the club is its secretary, Ventura County oil millionaire Fritz Huntsinger. His military career was ended in World War I when the English captured him. He was a private in the German army.

With such an irreverent background and backers, it is bound to be that the club is zany and good-natured in its meetings. Members insist the informality is the foundation of good relationships.

"We have the minimum of bylaws," said George, "When we have a special problem, we get up some kind of a committee."

It was about this time that Murphy interrupted to complain loudly he was having trouble collecting the dues.

"Everybody seems to only have a $50 bill on them."

World's Fair Group to Give Port Board Report in Public

California World's Fair officials will sit down with Long Beach Harbor commissioners Sept. 23 for frank discussions of the 1967-68 exposition and its problems.

In announcing they were accepting the Board of Harbor Commissioners' invitation, the fair leaders, claimed such a hearing was what they had wanted all along.

The fair officials last week took two steps in the wake of Monday's demand for a hearing on fair troubles and current status. They sent a letter to the board, saying they had wanted such a meeting "for some time", but must have at least two hours of board time to cover all bases.

* * * *

THE FAIR officials also put out a three-page news release which gave the impression that the harbor commissioners, not they, were complying with a request for a formal report on the multimillion-dollar project.

Quoting Nelson McCook Jr., president of the fair organization, the release read:

"'We are most pleased that the Harbor Commission has expressed a willingness to take time necessary to receive our report,' McCook said. 'Just two weeks ago, when our newly elected board chairman, Dan A. Kimball, visited with some of the Commissioner, he requested such a meeting. We are delighted that our request has been taken up this quickly.'"

The release made note that the fair has been under attack by a group of 'dissidents."

The release also claimed the fair "has requested the Attorney General of California to intercede to prevent (such) future unwarranted attacks."

Atty. Gen. Stanley Mosk said last week he was considering an investigation into fair matters.

The request for a full public report on fair activities and problems was made by the Harbor Board on the motion of Commissioner John Davis who said he was deeply worried about reports of dissension, court action and fair finances.

* * * *

HE MADE the request after the Harbor Department voted to allocate $50,000-a-year for engineering services to the fair.

Davis said he felt such a hearing would get at all the facts and said he felt it was the harbor's right as landlords. The fair is slated to be held on the 311-acre Pier J. now being built in the harbor.

The Harbor Department has invited the general public to attend the hearing and has asked the fair officials for an outline of their two-hour briefing.

UP BRITISH COLUMBIA WAY

High Charm of Ferryboat Transportation Lingers On

By CHARLES SUTTON

Given a choice between a fast passenger plane and a slow ferryboat, most people today would probably choose the airplane.

Up around Vancouver Island, British Columbia, the folks don't seem to know any better, though. In the past three years, they've been turning to the ferryboat with a consistency that has simply amazed transportation experts.

* * * *

IT ALL started when the provincial government decided to operate a ferry system between the island and the Canadian mainland, explained M. F. Aldous, general manager of the British Columbus Ferry Authority.

The government tried to get private enterprise to enter the business, said Aldous, a recent visitor to Long Beach. But no firm was willing to gamble on what appeared to be a losing proposition. "So we went into it ourselves," he said.

"We bought up the previous existing systems (which, apparently, were losing money) and built nine new ferries, making 18 in all."

* * * *

"BEFORE LONG," he went on, "we found we were not only operating at a profit, but we were taking business away from the airline which had been shuttling passengers between the island and the mainland.

"Thus far, we've drawn 90 percent of their business away from them, and we're one of the few government setups that are actually making money."

Aldous, a tall, ruddy man with a friendly smile, is under no illusions that British Columbia's experience can be repeated elsewhere on the continent—at least not with any regularity.

* * * *

"WE LIVE at such a high tempo that we can't slow down," he observed. "We've lost the art of relaxing, and traveling by ferry is really a relaxed way of living."

Nevertheless, he went on, the ferry is far from dead. Proof of this can be seen in two areas outside of his own British Columbia. In Alaska, he pointed out, ferries are beginning to carry passengers between the coastal cities; and in Hawaii, the government is considering the use of ferries to spread the tourist business to the other islands in the archipelego.

The British Columbia ferries, most of them sleek, 3,000-ton jobs which can do up to 18 knots, travel the 30-odd miles between Vancouver Island and the mainland in an hour and 40 minutes, said Aldous.

* * * *

EACH OF the boats has a capacity of 120 motor vehicles and 1,000 passengers. The whole system carries 1.5 million passengers a year, of whom 100,000 are American tourists.

"As a matter of fact, 55 percent of our California business comes from the southern part of the state," he added.

Aldous said ferries are still an integral part of Europe's transportation network. "But compared to our more functional boats, theirs are quite luxurious."

He said British Columbia and the state of Washington operate the two biggest ferry systems in the world, but that the White Star Line in Hong Kong carries the most passengers.

* * * *

TO ALDOUS, the general decline of the ferry system in North America is a sad phenomenon. And for a moment, as he reflected on that fact, his otherwise smiling face turned serious. "It's too bad," he mused, "but it seems we're losing our romance for the sea."

He might have added: except in British Columbia, where the natives and the tourists alike are choosing the ferry over the airplane, and enjoying every minute of it.

Or we'll be glad to open a "custodian for minor" account which gives him various tax advantages. When he gets a little older, he can have an account in his own name, also a joint account with his mother, another with his father and still another with his sister. With any of these accounts, his savings will grow rapidly with our daily interest policy. (His savings earn from the day received as long as they remain through the end of the quarter.) They're well protected too, for they're insured to $10,000 by an instrumentality of the United States government. There are many more reasons why he goes out of his way to save at Community. WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Sinatra's Casino Being Probed

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI)—State gaming officials Saturday were conducting an investigation to determine if singer Frank Sinatra's Cal-Neva Lodge at Lake Tahoe catered to underworld figure Sam Giancana.

If so, Sinatra could lose his gambling license at the plush hotel-casino about 30 miles from Reno.

Edward Olsen, chairman of the State Gaming Control Board, confirmed "a number of persons" had been questioned to clear up "certain discrepancies in their information."

Giancana, 53, is listed in the state's "Black Book" as persona non grata in Nevada casinos. The book, issued by gaming authorities several years ago, lists many underworld figures and warns casino operators they risk loss of their license if they cater to hoodlums. Those listed may stay at hotels where there is no gambling, however.

Sinatra would not comment on the matter. He and Dean Martin currently are appearing in the hotel's theater-restaurant.

KATHY HALES
Weeps With Joy

Big Girl Wins

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Kathy Hales of Redlands, oldest and tallest of 13 finalists, was named Maid of California at the California State Fair Saturday. She wept with joy when her name was called.

The 21-year-old brunette stands 5-10½ and weighs 136 lbs. Her measurements are 37-24-37. The girls were scored 80 per cent on beauty and the rest on poise and personality.

Earlier this year Miss Hales competed in the Miss California Contest and was named Orange Show Queen in San Bernardino County. She said she won't return to Redlands University where she studied last term, but will keep the job she got this summer as assistant buyer in a Redlands department store.

Patsy Kelly Jailed

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Comedienne Patsy Kelly was booked in county jail Saturday along with two friends on suspicion of drunkenness and disturbing the peace. "I just don't believe what happened," said the 53-year-old actress who played in many films during the thirties.

PATSY

Police said Miss Kelly "passed out" during the booking after she and her companions were taken into custody at 5 a.m. while sitting in a parked car in La Jolla.

Officers said residents in the area complained of loud talk and quarreling. Miss Kelly said her arms were bruised when patrolmen handcuffed her hands behind her back to take her to police headquarters and then to county jail.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy will visit 10 states in a five-day trip this month to inspect national parks and other projects from Pennsylvania to the West Coast.

The President will be on the trip from Sept. 25 to Sept. 29, and will visit Pennsylvania, Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, Utah, Washington, Oregon, California and Nevada.

Artist Braque Dead at 81

PARIS (AP)—Georges Braque, who joined with Pablo Picasso in launching the cubist revolution in art and altered the course of painting in the 20th century, died Saturday. He was 81.

BRAQUE

A member of Braque's family said he had been seriously ill for several months. He passed away in his Paris home in the same Left Bank area from which he and Picasso founded the cubist school of art at the turn of the century with their radical style of brazenly colored geometric patterns.

Braque's work did not find easy acceptance, and in 1908, the celebrated Salon of Autumn Gallery of then-modern painters refused to exhibit his paintings.

But the dedicated Braque continued to turn out his unprofitable paintings and introduced other innovations in the world of art until he was finally recognized as a giant of his era.

Eisenhower Party to Be Nonpartisan

WASHINGTON (AP)—Adm. Lewis Strauss said Saturday a gathering of about 700 prominent Americans in Hershey, Pa., Oct. 19 to honor former President Eisenhower will have "no political significance."

Strauss, former chairman of the Atomic Energy Comission, said politics didn't enter into the matter when former guests of Eisenhower at White House stag dinners decided to return the compliment with a celebration two days before the former President's 73rd birthday.

* * * *

"I AM SURE there will be prominent Democrats there as well as prominent Republicans," Strauss said.

There have been reports from other quarters that informal discussion of 1964 GOP presidential possibilities could be expected when Eisenhower chats with some of the party's large financial contributors who rated invitations to the White House dinners.

Despite Strauss' disavowal, it seems likely that anyone who wants to talk a little politics on the side will not be ostracized.

The former President has made it clear to associates that he intends to do all he can to see to it that a moderate Republican is the nominee. But he and his friends have not settled on any individual to challenge the acknowledged current lead of conservative Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona among those publicly mentioned for the nomination.

* * * *

GOLDWATER, who speaks at a Republican fund-raising dinner in Hershey Oct. 10, was not among those invited to the Eisenhower affair.

However, Gov. Rockefeller of New York, for whom Eisenhower seems recently to have little political enthusiasm, could turn up along with several others the former President mentioned as available for the nomination.

Rockefeller and his three brothers were included among guests at the White House stag affairs.

Blonde, 18, From N.Y. Miss USA

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP)—Michele Metrinko, 18-year-old blue-eyed blonde representing New York City, was named Miss USA Saturday.

Miss Metrinko, who stands 5 feet, 8½ inches tall and has a 36-24-36 figure, beat 44 other contestants and will represent the United States in the Miss World Contest in London in November.

The first runner-up was Miss Alabama, Kathy Miller, a 19-year-old student at the University of Southern Mississippi.

* * * *

Third runner-up was Miss Arkansas, Kathlene Darden, 18, a greeneyed brunette from Little Rock.

Miss Metrinko is a student at Georgetown University, majoring in international affairs. She has modeled for photographers and in fashion shows to help pay her tuition.

Her hobbies include dance, drama, singing, and debate. She served as a disc jockey in a Washington, D. C., radio station while going to school.

Rainstorm Hits Railway, Bus Lines in Japan

TOKYO (AP)—A rainstrom cut through western and central Japan Saturday disrupting railway and bus service in numerous places. National police headquarters said one person was known dead and eight others were injured in the storm that brought up to six inches of rain in less than 10 hours in northwestern Japan.

The National Railway Corp. reported nearly 150,000 commuters stranded as trains were suspended or delayed. The Maritime Safety Board said five or six small vessels capsized in central western Japan and at least two crew members were reported missing.

Navy Nets Future Flyer

TEARS TURNED INTO TRIUMPH AS TIPPY TAKES OVER BASE

By ANDY PARK

Tippy's tears turned to triumph Saturday when he took over the Los Alamitos Naval Air Station—with the express permission of Commanding Officer Capt. William P. Tanner.

Tippy, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest T. Hickox, of 2952 Angler Lane, Rossmoor, had been to the base before, to see the Blue Angels, the model airplane show and watch the jets on Aug. 4 when the air station held open house.

His parents couldn't take him, they had to work. So Tippy talked his 16-year-old brother Timmy into borrowing a bicycle to ride out to the station.

Timmy borrowed a 10-speed racing bike from his friend, Mike Anderson, and off went Tippy along with more than 100,000 other visitors to the annual Navy air show.

* * * *

BUT WHEN Tippy got ready to leave late in the day, the bike was gone.

Tippy told it to the Marines, guarding the station. The Marines told it to the Navy, guarding the Marines. And the Navy told it to Tanner, commanding the Navy.

(Somebody also told it to Vice Adm. Fitzhugh Lee, Chief of Naval Air Training, who was a guest that Saturday at the station. That did it! Tanner told Cmdr. Charles F. Means who, in turn, told LCDR. Reno Bresso who, in turn took over.)

Bresso passed the hat. And a naval officer's hat can hold a lot of hospitality. Money was collected to buy Tippy a new bike to replace the one Timmy had borrowed from Mike. (You still with us?)

But, by then, Hickox had replaced Mike's bike. So the Navy just turned around and turned the base over to Tippy and his family.

Saturday, Tippy, twin brothers Teddy and Terry, 5, mother and dad, were welcomed through the Main Gate by Bresso.

First, a tour of the station in VIP style. Up to the top of the control tower, in and out of the jets, chow with the sailors at noon. ("He never eats corned beef and cabbage at home," Mom sighed, "but here, he thinks it's wonderful!") salutes from the sailors on duty, a movie all about a career as a naval aviator, "It's never too early to get in a plug," Bresso observed.) and then, a spin in the captain's chair.

Capt. Tanner presented Tippy with a model of the latest Navy jet fighter, pictures for Teddy and Terry and, last but not least, a heart-to-heart chat with the boys, answering all their questions.

Tippy took it all in, checked the medals on Tanner's chest, and allowed: "I might be a Navy pilot, when I grow up!"

Tanner—a practical man—considers that statement a promissory note.

FLYING HIGH with Los Alamitos NAS commander, Captain William P. Tanner, are Terry (or Teddy), Tippy, and Teddy (or Terry) Hickox. The NAS skipper turned over the base to the boys Saturday because Tippy lost a bike the last time he visited.

Sen. Engle Sits Up, Expected to Leave Hospital in 3 Weeks

By VIRGINIA KELLY
L. P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—Sen. Clair Engle (D-Calif.) sat up for the first time Saturday since undergoing brain surgery and his wife has every hope he will be recuperating at home by Sept. 21—the senator's 51st birthday.

Mrs. Engle, obviously cheered by her husband's progress since his operation last weekend, called to tell this writer the doctors say Sen. Engle will be allowed to sit up for increasingly long periods of time.

* * * *

HIS PROGRESS is most satisfactory and he should be able to go home in a few days—barring complications — the doctors have told Mrs. Engle.

Meantime, Mrs. Engle is keeping a careful list of all the expressions of concern and sympathy that poured in on the senator since the operation. Hundreds of cards and letters have dropped into his mailbox, not only from California, but from across the nation.

Mrs. Engle is staying with Sen. and Mrs. Stephen Young, Ohio Democrats, so as to be nearer the hospital where her husband is recuperating.

But the expressions of friendship and concern that have come his way have no relationship to partisan politics. As was to be expected, the senator's fellow Democrats in the Senate and former Democratic Congressmen from the days when he served in the House of Representatives, have rallied to his side.

The California Republican delegation quickly expressed its sympathy and concern.

One of the more lovely of the bouquets placed in his hospital room was from Sen. Everett Dirksen, Illinois Republican and minority leader of the Senate.

* * * *

ANOTHER beautiful bouquet was from Sen. Thurston B. Morton of Kentucky, chairman of the Senate Republican Campaign Committee. He is a good personal friend of Sen. Engle, and although they differ on issues in the Senate, the friendship remains strong.

Southern Democrats, with whom Sen. Engle has had his differences, also have told this writer how very fond they are of Sen. Engle personally.

Mrs. Engle said the senator told her he will read each card he has received before he completes his recuperation and is back on the job in the Senate.

White House Notes Few Vehicles New

President as was the Douglas DC-6B which is used to go into airports which cannot accommodate jets."

Byrd—"A 21-foot Lincoln Continental automobile and three other family cars in addition to Secret Service vehicles and the regular White House fleet."

Comment: "This is the President's bubble-top which was ordered by the previous administration and delivered during this administration, and which is leased from the Ford Motor Co. for an infinitesimal sum—so small that I would embarrass the Ford Motor Co. if I told you what it was.

Byrd—"A special railroad car."

Comment: "There have been special railroad cars available to Presidents ever since railroads were organized."

(The White House has no railroad car; the last one was retired to a rail museum in the Truman administration.)

Byrd—"Two yachts, another yacht available from the Navy and a racing yawl supplied through the Coast Guard."

Comment: "Two yachts, these are the same yachts that were described as cabin cruisers by the previous administration. The only change is they have been renamed from the names President Eisenhower gave them to the names President Kennedy gave them. Another yacht from the Navy—I presume he is speaking of the Sequoia, which is assigned to the Secretary of the Navy on which the President has been a guest several times, finally, a racing yawl, the Manitou which is a sailing ship which the President, I think, has used four or five times in 2½ years. It was only available to the President when he was in the area where the boat was."

The President uses a 92-foot yacht named Honey Fitz, the nickname of his maternal grandfather. A second yacht is the Patrick J., named for his paternal grandfather. Former President Eisenhower named the same boats the Barbara Anne and the Susie E. — after his granddaughters—when he used them.

Arizona Car Crash Kills Redondo Tot

A Redondo Beach baby was killed and four members of his family were injured Friday night in an auto accident 22 miles east of Kingman, Ariz., on U.S. 66, it was reported here Saturday.

Dead is Paul Wayne Xavier, 4 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Xavier, of 2409 Hadley Lane.

The parents and their three other children, Jeanette, 5, Mark, 4, and Craig, 2, are in a Kingman hospital. Officers said none was believed to be in critical condition.

The Arizona Highway Patrol said the Xavier car struck a culvert and overturned.

Pianist Refuses to Play With Robot

NEWCASTLE, England (UPI)—Pianist Alan Blomerey has refused to play on a commercial television program to the accompaniment of a robot drum because it was "a threat to musicians."

The drum, which can beat out a samba or a cha-cha-cha, played alone.

Turncoat Succumbs in Moscow

LONDON, Sunday (AP)—Guy Burgess, British Foreign Office offical who fled to Russia in 1951, has died in a Moscow hospital after a heart attack, friends reported today.

A message announcing his death was received Saturday by his 76-year-old mother, Mrs. Eve Basset. It came from Melinda MacLean, American wife of Donald MacLean, the Foreign Office security chief who defected with Burgess.

Burgess, 53, slipped out of Britain with MacLean 12 years ago and set off one of the greatest spy scandals of the Cold War.

* * * *

MacLEAN had been first secretary at the British Embassy in Washington and had worked in Security in the Middle East. Together Burgess and MacLean held a host of Anglo-American secrets.

They were tipped off by yet another defector, Harold "Kim" Philby.

Philby was exposed as the third man in the affair this year. He vanished from Beirut in January and the British have evidence that he too is in the Soviet Union.

Utility Firm Reveals $714-Million Plan

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—A $714 million electric service expansion program during the next 17 years was announced Saturday by the San Diego Gas & Electric Co.

President Joseph F. Sinnott said the program would add about 3,275,000 kilowatts of generating capability, almost quadrupling the present capacity of the company's four plants. The plan envisages 14 new generating units including four nuclear facilities at a cost of $340 million.

Heavenly Sign, in Its Way

As anyone who knows anything at all knows, there is no such a thing as a skyhook.

But there is something mighty like one. Ask James Owens of 5103 Carmelynn St., Torrance. The closest thing there is to a skyhook came unhooked high in the sky and crashed through Owens' living-room window.

A piece of aluminum tubing and fabric 7½ feet long, it narrowly missed children in the Owens' patio, smashed the window and landed on Owens' couch.

Chuck Burnes of Aircraft Associates, Long Beach, said the tubing was the "tail flag" of a skysign towed by one of his planes. It is what keeps the sign straight so people can read it—just like a skyhook.

But, "the plane hit a cross wind and it whipped off," he said.

And Owens. Was he thinking of skyhooks when his window shattered?

"No," he said, in the practical tones of a father. "I thought one of the kids had done it. It looked like a beach umbrella."

Marching Negroes Scattered

march tonight after a mass rally at a church.

Police Chief Dennis Songy blocked their path two blocks from Griffon's house where they had come to ask him to use his influence on local officials here to meet Negro demands — including formation of a bi-racial committee.

Songy told them he was stopping them to let football traffic from a jamboree pass by. In a few moments, 8-10 mounted state police arrived.

* * * *

SONGY ordered the Negroes to break up. They did'nt. He signaled the troopers to charge.

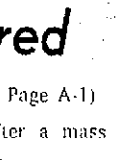

About 50 white bystanders watched, shouting encouragement to police.

One rider went after Brooks Read, a TV new director from Baton Rouge, who was filming the scene.

U.S., Utah Differ Over Mine Blast

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—A dispute erupted Saturday between Utah Gov. George D. Clyde and Interior Secretary Stewart Udall over safety practices at the Moab Patash Mine where 18 men were killed Tuesday.

The governor issued a statement in which he said records of the Harrison International Co., the contractor, and Texas Gulf Sulphur Co., operator of the mine, "fully document compliance with the state mine inspector's orders and recommendations, as well as action taken by them to initiate their own safety programs.

* * * *

"THE SATISFACTORY character of the safety program in the mine is further attested by the inspector for the contractor's insurance company."

Udall said Wednesday the "contractors were warned of the severe danger only three weeks ago when methane gas was ignited while workers were drilling rock bolt holes in the drifts where the explosion occurred."

"Mr. Udall ignored the facts in his use of the Utah mine explosion as an example to underscore 'laxness of safety practices in some segments of the industry,'" the governor claimed. "Few facts were available concerning the explosion and its causes at the time the Udall statement was issued last Wednesday."

However, Clyde noted, "we now know the explosion did not occur at the working base, but in an area near the shaft, some 2,000 feet away from the working space in a different mine opening than the referred to in the Udall statement."

* * * *

UDALL MADE the statement while ordering a federal investigation of the disaster which was survived by seven men. Clyde also ordered a state investigation which he said "will document the safety programs and practices of all parties concerned and which will determine as nearly as possible the cause of the explosion."

The governor said he "fully" expected the reports on the investigation will show the conscientious efforts and good faith of the state [illegible] operating parties involved . . ."

Clyde said Mine Inspector John W. Holmes of the State Industrial Commission made 10 inspections of the property since May 1951, shortly after construction of the mine was started. Five of the inspections were this year with the most recent state inspection made on July 30.

Records indicated the latest visit of authorized personnel from the Interior Department was on July 23.

Audience Listens In on Slaying

SANTA CRUZ, Brazil (AP)—A state legislator was shot dead in a radio station Saturday while he was on the air in a political debate.

Police said his opponent burst into the studio, drew a pistol and killed him instantly.

Radio listeners in this city of 60,000 northwest of Porto Alegre heard sudden shouting followed by the sound of firing.

Slain was Euclides Kleimann, a legislator for Rio Grande do Sul.

Police arrested Floriano Peixoto, a Santa Cruz city councillor, and held him incommunicado.

* * * *

KLEIMANN'S wife Margit was killed one year ago in Porto Alegre. Police have not been able to find out who killed her or why.

Kleimann and Peixoto had been given equal time on the radio in a statewide election campaign. Each was to alternate a day on the air.

Kleimann was a member of the Social Democratic Party. Peixoto belongs to President Joao Goulart's Brazilian Labor Party. The parties are bitter adversaries in the election scheduled for November.

EIGHTY-YEAR-OLD WOULD HAVE MADE BETTER TIME EXCEPT FOR FALLS

LAND HO!

most of the way, said Sloan, who also skippered the "Queen" on the four previous trips.

Ashbridge, who lives at 16520 Grand Ave., Elsinore, said Saturday's trip was the roughest of all five he's taken.

"Maybe I'm getting old," he observed seriously. "I was worried whether I'd hang together. Right now my muscles are a little sore but you can bet they'll be worse tomorrow."

"I'll tell you one thing," he continued. "I won't make next year's trip without getting in some more practice. I skied only three hours all year before this one, and that just isn't enough."

Ashbridge admittedly was "very tired and winded" at the end of the trying journey, but Sloan said the little octogenarian nevertheless managed to walk a mile and a half when they got ashore at Catalina Harbor.

ASHBRIDGE sported a heavy tan and a slight bulge around the middle as he tested his sea legs Saturday.

Before getting under way, he took a short practice run. Putting on a smile as wide as the channel itself, the British-born boat builder went through a series of maneuvers for the benefit of newsmen. If there were any doubts about either his skill or his durability, they were decisively laid to rest then.

Last year, when he made the trip in record time, the boat-builder was hurried along some by the presence of a 12-foot shark. He spotted the big fish after taking his one and only fall of the trip.

38-MILE SKI, TWO SPILLS

ON SATURDAY'S jaunt, skipper Sloan and his son, Price Sloan Jr., spotted a shark, but Ashbridge said he was too busy water-skiing to nitice it himself.

Despite his aches and pains, Ashbridge said he still intends to water-ski the 27 miles from Catalina Harbor to Avalon Monday.

Is he worried?

"Oh, no, this is going to be easy," he chortled.

LBJ Plans Trip to Scandinavia

By BILL BROOM
I. P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—In its preoccupation with power politics in Europe and wooing the underprivileged countries, the United States becomes vulnerable to accusations that it forgets its friends and allies who are neither big nor destitute.

Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson will set out Monday to erase that charge in at least one area of the globe. He is making a two-week state visit to the nations of Scandinavia. No United States President or vice president has visited them while in office.

There are many reasons for such a tour. Millions of Americans, particularly in Minnesota, Wisconsin and the northern tier of states have strong ethnic and cultural ties with their forebears' homelands.

* * * *

THERE IS, in addition, strong U. S. rapport with the Scandinavian countries in foreign affairs, international peace organization and in trade. The vice president plans to place particular emphasis on the latter in extensive talks with government leaders.

The discussions are expected to center primarily around the effect that new world trade patterns will have on Scandinavia.

According to the state department, the five countries, Finland, Sweden, Norway, Denmark and Iceland are among the nations on the outside looking in as Western Europe's Common Market coalesces into one.

As a member of the "outer seven" in the European free trade area with Great Britain, the Scandinavian countries were left out on a limb when Britain's entry into the Common Market struck a snag named Charles de Gaulle. Their admittance was tied to solution of many of the same problems that the Common Market and Britain found it impossible to solve for the present.

The State Department prefaced the vice president's departure with a statement that he is making the trip "to express the friendship of the United States and pay tribute to the Scandinavian people for their many accomplishments."

* * * *

THE TOUR will follow a pattern Johnson has established in his previous trips to Southeast Asia, the Middle East, Western Europe and the Caribbean. That is to say, hardly any corner of the terrain, no matter how remote, is immune to a spur-of-the-moment stop from LBJ, the onetime host and sponsor of a Pakistani camel driver. Reindeer drivers in Lapland, beware!

The schedule calls for a day in Ronaniemi, on the Arctic Circle, to meet the people of Lapland, a stop at a fishing village in Norway, visits to fairs, speeches to university students, and talks with labor and business groups.

En route back to the United States from Iceland, Johnson will visit American airmen who man the U. S. radar and air defense at Thule, Greenland.

* * * *

ALL TOLD, he has more than 40 speeches scheduled for the 15-day, 15,000-mile tour. Since taking office in January 1961, Johnson has traveled 115,000 miles while making official visits to 17 foreign countries where he has made 110 speeches.

While the vice president tills the diplomatic and political fields, his wife will concentrate on visits to farms and rural co-operatives. Daughter Lynda Bird, a college sophomore, has been invited by the host governments and will visit university campuses and student groups.

* * * *

IN A predeparture statement, the vice president said: "I am looking forward with great pleasure to visiting the leaders and the peoples of each of the countries. I hope this trip will serve to remind all of us of their close and friendly ties with the United States.

Boatmen! You Can't Sail Across Pier J

Yachtsmen were warned by the Coast Guard Saturday that Long Beach's new Pier J is in the awkward stage.

It is too low in the water to drive across much too high to sail across.

The 310-acre, man-made peninsula rising from the floor of the ocean already has taken a toll of 50 boats either sunk or damaged, the Coast Guard said.

In a special alert to weekend sailors, 11th Coast Guard District Headquarters here has mailed 12,000 copies of charts of the construction area to boat landings and small - craft organizations throughout Southern California.

The pier, which is being constructed by land fill, will be the site of the 1967-68 California World's Fair. Much of it is close enough to the surface to rip the bottoms of boats at high tide.

The Coast Guard noted U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey charts 5147-5148 clearly define boundaries of the construction area, along with the structures and lights which mark the danger area.

$7-Million Contract

A $7-million contract for development of the Shillelagh tank-mounted missile system has been awarded the Aeronutronic Division of Philco Corp., a subsidiary of Ford Motor Co., the Army said Saturday. Work on the surface-to-surface missile will be done at the firm's facilities in Newport Beach.

Paris Clime Tres Rotten

PARIS (AP)—The Weather Bureau backed up with facts Saturday what every tourist and Parisian has come to know this month: the weather was rotten.

On 23 days it rained. The sun was out only 160 hours. The average is 219. The average temperature this month was 61 degrees.

Brown Raps Foreign Aid Cut

BONN, Germany (UPI) — Gov. Brown of California Saturday called Congress' rejection of President Kennedy's minimum foreign-aid request "a tragedy."

Brown said, "Congress just does not understand the success we are having with our foreign-aid program."

* * * *

HIS COMMENT came at the end of a European tour which included Ireland, Germany, France, Italy, Belgium, Switzerland and Yugoslavia.

"What we did in Europe with our aid program," Brown told newsmen "was the greatest advance in defense against Communism in the last 15 years.

"This was clear to me even in Yugoslavia. Unquestionably communism has been slowed by our aid programs. It is not cheap, but it is cheaper than another war."

Brown said the major purposes of his combined business-pleasure tour have been to study possibilities for increasing sales of California products here and to study medical and health insurance plans.

"California can sell a great deal more here in Europe, and can do more to stimulate trade," he said.

* * * *

BROWN said he may follow the precedent set by New York state, which has established a liaison affice in Brussels to maintain contact with the high commission of the six-nation European Common Market and the U.S. mission attached to it.

Brown indicated he may even go a step further and establish some kind of California trade office in each of the six Common Market countries and also in Switzerland.

BEACH Combing

with MALCOLM FOLEY

OLD WORDS have new meanings, and to some of today's kids, those are the only meanings..

Friend of mine discovered this when he and his wife took their granddaughter and friend, both elevenish, to their mountain cabin for a weekend.

It was a chilly night at that high altitude, and about 11 p.m. both girls complained that their heads were cold.

"You should have night-caps," said the grandmother.

The girls looked at each other in amazement.

"Do you mean," asked the granddaughter, "that it would help keep our heads warm if we had a little something out of grandad's bottle?"

AUTO insurance rates are abominably high because of the frequency of accidents, the high charges for repairs, and the outlandish verdicts juries tend to render when insurance is involved in a damage suit trial.

But in my experience I've observed one saving factor in this otherwise painful situation and it deserves mention.

That is the courteous treatment and excellent service generally given by auto insurance agents.

I've had dealings with a number of these fellows and have found them uniformly prompt, helpful, understanding and efficient. And that's something in a world that sometimes seems to have gone mad for the fast buck and to heck with everything else.

The rates are awful but by golly, the services and general attitude toward the customer is wonderful.

GOSSIP about "wild kids" who hang around Seal Beach has been heard by Mrs. Wm. Testa of Long Beach, and on the basis of a recent experience she is not convinced.

After a recent Cub Scout picnic the Testa car got off the paved parking area and soon was imbedded up to the chassis in sand.

Within two minutes a group of young men, who came running from all directions, came to their aid. They lifted and tugged and soon had the car on solid ground.

"If these are the wild ones, give us more like them," wrote Mrs Testa in a note to this dept.

KIDS WHO make frivolous calls on the telephone are getting to be a local nuisance. It's an old adolescent fad which appears to have had a recent active revival.

One resident tells about a call received the other day:

"Hello," said a teen-age feminine voice. "I don't know you and you don't know me. But will you answer a question?"

The householder agreed and the voice went on: "How do you place six elephants in a Volkswagen?"

It just happened that the householder had heard this one on TV the night before and he promptly replied:

"Sure. Three in the front seat and three in the back seat."

The girl on the other end of the line gasped. "I sure don't like smart Alecs," she said.

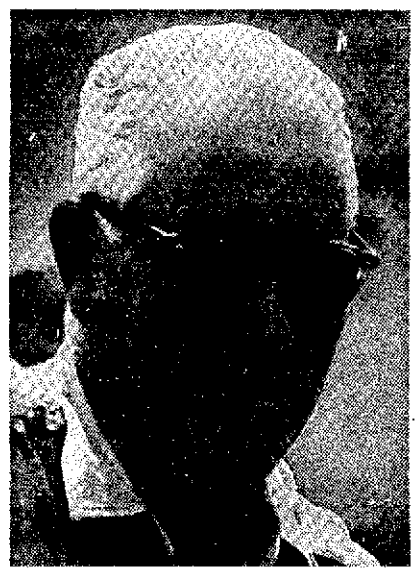

DRIFTWOOD — When an emergency illness occurred in the home, a northside resident rushed out to get a prescription filled at a pharmacy. No one was at home with the sick person, and he wanted to make it quick. It was a holiday and in frantic driving in his area, he found three liquor stores open and every drugstore locked tight . . . They've about got the new sidewalk ready along the Seventh St. side of VA Hospital where it has so long been needed by State College students and faculty pedestrians. Odd thing: It goes inside the concrete fence, not outside along the highway. That great landscaping at VA should make it one of the most pleasant walks in the area.

White Treasure from the Black Lagoon

CRYSTALLINE salt lining channels of Baja California's Black Warrior Lagoon is the key to riches hidden in the desolate desert wilderness.

BLACK WARRIOR LAGOON — Isolated, primitive and majestically empty, Baja California has been breaking men's hearts and smashing their dreams for more than 400 years.

A peninsular land of burning deserts, barren mountains, desolate shores, shimmering mirages and the nightmare Bonjum trees, Baja has beaten the best sent its way.

The long line of losers since the first white man came ashore in 1533 have included the Spanish conquistadores, the Mission padres, Yankee whalers and a wily collection of business, mining, ranching and land adventurers.

But at last this hostile country, nearly twice as long as Florida, has met its match in Exportadora de Sal, a U. S.-owned company which has prospered from the peninsula's inhospitable ways.

EXPORTADORA DE SAL is the latest international adventure of Daniel Keith Ludwig, a Michigan millionaire who is the world's biggest individual ship operator, with a $350 million empire that includes 15 per cent of Union Oil Co.

Ludwig, who avoids publicity, has pumped more than $18 million into Exportadora since he took over in 1957 and has made it the world's largest and busiest solar salt works.

The Ludwig enterprise is situated on 225,000 acres of tidal marsh and desert country which he leases from the Mexican government. The leasehold encompasses Guerrero Negro (Black Warrior) and Scammon's lagoons, a pair of big natural inlets about midway down the western coast of Baja and 500 miles south of Long Beach.

Scammon's, bigger of the two, is famed as the gathering grounds of the grey whales which each year migrate 6,000 miles from the Bering Sea to bear their young in its warm waters.

BECAUSE TWO of the Pacific basin's most important ocean streams—the Humboldt and Japanese currents—converge just south of Scammon's, the area gets only about two inches of rainfall a year and is continually swept by dry landward winds.

This and the existence of great beds of ancient salt, 40 feet thick in places, which surround the lagoon, makes the locale an ideal place for a solar salt works.

"We couldn't have found a better spot to make salt if we had looked the world over," says Percival J. (Sandy) Cuttings, 61-year-old globe-trotting mining engineer who is the field boss of Exportadora.

Simply understated, Cuttings and his crew of 140 have only to let the sea into huge spreading basins and the wind and sun do the rest—evaporating water and crystallizing the salt.

THE SEA WATER, brought in from Scammon's Lagoon, through an intricate system of canals and tidal gates, is fed into 22,000 acres of ponds where—in stages lasting up to nine months—an eight to 10 inch thick layer of almost pure (99.4 per cent sodium chloride is created.

Until two years ago when Cuttings was hired by Ludwig, the operation was limping along the brink of trouble.

He assembled a huge fleet of special harvesting machines, trucks and trailers and put the whole operation on a tight timetable.

Production soared and last year his salt harvesters, which can tear up the salt beds and load the $65,000 truck-trailer rigs at a rate of six tons per minute, gathered 1,151,500 tons of industrial salt for shipment to Japan, the U. S. and Canada.

Nearly 100 ships called at the project's deep water port at the headwaters of the lagoon to load this cargo.

These ships carried 700,000 tons to Japan, 400,000 to Seattle-Tacoma and most of the remainder to the operation's newest overseas terminal, the Ocean Salt Co. on Pier A in Long Beach Harbor.

The Pier A facility, which now includes a $500,000 stockpile and a fully-automatic bulkloader, is the distribution point for the southwestern U. S.

THE SALT is used in more than a score of industrial processes including the production of missile fuel, chlorine, paper and lumber bleaches, water softeners and livestock food.

The Long Beach terminal is supported by the world's biggest salt ship, the 66,000-ton SS Argyll, and has plans for major expansions in the very near future including the construction of a refinery.

Where other American interests in Mexico have been accused of exploiting the country, the charge cannot be leveled at Exportadora, says Cuttings.

The company's employes (truckers earn up to $16 a day) are the highest paid industrial workers in the country.

"And we are not exploiting a resource, we are creating one," he says.

Spenders Rule Budget Roost

TALK AS THEY WILL about the relationship between assessment methods and the tax rate increase, county officials realize that the essential factor in any tax picture is spending.

When the county spends more, it has to take in more revenue, which can come mainly from taxes. Increased property development provides the basis for the assessment of additional funds, but this increase has a very hard time keeping up with the demands for expenditures.

The big trouble is that the spenders have strong, well-organized lobbies, and the payers don't.

A COUNTY SUPERVISOR told us the other day: "We hear plenty from the taxpayers when they get their tax bills, but little from them when we're making up the budget. The people we hear from at that time are the groups that want pay raises or more money for projects they're interested in."

The special interest groups exert constant pressure, and there is little or no counter-pressure. An official is naturally responsive to what he hears from the public. He may be reluctant to approve added spending, but with no showing of public support for resistance, he yields to the spending drive. And so the direction of public spending is always UP, never down.

A psychological factor enters here. People who want things are spirited, inspired and have an aura of progressiveness about them. Those who oppose these bright schemes are looked upon as grumpy, mossbackish, unimaginative. Hence there's a reluctance to line up openly on the negative side and enthusiasm is always the other way. It's not easy to be enthusiastically negative.

OBVIOUSLY THERE'S A NEED for a strong, articulate grassroots organization representing the great mass of taxpayers; an organization which will analyze spending proposals, support worthy projects, and carry on a concerted effort to hold the line on wasteful and unnecessary expenditures.

UNFORTUNATELY, many of the people who oppose excessive spending are found among the groups making special demands. The citizen who is a big spender at budget time and an irate taxpayer at collection time just doesn't make sense.

THE IRATE TAXPAYERS need to make up their minds what they really want—and then do something about it. This is an era of demonstrations and marches: How about a taxpayers' march at least once a year at budget time to let the County Board of Supervisors know that the public does care about how its money is spent?

Labor Is Bigger, More Confused

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Every Labor Day finds the American labor situation more confused than it was the year before.

But this is partly paradox. The confusion is not worse. It's just that there is more of it as everything grows bigger.

Actually, more people are employed at higher wages and under better working conditions than ever before in the country's history.

In June the average weekly earnings of factory workers passed the $100 mark for the first time in history.

The minimum wage for workers in interstate commerce industries goes from $1.15 to $1.25 an hour on Sept. 23. The maximum work week will drop to 44 hours at the same time, with overtime bringing one-and-a-half times the basic rate.

THIS WILL AFFECT about 24 million of the 44 million non-supervisory employes of private industry. Minimum wage for another 3.5 million workers previously not covered by the Fair Labor Standards Act will rise to $1 an hour. This will leave another 16.5 million workers still uncovered by the act.

A law passed last year, requiring equal pay for women doing the same work as men, will go into effect June 11, 1964.

Farm employment at eight million workers in July was just half of what it was in the 1910-14 base period. But farm labor earnings are nearly seven times higher than they were 50 years ago.

THOSE ARE THE HIGH LIGHTS on the credit side of the ledger. The problems of the unfortunates whose troubles haven't been solved make up the debit entries. And the inventory of their woes is a constant reminder of what still needs to be done.

The roughly 6 per cent of the nonfarm labor force unemployed—more than four million out of 70 million workers—constitutes the worst blight on the economic landscape.

In all, 14 million workers were unemployed for at least part of last year.

The real underlying cause of unemployment is lack of basic education and training in advanced skills for which there are actual shortages of qualified workers.

The cure for this would seem to be in the nation's school systems and institutions of higher learning—not in labor laws.

But the devices government has come up with to reduce unemployment—public works, manpower training and development, depressed area redevelopment and Social Security—have so far proved inadequate.

Hum of Traffic Now Drowns Out the Roosters in Rumania

BUCHAREST, Rumania—Five years ago when I visited Bucharest, it was a beautiful city where the roosters woke you up in the morning and where the chief sign of free enterprise was the voice of the shoeshine boy drumming up trade.

Today, Bucharest is still beautiful, but the roosters no longer awaken you. The roosters may still crow but they are drowned out by the hum of traffic in the square below. And the voice of the shoeshine boy has been drowned out by the wheels of industry which have been turning so fast that Rumania ranks next to Japan as the fastest-growing country in the world.

PEARSON

Because President Kennedy has set co-existence as the national policy of the U.S.A. and because it has seemed to me important that we learn more about the Communist nations with which we must co-exist, I have been visiting some of these nations around the Black Sea. This included a long motor trip through Rumania.

I found an amazing seaside development near Constanta with new hotels, attractive restaurants, and beaches rivaling Miami. In fact, one Rumanian beach, named Mamaia, seemed patterned after the famous Florida resort city. Mamaia, Rumania, has hotels named Thomas, Neptune, Park Victoria, Rialto, Delta, and has planned them so that wide areas of beautifully planted gardens shout with color in between. They do not jostle and crowd each other as do the hotels in Atlantic City or some parts of Miami. At another beautiful beach area on the other side of Constanta — Eforia, the crowds stream by with the same kind of sports clothes and the same appearance of prosperity as the crowds on Collins Avenue.

In Cluj, Transylvania, in northwestern Rumania, I saw a mixture of the old and the new, the Rumanian, with the Hungarian—a university with old buildings but modern dormitories and a spic-and-span cafeteria able to seat 1,000 at a time; Roman Catholic churches and orthodox churches, some of them rebuilt with government funds.

In Brasov in the Carpathian mountains, I saw a factory turning out 22,000 45-horsepower tractors annually, selling abroad for $2,000. At Plesti, the famous oil center which the U.S. Air Corps tried to knock out during the war, I saw a giant refinery — purchased from the United States — in operation. The Rumanians, incidentally, have developed an oil drill which can operate at great depths without bringing it up to the surface as often as American drills and which they are selling in competition with our drills.

We also had to stop for picturesque but inefficient oxcarts loaded with hay, herds of sheep, and young porkers that spilled out over the highway; and we saw farmers on the hillsides cradling oats with hand cradles that haven't been used on American farms for 50 years.

But despite the backwardness of farm methods, things were moving. There was a spirit of work and enterprise in the air. This was true on the farms and in the cities. Rows of new apartments for workers, and rather handsome apartments, were going up everywhere.

The Rumanians have copied the Soviet technique of taking slabs of concrete and throwing up an apartment house on an assembly-line basis in about 40 days, and Mayor Jon Marcush of Brazov showed me one apartment house, almost completed, which he said hadn't been there two weeks before.

Brazov, a city of 240,000, built 1,800 new apartment units last year, and by August this year had finished 1,600 more. The mayor of Tirgu Mures, a Hungarian city in the heart of Rumania, reported that 1,960 apartments had been built with state funds in 1962 and 3,700 new homes with private funds. He explained in reply to questions that the individual homes had been financed from savings or through loans, in much the same way we finance private building in the U.S.A.

He also revealed that Rumanians not only keep bank accounts but are permitted to have anonymous or numbered accounts, as in Switzerland. This was a bit of capitalism, not permitted in the U.S.A., which I had not expected to find in a socialist state.

The mayor added: "Most of the numbered accounts are opened by husbands who don't want their wives to know how much money they have."

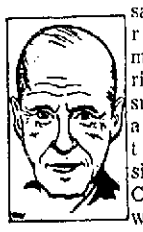

In Bucharest, the great hulking statue of Joe Stalin which towered over the public square five years ago has been removed; also most of the red signs on bridges and overpasses enteating the Rumanian people to work for "the party." They have been replaced by signs which read: "Long live peace and friendship between the people."

DAVID LAWRENCE

Needed: A 'March' Against Crime

WASHINGTON — If a "march on Washington" is the most effective way nowadays to attract national attention, who will organize the next "march?"

Civil rights are supposed to include the right to be safe from robbery, from assault, from rape, from murder. These rights are presumably guaranteed by those provisions in the Constitution which protect the "life, liberty, and property" of all citizens.

LAWRENCE

Orlando W. Wilson, Superintendent of Police in the city of Chicago, said recently:

"Everybody seems to be organizing today to protect civil liberties. I would like to organize the victims of criminal assaults who have been robbed and raped in our streets."

Mr. Wilson is a leading authority on police work, having served as police chief in other cities and as dean of the School of Criminology of the University of California before going to Chicago. He said in a speech this month to a committee of the American Bar Assn.:

"Crime is overwhelming our society . . . in the name of protecting individual liberties, we are permitting so many technicalities to creep into our system of criminal justice that we are no longer convicting a sufficiently high proportion of guilty criminals."

In the nation's capital, Police Chief Robert Murray tells of the frustration among his men due to restrictions on their efforts to enforce the law and due to court decisions that have liberated criminals through technicalities. Chief Murray says:

"The criminal is being afforded more legal protection than the ordinary citizen. I often wonder who, besides the police, is concerned about the rights of citizens to be free from attack by criminals."

Crime in the United States is getting out of hand generally, but some amazing statistics have been issued lately showing the relationship between strict law enforcement and the crime rate. Official figures show, for instance, that in 1962 in Washington, D.C., aggravated assaults were the highest per capita in America. Yet, in Seattle, Wash., and in Milwaukee, Wis.—where criminals are dealt with as criminals—the percentage was about one-tenth of what these crimes were in the national capital.

Chicago has begun an intensive effort to crack down particularly on crimes against persons, and is making progress. But the police chief there thinks crime will never be cleaned up until restrictions that hamstring the police force are removed and court procedures that favor the criminal are changed.

A high-ranking official of the Federal Bureau of Investigation is quoted as saying:

"It's very difficult for law-enforcement people to take the view that crime is a disease and that every person who commits a crime is mentally ill. It's very difficult to tell a policeman who has stood before the blazing gun of a hardened criminal that he's just facing some mentally ill person who should be put away for a while.

"If a person is adjudged insane by competent authorities and his incarceration administered properly, then we in law enforcement can have no kick. But when that person is released to prey upon the public, we are appalled."

The House of Representatives has passed a bill providing for a change in criminal laws that will help the police in the nation's capital, which is governed solely by federal laws. The Senate, however, is under pressure to block the effort, with opposition coming from so-called "liberal" groups and organizations which are more concerned with safeguards for the "civil rights" of those accused of crimes.

The newspapers tell daily of murders, assaults, robberies, rapes and other crimes. But since people in one section of a state are far away from the scene of a vicious crime or don't know the victims, the easy assumption is that "it can't happen here." Yet in the city of Washington, for example, people in the very best residential neighborhoods, as well as those in other areas, do not dare to venture out alone at night.

JIM M'CAULEY

Whites Now Discriminated Against in the Job Market?

I, P-T Sacramento Bureau

SACRAMENTO—Jobless white persons in California are being discriminated against, a key state employment executive charged this week.

The disclosure was made exclusively to The Independent, Press-Telegram by an official who asked that his name be withheld for fear of reprisals from Sacramento or Washington.

McCAULEY

He revealed that whites, Negroes and other racial blocs no longer get equal treatment at the hiring desk. Negroes are accorded preferential treatment as a result of bureaucratic pressure to appease Negro citizen groups.

Some California employers are giving job orders to the California Employment Service specifying that they want Negroes and will not hire whites.

The key employment official said these factors account for the present wave of won't-hire-whites policies:

1. The Pentagon has passed on the word that all defense contractors and sub-contractors must have a quota of Negro employees if they hope to land future contracts.

2. A similar edict from Gov. Brown that all successful bidders on state public works projects must comply with a Negro anti-discrimination clause.

3. Threats of Negro boycotts unless more Negroes are hired.

California employers are scrambling to place more Negroes in jobs so they will be in line for further federal and state contracts. That means that most of the new jobs go to Negroes if qualified Negroes are available.

One large Southern California defense contractor still isn't hiring Negroes for back-plant jobs. But it is filling all of its front-office desks with Negro secretaries so visiting Pentagon brass will be impressed by its spirit of integration.

The state official who blew the whistle on the hire-Negroes-first policy has long championed equal employment oportunities, and personally hired several Negroes for his staff. "But I think things have gone too far when Negroes are given special treatment," he declared.

California's tough anti-discrimination clause states in part:

"Non-compliance constitutes a material breach of the contract for which a contractor can be placed on a non-preferred list. The state will not do business with a contractor on that list until the contractor satisfies the state that he will comply with the clause."

Ironically, the firms that are discriminating against whites are the bigoted firms that for years have refused to hire Negroes. In juckeying to catch up on a fair-sprinkling of Negroes, they are forced to exclude whites as new employees.

In Long Beach, government contracts and sub-contracts account for an estimated 30 per cent of the jobs.

THE STATE CURRENTLY has 626 public works contracts in force. That involves a $683 million outlay and an estimated 15 thousand workers.

The state also is discriminating against whites. To make its employment roster look balanced, for years some agencies have hired only Negroes for positions as janitor. Unskilled whites were turned down.

And one state official confided that on marginal cases where he would fire a white employee during the probationary period, he will keep a Negro employee on the payroll. "I am fearful of civil rights repercussions if I dismiss a Negro," he said. The governor has asked each state agency to survey its personnel to determine whether there is a reasonable representation of Negroes. If there is an unusually small percentage of Negroes in an agency, an agency chieftain must advise the governor why.

AN INDICATION of things to come: In San Francisco, the California Employment Service quietly has started recording the races of his job applicants and unemployment insurance applicants.

"The data is being compiled to secure adequate information on the relative socio-economic standing of minorities," said Albert B. Tieburg, State Director of Employment.

State and federal agencies for years have shunned making any racial notations on forms. But now policies are bending so state agencies can identify which applicants are Negroes.

Dove Season Incongruous Relic

EDITOR:

Each year in September in California less than three-quarter of one percent of the citizens participate in what is called the "dove season." This does not take place because the majority of the citizens desire it or enjoy it or benefit from it. It is one of the incongruous relics of the times of the pioneers when wildlife supplied needed food. It is now, according to the Department of Fish and Game, just a jolly lot of recreation and fun! (There is never any report on how many enjoy it!)

Essentially and regrettably this "season" places the citizens on the opposite ends of shot guns, the few who engage in the "sport" on one end and those who live on the land on the other end. As a ranch owner it never seemed to me to be a very popular "sport," since those of us who live where the doves live are on the receiving end! We are, therefore, able to testify that the economic benefit claimed for this "sport" is exclusively limited to the dealers in shot gun shells and liquors and a few motel owners, while no report is ever made of the losses suffered by those on the receiving end.

* * * *

TO PROVE several facts in this regard, we sent 10,000 voting cards to unselected mailbox holders in all parts of the state. Only 83 who responded believed that dove shooting was good. The total response of over 10 per cent showed that all others were opposed to open seasons. Five out of every six purchasers of hunting licenses were against dove shooting. This indicates that this state-promoted fracas is perhaps the most unpopular as well as undemocratic "sport" now hanging-over from the days of Chick Sales, and is certainly doing great damage to the good name of hunting, evidenced by the increased "no hunting" signs.

Test Ban Treaty Haste Alarming

EDITOR:

It is alarming that the Kennedy administration is attempting to speed the passage of the test ban treaty. Why is this dangerous treaty even being considered seriously?

Opinions by Dr. Edward Teller, Craig Hosmer et al should certainly warn us of the inherent dangers of this treaty. If we feel Russia will adhere to its provision if it conflicts with her needs, then we have all learned little from our previous experiences in dealing with her.

Since Russia has negotiated positively in this matter, then I submit we again examine the past and note Russia accepts no deals or treaties unless another part of America's freedom is chipped away and Russia's goal of world domination is closer to fruition.

The World Watched 'A Revolution for Freedom, Jobs'

By HARRY SHARPE
United Press International

The nation's capital was the stage last week for the biggest civil rights rally in American history—a march for racial equality by more than 200,000 dedicated Negroes.

Thousands of white sympathizers, among them noted churchmen of all faiths and congressmen and labor leaders, supported the self-disciplined multitude which chanted freedom songs and slogans while marching from Washington Monument to Lincoln Memorial.

* * * *

THERE, beneath the brooding statue of Abraham Lincoln, they focused world attention on the Negro's century old struggle for equal rights.

They heard their leaders, Negro and white alike, petition Congress under the Constitution for even stronger desegregation bills than President Kennedy had proposed; to redress, as they put it, "old grievances and help resolve an American crisis"; to grant "jobs and freedom" and thus erase the blot of second class citizenship.

It was like a giant religious revival—a moving spectacle from which grew stronger determination to fight for "the cause" in every corner of the land."

The President, who met with the leaders later, said he had been impressed by the marchers' "deep fervor and quiet dignity" and pledged he would push his own campaign to end discrimination.

The integration leaders also met with Democratic and Republican congressional chieftains and voiced hope the march would help their cause legislatively. But realists admitted it probably did not change a single vote, especially in the Southern delegations.

* * * *

THE MARCHERS had come from all over—by train, bus, car and even on foot. Self-discipline was their watchword so no one could point the finger of scorn. The only disturbance was caused by a deputy "feuhrer" of the American Nazi Party. He was arrested.

Underscoring the interfaith, bi-racial nature of the demonstration was a placard carried by a white clerygman. It read: "We March Together — Protestants, Jews, Catholics—for Dignity And Brotherhood Of All Men Under God."

Another leader promised "little Washingtons all over the country."

Director of the demonstration was A. Philip Randolph, head of the Sleeping Car Porters Union. The vast crowd roared encouragement when he and other speakers made no-compromise calls for racial freedom. Then it broke into a deafening chant of "pass the hill, pass the bill." This was a reference to the President's civil rights program which faces an uncertain fate in Congress.

As the sun went down the weary demonstrators streamed out of the city as they had come, but with Randolph's war cry ringing in their ears: "This is a revolution for freedom and jobs.""

* * * *

IN OTHER news spheres a nationwide railroad strike was headed off only hours before it was set to start. The President signed a bill rushed through Congress requiring the carriers and unions to abide by binding arbitration of the two key issues in their lengthy work rules dispute—elimination of firemen's jobs and makeup of train crews.

It marked the first time Congress had ordered arbitration in a peacetime labor crisis. The arbiters, representing the railroads and the unions and neutrals chosen by both, must report within six months. Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz called a meeting for Friday to start negotiations.

Epic drama unfolded at Sheppton, Pa., when two coal miners trapped for two weeks in a cave-in 309 feet below the surface were rescued through a shaft drilled to their dank cell. Rescued were Henry Throne, 28, and David Fellin, 58. Behind them in another cave-in area was Louis Bova., 42, who probably was dead. But rescuers refused to give up hope and started drilling a new shaft to him.

The joy at Sheppton was not shared at Moab, Utah. There, 18 miners perished in a fiery potash mine explosion 3,000 feet underground. Seven others were rescued.

On the foreign affairs front, Russian Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin gave Kennedy a special message expressing Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's appreciation for the signing of the nuclear test-ban treaty —which the Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved 16 to 1 last week —and said the recent visit to Moscow by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and some congressional leaders had been "useful." The Senate will open debate on ratifying the pact Sept. 9.

Khrushchev wound up a long bury-the-hatchet visit to Yugoslav President Tito and proclaimed their major differences at an end. Tito has been a Communist maverick.

At Hyannis Port, Mass., where he was spending the Labor Day weekend with his wife and children, the President fired another blast at the House which slashed his foreign aid authorization request.

Kennedy said the House action could harm the Latin American Alliance for Progress program and deny military aid to nations rimming the Iron Curtain. He said this applied particularly to East-West competition in Asia, Africa and Latin America.

One of the current trouble spots is South Viet Nam in East Asia where nearly 100 American soldiers have died supporting government troops against North Viet Nam Communist guerrillas. The South Viet Nam pro-Catholic government itself is torn by a religious-political crisis in which Buddhists have been suppressed, causing the United States to voice strong words of condemnation.

Fifty U.S. students who violated a State Department ban on visiting Cuba, returned to New York where some of them staged a sit-down strike to keep the department from invalidating their passports. They were warned by letter, however, that their passport privileges were being withheld.

Gas Dept. Sees $60,000 Savings

A yearly saving of $60,000 in operation of the Municipal Gas Department is anticipated from a personnel reorganization now under study by the City Council's Civil Service Committee.

City Manager John R. Mansell, who proposed the changes, said the saving will result primarily from reduction in the staff of gas plant operators from 40 to 30 over a period of three or four years. Staff cuts will be accomplished by normal attrition, he said.

A gas plant foreman will be assigned to continuous responsibility for each of the five plants under the reorganization, made possible in part by greater use of automatic equipment.

* * * *

MANSELL'S proposal will reduce the number of organizational divisions in the department from eight to seven by merging the measurement division with engineering.

The position of measurement engineer, now a division head not under civil service regulation, will become a part of the classified service and retitled gas measurement supervisor.

Also proposed are numerous other title changes. One of them will give L. L. Bendinger, superintendent of gas, the new title of general manager, Gas Department, to conform with terminology in the Water and Harbor departments.

Boy Scout Fund Drive Over Top

Long Beach Area Boy Scout Council's $495,000 capital building campaign has made goal with a tidy sum to spare, it was reported by James Craig Jr., campaign chairman.

"We are happy to report on a Long Beach fund-raising campaign that is a clearcut success," said Craig, who said the total of cash contributions and pledges is about $35,000 over the goal.

"This gives us a cushion to take care of some expenses which are really necessary above the goal and to meet the contingency of any unredeemed pledges. While we know that all pledges were given in good faith, we must recognize that death or people moving away may result in some loss."

* * * *

THE CAPITAL funds campaign will complete the purchase of the Will J. Reid Scout Reservation at Barton Flats in the San Bernardino mountains and finance the full development of the reservation as well as a Sea Explorer base at Long Beach Marina.

Work starts this fall on a swimming pool at Barton Flats property. Some other projects will be completed before next summer but the total completion of the camp will require three years, as many pledges were made for that period.

* * * *

CRAIG SAID that the completed Camp Tahquitz at the Barton Flats reservation will give Long Beach area Scouts one of the outstanding facilities of the kind in the country. The local area covers Long Beach, Lakewood, Bellflower, Signal Hill and Dominguez, and contributions were made from all these communities.

"We deeply appreciate the campaign work and the contributions of thousands of persons," said Craig. "This was a great effort and the results are a community triumph."

School Polio Form Filing Reminder

Pupils entering Long Beach Unified School District schools for the first time this September are required under State law to file a polio immunization statement, Dr. Clayton C. Campbell, M. D., director of school health services, reminded parents.

Such forms already are on file for pupils here last year.

The law states that pupils who do not have an immunization statement on file with the schools must be denied admission, said Dr. Campbell. The law applies to all students under 21, including those at City College.

Parents who have not had their children immunized against polio are asked to contact their family doctor or the nearest public health agency.

NO REST FOR THE EAGLE

Former Leading U.S. Air Force Ace Guides Destiny of Reservists in 2478th Sector

On the colonel's desk at Long Beach Air Force Base sit the control handle of a pursuit plane with its red gun switch—and memory.

For a man whose machine guns tore apart 25 enemy planes—the leading ace of the Ninth Air Force—the requiem to war is understandable.

The small stand with the fighter plane handle is in sharp contrast on the desk with the white papers and the busy black telephone. Mute testimonials to a new challenge.

NOW FOR the Eagle—Col. Glenn T. Eagleston—it is command of the 2478th Air Force Reserve Sector, the responsibility of 3,700 reservists in Southern California, southern Nevada and all of Arizona. Not the kids who flew in the 354th Fighter Group. Not the 4th Fighter Interceptor Group.

Now, the Eagle is grounded.

The Air Force pulled him from the cockpit to give him the new challenge: Moulding civilians into a crack air support team.

But the memories are not grounded.

OCTOBER, 1944, somewhere over Germany: "There were 48 of us, in Mustangs, headed for a strafing job. They must have got wind of us because 100 of their 109s were waiting. They came in behind us.

"The Germans were in a sort of bee-hive formation. We throttled forward to gain speed and then turned and came head-on.

"The fur flew."

The six 50-caliber machine guns on his Mustang put two German planes afire.

THE THIRD one was a hard shot. I came up in a loop, under his belly. I started clobbering him up a third-of-the-way up and until I lost him going over.

"I had set him on fire and he bailed out. There was no hesitation on his part. He knew he'd been had."

German townspeople below rushed out to see planes falling from the sky.

"They were cheering like mad. But, when they went out they found our guys had knocked 23 of their planes down. We lost only one.

"The mayor of the town wrote us later and said he knew the war was over when he saw so many German planes fall."

THE THIRD credited plane was the Eagle's 18th kill of the war. He was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for the action.

Miss it?

"Of course," Eagleston said. "It gets under your skin. Ever since I was six, I wanted to become a fighter pilot. I miss the old comardeship, the challenge to fight for my country in the hottest and fastest planes. I wouldn't trade those years."

But World War II—and 23½ enemy planes destroyed, two probables and seven damaged—was not the end.

1951, Somewhere near the Yalu River, Korea: "One MIG was driving us nuts. He'd sit up high, directing or observing, and then pounce on our sleepers.

"I caught a glimpse of this clown once during the dog fight. I noticed he came down on two of our planes everytime they straightened out and then headed upward.

"I made a quick calculation where he would be on his next pass.

"I poured on the coal. He pulled up right in front of me, 30 feet away. He was so close I thought I had hit him, the jet wash was so bad.

"I fired six shots from each of my guns. There was a flash of fire, an explosion inside the plane. And he bailed out. It was one of my life's most joyous moments."

BUT, THE 42-year-old colonel has had other pleasant moments.

"These men I have now, these reservists, are accomplished and well-polished. They're an interesting group, engineers, doctors, lawyers. Most of them are leaders in their community.

"Patroitism is their major motivation. They don't earn enough extra money to make it worthwhile that way.

"I have every confidence in them. If they were called into duty today, they would be as proficient as the regular, the fulltime, Air Force man in a very short time."

ONE OF the primary responsibilities of his command in wartime: Resupply, reload the bombers at scattered airports for a second quick attack on an enemy.

And the memory of war—of sorrow, regret—is still with the Eagle.

"I felt remorseful once. I hit this German and he started to bail out. He was a staunch fighter and I guess he got mad because halfway out the cockpit, he changed his mind.

"He got back in and turned into me. I had to hit him again. He tried to bail out again. But his body sailed out and wrapped itself around the back fin. He went down with the plane.

"I was kind of hoping he would get away."

THE COLONEL'S secretary enters the office now. "Here's the mail," she says.

The tanned face looks up. "Throw it on the floor," he says laughlingly.

The memory fades from the blue eyes which are permanently squinted from the long hours in the sky in 180 combat missions. He takes up the pen by the stand with the control handle of a pursuit plane.

Computer's Got Baers in Bonnet

CHICAGO (UPI)—A Chicago executive has claimed victory over an electronic brain.

This computer figured out there were 36 ways to spell what sounds like "Baer." Ed Novotny, assistant manager of the northside social security office, who has jurisdiction over the machine, said the name could be spelled:

Baer, baere, baire, baehr, bahar, baur, bear, beir, behar, barr, baiar, bayer, baehre, baher, bayor, beare, beirr, beher, baare, baier, bairr, bahr, bahor, bayer, beair, beahr, beyar, baear, bair, bare, bahre, bauer, bayeur, beaire, beaher and beyer.

Then Novotny got a call from the general manager of the Railroad Transfer Service of Chicago — Edward Bayr — who told him the machine can't cut the mustard, to make it 37 ways.

Giants Nip Dodgers in 12th, 4-3

BROWN IN TROUBLE FOLLOWING SHORT GAIN
Flanker back Ernie Green (48) of Cleveland Browns catches pass from Jim Ninowski in first quarter Saturday night but is immediately brought down by Lamar Lundy (85) of Rams on Browns' 47-yard line. Play went for short gain. Also in on play are Jack Pardee (32) and Mike Henry (53) of Rams and Rich Kreitling (88) of Browns.

Alou's Fourth Hit Drives in Winner

By GEORGE LEDERER

The Giants and the Los Angeles Police Department were the winners Saturday night while the Dodgers' National League lead was reduced to six games.

Felipe Alou's fourth hit of the evening gave the Giants a 4-3 decision over the Dodgers in 12 innings and kept alive manager Alvin Dark's slim hope of winning the last five games between the two perennial California contenders.

Another sellout crowd of 54,858 watched Alou break up the three-hour and 25-minute struggle with a two-out single to right after Jose Pagan singled and reached second on an infield out.

* * * *

LARRY SHERRY (2-5), the third Dodger pitcher, was the loser. The winner was Don Larsen (6-5), who held the Dodgers hitless in 3⅓ innings of relief.

Orlando Cepeda, the injured baby bull of the Giants, was responsible for the late hour, but he also alleviated what would have been a king-size traffic jam on the freeways had the game ended in regulation time.

Cepeda crashed his 24th home run as a pinch-hitter in the ninth inning to produce a 3-3 score that deprived Bob Miller of his first lifetime victory over the Giants. Miller left with a 3-2 lead in the seventh after serving a solo home run to Pagan.

Ron Perranoski was the victim of Cepeda's homer after he retired the slumping Willie McCovey for the first out in the ninth.

Cepeda, batting for Tom Haller, connected shortly before the Coliseum football crowd jammed the Harbor Freeway.

While the loss reduced the Dodger lead to six games over the Cardinals and 6½ over the Giants, the magic numbers remained 23 and 22 respectively

* * * *

THE DODGERS owned a 3-1 lead when manager Walter Alston made some defensive changes to start the seventh inning. Maury Wills, out of the starting lineup because of an ankle injury, went to third base, Tommy Davis switched to the outfield and Frank Howard took his shower.

Howard had hit his 24th homer of the year and eighth of the month for a 1-0 lead in the second inning.

The defensive maneuvering failed to prevent the banjo-hitting Pagan to hit his third homer of the year after two were out in the seventh. Pagan's drive landed in the first row of the left field pavilion, at the 370-foot mark.

* * * *

WHEN MILLER followed by walking pitcher Jack Sanford, Alston called in Perranoski, who ended the inning by getting Alou to bounce into a force play.

Miller allowed six hits, walked two and struck out eight in his 6⅔ innings. The first San Francisco run was unearned and broke a streak of 19⅓ scoreless innings by Miller in the fourth.

T. Davis, after making a difficult pickup of Harvey Kuenn's hopper threw high to first, allowing Kuenn to reach second.

A wild pitch and McCovey's infield out made it 3-1.

Howard's homer was a 410-foot line drive into the pavilion, a shade to the left of center. He connected on Sanfords' 2-and-2 pitch when Sanford, much to his regret, threw a strike, although Haller set an outside target.

Miller was staked to a 3-0 advantage when Dick Tracewski, Jim Gilliam and Wally Moon singled in the third inning. Gilliam's RBI gave him 43 for the year, the most he

NINOWSKI DIRECTS 23-14 WIN

45,623 See Browns Bump Rams

By JERRY WYNN

The Rams attracted a surprising crowd of 45,623 at the Coliseum Saturday night, but did little to distract its attention from the radio account of the baseball game at Dodger Stadium.

Unable to click on offense nor defense the passing of Jim Ninowski and bone-crushing of Jim Brown, the Rams lost to the Cleveland Browns, 23-14.

The score should have been much larger in favor of the visitors, who had one touchdown and two long gains nullified by penalties. And of the Rams' total of 184 yards gained passing, good-natured enemy defenders tipped about 100 of them into hands of receivers.

Terry Baker quarterbacked the Rams for three quarters with little success. He completed 6 of 14 passes for 99 yards; had one interception and should of had more. His one bright moment was a 31-yard touchdown pass to Jim Phillips which gave the Rams a brief 7-6 lead.

Roman Gabriel guided the Rams to their other touchdown in the final moments of play, but he too was far from impressive with 7 of 13 completions for 85 yards.

Always a Ram nemisis, Ninowski enjoyed a big night. He hit on 11 of 16 passes, twice connected with Rich Kreitling for touchdowns, and ran with abandon. Mighty Jim Brown gained 105 yards in 15 carries and scored one.

The Ram front defense had some moments. Deacon Jones and Marlin McKeever blocked placements by Lou Groza and Jack Pardee had six unassisted tackles on Brown. Art Hunter forgot his lessons in positive thinking and was thrown out of the contest for fighting.

How the game unfolded:

FIRST QUARTER

The Rams had the only scoring threat of the quarter, but it failed to materialize.

Deacon Jones recovered a fumble by Jim Ninowski on the Ram 43. Terry Baker passed to Pervis Atkins for 15 and Gary Henson for 19 and a first down on the Cleveland 13. Dick Bass ran for 5 and Art Perkins for 3, but on third down, Bass was dropped for a three-yard loss attempting to sweep end.

Danny Villanueva tried a field goal from the 16, and he stubbed it wide under pressure from two rushers.

The Browns had a bad break when a 43-yard run by Ninowski to the Ram 10 was nullified by a penalty.

SECOND QUARTER

Browns 6, Rams 0: Cleveland drove 80 yards in 12 plays for its first score with Ninowski passing 12 yards to Rich Kreitling for the touchdown. Lou Groza's attempted conversion was blocked by Jones.

Ninowski moved his team downfield with passes to Ernie Green for 23 and 9 and to Gary Collins for 12. On the TD toss, he found Kreitling wide open in the end zone.

Rams 7, Browns 6: Marlin McKeever crashed through the Browns' line to block an attempted 44-yard field goal by Groza, and the Rams took possession of the Cleveland 46.

Baker ran for 7 and Bass fumbled while making the first down and Frank Varrichione recovered for the Rams on the Browns' 31. On first down, Baker passed neatly to Jim Phillips on the 15 and the Ram end sped into the end zone for the touchdown. Villanueva converted.

Browns 13, Rams 7: A great catch by Ray Renfro of a 44-yard, third-down pass from Ninowski sent the Browns winging to their second touchdown. It put the ball on the Ram 43, and on the next play, Lindon Crow was guilty of interfering with receiver Bob Crespino and it gave

Peterson Shoots for Title Today

KEENE, N.H. (Special) — Hard-throwing Bob Wiswell hurls for undefeated Long Beach Peterson Post today at 11 a.m. (PDT) as Gale Taylor's team faces once-beaten Memphis, Tenn., for the American Legion Little World Series title.

If the Tennessee nine should dump Long Beach, a second game will be played at 7:30 tonight to decide the champion.

Stocky Wayne Atkins, 10-0 on the season, is scheduled to pitch for Memphis, 34-1, who was upended for the first time in 35 outings by Long Beach Friday night, 12-3.

* * * *

LEFTHANDER Jerry Flynn, with help from a 2-run homer by Merrill Smith, chalked up his first victory of the tourney and Peterson's fourth in succession — a 5-2 triumph over Evansville, Ind., Saturday evening.

The loss eliminated Evansville and left Long Beach and Memphis, 6-3 winner over Omaha, Neb., Saturday afternoon, as the only teams remaining in the eight-team playoffs. Omaha suffered its first loss to Long Beach earlier, 8-1.

Flynn tossed a three-hitter but was constantly on the ropes as he walked eight men in his nine-inning stint. Ten strikeouts and a crucial double play kept the chunky southpaw from serious damage.

* * * *

PETERSON jumped to a 1-0 lead in the second when tourney batting leader Oscar Brown (.417) drew his first of two free passes, stole second, went to third on Larry Lauriha's single and scored on Martin's sacrifice fly. Long Beach extended its lead to 3-0 in the third inning. Ike McCraw singled, advanced to second on losing pitcher Ralph Mueller's errant pickoff throw and took third on Flynn's fly to left. Brown walked for the second time and on a double steal McCraw scored when second baseman Rick Kingston's throw was wide. Lauriha then singled to score Brown.

Smith's 330-foot home run to right scored Terry Roe ahead of him to give Flynn a comfortable 5-0 cushion.

TO HECK WITH THIS-- LET'S DO THE TOWN!

CLEVELAND (AP)—Seswond Boy, a 3-year-old colt entered in a 6½-furlong race at Randall Park Saturday, wound up going three miles—through city traffic.

The horse, who went to the post at odds of 10-1, threw jockey Joe Lopez coming out of the starting gate and followed the rest of the field for about one-quarter of the race. Then he sped through an open gate at the side of the track.

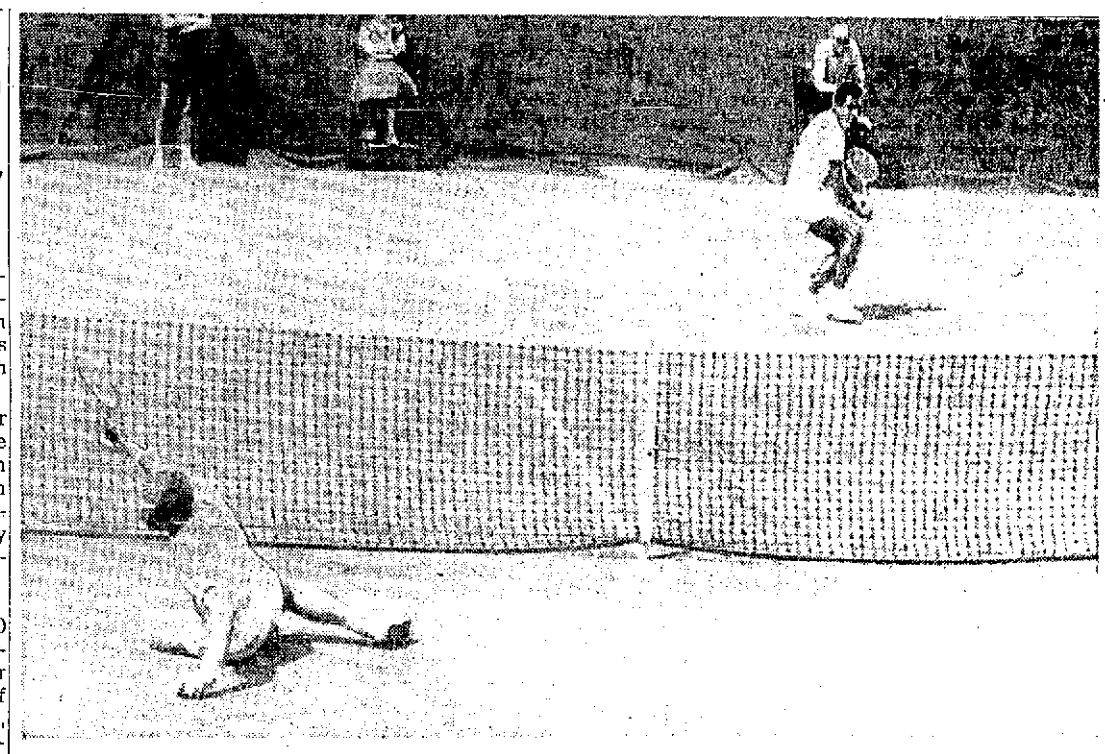

* * * *

ABOUT 20 PERSONS—security police and trainers—chased the horse on heavily traveled streets before his owner and two stable boys corralled it in the driveway of an apartment building.

No time was taken for the three miles.

REBOUND FROM FIRST LOSS

Nitehawks Remain Alive, 7-4

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. (Special)—The Long Beach Nitehawks started the long climb back in the loser's bracket of the ISC world tournament here by defeating Forbes Air Force 7-4 Saturday night.

The Hawks were pushed into the loser's draw when Al DeWulf tripled with two out in the sixth inning to give host Rock Island a come-from-behind 4-3 win earlier in the night.

It was Long Beach's first loss in the double-elimination tourney.

Rock Island had taken a 2-0 lead in the fourth, but the Hawks came back and scored three times in their half of the sixth. The runs that decided the first game came at the expense of Hugh Harman, who had taken over in the sixth for Leroy Zimmerman. Zim had been touched for one earned run in the five innings he worked.

The Hawks rallied in the second game, trailing 4-1 going into the fifth. But they pushed across six to keep their title hopes flickering. Zim replaced starter Ed Dewey in the fourth and was credited with the win.

The Hawks must win four games in two days in order to capture the crown. They play Phoenix this afternoon. If they win they face the loser of the Rock Island-Gardena game at 8:30 tonight.

Drysdale Greatest Dodger?

Roger Craig, the Lakewood taxpayer who enjoys the "distinction" of being the most pitied player in baseball, dispensed an interesting (and controversial) comment last week.

The comment came while this writer was in the Windy City before entraining for DuQuoin and the Hambletonian. Roger the ex-Dodger was in Chicago, of course, with his pathetic Met teammates.

DON DRYSDALE
No Sore Arm

Asked by a telecaster which Dodger he considered the greatest now and during his long tenure with the O'Malleys, Roger paused only a second, then replied:

"I'd have to say Don Drysdale. He's always available to pitch every four days and never has a sore arm. He's among the top three every year in innings pitched. There were a lot of great ballplayers with the Dodgers during my time and now, but I consider him the greatest. If you go around the league and ask the same question, I believe you'd get the same answer 90 per cent of the time."

That, indeed, is a tribute to Big D . . . particularly when you consider that people like Campanella, Snider, Reese, Furillo, Hodges, Robinson, Newcombe, Wills and T. Davis are included in the field from which Craig could choose.

If it makes a difference, I've agreed with Craig's answer since last season. With Koufax sidelined and Podres erratic, Don virtually was a one-man pitching corps. Drysdale's personality sometimes might not make him the people's choice, but the great Ted Williams never won any popularity contests, either.

CRAIG WAS BLUNT in answering other questions, too. Like this one: Who's going to win the N.L. pennant?

"I think the Dodgers will take it, because of their pitching," replied Roger. "But I think St. Louis is the best club EXCEPT for pitching. The Cardinals have pretty good front-line starters, but their relief men are weak.

"The Dodgers aren't farther in front, in my opinion, because Wills (Maury) is making a lot of mistakes. But I'm rooting for my old buddies all the way."

Asked which Dodger club in recent years he thought was the greatest, Craig split his response.

"The most talented club was the 1955 group, said Roger. "They always had the big inning and sure made things easy for a pitcher.

"But the '59 club that won the pennant in L.A. had the most desire. Everybody was helping everybody else and we fought and scratched for that championship."

A FEW DAYS AGO we reported that St. Louis writers were unanimous in the opinion that the Dodgers would sack the N.L. pennant. We also pointed out that the most consistent question asked California newsmen was whether Alston would be fired if the Dodgers didn't win.

The barrage of questions apparently stems from "rumors" of discontent on the Dodger club. The opinion here is that the "rumors" are about three months old and definitely outdated.

One St. Louis newsman claimed he talked with two Dodger players the last time the club was in his city and both expressed the opinion Alston was a dead owl if he didn't bag the league pennant.

"Drysdale overheard the conversation and bawled them both out," said the midwestern scrivener. "About two minutes later another Dodger said he heard that Gil Hodges or Pete Reiser would be his next boss."

Hodges or Reiser could be the next Dodger manager . . . but only when Alston decides to retire. There's a strong hunch in this typewriter that the quiet man from Darrtown, Ohio, will be around for a few more campaigns . . . even if he loses to the Yankees in the World Series.

One thing that's nice about the Dodgers from a writer's viewpoint is that they're great copy ALL OVER THE COUNTRY.

IT'S A MIRACLE that the Chicago Cubs draw any fans. Owner Phil Wrigley would seem to discourage attendance completely by telecasting ALL his home games and playing them ALL in the daytime.

A fan never has to go to the ballpark to watch the Cubbies. He merely has to install a TV set where he works.

The last day we were in Chicago, anyone who turned up at Wrigley Field had to be the world's greatest fan. It rained all morning and the Cubs played the Mets in the afternoon.

That's a worse parlay than pickles and ice cream.

Cassius...His Other Side

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—No matter how hard Cassius Clay strives to put across his obnoxious "I am the greatest" image, sometimes the colorful Louisville heavyweight contender just can't prevent another side of his personality from showing through.

It emerged not so long ago when he visited a former Louisville Central High School classmate who was dying of multiple sclerosis, and brought his friend several gifts.

The friend, former outstanding basketball player Bob Carpenter, is dead now, but undoubtedly the visit from his famous fellow townsman lifted his spirits considerably even as death approached.

Another manifestation of the "other Cassius Clay," appeared when he joined his clan in honoring his great-grandmother on her 99th birthday. He had the grace to clam up for a change and insist upon her being given the spotlight rather than her celebrated great-grandson.

* * * *

WHEN THE Louisville Lip talks to a hometown group such as the Louisville Quarterback Club, he is all affability. So much so that it tends to offset his cocky words and puts his listeners "in his corner." But with larger audiences his egotism comes out much stronger.

It's paradoxical that Clay thrives on being hero-worshiped, yet does his darndest to repel people with his own self-worship.

The biblical verse that a prophet is not without honor save in his own country is a perfect fit for Clay.

"You know who doubts me the most and who wants to see me get beat the worst?—the people of Louisville," he complained to a reporter. "It bugs me when no one asks for my autograph here, not even the kids."

In his home town, there are two schools of thought about Clay. One is that he believes everything he says. The other is that he's trying to make himself believe it.

Cardinal third baseman Ken Boyer slides safely across home plate in second inning Saturday at end of rundown play as Phillies catcher Clay Dalrymple has peg from shortstop Bobby Wine go wide.

Boyer's Wallops Lift Cards Over Phils, 7-5

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Ken Boyer's 19th homer to the roof of the leftfield stands in the 11th inning gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 7-5 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Saturday.

The winning rally was started by Dick Groat with a single to center off loser Johnny Klippstein. After Bill White flied out, Boyer unloaded his homer, his third extra-base hit of the game.

O'Toole Hits, Pitches Win

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Southpaw Jim O'Toole picked up his 17th victory and first two runs batted in of the season Saturday as the Cincinnati Reds blanked the Pittsburgh Pirates, 6-0.

O'Toole allowed four hits in the six innings he worked. He was pulled in the seventh when his arm stiffened and Dom Zanni pitched the final three frames.

O'Toole's bases-loaded single in the fourth inning counted two Red runs. Tommy Harper drove in two more with a third inning single and a lead-off inside-the-park homer in the seventh.

Cubs Ride on Slam By Burton

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ellis Burton's grand slam home run with two outs in the ninth inning Saturday carried the Chicago Cubs to a 6-5 victory over the Houston Colts.

The last gasp blow came off Hal Woodeshick, who came on after a tiring Skinny Brown had yielded a ninth-inning run on three singles.

Brown, bidding for his sixth victory, had held the Cubs to one run on eight scattered hits entering the ninth.

* * * *

WOODESHICK walked Leo Burke. Then the switch-hitting Burton drove a shot into the left field bleachers to complete the five-run rally for the Cubs and win the game.

Earlier, the Colts jumped on starter Larry Jackson for four quick runs on six hits in the second inning.

McBRIDE SHELLED

Athletics Pound Ailing Angels, 7-0

By ROSS NEWHAN
I. P-T Staff Writer

KANSAS CITY—A triple play boomeranged into a five-run Kansas City first inning Saturday night helping Ken McBride record a first he would rather forget.

For the first time in his Angel career, McBride was sent to the showers in the first inning as the A's came up with a quintet of tallies en route to a 7-0 decision which left L.A.'s eight place advantage at one percentage point.

Orlando Pena, who allowed the Angels only one run in 18 innings last season, was back manufacturing gooseggs and making a "yolk" out of the Autry attack.

He yielded a hit an inning before faltering to allow two in the ninth.

* * * *

McBRIDE lasted only slightly longer than Floyd Patterson before being KOd at one-third of the first round.

Still, had plate umpire Bill Haller had his way in the first inning McBride might have escaped with only one run instead of the 10th defeat against 13 victories.

Jose Tartabull, Wayne Causey and Norm Siebern ignited 9,646 fans with back-to-back singles, producing one run and leaving runners at first and second.

Manny Jimenez then attempted to sacrifice, but his first bunt bounced meekly in front of the plate where Bobby Rodgers pounced on it. Buck fired to third and Felix Torres whipped the ball around the horn, noticing that Haller had his arm waving the bunt fair.

It was a triple play—until the ball reached first where umpire Sam Carrigan ruled it foul.

Given a new life, Jimenez bunted successfully. Charlie Lau and Ed Charles followed with singles, finishing McBride, who has won but one of his last eight starts.

Bo, Grba Post Wins

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) Hawaii, relying on the strong arms of hurlers Bo Belinsky and Eli Grba, crushed Southern Division leader Oklahoma City twice Saturday, 5-1 and 9-1.

Tigers' Rally in Ninth Subdues Cleveland, 9-8

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Detroit Tigers rallied for three runs in the ninth inning to beat the Cleveland Indians, 9-8, Saturday with the winning run scoring on Bubba Phillips' "suicide" squeeze bunt.

Catcher Bill Freehan hit two homers for the Tigers, who gained their ninth win in the last 10 games, but they trailed, 8-6, with one out in the ninth inning when Norm Cash singled with the bases loaded to drive in two runs and tie the score.

Then, with George Thomas racing from third base in an all-or-nothing effort, Phillips laid down a hunt in front of the plate. Thomas was across the plate before the ball was fielded and Phillips reached first with a single.

Yanks Win 19th Victory for Bouton

Two-Run Homers by Berra, Tresh

BALTIMORE (AP) — Yogi Berra and Tom Tresh cracked two-run homers and Hal Reniff chopped off a ninth-inning rally Saturday night in the New York Yankees' 5-3 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Jim Bouton, shelled out in the Orioles' two-run ninth-inning uprising, gained credit for his 19th victory of the season, tying him with teammate Whitey Ford as the top winner in the American League.

* * * *

BOUTON, strong young right-hander, had a three-hitter and a 5-1 lead going into the ninth, but allowed a lead-off single to Boog Powell and John Orsino followed with his 14th homer of the season.

Prep Labor Day? . . . Tuesday!

By DOUG IVES

Labor Day, or at least a day of labor, will be Tuesday and not Monday for Long Beach high school football players as they open fall drills for the 1963 Moore League campaign.

Relaxation is prescribed by all coaches for our official Labor Day holiday Monday, because less than 24 hours later youngsters of all sizes and shapes will be flexing muscles and losing excess poundage in two-a-day workouts.

The tedious twice-daily routine will continue for two weeks until classes, academic style, open Sept. 16. By that time, the men will be separated from the boys.

Who will win the seventh Moore League title? Our choice is Wilson, with Poly nipping at the Bruins' heels.

Since no other school except the two cross-town rivals have ever won a Moore grid title (each have won three), the only question appears to be which team will win the Big Game.

Poly holds an edge in the backfield, and as usual has superior speed, but in experience, and in the line, Wilson has, at least on paper, a whopping advantage.

* * * *

VETERAN COACH Skip Rowland of Wilson could have the best forward wall he has ever had. No less than 10 lettermen linemen are back, half of which were starters last year.

Center-cornerbacker Bob Heckman, an all-City choice last year, heads the impressive corps of veteran linemen. Rod Everling a 268-pound junior, and Doug McKenzie, a 220-pound senior, give Wilson plenty of bulk.

Poly, under new coach Bill Mulligan, has a wealth of backfield talent, including veteran Marv Motley, but has only one starting lineman returning, end Rich Spindler.

Jordan played its best football in six years last year, finishing 3-2 in league and 5-3 overall, and is the only other team that might give Wilson and Poly a strong challenge.

Hard-working head coach Walt Anderson boasts 16 lettermen, most of whom were starters last term. Ron White and Todd Olson each have won two varsity letters and Jack Hadaway is a classy halfback.

Millikan also lays claim to 16 numeral winners, but unlike Jordan, few started in 1962. Offensively, the Rams will start from scratch with all newcomers except center Chuck Milburn.

Lakewood, which has only five wins in six years (in league), has a new coach in John Ford and two excellent backs in Dennis Reffley (QB) and Ken Lynch (FB). The Lancers are lacking in line strength, however.

Downey can't look forward to much of a season with just two lettermen. The Vikes figure to finish in the cellar. They've never won more than one league game in any one season.

St. Anthony of the Catholic League figures to be a title contender, as usual. For once, Loyola doesn't have a powerhouse which should lend confidence to the Saints. Coach Tom Carroll has 12 lettermen, with experience at all positions except halfback.

Moore Leaguers get their first taste of action in the annual Milk Bowl game at Veterans Stadium Sept. 21. St. Anthony opens Friday, Sept. 20.

HOW TO SUCCEED IN BUSINESS BY REALLY TRYING

Have you wondered how Long Beach State's football players spent their summer? Here are examples: Dee Andrews (top left) worked as salesman at Penney's Los Altos; Don Crosby stacked soap at Proctor & Gamble; Dick Parks laid bricks; Hank Edney worked in LBSC library; Don Reed studies last year's game files with quarterbacks Rick Lussier, Chuck Anderson and Jerry Otterson; Darryl Wright did recreation work and Dwayne Robison was electrician.

BAKER STORY IN 'SOUTHLAND'

The problems which faced Terry Baker at the outset of his Ram career are revealed in a story by Jerry Wynn in today's Southland Magazine section of the I, P-T.

West's Prestige to Continue Surge in 1963

By JEROME HALL

This may be the year of the Big Ten comeback. This may be the year the Big Ten wins as many as half its games with the Big Six. That's not counting the Rose Bowl, of course.

But though the Big Ten will do considerably better against the AAWU than it did last year (no wins in seven games) it's still going to be another season of rising prestige for West Coast football.

The big teams around the country this year will be USC, Mississippi, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Ohio State, Alabama, Oregon, Texas, Navy and Notre Dame. That well could be the way the top ten reads come December. There's a strong chance that Washington could sneak in, carried further by its reputation than its quarterbacks and halfbacks.

So do not be surprised if the final poll shows three West Coast teams and one Big Ten team in the top 10.

OHIO STATE, given little recognition in title predictions now, has the strength, stamina, strategy and schedule to pull through. The Buckeyes, deep in talent but without the huge fullback it usually has and without the polished quarterback, gets a scheduling break when it runs into its toughest league foe late, late in the season.

History shows Northwestern, the popular choice, will have faded by then.

The Big Ten is a manpower conference and for sheer manpower down the bench, it's Ohio State with Wisconsin followed by Northwestern, Illinois, Purdue, Iowa, Michigan State, Minnesota, Michigan and Indiana.

Mississippi will be near the top of the list all season, probably undefeated. But, as the Associated Press pointed out in a recent story, Ole Miss's aces in the hole are "a strong team and a weak schedule."

The Rebels probably will murder the likes of Memphis State, Vanderbilt and Tampa. They may be replaced on the list of elite by Alabama, which isn't a cinch to be undefeated but at least Bear Bryant's team has opposition. Though they both are in the Southeastern Conference, Alabama and Mississippi do not meet.

IN THE CORN BELT region, Arkansas is equipped to go unbeaten. The Razorbacks have players that look like razorbacks and probably will beat out Texas for the Southwestern Conference title. Texas doesn't have players that look like longhorns. Oklahoma's a cinch in the Big Eight.

In the East it's Navy. Change that. In the East it's Roger Staubach. The East, you see, controls the nation's publicity and rating services. They're starved for a big winner back there. Staubach, Staubach, Staubach. Listen to that Eastern clatter.

All the foregoing conclusions are subject to change. Weekly.

22 VETERANS BACK AT STATE

49ers Taking Dead Aim at CCAA Title

By AL LARSON

Long Beach State, anxious to establish its imprint on the CCAA football map, steps forward with a firm and heavy foot Monday when the 49ers open fall practice.

The 49ers never have finished higher than a tie for second place in the conference wars, but optimism is running high what with 22 veterans in camp.

Two-a-day workouts, along with daily squad meetings, will keep the boys busy in preparation for their home opener Sept. 21 against the San Diego Marines.

The team will be housed on campus for the first time which will enable coach Don Reed and his staff to keep the athletes thinking football almost around the clock. The only free time will be from seven to 10 each evening and all day Sunday.

LBSC's hopes of winning the title for the first time since joining the league in 1958 will depend, to a large degree, on fleet-footed Dee Andrews, an improved quarterback corps and tougher line.

The 49ers boast a solid 1-2-3 punch in qbs Chuck Anderson, Rick Lussier and Jerry Otterson. The fullback post looms stronger with Dick Degen, Ted Stipe, Wayne Mickaelian and Jim White battling for the starting job.

With six lettermen manning end positions, Reed figures this is his best suit. For trump cards, he has Pat Brosnan, an all-America JC transfer from Santa Monica, Larry Miller from Chaffey and Don Skinner, last year's freshman standout, giving Long Beach even greater depth at the flanks.

Other men to watch: Guard Darryl Wright, two-year veteran, one as end and last year as guard . . . fast and fine blocker; center Rudy Duarte, a newcomer from Hancock JC who drew frequent praise in spring hall . . . especially strong on defense.

Jerry Riedy, who played center at Santa Monica CC but probably will operate at tackle . . . most consistent lineman in spring; halfback Hank Edney, 2-year letterman, who had 10.0 average for 40 carries in 1961, but was crippled much of last year . . . can get needed yards when healthy.

Tackle Marty Johnson, 1-year vet, gives LBSC experience at vital tackle spot; guard Joe Costanza, 2-year veteran, gives 49ers speed up front . . . Joe will serve as tri-captain along with Montgomery and Wright.

LBSC digs into its CCAA season Oct. 12, traveling to San Diego State for a key game with the defending league champions. Fresno State plays here Nov. 9 while 49ers close out their 10-game slate Nov. 23 against Cal Poly (Pomona). The Broncos will be hungry, considering Long Beach handed them their only defeat last year.

Turning back the clock to this game, Reed hopes to use this as a springboard to improving his 5-5 record of '62. The 49ers are ready!

BACKFIELD INTACT

Big Year Again Looms for Vikes

By KEN PIVERNETZ

Followers of Long Beach City College can expect another winning season this fall. The Vikings will make a serious bid for their third Metropolitan Conference championship in four years.

Considering the fact that LBCC was the nation's top-ranked jaycee eleven last year with a 9-0-1 record, averaged 34.6 points per game and limited the opposition to 50 points in 10 games, it's a big order to fill.

To make this challenge, the Vikes must rebuild their front wall — and the potential is there — to go with a great backfield.

COACH JIM Stangeland will welcome back 18 lettermen Tuesday when fall practice gets under way.

The '63 Vikings will look a lot like last year's model in that they should score a lot of points and there's a possibility the defense might come around a little quicker despite the fact the line will undergo drastic personnel changes and won't have quite as much depth.

"Our defensive system was completely changed last year," says line coach Rollie Eilerts. "This year the staff will start off knowing what to expect and we should be able to make quicker and better adjustments as the season progresses."

NORSE CODE: One big change on offense should see track star Tim Russell carry the ball more. Russell gained 116 yards on only 11 carries and caught nine passes for 266 yards last year.

In fact, a returning backfield of Russell (173) and Joe Pearson (185) at halfbacks and all-America Homer Williams (205) at fullback gained close to a mile in yardage last season.

That could well be the starting backfield along with Jim Dunn (155) at quarterback in the Sept. 28 opener against Glendale, though there's plenty of incoming freshman talent available.

Dunn completed 54 per cent of his passes last year for 892 yards and 10 touchdowns and with the presence of freshmen Craig Vestermark (160) and Jack Harnden (165), the quarterback position could be the best since the Dave Graff-Ed Reddick era of three years ago.

The line will depend more on transfers and freshmen though tackle and guard will have three proven performers in Ken Brewer (224), Jeff Smith (260) and Ed Catlin (220) respectively. Big things are expected of all three.

Transfers Bill Robinson (240), Long Beach's top area lineman two years ago and 1961 all-CIF selection Bill Wilsey (260) from El Rancho should fill in a lot of the vile and guard. Sleepers could be Fred Converton (225), a third team all-CIF pick at Downey in 1959 and Jordan's Mike Westahal (235).

The ends should be in the good hands of lettermen Dave Thornton (190) and newcomer John Tigner (195). Center might be a problem with lettermen Mike Blume ineligible as is end Rich Croson.

The Vikings had trouble getting an extra pre-league opponent this season and as a result will play only eight games, their lowest regular season schedule since 1945. The break will come Oct. 5, a week before the Metro opener with Santa Monica.

WYNN

Man to Man

THE KING

By JERRY WYNN

It's September again, and King Football returns to his throne.

To give you fuel to light the autumn fires, Man-to-Man presents predictions of things to come during the 1963 season by members of The Independent, Press-Telegram sports staff.

Fools rush in, so I lead off:

NATIONAL FOOTBALL LEAGUE

WESTERN	EASTERN
1. Green Bay	1. New York
2. Detroit	2. Dallas
3. Baltimore	3. Cleveland
4. Chicago	4. St. Louis
5. Minnesota	5. Pittsburgh
6. San Francisco	6. Washington
7. Rams	7. Philadelphia

The only thing certain in the NFL this season is the schedule which begins the night of Sept. 14 with the Lions facing the Rams at the Coliseum.

In the Western Division, the Packers still are too potent and should win their fourth successive title. The Lions have defense, the Colts have Unitas, the Bears have offense, the Vikings have Tarkenton, the 49ers have speed and the Rams have hopes.

There's little to choose from among the clubs in the East. The Giants have the experience and the Cowboys are the darkhorse.

THE BIG SIX
By JEROME HALL

HALL

1. Washington
2. Stanford
3. USC
4. UCLA
5. Cal
6. Wash. State

The Big Six is going to be a confused conference. The guess here is that USC will win the national championship again, but finish third in the AAWU behind Washington (4-1 record) and Stanford (4-1). Then, after some closed-door bickering, USC will be selected for the Rose Bowl. If that needs explaining, here's a try:

Almost to a man, the USC players and coaches expect their toughest game to be the one at Washington. Troy will wind up with a 9-1 overall record (losing to the Huskies) and finish first in the polls because of the caliber of opponents. Washington and Stanford figure to lose at least a couple each, but with 4-1 conference records they'll have a clear-cut percentage edge over Troy because USC doesn't play Washington State.

That's the kind of season it's going to be.

CALIFORNIA COLLEGIATE
By AL LARSON

LARSON

1. San Diego State
2. Fresno State
3. Long Beach State
4. Los Angeles State
5. Cal Poly (SLO)
6. Valley State

Predicting the outcome of the CCAA football race used to be a cinch. Take Fresno State and give the odds.

But last year, things changed when San Diego State dethroned the mighty Bulldogs after a four-year reign. And 1963 looks like another scramble.

With 21 veterans reporting, coach Don Coryell's Aztecs figure to make a lot of noise again. Fresno was hit by wholesale graduation losses, but still figures to have plenty of bite left. Los Angeles State looms as the sleeper with a new coach, Homer Beatty. Long Beach's line appears stronger, especially at end, while Cal Poly and Valley State look for improved campaigns.

METROPOLITAN CONFERENCE
By KEN PIVERNETZ

PIVERNETZ

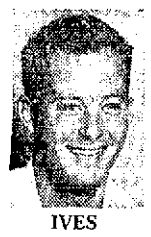

1. Long Beach
2. Cerritos
3. Bakersfield
4. Santa Monica
5. El Camino
6. San Diego
7. Valley
8. East Los Angeles

Until proven otherwise, defending champion Long Beach must be rated the team to beat for the Metropolitan Conference championship this season although it will be another rough scramble.

The Vikings will have one of their all-time great backfields and if a promising line develops, coach Jim Stangeland will enjoy another winning season.

Four perennial jaycee powers will give LBCC a tough fight, and again make the Metro loop the strongest two-year conference in the country. Cerritos and Bakersfield will be powerful again while all El Camino and Santa Monica need are good quarterbacks to make them definite challengers.

MOORE LEAGUE
By DOUG IVES

IVES

1. Wilson
2. Poly
3. Jordan
4. Millikan
5. Lakewood
6. Downey

No teams other than Wilson or Poly have ever won a Moore League football title, so it's almost a cinch these clubs will be battling for top honors again.

Wilson is our choice because of a superior line, which is heavier and possibly the toughest Skip Rowland has ever had. Poly will have more speed, as usual, which makes it a threat in any game. Strictly on manpower, the Bruins appear to have a decided edge.

Jordan is the only team that might upset Wilson or Poly, but the Panthers never have yet in Moore history. Millikan has 15 lettermen but not many starters returning. Lakewood should be improved but will be rebuilding under a new coach. Downey has only two lettermen.

Browns Roll Easily Over Rams, 23-14

the Browns another first down on the Ram 15.

On second down, Ninowski passed to Kreitling in between the goal posts for the six points. Groza converted.

Cleveland almost scored again on the last play of the half when Larry Benz intercepted a Baker pass and returned it nine yards before being knocked out of bounds by Varrichione.

THIRD QUARTER

Browns 16, Rams 7: Groza kicked a 47-yard field goal after Cleveland had moved from its own 32 to a first down on the Ram 34. The Rams twice smeared Ninowski while he attempted to pass to lead to the entrance of Groza.

The Rams moved from their own 20 to a first down on the Cleveland 46 thanks to a 30-yard pass from Baker to Phillips that was tipped into Phillips hands. But with a third down-and-one on the Brown 37, Ben Wilson lost six yards attempting to turn left end. Villanueva then missed a 50-yard field goal.

Browns 23, Rams 7: With Jim Brown ripping through and around the Ram line for 59 yards in four carries, Cleveland swept 80 yards on the ground for a touchdown. Brown scored on a four-yard smash carrying Mike Henry into the end zone with him.

FOURTH QUARTER

Frank Ryan replaced Ninowski, and on his first pass connected with Crespino for 43 yards to the Ram 18. Ryan soon hit Ken Webb for 26 yards and a touchdown, but it was nullified by a pushing penalty.

Browns 23, Rams 14: With Roman Gabriel at quarterback, the Rams finally put together a sustained drive for a touchdown. They reeled off four first downs in four plays on runs by Jon Arnett for 14 and 10, by Gabriel for 18 and a pass from Gabriel to Arnett for 14.

Gabriel scored himself on a two-yard sneak, and Villanueva kicked goal.

Colts Edge 'Skins On Rookie's Catch

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—The Baltimore Colts came from behind on rookie quarterback Gary Cuozzo's 54-yard scoring pass to rookie end John Mackey Saturday night and edged the Washington Redskins, 27-21, in a National Football League exhibition game.

The Redskins, trailing 20-7 at halftime, led 21-20 with six minutes remaining when Cuozzo, former University of Virginia star who is fighting to escape the player cut, got off his game-deciding pitch from the Colt 46.

Mackey, who had gotten behind the Redskins' Jim Steffen, gathered in the pass on the Redskin eight and stumbled into the end zone. Grady Wade kicked the extra point.

Tom Matte, who played most of the game for the Colts at quarterback after Johnny Unitas left the scene in the opening period, passed 16 yards to J. W. Lockett for one Baltimore touchdown and scored another on a four-yard run. Wade booted 10 and 16-yard field goals for the Colts.

Touchdowns on short plunges by Norman Snead and Ron Hatcher enabled Washington to move ahead midway the final quarter before Cuozzo got off his decisive pass to Mackey, former star at Syracuse.

Unable to get their offense moving, the Cardinals all but gave away a first-half touchdown and then saw the Bears execute a 61-yard scoring play, aided by a great block by Mike Ditka, to move into a 14-0 lead early in the third quarter.

The Dodgers muffed a chance to prevent overtime when Larsen entered with two down in the ninth and retired pinch-hitter Ken McMullen with two runners in scoring position.

BILLY HOEFT started the inning after Sanford was lifted for a hitter and was in immediate difficulty when Wills and Tracewski singled. Wills, his ankle heavily taped, pulled an upset by stealing second and made it to third on Tracewski's infield hit.

That's when Larsen entered and got his first of 10 successive outs.

Johnny Podres (11-10) is scheduled to pitch against Billy O'Dell (12-6) in this afternoon's concluding game of the series. Podres was a doubtful starter because of a stiff neck, but was nominated because Pete Richert was forced to warm up several times during Saturday's marathon.

Horvath Takes 2nd Midget Main in Row

Don Horvath of Riverside took his second straight USAC midget main event Saturday night at Ascot Park.

Hovath was ahead all the way in the 50-lap feature and defeated Billy Cantrell by about 25 feet. Results:

Main event (50 laps) — Don Horvath, Billy Cantrell, John Baldwin, Colby Scroggins, Bob Hoople. 17:01.10.

Time ran out on final runs for 61 of the nation's top dragsters competing. The Slusher and Sullivan gas dragster, with Pat Helmick, took the top gas award. Best run of the evening was 8.01 at 192.70 mph by the Greer-Black Prudhome dragster from South Gate.

Eagles Topple Vikings

HERSHEY, Pa. (UPI)—The Philadelphia Eagles handed the Minnesota Vikings their first pre-season defeat Saturday night, 34-27, as quarterback Sonny Jurgenson completed 18 of 28 passes for 279 yards and three touchdowns.

The Eagles won their second in a row as 15,861 watched in Hershey Stadium. They had lost their first two pre-season games while the Vikings had three victories in a row.

NO HOLIDAY CRUISES

Full Fields Slated for Monday's Hydro Races

By JIM McCORMACK

Ever been to boat races when only three boats go off in a race and only two finish?

By the end of the third lap, the two craft are usually separated by half of Marine Stadium.

How exciting.

Well, things promise to be different Monday, Sept. 2, when the first race goes at 11 a.m. in the 18th annual Labor Day Boat Races.

Every section figures to have a full house, with the 150 and 280 hydroplane groups running elimination events to narrow the field to the eight maximum boats.

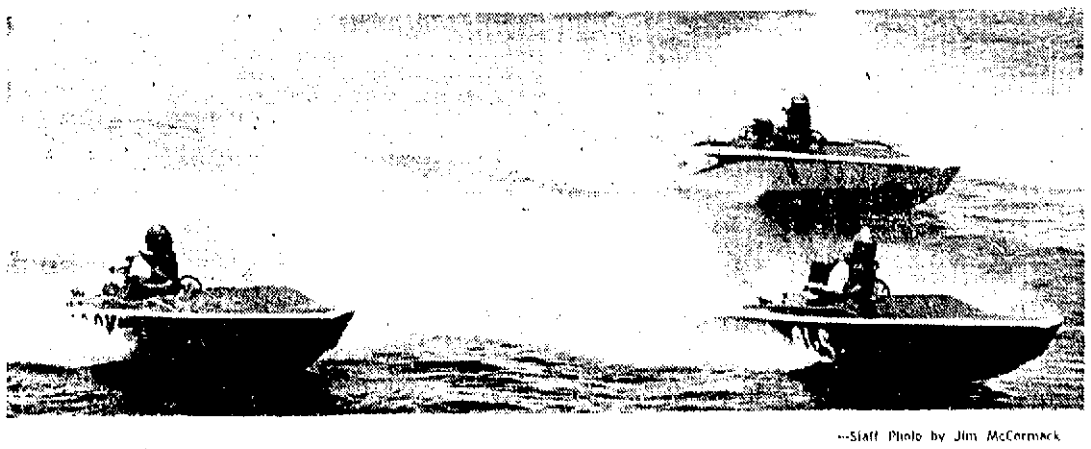

Why is eight the maximum number? It's due to the narrowness of Marine Stadium. With eight boats on the water at once, they are usually wild and wooly.

The SK runabout field figures to be a rematch of the National Championship run when Dan Towle, Los Angeles; Leroy Penhall, Anaheim; Tony Maricich, San Pedro, and Eld Olsen, Garden Grove, battle for the $200 first place money.

In the National regatta earlier this year, these five skippers were the main instigators in a race that saw two boats damaged in collisions—both of which caught fire—and the sinking of Olsen's SK. To top off the chaotic bout, someone sank the two bouys, and they threw in a false start.

* * * *

EVERY TOP skipper in 11 Western states has thrown his hat in the ring, for one of the nine classes going. Eighteen races will be held during the afternoon.

TELEVISION DEBUT

Benton Knocks Out Smith in 2nd

Benton, ranked fourth by the World Boxing Association and sixth by Ring Magazine, was a 2-1 favorite over his lanky 6-foot opponent, who holds the California middleweight title.

The end came quickly after comparatively little action in the first round and most of the second. The crisp combination flattened Smith and he was counted out by referee Lee Grossman at 2:25 into the second round.

Smith, who had scored 12 straight knockouts at the Olympic, suffered his seventh loss against 22 wins which included 18 knockouts.

Benton, 32, won his 49th against 8 defeats and one draw while registering his 28th knockout.

The first round saw both fighters merely feel each other out while tossing weak left jabs, although Benton, who scaled 161 pounds, landed one good hook and right to the head.

Smith, 156½, absorbed another solid overhand right in the second but appeared unhurt. The 24-year-old Californian had considered giving up boxing only a short time ago due to difficulties he had in getting opponents. He had planned to move to New Zealand only several weeks before the match was made.

Hornung 'In Chips' Despite Ban

HITTIN' THE HIGH SPOTS: It was quite a surprise to learn that Paul Hornung will make more money this fall while under suspension from the National Football League for gambling than he would have made if he had played the season with the Green Bay Packers.

Despite the fact Hornung admitted he had supplied information to a gambler and also had wagered on games himself, the former Heisman Trophy winner from Notre Dame appears to be still as big a hero today as he was when leading the Packers to the NFL title before the scandle broke.

The cold, financial figures prove it. Here are just a few of the things Hornung has going for himself this fall:

He has formed a corporation which will stage three variety shows in Louisville featuring such show business stars as Frank Fontaine, Sophie Tucker and Jimmy Durante. Hornung will emcee the programs.

PAUL HORNUNG
Will Lose $ When Plays

He is being featured by one of the country's top sports wear manufacturing firms in its national advertising.

He has been signed by CBS radio to do a five minute sports show five days a week over a 22-station network in the Midwest; will do a 15-minute Sunday night television show featuring results of the day's pro football games, and will handle the play-by-play broadcast of 25 high school games.

That's just a starter. He has more deals on the fire . . . and they all add up to much more money than he would have collected if he had played.

Meanwhile, Alex Karras, the Detroit Lions' tackle who also was suspended, is doing quite good, too.

He's concentrating his efforts in the Lindell Bar, which he invested $40,000 for a one-third interest.

And although the bar is "off limits" to pro athletes, it has become one of Detroit's most popular spots since moving into new quarters recently.

It also has become quite a tourist attraction for sports fans visiting the Motor City.

JOHN McKAY'S CHIEF ASSET before he suddenly became a winning coach last year was his humor. He always had a quip for everything.

Since the Trojans surprised everyone by going undefeated last season, being voted the nation's No. 1 team and then beating Wisconsin in the Rose Bowl, McKay is even bigger in the laugh department.

Winning helps people laugh . . . especially the alumni. In fact, they howl when John says he expects the Trojans to be the best team in the country again this season . . . coming out of the tunnel.

The old grads laugh it up. Because there is every reason to believe that the Trojans will be the best . . . on the field of battle.

Although he jokes about it on the banquet circuit he is currently traveling, McKay is still irked over the "play" the papers and sportscasters gave Wisconsin and Ron VanderKelen after the Rose Bowl game.

"I hear so much about VanderKelen and Wisconsin that I sometimes wonder if we really won the game and I have to go look at the films to reassure myself. We did, but wherever I go, there are people who give me that sympathetic look as if to say they were sorry we lost it," McKay reveals.

"I will say, that after that fourth quarter when Wisconsin closed in from 42-14 to 42-37, VanderKelen should give me a 10 percent commission of that $65,000 pro contract he got. Nobody had drafted at him . . . or even showed interest in him until after that."

McKAY ALSO POINTS OUT to alumni how he turned down an assistant professorship and life tenure at USC after last season. "President Topping called me in the office after we had won 10 straight and made me the proposition," John says, "but I reminded him of another coach who won 'em all and was given a life contract. Next year he lost eight games and won only two and the president called him in and said 'Coach, I now pronounce you dead'!"

McKay was up north last week for a special session with officials at Stanford to analyze the new rules.

"They change the rules every year to confuse people," he quips. "It's like new car models. Before you realize what they look like, another change has been made.

"Anyway, I called Wally Butts about the new rules and everything is all right!"

NBC NETWORK OFFICIALS decided the past week—before the crucial Dodger-Giant series opened—that they would show the hour-long documentary, "A Man Named Mays," on Sunday, Oct. 6, even if the Giants failed to repeat as champs.

Naturally, those behind the documentary had hoped that the Giants would be engaged in the World Series at the time of its showing . . . but it looks like Willie will be sitting this one out.

Nevertheless, NBC's film crew got lucky last Tuesday night by recording Willie's 400th career homer . . . just a few minutes after he had predicted in a pre-game interview before the cameras that he would hit it that night!

'Doped' McKinley Wins on 'Nerves'

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—Wimbledon Champion Chuck McKinley tore a muscle in his back reaching for a shot in the first set Saturday but, doped up with pills and playing on sheer nerve, managed to eke out a victory over little known Eduardo Zuleta of Ecuador 4-6, 3-6, 8-6, 6-3, 6-1 in the first round of the National Tennis Championships.

The 22-year-old San Antonio, Tex., star, the nation's No. 1 player, walked off the court with two physicians and there was some doubt he would be able to remain in the meet.

"He should be okay — I think he'll continue," said Dr. Charles Blair.

"I'll do everything possible to stay in the tournament," McKinley said. "But I got a pain like this in Dallas this year and I was out a week."

There were Davis Cup considerations. It is doubtful that any risks will be taken with the team's top player with important cup matches coming up against Venezuela and Britain next month and, if successful, later with India and Australia.

Tournament officials, worried over possible loss of their top gate attraction, changed the schedule, so that McKinley's half of the draw would not play again until Monday. Chuck will take medication and heat treatments in the meantime.

McKINLEY'S sudden injury, which he sought to hide from the gallery of 10,000, overshadowed other developments on the second day of this 82-year-old tournament.

Margaret Smith of Australia, the world's best woman player, swept to a second round victory over Mrs. Lisa Gram Andersen, a 100-pound, 42-year-old mother from Copenhagen, 6-0, 6-0, dropping only 12 points in the 20-minute match.

She was far more impressive than her chief American rival, Darlene Hard of Los Angeles, who volleyed poorly and showed little zest in a 6-4, 6-3 triumph over Etta Herdy of Australia.

Billie Jean Moffitt, Long Beach, Calif., did not play in Saturday's round. Miss Moffitt is third seeded.

EXUDES CONFIDENCE

Hill Garners 69 for 2-Shot Denver Lead

DENVER (AP)—A confident Dave Hill continued his mastery over the tight tree-lined Denver Country Club course Saturday with a 69 to widen his lead in the Denver Open Golf Tournament with a six-under-par 204 for 54 holes.

His closest pursuers were Jacky Cupit at 206 after a 68 Saturday, Jay Hebert and Juan Rodriguez at 207, and Bill Eggers and Pat Rea 208.

Rodriguez and Doug Sanders turned in 65s for the best third round over the 6,774-yard par 35-35—70 course. The round gave Sanders 209.

HILL, riding the crest of an eight-week comeback streak, said "there shouldn't be any problems tomorrow. If I can shoot another 69 it will bring home the cheese."

Hill, 26-year-old swinger from Jackson, Mich., parred every hole on the front nine and got birdies at the 10th and 12th with 15-foot putts. He wasn't over par on any hole.

Rodriguez, a 5-foot-7, 120-pound stylist from Puerto Rico, turned in a sensational driving game that enabled him to score six birdies.

Foyt led the field of 18 all the way.

No official time was kept on the race, officials said, because of an accident between the seventh and eighth laps. Johnny Rutherford, of Fort Worth, Tex., lost control of his car and hit the fence. He was not seriously injured.

Behind Foyt was Bobby Marshman of Pottstown, Pa. Other top finishers were Chuck Hulse, Downey, Calif., third; Don Branson, Champaign, Ill., fourth and Johnny White, Keokuk, Iowa, fifth.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A St. Louis driver was injured seriously in a spectacular two-car crash at the end of a 166-mile an-hour run in the National Championship Drag races at Indianapolis Raceway Park.

Lou Kamp Jr., 29, a mechanic in St. Louis, was injured when his Oldsmobile-powered dragster flipped at the end of a quarter mile run at the strip.

The second driver, Danny Ongais of Pomona, Calif., was not injured, although his high-powered car also flipped and was damaged badly.

DARLINGTON, S.C. (UPI) — Fred Lorenzen, hoping to become stock racing's first $100,000-a-year winner, will be the driver to beat Monday in the 13th annual Southern 500.

A total of $102,618 in prize money is up for grabs in the "500", the grandaddy of stock car races. The winner will get at least $20,450. Lorenzen will have the pole position.

Leisurely Kin Romps to 6-Length Debutante Win

By ERNIE MASON

DEL MAR—J. Kel Houssels' Leisurely Kin swept to a spectacular six-length victory over 13 2-year-old filly rivals to win the thirteenth running of the $54,350 gross Del Mar Debutante here Saturday before 18,553 fans.

Unleashing one of her better efforts, the daughter of Kingly—Leisurely Marge ran down C. V. Whitney's Mosquito after a half mile and then widened through the stretch, turning the six furlongs in a brilliant 1:09 1/5.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Talmage's Loukahl was second, a half a length in front of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Heaton's Goyala. Mosquito held on for fourth money, a neck back and a head in front of Pretty Bubbles.

Jockey Jerry Lambert, aboard the winner, summed it all up when he said after unsaddling—"this was the first time she has run for me and she was much sharper than she's been all meeting." Lambert has been riding the Houssels filly in her local engagements.

Leisurely Kin, soundly beaten in her only other two starts here, reverted back to the form which saw her run third, beaten only a half length in the Hollywood Juvenile Championship. She was second choice in the wagering to the entry of Blue Norther and Petite Cricket and paid $10,60, $6.40 and $5. Loukhal, coupled with Reigh Princess, paid $8 and $6.20 and Goyala returned $6.20.

Disappointment of the Debutant, undoubtedly, was Blue Norther, winner of the recent Junior Miss Stakes here for Mrs. William R. Hawn and victorious only nine days ago over the first four Debutante finishers in a prep event.

Blue Norther broke slowly for Johnny Longden and then wouldn't go to running when he asked her to move.

Richest Race to 'Song

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sari's Song, the 4-5 odds-on favorite, led from wire-to-wire Saturday to gallop to a six-length triumph in the richest race ever run for 2-year-old fillies, the $186,505 Arlington Lassie.

Sari's Song, owned by J. Kel Houssels, and ridden by Willie Shoemaker, was the stand-out choice of the 27,690 fans and even though she came out of the outside post position in the 12-horse field, she was in charge from the second the gate opened.

Sari's Song, a daughter of Spy Song, was timed at 1:18 1/5 for the six and a half furlongs on a fast track.

Sari's Song returned $3.80, $3.20 and $2.40. Yecats paid $17.60 and $3.40, and Castle Forbes paid $2.40.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Montpelier Farm's Mongo charged up on the outside in the stretch and beat Bronze Babu by a nose with his final stride in the $35,650 Kelly-Olympic Handicap at Atlantic City Race Track.

Ridden by Wayne Chambers, Mongo set a track record for the mile and an eighth with 1:48 flat.

Salinas Area Hit by Quake

SALINAS (UPI) — A sharp earthquake jarred the Salinas-Hollister area of central California Saturday, but no damage was reported.

Dr. Don Tocher of the University seismographic station at Berkeley said the quake had a magnitude of about five on the Richter Scale.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Railroads in Spotlight; Cost of Living Up Again

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The great railroad serial thundered toward a cliffhanging climax last week before Congress threw the switch and sent it into another chapter.

It was less than six hours before a national strike deadline when President Kennedy signed legislation shunting the two key issues in the work rules dispute into binding arbitration.

With the railroads canceling some train schedules and industries shifting cargoes to other carriers in anticipation of a crippling strike, Congress highballed the bills aimed at heading off a work stoppage. Little opposition developed, although reservations about impairing the process of collective bargaining were voiced.

* * * *

WITH THE President's signing of the bill, the railroads withdrew the controversial work rules changes which would eliminate the jobs of nearly 40,000 firemen. The five rail unions involved canceled their notice of a strike.

The bill set up a panel of seven arbitrators to rule within 150 days on disputes over firemen's jobs and the make-up of freight and yards crews. Kennedy originally proposed that the Interstate Commerce Commission be given the arbitration assignment.

The board's findings would be binding for two years. It was doubtful that after that time the controversy would be revived.

Congress left to railroad and union negotiators the settlement of six other work rules disputes. It forbade work rules changes or a strike on these issues for at least 30 days after the arbitration panel makes its ruling on the two major issues.

* * * *

KENNEDY SAID the legislation "reaffirmed the essential priority of the public interest over any narrower interest."

Some labor leaders, including James Hoffa, head of the Teamsters, called it a serious setback for collective bargaining.

The stock market drooped when it seemed that Congress wouldn't be able to act in time to head off a strike but came back strongly when favorable action appeared imminent.

New statistics indicated that the economy was moving ahead, slowly but surely.

The National Industrial Conference Board reported a survey indicated that major industries will sharply increase capital spending in the third and fourth quarters. This was partly due to the fact that they spent less in the second quarter than they appropriated.

* * * *

TOTAL VALUE of construction contracts in July climbed 10 per cent above a year earlier. This was largely due to a 7 per cent increase in residential building.

Machine tool orders — a key business barometer — in July showed a 4 per cent gain over June and a 21 per cent advance over July 1962.

On the darker side of the picture, as far as individuals were concerned, was the rise in the cost of living for the second straight month to a record high.

The Labor Department reported a one-half of 1 per cent increase in the consumer price index in July to 107.1 per cent of the 1957-59 base period. This meant that it now takes 71 cents more to buy what $10 would have purchased in consumer items in the 1957-59 period. The rise was attributed to higher prices for food, gasoline and most goods and services.

* * * *

AUTOMOBILE production continued to build up slowly as more 1964 models came into production. Output last week was estimated at 36,000 passenger cars against 22,732 the week before and 35,115 a year ago. Only General Motors is yet to start turning out 1964s.

Production last week boosted the total for the year to 4,852,965 cars, up 10 per cent from the 4,408,740 a year earlier.

Steel output inched up the week before last week for the first time since early June and the second since late May. While the gain was only 1 per cent over the previous week, it was encouraging to steelmakers, who saw in it an indication that the downswing had bottomed out.

Briefly around the business scene: The 11 domestic trunk airlines and the three all-cargo airlines carried 18.3 per cent more cargo in July than a year earlier . . . Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. proposes to acquire Motor Wheel Corp. . . . Natural gas prices are dipping after almost doubling since 1950 . . . General Electric Co. has offered three-year labor contracts which include two pay raises which it says average more than 2.5 per cent each.

Great Trip Aboard the America

If all sportsmen were good sailors, a great percentage of them would be aboard Pierpoint Landing's America or one of the other 85-foot boats this weekend, instead of knocking themselves out trying to go places on dangerous and crowded freeways.

The Labor Day weekend is always one of mixed outdoor activities: Fishing, fresh or salt water, camping, touring, plus the opening of dove season, the first scattergun activity of the year.

I got my kicks aboard the America Friday. It was my first trip on that beautiful 85-foot boat. Charles L. Breese, my brother-in-law, and J. E. (Mac) McClintock, general manager of Pierpoint Landing, and I formed a trio, doing what comes naturally, trying to catch albacore.

Let me say right now that I didn't blow this one. I only sacked two albacore, but by Southern California Tuna Club standards, both were official three-six button fish, 22-8 and 22-4. Charlie sacked two, the larger weighing 27-8. Mac also had two weighing more than 20 pounds, but caught a dozen others and handed the outfits off to other passengers.

Charlie lost two fish and I lost five, each of which I battled for more than 10 minutes.

THINGS THAT I HAVE BEEN WRITING about for weeks happened to all aboard the America. For instance, a rundown of my five lost fish showed that two fish either spit out the hook and tore it out in escaping. Another sawed the line under the boat and the other two just broke the line.

One of my lost fish was a handoff from Mac on a bass outfit with 12-pound-test monofilament. He slapped it in my hands and said, "Try this for size," then told me that the fish already had taken out 200 yards of line. Ever try to horse in a 30-pound albacore that far out with 12-pound-test line? Well, I didn't.

Charlie fought his 27-8 fish around the boat a couple of times, finally landed it and then, perspiring copiously, said, "Any middle-aged person would be a fool to try to catch a limit of these big hogs!"

The star of the day, however, was a black-haired, black-eyed mother of three grown daughters. She caught six fish while her husband was landing five.

She was Mrs. Viola Bowers, 4500 Cerritos Dr., Long Beach, wife of Melvin Bowers, of Oil Well Supply Co. Viola was one of the best anglers I've ever seen handle a rod and reel.

She knew just where to go, over or under, at all times and, as far as I can recall, she never made a single mistake. She has been fishing 23 years, ever since she married Mel. They fish together once a week and she usually beats Mel in numbers caught.

NOW A FEW WORDS ABOUT THE CREW: Arnold (Cookie) Cook, captain of the America, is the type of person who actually stirs up enthusiasm. He is at the peak of his glory when there are 20 or more hookups. He will be shouting encouragement to all, unsnarling lines, gaffing fish, helping neophytes cast near a boil and then setting the hook.

He has a very able relief skipper, Mike Nott, son of Bill Nott, president of Pierpoint. Mike was not aboard Friday, but there were some helpful deckhands, Al Shearin, Mac McAllicher and John Vrana.

Even Jack and Joyce Martin, who operate the sparkling galley, had to get into the thick of things when there were 20 or more hookups at a time. Jack told me later: "I might as well buy white aprons with red dots because that's the way my apron looks after the first fish is decked. For some reason I get the blood from that first flipping albacore."

The Martins, in addition to turning out excellent food, just can't keep away from the rail when the fish are boiling. Joyce, discussing a column I did recently about crews needing public-relations training, said she hoped I wouldn't think that about the crew on the America. One couldn't; everybody was working hard and the 32 passengers were more than pleased. They caught 75 fish and probably lost four times that many. I don't believe one single albacore was lost due to a deckhand's error.

PIERPOINT LANDING HAS POSTED its late September and October runs to Guadalupe Islands off the coast of Baja California. They are as follows: Sept. 23-29 and Sept. 30-Oct. 6; Oct. 7-13 and Oct. 14-20. Departure times are at midnight and returns at noon.

The America will fish either of several Mexican islands, depending on fishing and weather conditions. Guadalupe, San Martin, Cedros and San Benito are on the list.

The trip, sold as a package for $195, naturally is on a reservation plan only. The ship will maintain radio with Pierpoint Landing throughout the trip and passengers will be limited to 35.

As was the case when the America made her maiden trip to Guadalupe last spring, the following species will be the goals of those aboard: Bluefin and yellowfin tuna, up to 100 pounds, black sea bass, up to 400; yellowtail, up to 70, white sea bass, up to 70, bull bass, barracuda and many others.

An angler fishing in those waters may return with all the fish he wishes, bearing in mind, of course, that the boat can not be overloaded in gross tons.

More details are available simply by calling Pierpoint Landing and asking for the America reservations desk.

DUANE W. WOOLPERT — ART MAYS
The Friendliest Import Dealers in Long Beach

Used Car Dealer Association

UCDA says: Meet Your USED CAR DEALER

Woolpert Imports, Inc.

1725 Long Beach Blvd. HE 2-2431 — 431 W. Pacific Cst. Hwy. HE 5-8918

Past President of UCDA

Duane W. Woolpert is president of Woolpert Imports, Inc. One of the youngest men ever to receive an auto dealer's license in California, he has operated his own used car business since the age of 21. "Early in life I felt the definite need for good used cars in the scheme of life," says Duane. Variously known as Woolpert Used Cars, Woolpert Motors, and in 1959 as Woolpert Imports, Inc.

Duane, an ardent hunter and fisherman would like more time for these hobbies, but finds his business of reconditioning and selling used cars an equally fascinating hobby. "If you are looking for a fine used car, see me at 1725 L. B. Blvd."

Duane and wife, Laura, are graduates of the Long Beach schools; love Long Beach, here to stay. Four children, Duke, a junior at Wilson High; Kelly, a second grader, with Carol and Barbara between, make up the happy Woolpert household.

Art Mays joined Mr. Woolpert's staff in 1958 as general manager. In 1962 became Vice President of Woolpert Imports, Inc. Art has become well versed in the import car field, being highly regarded on auto row.

All members of Art's staff are keen in the import bracket of sports and family cars. "If you ever felt that owning a sports car is going 'out on a limb,' dismiss this doubt. Out on that limb is where some of the best fruit is," says Art.

Personally,

Berens Resigns Symphony Post

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Fritz Berens, conductor of the Sacramento Symphony Orchestra for the past 14 years, announced that he will resign at the conclusion of the 1963-64 season. He said he hopes to broaden his musical experience by building an orchestra in another city.

Bernstein Brilliant in Bowl

By DANIEL CARIAGA

The New York Philharmonic's second concert in Hollywood Bowl Friday night showed the virtuoso orchestra in its best form. Under the leadership of its musical director, Leonard Bernstein, the Philharmonic displayed impeccable performances of Mendelssohn's "Italian" Symphony, "Iberia," by Debussy, and Tschaikovsky's Francesca da Rimini.

Sharing the stage with Mr. Bernstein was the American soprano, Ann Moffo, who sang arias from "The Barber of Seville," and "La Traviata."

After a lusty and brilliant National Anthem, Bernstein led the Mendelssohn Symphony with great control, with economy of gesture, and with a restrain befitting its classic lines. The second movement was particularly lovely. Some listeners might prefer smoothness instead of precision in the third movement trio, yet no one could quarrel with the conductor's exciting delivery of the last movement.

* * * *

DEBUSSY'S kaleidoscopic score, "Iberia," makes tremendous demands on an orchestra, and on a conductor. Bernstein and the Philharmonic met these demands brilliantly. In the second movement, "Fragrance of the Night," they evoked the magic of sounds out-of-doors, and all the myriad night-feelings that go with them.

"Francesca da Rimini," Tschaikovsky's fantasy about tragic love, is a brilliant and moving piece; to deliver its full impact, it needs a conductor who can coax from every instrument in the orchestra the maximum of intensity while at the same time keeping the total intensity in check. This is a mean feat, one that only a man of Leonard Bernstein's capabilities can handle. But handle it he does, and with such finesse that there are no bad or awkward moments, just beautiful ones. Stanley Drucker's clarinet tone, pure and limpid, is enough reason for any conductor to program this piece.

THE SCHNOZ AT 70

He's New Idol of Teen Age Set

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — First Elvis shaved off his sideburns. Then All American Boy Pat Boone made sexy love to Nancy Kwan.

But look who is changing his image now — Jimmy Durante.

"All of a sudden," says Jimmy, "I'm a bobby sox idol.

"Just tink what this would have meant when I had hair. It's Richard Burton, Durante and where d'ya go from there?"

* * * *

AFTER Jimmy did "Jumbo" with Doris Day his long-time writer, Jackie Barnett, felt that some of the Durante warmth and sentiment might go on a dramatic album.

Durante, now 70, has been singing "Inka Dinka Doo" for 50 years.

"And it still ain't a hit," moans Jimmy.

But a new Warner Bros. album called "The New Jimmy Durante" is.

Out here — even on the rock 'n' roll stations — the disc jockeys are playing Durante's dramatic singing of "September Song" around the clock.

* * * *

DISC JOCKEY Johnny Grant said, "All of a sudden, Durante is the biggest thing since Chubby Checkers and the twist. The kids drive me nuts calling up to ask me to play Durante's record. I could play it four times an hour and not satisfy them."

Warners, realizing that they have a hit on their hands, asked Durante to go out on a tour a la Fabian.

"What could I do on the Dick Clark Show," The Schnoz asked. 'The Surfer's Stomp?

"I ain't pluggin' no record at my age. I'm just pluggin the plugs down at Del Mar race track."

* * * *

IN ONE number of the album, Durante gets so sentimental you hear him cry. He sounds more sincere than Johnny Ray.

The song is "Look Ahead, Little Girl." It's the song he dedicated to his adopted baby daughter, Cecee.

"She's the one who changed my image," says Durante. "Imagine Durante readin' fairy tales out loud."

LAGUNA OPERA FESTIVAL

'Butterfly' Triumphs

By RACHEL MORTON

The Laguna Festival of Opera performance have improved with each production and the final one of the series, "Madame Butterfly," as given in the Irvine Bowl Friday night topped them all.

The artists are not world famous but several of them will become so, and meanwhile, at nominal cost, we are privileged to hear very fine opera. And, best of all—in our own language, with excellent translations by Henry Reese.

Understanding what was being said on stage, the audience Friday night was loud with spontaneous and frequent applause and many bravos.

* * * *

THE CASTING was excellent and the stage settings reflected the artistic taste that is typically Laguna's.

Maralin Niska as Butterfly was well-nigh perfect. Her child-like naivete was truly that of a little Japanese bride of 15. Her gestures were full of meaning; her pitiable plights were heart stirring, and her whole portrayal was romantically convincing. To this was added a beautiful soprano voice that soared effortlessly in the high floating pianissimos. And she looked the part without daubing her face in white enamel as do some Butterflys. Her costumes were gorgeous.

David Poleri who sang Pinkerton possesses a voluptuous tenor voice of unusual ring and power. His English diction was excellent and his acting was convincing.

* * * *

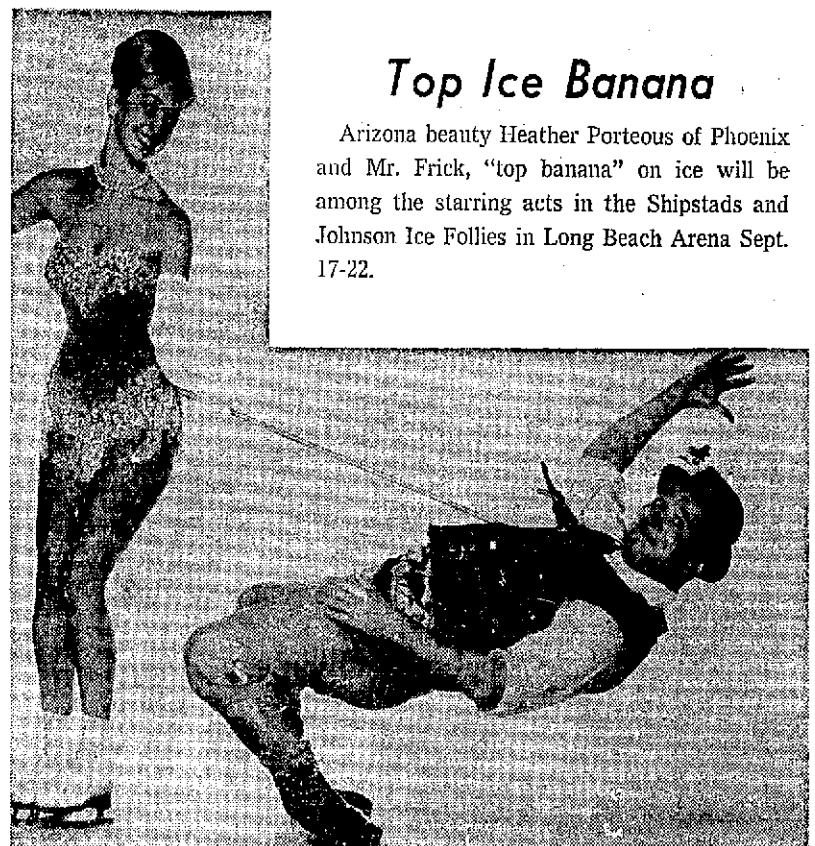

THE SMOOTH sympathetic baritone voice of Calvin Marsh suited well the role of Sharpless. In fact the part suited him much better than his earlier "Rigoletto". His scene with the little child was touching. Suzuki can be a dull role but as sung and acted Friday night by Margery Mackay it lived and breathed realistically. Her voice was warmly colored and expertly handled.

Raymond Gagan was the obsequious Goro. George Bice was a tall and formidable Yamadori with a fine bass voice and Gino Leonetti sang the brief role of Bonzo.

Eugene Ober conducted the excellent orchestra and the singers with expert authority. Especially fine was the playing of the overture to the last act.

Top Ice Banana

Arizona beauty Heather Porteous of Phoenix and Mr. Frick, "top banana" on ice will be among the starring acts in the Shipstads and Johnson Ice Follies in Long Beach Arena Sept. 17-22.

It'll Rain at Follies

The weatherman hasn't said so, but there'll be rain in Long Beach starting Sept. 17, opening night for the nine performances of Shipstads and Johnson Ice Follies at the Arena.

One of the production numbers calls for rain and rain there will be in the Arena. There'll be fog too, with fog-making equipment creating the cloud-like effects needed for one of the production numbers.

The Follies will run through Sept. 22 here, and will feature world famed skaters in the all-new 28th edition of the event. The Follies' own travelling orchestra will play for the event.

Smoking at Age 7

LONDON (UPI)—The Nursing Times said a survey of 156 English schoolboys showed that 50 had started smoking before they were 7. Eleven of the boys interviewed started smoking before they were 5.

10TH YEAR MAJOR MILESTONE

Grove Realty Board Prexy Hails Big Gains

(Edltor's note: Dramatically reflecting the growth of the area, the Garden Grove Board of Realtors is chalking up new achievements every day. The story is told in the President's Report for the last six months just released by Dick Casterline, head of the board this year. Text of his report follows.)

One of the laws of nature concerns the fact that nothing remains the same. Everything either grows and improves or erodes and fades away.

Our board has grown rapidly over the years. Since this is our 10th year it should be a milestone for progress and not a year to fade into oblivion.

In reading the two quarterly reports from our 23 committee chairmen plus factual material supplied by the executive secretary, it becomes clear that we are progressing remarkably and possibly faster than in any other like period in our history.

* * * *

HERE ARE a few highlights:

Total membership is up 40% over the first six months of 1962—(267 vs. 193), making us a Gold Star Board once again.

Total listings processed up 11% over 1962 (1,289 vs. 1,153).

Total sales up 60% over 1962 (510 vs. 318).

Total $ volume up 72% over 1962 ($9,092,670 vs. $5,257,789).

Cooperative sales up from 27% in 1962 to 38% in 1963.

Cash assets up 40% over 1962 ($13,517 vs. $9,645).

* * * *

CONCERNING finances, in the future we are not going to ask any of the affiliate members to furnish door prizes for any programs, installation meetings, and so forth. New dues structure makes this possible.

We have more equipment in the office — another desk, another typewriter, plus some $1,100 in real estate supplies for resale at cost; and a greatly expanded library.

Many members have distinguished themselves: One was selected "Man of the Year", another appointed to the Planning Commission; one named "Homemaker of the Year"; others were elected to the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce, Lions Club, Rotary, School Board Trustees; and percentage wise we had the greatest gain in NAREB enrollment of any board in the United States!

* * * *

THE WOMEN'S COUNCIL members have been very active, and acted as hostesses for the regional meeting at the Charter House, even promoting a special edition of the newspaper for this event.

Attendance at the weekly breakfast meetings has exceeded the guarantee ever since the meeting was changed from Wednesday to Tuesday mornings, and each member now has a new professional type identification badge.

Attendance on the caravan has exceeded all expectations.

Realtor Week promotion was the best ever — really putting our board on the map.

* * * *

CIVIC DAY was a smashing success — every table was taken, every seat occupied as recognition was given to civic leaders and Essay Costest winners read their compositions.

The golf tournament was another very real success, bringing our members out for a good day of relaxation and giving all of us a chance to become better acquointed.

We hosted the 23rd District Meeting in March at the Greenbrier.

Our board usually had the greatest number in attendance at the County Council meetings.

Over 40 attended the annual CREA Sales Conference in Santa Ana.

Four members received Real Estate Certificates in May — more graduates than any other board in Orange County.

* * * *

WE INITIATED a reciprocal agreement with Anaheim, and will follow with like agreements with other boards.

A new salesman's contest has been initiated, eliminating the participation of the employing broker and office manager.

Two, four-hour Orientation Classes have been held with nearly a hundred members taking instruction in By-laws and Multiple Listing Rules, in the Code of Ethics and Organized Real Estate, and in Board Office Procedures.

All members who are ill are contacted immediately and given encouragement with gifts and flowers.

* * * *

STATE DIRECTORS have attended CREA meetings in Fresno, Palm Springs and Lake Tahoe, adding their votes and efforts to help defeat adverse legislation. Reports of these meetings are given to the general membership.

Our ad in the Blue Book contained more offices than ever before.

We are in the process of extending our boundaries to include the Rossmoor area.

A new commercial listing form is in the process of completion.

We had an entry in the Strawberry Festival parade with your president, his family, and the executive secretary riding in a 1922 model Ford.

A special classified ad was run for several weeks in the Garden Grove News to help inform the public as to the meaning of the term Realtor and to help distinguish the difference between Multiple Listing Service as offered by a Realtor vs. that offered by non-Realtors.

"The ABC's of Why Real Estate People Succeed" was the theme of the Broker-Salesman Relations meetings, initiating many worthwhile ideas.

* * * *

PROFESSIONALIZING our business has been advanced by the weekly reading of Articles of the NAREB Code of Ethics, with emphasis on using standard CREA forms and investigating non-professional methods as they came to light.

Three grievances have been processed.

All of these activities of our board have been very efficiently recorded in the weekly bulletins and in the newspapers.

Considering the fact that

Start Work at Redondo on $2.8 Million Apartment-Hotel

REDONDO BEACH — Developers of a $2.8 million apartment-hotel in Redondo Beach King Harbor have disclosed that they plan to open their luxury, ocean-front hostelry on New Year's Eve, 1964.

Ground was broken for the 140-unit Portofino Inn and the 21-unit Portofino Apartments last week, and plans call for completion within five months. It is the first major construction undertaken on land surrounding the recently-completed harbor.

Frank Arciero, president of the development firm, said the hotel units will be ultramodern, designed with Roman landscaping and Italian provincial decor.

* * * *

EACH WILL HAVE a stall shower and bath, and 66 will have kitchens. Boat slips able to accommodate yachts up to 76 feet adjoin the building.

The 21 Gold Medallion apartments will have panoramic views of the harbor, as well as fireplaces and lanai patios with private balconies.

The boat slips and two fresh water swimming pools are common to both dwellings.

* * * *

THE INN will have 15 2-bedroom apartments, leasing for approximately $350 a month, and 6 1-bedroom apartments, leasing for approximately $275 a month.

Being built as an adjunct to both buildings, Arciero said is a cocktail lounge, liquor-delicatessen, coffee shop and epicurian restaurant, which will occupy a two-story building east of the two apartments.

Mary Davis, firm vice president and general manager, is Arciero's partner in the project. Architects are Weber and Nicholson, West Los Angeles.

AT GARDEN GROVE

Mayor Gives Wife Home on Anniversary

GARDEN GROVE—After living adjacent to a mortuary since 1940, answering telephones and doorbells every other night and every other weekend—alternating with employes—Mayor and Mrs. George B. Honold have moved into a new home on Lambert Circle.

The home is the mayor's 25th wedding anniversary present to his wife, Edith.

The mortuary is Honold Bros. Mortuary, 10781 Garden Grove Blvd.

Following a lengthy search which located two much needed business associates, Honold decided he and his wife at last could leave the noisy boulevard and some of the responsibilities at the funeral home in the hands of his new associates, Al Mettler and Terry Speers of San Diego.

As for Mrs. Honold, the new home is a dream come true—a place to relax or to entertain friends without the demands of constant interruptions as in the past. And there's a large yard for the Honold pets—Kathie, the dog, and Susie, the cat.

But the Honolds are not going into complete retirement. They will carry on the family business, only with a less interrupted schedule.

NOT KEYS TO THE CITY, BUT TO HOME

Garden Grove Mayor George Honold sometimes presents keys of the city to someone; but here he's on the receiving end, and the keys are to the new home he bought as a silver wedding anniversary gift for his wift. Keys are being presented to the couple by Bill Stewart (left) of Stewart Realty.

Know What Condominiums Are? Maybe This Will Help You

By VERN ANTHONY
Southland Progress Editor

Con-do-min-i-um. Accent it on the third syllable.

The word condominium has gained the spotlight in the building industry of late—but many persons are baffled by it.

Actually, it's a Latin word dating back to the Sixth Century. It means "joint dominion" or "joint ownership." As now used, it is a method of ownership offering some advantages over both renting or buying into a cooperative.

This form of apartment or real estate ownership is gaining popularity not only in California but in Hawaii, Arizona, Florida and Illinois, according to California Home magazine.

* * * *

PLANS for the first Los Angeles high-rise condominium apartment-home project were announced only recently. This will be a 17-story building known as the Royce. It will cost $7.5 million, and it will be built on Wilshire Boulevard at Westholm Avenue in Westwood Hills.

The 96 apartment homes will have sunken living rooms, Roman baths and 10-foot ceilings. The Royce is slated for completition late next year.

* * * *

IN A CONDOMINIUM, the occupant is the sole owner of his own apartment or house in a multifamily project but shares the ownership of everything else—the land, hallways, walls, roof, swimming pool, gardens, lobbies, shops and other common areas.

This means that when you buy a condominium, you get clear title to your residence just as you do when you buy a house.

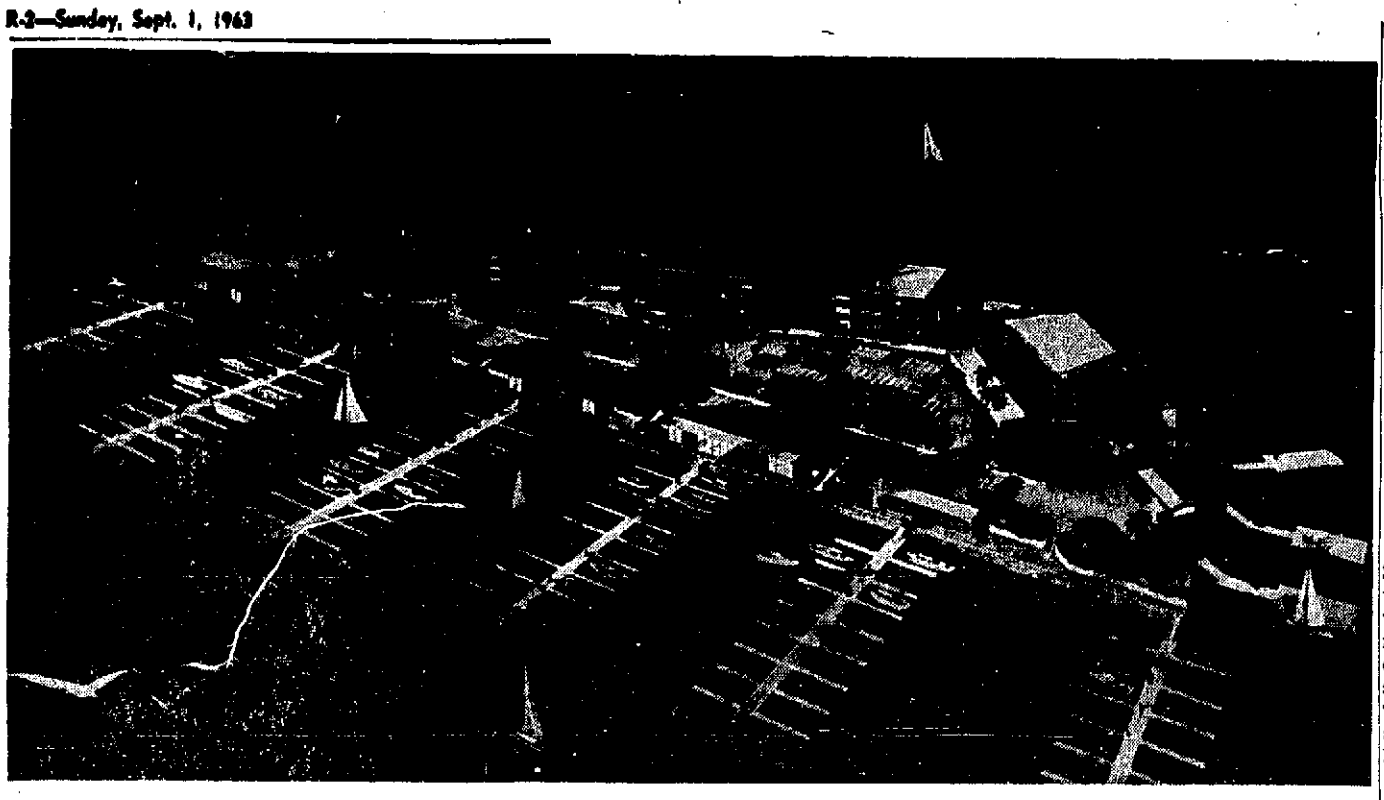

You buy the condominium on your own terms, get your own individual mortgage, pay your own individual principle, interest and property tax, and are free at any time to sell your apartment to anyone you want to at the best price you can get.

* * * *

AT THE SAME time, as co-owner of all the common elements of the property, you abide by certain rules, spelled out in a "public deed" describing how the project shall be operated.

You and other owners elect a board of directors who manage the property and each

Completion is scheduled by the first of next year on this $2.8-million apartment hotel at Redondo Beach, in King Harbor area. It will be known as Portofino Inn and Apartments. Facilities will include boat slips. (Story on Page R-1.)

Bellflower Board Seeks Another Win

BELLFLOWER—Bob Prigmore, president of the Bellflower District Board of Realtors, has announced entry of the local board in the Achievement Book competition of the California Real Estate Association.

Judging and awards will be made at the convention of the California Real Estate Association to be held Sept. 22-26th in Los Angeles.

Esa Rodgers, associate member of the board, was chairman of the committee which compiled the book and was assisted by Mary Johnson, Dorothy Grimm, Hattie Branham and Linora Dutcher.

Mrs. Rodgers was 1962 chairman of the committee whose entry received first place for boards of its size.

The book, 18 by 20 inches in size, contains 57 pages depicting the board activities from Sept. 1 of one year through Aug. 31 of the next year.

Compton-Lynwood Unit to Hear Panel

COMPTON—The Compton-Lynwood Board of Realtors again will host the panel of educational authorities from Long Beach City College when that panel appears Wednesday to bring to the board the latest developments in real estate techniques and developments in real estate licensing, especially with reference to recent legislation.

The meeting will be held at Lueder's Park at 8 a.m., according to R. L. Dressendorfer, program chairman.

The panel will be headed by Dr. Keith James, coordinator of Business Education for the college.

Accompanying James will be James C. Hoffman, Jr., a professional real estate appraiser, and Clarence Knox, public accountant and teacher of the course, Real Estate Taxation.

Also appearing with the group will be Barry Laffoon, loan expert and teacher of Real Estate Financing at the college.

3 Permits at Stanton

STANTON—Only three permits for construction totaling $6,080 were issued by the Stanton Building Department during the week. Permits were issued to Wilson Six, 7851 Santa Barbara St., aluminum siding, $2,880; John Gilmore, 7556 Cody Drive, swimming pool, $1,900; and Henry H. Yeager, Anaheim, for commercial remodeling of Ricardo's at 10428 Dale St., $1,300.

State Lottery Plan Hit by Homeowners Group

The Statewide Homeowners Association has announced it will oppose plans for a state controlled lottery as a tax injustice to homeowners, and will rally homeowners, taxpayers, educational and church groups to help defeat the scheme.

Arrangements are being made for a mass meeting Sept. 19, probably in Hollywood. The location will be announced later.

John Nagy, president of Statewide Homewoners, said the lottery "is an obvious device by gambling interests to reap huge profits for a syndicate through a proposed state-controlled swindle. It would be tax relief for land speculators and slum owners, but not for homeowners."

Nagy said homeowners already are paying too much taxes, inasmuch as they are under-assessed and pay little in taxes. Consequently, the homeowners and businessmen have to pay more than their share of local property taxes."

"Instead of assessing property uniformly and getting all the tax revenue allowed, homeowners and businessmen are being asked to support a lottery to give further tax relief to land speculation and slum development."

"CALIFORNIA is too great a state to consider weak and tawdy schemes of financing through lotteries. The state that asks for men to match its mountains is strong enough to find a legitimate method of collecting public revenue without resorting to petty gambling which will enrich mainly the operators. And in the wake of gambling usually comes crime."

Nagy said Statewide Homeowners Association will begin at once to warn organizations of the lottery plan and ask help in fighting "an ill-advised proposal to further injure homeowners and the state's economy."

Built adjacent to the park's famed fly casting pool, the new structure nestles beside sycamores shading its modern entrance. It is built with a gracefully-curved laminated arched roof, and the pool side is framed by a curving wall of decorative cement block.

The building can seat 900 for theater use or 450 for banquets.

Its first use Saturday night was by the Lions, who started a square dancing class. Beginning Monday, the building will be open to all other groups and to individuals. An official dedication will be set later.

THE LIONS CLUB raised $14,500 toward the construction, and laid the foundation. It decided it couldn't finance the building as planned and so enlisted municipal money.

The club had staged a rodeo, a circus and other entertainments to raise money for the project.

Building Records Tumble

California's construction boom rose to record levels in the first half of the year, with value of permits issued in the private sector totaling nearly $2.6 billion, State Finance Director Hale Champion has announced in Sacramento.

The figure represents an increase of 22.3 per cent over the January-June period of 1962, also a record-breaking year, Champion said.

The value of residential construction permits at $1.74 billion was up 28.6 per cent over last year's first half. Private non-residential construction was up 11.6 per cent, with a permit value of $827 million. The volume in both categories set new records.

* * * *

CHAMPION said residential permits indicated a total of 150,300 new dwelling units, up 28 per cent over the 117,062 authorized from January to June, 1962.

The booming construction activity was reflected in higher employment levels throughout the industry.

Figures released jointly by the State Department of Employment and Industrial Relations showed 397,000 workers employed in construction during June, an increase of 41,000 or 11.5 per cent over the same month last year. The increase for the six months period was 6.1 per cent.

Champion said the employment increase did not exactly parallel the permit increase because of automation developments in the construction industry.

* * * *

AMONG construction categories showing major gains were hospitals and institutional structures—up 18 per cent; stores and mercantile buildings—up 13 per cent; and schools and educational buildings—up 9.9 per cent.

Industrial building, with a half-year total of $99.2 million was 3 per cent above the January-June volume of 1962.

Additions and alterations to existing structures also were being undertaken in record volume, with a gain of 56.9 per cent for alterations to nonresidential buildings and 14.2 per cent for residential categories.

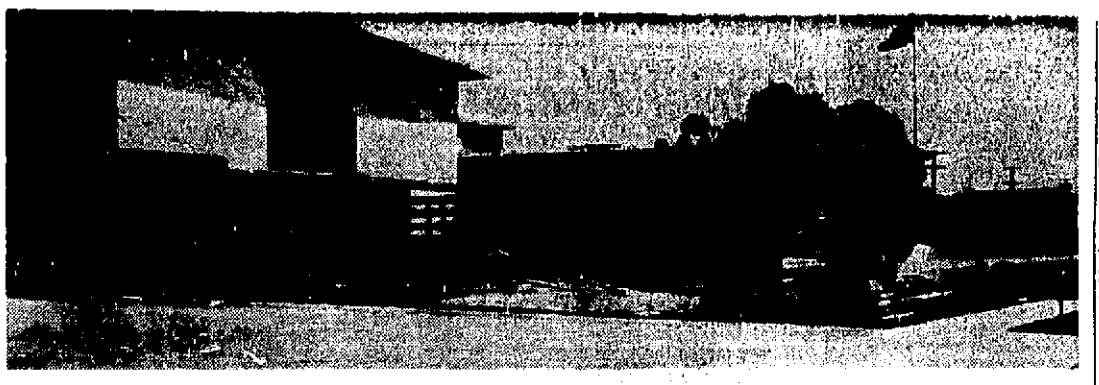

Three categories of construction showed declining volumes. Value of permits for new amusement and recreational buildings was down 40.9 per cent; churches and other religious structures, down 7.4 per cent; and office, bank and professional buildings, down 1.4 per cent.

Retail Sales at Redondo Gain $14 Million in Year

REDONDO BEACH — Retail sales skyrocketed to $122.4 million here in 1962, more than $14 million higher than the previous year.

Chamber of Commerce president LeRoy L. Cenier said his organization is "thrilled at the unparalleled increase because we feel a great part of it may be credited to an active Chamber."

The city's quality index, which measures each community's buying ability as compared to other sections of the nation, places Redondo Beach ahead of many surrounding cities.

Redondo Beach placed 34th in the statewide compilation of total retail sales.

* * * *

HIGHEST RANKING category of retail outlets was the drug stores, which were $669,000 higher last year than in 1961.

Largest percentage of increase was a gain of almost $4 million in food store sales, followed by increases of $3 million in general merchandising and $2 million in automobile sales.

Although 45 California cities have a larger population, Center said, only 33 have higher retail sales.

Bank Dividend Increase Voted

Directors of United California Bank last week voted to increase the quarterly dividend from 40 to 45 cents per share payable Sept. 27 to stock of record Sept. 13, it was announced by Frank L. King, chairman of the board.

This action, King stated, was in recognition of the substantially increased earnings of the bank.

The board also approved a plan to increase the bank's capital funds by $60 million through the sale of $35 million of capital notes and the issuance of $25 million of common stock. UCB thus becomes the largest bank in the nation to expand its capitalization through the sale of capital notes.

Voss Pipe to Expand Operations

Voss International Pipe Corp., a major west coast importer of pipe, plans to double its operations at the Port of Long Beach.

Voss officials said they expect to step up importations of Japanese manufactured asbestos-cement pipe to 2,000 tons a month within three years.

The announcement was made with the record unloading 1,000 tons of pipe from the freighter SS Mizahawa Maru.

This is enough pipe to build a water line 280 miles in length.

Voss said the shipment means the 25-year-old firm will import 12,000 tons at a value of $1.5 million through the Port of Long Beach next year.

* * * *

THE COMPANY, which leases a five-acre stockpile in the port area, said a growing demand for the pipe has led to a steady increase in importations.

The cement-asbestos pipe, which is produced by the Kubota Co. in Osaka, is noncorrosive and virtually indestructible. Voss officials say that some of the pipe has been buried in the ground for more than 80 years and still is useable.

Long Beach Harbor is the distribution point for Voss sales throughout the Southwestern U.S.

Bank to Be Built Near Autonetics

ANAHEIM — Capt. Richard Burns, industrial manager of Penniman & Co., has announced sale of a three-acre bank site from Thomas A. Beyrle to Security First National Bank for a new branch.

The new East Anaheim bank will serve North American Aviation's huge Autonetics complex and will be situated across the street, from its soon to be completed high rise office building on Anaheim Road.

Both Autonetics and the City of Anaheim are closely scrutinizing all new proposals for development in the area, Burns reports, in order to avoid any land usage incompatible with long-range healthy industrial growth.

* * * *

THE SAME SITE was rejected last year by the City Council after considerable study as to the feasibility of locating a convention center restaurant and hotel there. It was felt that a development including any residential use at all would necessarily be indirectly dependent on Autonetics contracts, would tend to overload the road system and might be affected by the noise of the industry in the area.

The presently proposed use as a site for the Security First National Bank was greeted by all as a fine addition to the area.

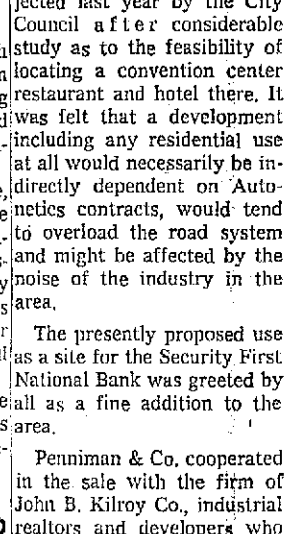

Penniman & Co. cooperated in the sale with the firm of John B. Kilroy Co., industrial realtors and developers who pioneered the East Anaheim industrial development.

Buyers Given Wide Choice of Designs

BUILT BY HUNSAKER
Lakewood East Sunshine Homes, a development by S. V. Hunsaker & Sons, offers a wide variety of stylings. Here is one of the models available.

A popular selling feature of Lakewood East Sunshine Homes is the choice of architectural design, states S. V. Hunsaker Jr., vice president of S. V. Hunsaker & Sons, builders and developers in Southern California for the last three decades.

These homes may be purchased in one or two-story design. Either selection gives the owner an atmosphere of country estate living, that can be enjoyed more due to the close-in location.

Lakewood East Homes have three and four bedrooms, dressing room, two full baths, family room and breakfast bar.

* * * *

LARGE LINEN shelves in both upstairs and downstairs and floor to ceiling folding wardrobe doors provide the homemaker with convenience usually found in much higher priced homes.

A Lakewood East home may be purchased from $21,100 to $23,900, and from $295 down. At no added cost the rear yard is completely fenced and front yard landscaped.

For more luxurious living, Lakewood East homes come with Insinkerator disposer and built-in Vernois Range and oven with hood and exhaust fan.

Located where values are rapidly increasing, models may be seen between Del Amo Boulevard and Centralia Road, one block west of Roseton, in the city of Lakewood.

Knox Elected as State Director

Clarence L. Knox, Long Beach public accountant, has been elected a director for California of the National Society of Public Accountants.

Mr. and Mrs. Knox recently returned from the 18th annual convention of the organization in Las Vegas. Other Long Beach accountants attending as delegates included Guy S. Baiser, Joseph M. Abrams and Alex Horowitz.

The roof on your home should last for many years. But keep the gutters and downspouts clear of leaves, paper and trash, which could stop them from functioning.

Enderle Gardens Homes Have Appeal

Enderle Gardens opened successfully this past week-end with throngs of interested homeseekers from many points thronging through the 16 different model homes, it was announced by builders Nelson & Nelson.

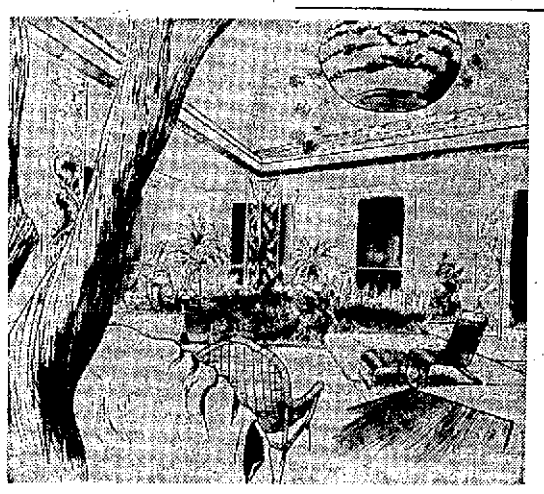

Enderle Gardens, located on Yorba south of 17th Street in Tustin, is a community of exclusive individual homes—each one entirely separate and each with its own different styling located in a 20-acre park with common greens, flowering trees and plantings with year around maintenance.

"We are extremely pleased and more than satisfied," J. A. Nelson stated, "that our new concept of small but expensive homes located in a created park of beautiful surroundings is appealing to so many people."

* * * *

THIS NEWEST concept in building has been three years in the planning stage by the Nelsons and consists mainly of smaller homes with large living rooms, formal dining rooms, large master bedrooms and the elimination of many extra bedrooms and family rooms no longer needed by adults and adults with children about to go into college.

Each home has also planned screening of different styled walls and plants and flowering trees to leave a feeling of openness of everyone and still give the privacy desired for those who want their own patios.

SPACIOUS PATIO
Homes in Enderle Gardens offer many luxury extras such as a spacious patio and high-screen walls. The development is in a 20-acre park setting.

Fashion Homes Offering Bonus to Buyers

The Fashion Homes development in Huntington Beach and Westminster are now offering prospective home buyers an "extra," the bonus being the buyer's choice, as an added incentive to move into the big three and four-bedroom, family-room homes before the start of the school year.

Buyers may have immediate possession of any quality constructed Fashion Home in either Orange County community.

Both developments have received the Bronze Medallion for their "wife-saving" kitchens with Hotpoint built-in range, oven and dishwasher. The outstanding kitchen and family room combination has been instrumental in the manner in which the home buying public has purchased Fashion Homes in both locations. Fashion Homes in Huntington Beach offers block wall fencing at no extra cost while Westminster's Fashion Homes has hardwood floors on raised foundations.

* * * *

EACH IS LOCATED within a five-minute drive of the new Douglas Space Center complex in Huntington Beach, as well as being just short drives from the beautiful Orange coast with its small boat marinas and public beaches.

Several shopping centers are within easy drives and new school and church facilities are steadily increasing in number.

Financing is VA with FHA low terms also available, on full prices from $19,250 in Huntington Beach and $21,950 at Westminster.

To visit either development from the Long Beach area; drive east on Seventh St. to one-half mile east of Bolsa Chica Road and Fashion Homes in Westminster; Fashion Homes-Huntington Beach, continue on Garden Grove Blvd. to Beach Blvd. (Hwy. 39) turn right about 1 and ¾'s miles to Sugar Avenue, then right two blocks to the models.

A FASHION HOME
The Fashion Homes communities in Huntington Beach and Westminster are offering a choice "extra" bonus and immediate possession to prospective home buyers wishing to move into a new home before the start of the fall school term. 60 Showcase Homes Sold in Four Weeks

William Krueger developer and builder of Showcase homes, Westminster, stated Saturday that they have sold 60 homes in four week from the first public showing.

The developer, who has been in the business of building homes since 1946, is a graduate engineer and builds his houses on the basis of good engineering. It is his opinion that engineering combined with architectural control, landscaping and spacious yard areas are contributing to the rapid sale of the properties.

* * * *

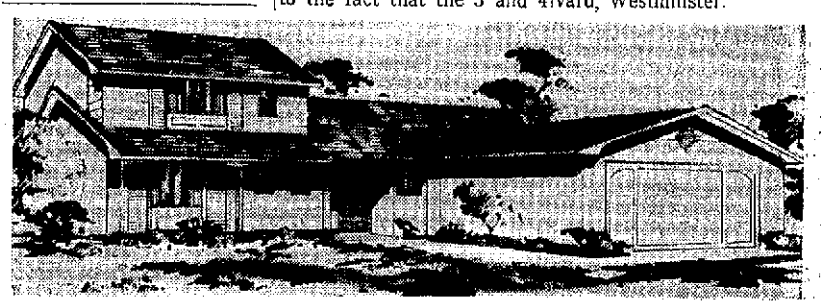

HE CONTINUED his comments on the ready buyer acceptance of Showcase Homes to the fact that the 3 and 4 bedroom homes are equipped with quality features, large two car garages and that extra growing room being introduced in the two story homes.

The growing room is unfinished. Plumbing for bath is in, ready for the fixtures to be installed. This room can be finished in 1- 2- or 3-bedroom with choice of plans furnished by the builder.

* * * *

THE DECOR of the entire tract from attractive street layout to finished homes creates the atmosphere of park like privacy.

Furnished model homes are open daily for viewing at the tract located on Hazard Avenue, corner of Beach Boulevard, Westminster.

Another Unit of Homes Planned for Sol Vista

COLOR-PLEASING KITCHEN
This color-coordinated kitchen in the new Mediterranean model at International Home Fair in Westminster is expected to have big appeal for the next Sol Vista home unit.

Ground will be broken in the near future for a fourth unit of 118 residences and initial reservations are now being accepted at the Sol Vista International Home Fair sales office, it was announced by Baxter Caterson, sales director for this Alco-Pacific Construction Co. community in Westminster.

Caterson and his staff have been phoning a number of families who had not been able to get in the first two units and informing them that the preliminary commissioner's report had arrived.

New model home being introduced is the Mediterranean, which contains four bedrooms, two baths and is available in four elegant exteriors. The model contains 1,662 square feet and is priced from $25,350 to $26,250.

* * * *

THERE WILL BE 565 homes in this new 160-acre master planned community. It will have a school as well as park site and be within a short distance of churches, shopping centers, the ocean, Knott's Berry Farm, Movieland Wax Museum, Disneyland and the $80,000,000 Douglas Aircraft Missile and Space Center.

Streets, sewers, curbs and ornamental street lights are in and paid for by the developers.

Special design features available are sunken living rooms, recessed, floor to ceiling or raised hearth fireplaces, master bedroom-bath-dressing room suites, spacious sliding door wardrobes, Hilite aluminum windows and doors, elegant wallpaper, Robertshaw thermostat control, custom lighting fixtures manufactured especially for Sol Vista homes and color coordination throughout.

Six fully furnished models and the attractive sales pavilion may be viewed at the corner of Westminster Blvd. and Bolsa Chica in Westminster.

May Occupy Home by End of Vacation

Anticipating the opening of school less than two weeks away, buyers are moving into the new Regal Homes subdivision at a rapid rate, states Tom Simms, developer of the Buena Park community. According to Simms there are still several choice homes available for immediate occupancy. The excellent location of Regal Homes is one of the biggest reasons for the fine sales reported in this new subdivision, Simms further stated.

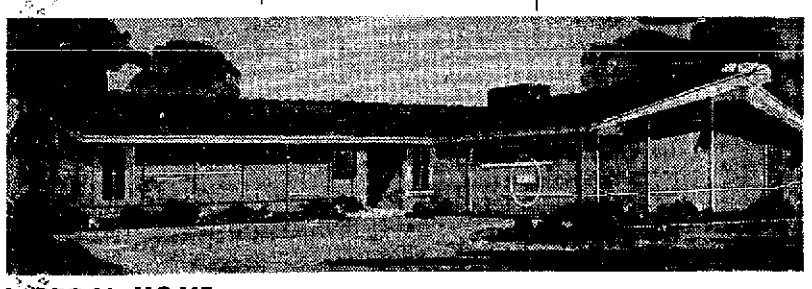

Loated on Orangethorpe between Valley View and Knott Avenue in the City of Buena Park, Regal Homes are short driving distances from Long Beach, the industrial areas of Fullerton, Anaheim and East Los Angeles. Knott's Berry Farm is but minutes away—the Southland's most famous beaches and Newport Harbor within 15 minutes drive.

* * * *

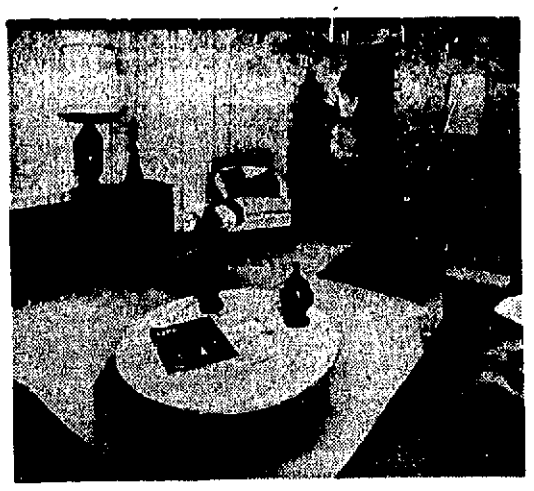

REGAL HOMES are three and four bedrooms, family rooms and two baths. They are priced from $21,300 and can be purchased on low down FHA financing. Families with an income of $650 monthly can qualify.

The homes feature balanced power and have built-in range and oven with exhaust fan and hood over range, fireplaces with log-lighters. The back yards are enclosed with a block wall. Other features include furniture finish birch cabinets, tile stall shower with glass doors, also shower over tub, Del Piso entry floors, spacious master bedroom suites, forced air heating and other fine features.

MOVE RIGHT IN
Huntington Village three and four-bedroom, family-room homes in Huntington Beach are priced from $18,500 with buyers obtaining immediate possession in ample time for the opening of school.

Huntington Village Sees Rush in Sales

Rapid selling of the final few Huntington Village homes in Huntington Beach continues unabated, as eager families, anxious to move into a new home before the start of the school year, are availing themselves of the opportunity to purchase "$30,000 homes for less than $20,000."

"All the homes left in unit 12 are ready for immediate occupancy," said Dan Mytinger, sales director for the Doyle and Shields Development Co., Inc., builders. "And if the $495 down payment presents a problem," he continued, "we can customize the down payment to fit anyone's pocketbook."

CLOSE TO the finest beaches, golf courses, schools, shopping centers and transportation, Huntington Village offers outstanding features to the discriminating home buyer: three and four bedrooms, family room, two baths, color-coordinated wall-to-wall carpeting, built-in RCA Whirlpool gas range, oven and dishwasher, slate entries, wood-burning fireplace and distinctive exterior designs and floor plans.

Huntington Village homes are priced from $18,500 and the down payment includes deed and title insurance to home and land. Cal-Vet financing is also available.

From the Long Beach area: drive east on Seventh St. to Golden West St., right to Heil Ave., right to Edwards St., and left a short distance to Huntington Village.

Heavy Homes Sales Prior to Opening

Who would believe that acceptance of a brand new idea in home ownership would be so great the 146 homes would be sold before the models were built. This is exactly what happened at Scottsdale Townhouses, located on Avalon Blvd. between Carson and Sepulveda, which is just south of the San Diego Freeway and between the Long Beach and Harbor freeways.

Scottsdale Townhouses are a perfect example of the newest type of California home value. The three-bedroom home is priced at $16,995 with only $500 down plus small costs. Four bedroom homes also are available.

* * * *

IN THIS new Balanced Power community every home has an O'Keefe and Merritt gas range and oven, Frigidaire washer and gas dryer, Hotpoint refrigerator, Insinkerator garbage disposal and wall-to-wall carpeting.

The Scottsdale family also becomes a part owner in the Scottsdale clubhouse and community center, swimming and wading pool, playgrounds, picnic areas, tennis courts and many other recreational facilities.

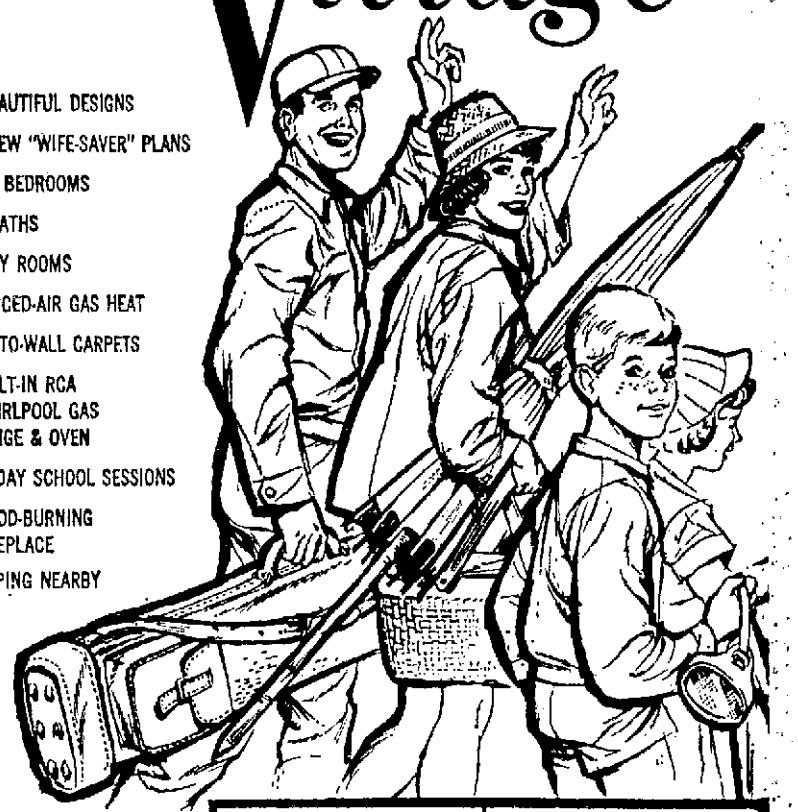

"Once you visit the model homes, you too will understand why 146 homes sold at a sneak preview," says a spokesman. The sales office and model homes are on Avalon north of Sepulveda and are open from 9:30 to 9:30 daily.

Homebuilding Upturn Noted by Dodge Corp.

The recent dip in residential home building appears to have flattened out, F. W. Dodge Corp., construction news specialists, reported the past week.

Dodge said a spurt in residential building contracts boosted the value of contracts for new construction in July to $4,124,713,000, or 10 per cent above a year ago.

It was enough to put residential awards slightly ahead of June, after a seasonal adjustment, and to put them 19 per cent above July 1962.

The Dodge figures show that all classes of construction contracts awards combined held a healthy lead of 7 per cent for the January-July period over the like period last year.

LONG BEACH 12, CALIF., SUNDAY, SEPT. 1, 1963. SECTION W

How to Succeed in Show Business Without Really Flying

By ELISE EMERY

When scripts for Magnolia Theater productions call for things to fly—they fly!

Jeeps, airplanes, most recently, Peter Pan.

The flying magic is invoked by an apparatus devised and rigged by an eager technical crew intent on learning the art of stagecraft.

To Long Beach audiences who have enjoyed the theater's 71 performances in the past 10 years, it seems that Magnolia itself has flown along its successful course.

Not so, know Pat and Gerry Brown.

The rise has been a long, sometimes hazardous climb from plateau to plateau.

On a warm summer afternoon, with sunlight slicing through the darkened theater-in-the-round at 2400 Magnolia Ave., vivacious, green-eyed, auburn-haired Pat, 33, recalled the 10-year enterprise.

Both Pat and Gerry had had a solid, successful background in professional theater when they met at the famous Alley Theater in Houston, Tex. After their marriage in 1950, they came to Long Beach and in 1953 began the theater they dreamed of.

"We put an ad in the paper asking anyone who was interested to meet with us.

"Twenty-five men and a few women showed up. We began rehearsing 'Stalag 17' because it has an all-male cast.

"We didn't have a place to rehearse, but we rehearsed anyway —in garages, backyards—any place we could find. We rehearsed. And rehearsed. And rehearsed—for six months. Because we didn't have a place to put on the play.

"Finally, we rented a room at the Jewish Community Center which was then at 2026 Pacific Ave.

"The play was billed for one weekend, from Jan. 9 through 11, 1954. Response was so great that we held it over a second weekend. That was our beginning."

Next production, "Detective Story," was given in a day nursery at 30 Termino Ave. There were problems there, too.

Each night before performance, nursery equipment had to be moved out, stage sets and seats moved in. After the show, the routine was reversed and the cast and crew swept, mopped and waxed the nursery, picked up cigarette butts from the ground and got the premises ready for the next day's pre-schoolers. The weary theater

PROPS are important responsibility of hard-working stage crew, are especially challenging for theater-in-the-round.

FOR DIRECTOR Pat Brown, business manager Gerry Brown, work never stops. New season at Magnolia will open on September 19.

JUDITH McCALL tests flying rig, frequently used in Magnolia shows; Dean Hess, Roger McClure observe (above).

REHEARSALS continue all day Sundays from 8 to 10:30 p.m. and each weekday except Saturdays when cast rests.

MAKE-UP is one of the many skills of their profession which young actors must learn—as Nancy Auguston is doing at show's rehearsal.

PARTY LINES WERE BUZZING

Everyone Was Busy

Ye Olde Long Beach Yacht Club rocked with shrieks of "I NEVER wore my skirt that long" and "Look at that hair" and "Who's that?" because this wasn't just an ordinary luncheon where chat focuses on current doings, but a sentimental journey into the recent past via old yearbooks, scrapbooks and wedding albums.

Deonne Christensen Griffiths, along with Nancy Jennings Bryne and Dee Anthony Trent dreamed up the gathering of girl chums from Wilson High class of '52, and two former State College cohorts, Cecelia Dennis Tallichet and Shirley Wesser Starr.

Perhaps the champagne punch had something to do with the bubbly good time, but more likely it was just being together again for Eleanor Hartnett Lyne, Marilyn Nelson Lonsdale, Fredna Moore McPhee, Pearl Nichols Cannan, Kathy Cunningham Edwards, Beverly Robinson Tunnell, Sheila Farmen Bjorkland and Mary Ann McHenry.

Plus Valerie White Becker, Beverly Brown Burnett, Carole Brox Block, Aggie Boudreaux Smith, Frances Satariano Keyes and Marian Scherzinger Daughtry.

ENERGETIC and enthusiastic Betty Benwell has just returned from two round trips to Hawaii. No, she didn't forget her compact or sandals. Each trip was a special treat for her two grandsons. She geared the first three week trip to the interests of her elder grandson, Bob Benwell, 16½; then came the turn for Dale, 13½, who toted along his surfboard for some comber riding during his three weeks.

THE DAY BEGAN with overcast skies Aug. 25 in Greenwich, Conn., but it's hoped the sun nudged its way through for the garden wedding of Judy Gimbel, daughter of Barbara (Poulson) and Bruce Gimbel, at Chieftans, home of the Bernard Gimbels. While taking graduate work at Columbia, Judy met her bridegroom, Ben Mendelsund, who will continue at the university's school of architecture.

IF THE TRAVEL bug bites early enough, the pleasant sting may be there for keeps. At least it seems that way for Karen Lindgren. As a youngster, along with other little Lindgrens, she spent a year with her mother Vivian and father Raymond in Norway. Now a student at State College's nursing school, she has just returned from more than two months in Brazil where she not only visited the back country to see firsthand the medical and health facilities, but found time in Rio to study Brazilian cookery and pattern drafting.

Karen made the trip to South America with an Eastern friend, Dorothy Nicholls, whose father is cultural and economic advisor to Brazil.

No sooner was she home than it was time for another Lindgren to depart, this time her father who is college dean at State. He departed Tuesday for several weeks in Sweden to evaluate the summer session program at Upsala University. LBSC has 56 students enrolled there on the California state college overseas program.

AS IF THERE wasn't enough excitement in the C. Thomas Dean household Friday, what with daughter Carolyn's wedding to Denis Smithson, into town for the big event flies Carmen Arbunies from Barcelona, Spain.

Six years ago, when Carmen was a Lakewood High student participating in the American Field Service international scholarship program, she lived with the Deans and she and Carolyn became close friends. In fact, two years ago Carmen, who looks upon Long Beach as a second home town, brightened the Deans' Thanksgiving holiday.

Carolyn's wedding was reason enough to close her desk temporarily at Scandinavian Airlines in Spain. From here she flies to Mexico City to visit a sister and her family.

FRED HEIM was a lad of 19 when he arrived in Long Beach 58 years ago. Quick figuring reveals he's 77. Actually his birthday is on Labor Day this year, and Fred's going to just take it easy. THE LITTLE feller is getting on, but at least the news isn't so furry that he can read the fact himself that he's James Randall and that on Aug. 9 he yelled "Waw" to his parents, Dolores and Bob Burt. . . . Another heart stealer is the little girl welcomed into Marlene and Larry Robert's home. Things pinky and frilly were presented Marlene at a recent shower given by Mmes. EDNA STOWMAN is bustling about these days preparing to welcome her daughter, June, her husband, Major Charles Leon Moss, and their daughters, Mary and Diane, who will arrive in Long Beach this week from Whiteman Air Force Base in Knobnoster, Mo.

The Mosses will have a gay three weeks here visiting relatives and friends before taking off again, this time for a three year assignment in Japan. Prior to spending the past six years in Missouri, the Mosses lived in the La Canada area while Charles was an instructor at Occidental College.

Woodard-Johnson Wed

Mrs. William Alexander Woodard

Immediate family members gathered Friday evening in Our Saviour's Lutheran Church to witness the marriage ceremony uniting Judith Ann Johnson and William Alexander Woodard.

Parents of the newlyweds are Mrs. S. C. Cameron, 5517 E. Ocean Blvd., and the late Dr. William M. Woodard, and Mrs. George M. Palmer, Long Beach, and Alfred B. Johnson, Los Angeles.

The bride chose for her vows a gown of silk organza and Alencon lace with chapel train. An embroidered pill box of lace held her elbow length veil of illusion and she carried an orchid surrounded by white roses and stephanotis.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Kathleen Johnson, who wore a floor length gown of flowing chiffon.

The bridegroom was served by his step-brother, Garvin Tankersley, as best man, and ushering duties were performed by Tom Crosby and William McCook.

* * * *

FOLLOWING a honeymoon trip to Colorado, the newlyweds will be at home Sept. 19 in Palo Alto where the bridegroom will complete work toward a master's degree at Stanford University. He received his B.S. from Stanford where he affiliated with Phi Gamma Delta.

The new Mrs. Woodard, as was her husband, was graduated from Wilson High School. She later attended Mills College in Oakland and was graduated from San Francisco State College.

Peggy Selover Is Bride

University Baptist Church was setting Saturday evening for the wedding of Peggy Selover, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Eugene Selover, Long Beach, and John Phillip Overland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted G. Overland of San Bernardino.

The bridal party included Bonnie MacDonald as maid of honor and Mmes. Linda Blaylock, Larry Andrew, Misses Sheralee Cressaty and Patricia and Guyette Overland, sisters of the bridegrood.

Larry Murman acted as best man. Ushers were Clark Burns, Middleton Squier, Clyde Thumm, Robert Scroggie and Charles Hudson.

The bride's gown of delustered satin, trimmed with reembroidered Alencon lace, was a floor length sheath with fitted bodice, long sleeves and detachable overskirt.

Following a wedding trip to Carmel, Lake Tahoe and Yosemite the couple will reside in Newport Beach.

THE BRIDE attended Wilson High School and is a 1962 graduate of University of Redlands where she was a member of Delta Kappa Psi and Spurs, and attended the European branch of the university during her junior year. She is a third grade teacher in Laguna Beach.

Her husband also is a 1962 graduate of Redlands, and was affiliated with Alpha Gamma Nu, Yeoman and Pi Gamma Mu.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. James R. Seaton, former Long Beach City Councilman, and the late Mrs. Seaton, and the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Marshall Selover.

Seeks a Solution to Her Untidiness

Dear Molly Mayfield

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I have been married one year and have found that I have very little self-discipline in the matter of keeping my house clean and the dishes washed.

Molly, I admit it!

My husband, bless his heart, is the sweetest thing in the world. He never yells around or nags me about my untidiness, but I know it must bother him, as he is a very neat person and came from a neatly kept home.

The first part of this year I worked and used that as an excuse for letting things go. Then, three months ago I had a baby, and spend all day at home now. And, let's face it, there's just no excuse for my messiness.

Do you think that somewhere among your readers there are housewives with very young children who keep their homes moderately clean and neat at all times — the dishes washed, etc. — without the aid of many appliances, who would share with me their workable weekly schedule?

—MESSY HOUSEKEEPER

DEAR MESSY:

I'll be glad to forward suggestions to you — and give your name so they can contact you directly if I receive requests for it.

May I say, I like your spirit in admitting your lack of aptitude as a housekeeper, because lots of young wives know they are failures, too, but just don't care. —M. M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I am 12 years old and my boy friend has hurt me terribly. I wrote him a note and told him to drop by and walk to Sunday School with me last Sunday. He wrote back, "You may be the rose of your mother's heart, but you're only a thorn to me."

How should I answer him?

—LILA

DEAR LILA:

DON'T. He's too rude to bother with. —M. M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I'm a boy 19 years old and have been going with Gail, 18, for a year and a half.

The other day she told me she was pregnant. I said I wanted to marry her, but since the baby isn't mine, she said no. In a way though I feel at fault. You see, Molly, we had a fight and she went out with this other fellow to prove to me she could still get a date with someone else.

She was so mad and hurt she started drinking (which she NEVER did), and I guess she got pretty smashed, and, well, you can guess the rest.

The other boy will not marry her, but I still want to. Please tell me what to do. —MANUEL

DEAR MANUEL:

Think about yourself for a minute. You're so mad and hurt you're thinking about doing a very foolish thing—marrying a very foolish girl.

No, now hold your hat! You try to make excuses for her, but they don't really stand up. She was YOUR girl for a year and a half, and then just because of a spat, she goes out and is intimate with another fellow.

She drinks readily enough with him, but you say she NEVER drank.

Oh, Manuel, this problem is out of your hands now, and unfortunately no one can face it for Gail but herself. Marriage would be no solution. After all, what kind of marriage could it possibly be?

Think it over, Manuel. Think it over long and hard.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

She's Remiss In Her Duties

DEAR ABBY: I know a practical nurse who is a disgrace to the profession. She was hired to care for an elderly lady who is almost helpless. After the P.N. puts this elderly lady to bed she goes out the back door and across the street to spend the night with a widower who lives alone. She is supposed to be sleeping in the bedroom next to the patient in case she is needed during the night. I am not the kind of person who makes trouble, but I think somebody ought to tell the family of this poor old helpless woman, and I don't know them well enough.—SEEING IS BELIEVING

ABBY

DEAR SEEING: To be aware of this situation and withhold it from the family is, in my opinion, morally wrong. Since you don't know the family well enough to tell them, find someone who does. But see to it that the family learns the truth immediately.

* * * * *

DEAR ABBY: I am married, but for reasons I cannot put in a letter I am unable to keep my baby. Will a home for unwed mothers take me?—NIGHTMARE

DEAR NIGHTMARE: Yes, there are SOME homes that will take married girls. Send me your name and address.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: About six years ago a nice young couple moved into our neighborhood. I'll call them Mabel and Pete, which are not their real names. My husband and I became very friendly with them. They had two children and so did we. Two years ago, for no reason at all, Pete walked off and left Mabel. She was five months pregnant at the time. We never saw Pete again, but Mabel said they were divorced and she gets alimony and support money regularly. We have been like a family to Mabel. Out of the blue my husband told me wanted to ADOPT Mabel's youngest child, a sweet boy. I knew my husband was fond of this child, but I can't see why he would want to ADOPT him. He said Mabel would continue to raise him but the boy would be legally his "son." Isn't this rather unusual? What would you do, Abby? —IN A DAZE

DEAR IN: I'd tell my husband to forget it. And if you are like a "family" to Mabel, do her a favor and help her find a nice man to complete her own family.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: Last night I took a baby-sitting job in the neighborhood. I had just started to sit for money and it was my first time with these people. I am 14 and my mother won't let me sit anywhere later than midnight. It was agreed with these people that I'd sit from seven until midnight for 50c an hour. The children were perfect and gave me no trouble. It got to be 12:30 and the parents were not home yet. My mother called twice and I had to tell her I couldn't leave because the parents were still out. Finally, at 1 a. m., I telephoned the parents(they were at a relative's home) and asked them please to come home. They came right away and apologized for forgetting the time. They tipped me a dollar, too. Now my mother won't let me sit for them any more. It only happened once. Do you think my mother is being fair?—SITTER

DEAR SITTER: I would say, give the night owls one more chance.

* * * *

Tell your troubles to Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Box 3365, Beverly Hills.

BEFORE: Lois Lavender lacked chic, needed help with beauty and wardrobe problems.

DEAR FASHION EDITOR:

I am 17 years old and will start to Long Beach State College this fall.

I have three main beauty problems: My hair is unwieldy, I wear glasses and don't know what style of clothes are "right" for me.

My hair is very fine, very thick, permanents won't stay and I have a styling problem. I can't find stylish shoes for my size 9AAAA feet . . . and because I am exceptionally long-waisted, I have trouble finding dresses that fit.

Can you help me with these problems?

"LOIS LAVENDER
1228 E. Plymouth St.

FOURTH IN 'NEW MODEL YOU' SERIES

A Timetable for Beauty

"I don't know where to start building my college wardrobe," wrote 18-year-old Lois Lavender in an S.O.S. enumerating her wardrobe and beauty problems. We took her in tow, arranged a self-improvement course at Vogue Modeling Agency . . . and, as you can see, she's now in-the-know about what's right for her in hairstyling and makeup.

Lois' before and after pictures prove that anytime is the right time for a beauty overhaul . . . and that the best investments in back-to-school clothes are coordinates that take you around the clock.

AFTER: With contacts to replace glasses, a new hairstyle, livelier makeup, Lois is off to good start for success in college.

—Staff Photos by Joe Risinger

LOIS' NEW FIGURE and a nine-piece coordinate set add up to around-the-clock chic for busy school days. From left, yellow cotton blouse and earthy brown tweed skirt, topped with bulky sweater, take her to school in fine style . . . off with sweater, on with matching jacket and fur hat, she's ready for luncheon date . . . blouse with weskit and pants, the right formula for study hours . . . jumper, sans blouse, is date bait; with blouse is class material. Country Set fashions from Harris Aire; Sbicca boots from Jacobs Quality Footwear.

Here's How Lois' Dazzling New Look Was Achieved

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON

College-bound Lois Lavender's beauty and fashion complaints are the same as those echoed by school girls everywhere:

"I can't do a thing with my hair. . . ."

"I don't know how to put on my make-up. . . ."

"My clothes never seem to fit me OR the occasion."

While there is no set formula for solving every girl's wardrobe problems, we believe any young thing who wants to look prettier and more fashionable can easily tailor this beauty story to her own needs.

FIRST OF ALL, whether you're college coed or grandmother, take a studied view of yourself. List your assets and deficits.

"This is the first thing we ask of our students," said Elda Barry, owner-operator of Vogue Modeling Agency, where Lois was treated to a 15-week self-improvement and charm course.

Vital statistics working in Lois' favor: even features, lovely teeth, an oval-shaped face (can wear any coif or any hat style), appealingly wide-apart eyes and naturally blond hair.

Even with these assets, however, Lois' potential attractiveness was hidden under beauty-robbing spectacles, her hair was too short and unflatteringly styled; makeup, improperly applied, failed to bring out her best features.

Basically, though, her problem was the real familiar one of not knowing what to do with herself.

BECAUSE LOIS' improvement program was based on simple and fundamental principles of beauty, we believe they can help any young woman, anywhere, approximate her dazzling do-over.

Here are the highlights. Help yourself!

First of all, hair stylist Mr. Stanley at Vogue recommended that she allow her hair to grow to a length approximately six inches over-all. He later gave her a foundation wave permanent and created the "page fluff" coif (pictured above.)

An energy-giving diet helped pare off pounds and posture-improving exercises brought her steps closer to model beauty. She learned that a seeming tendency toward bowleggedness can be corrected by relaxing the knees, pulling hips in and walking properly (balls of feet first, one foot directly in front of the other).

Overcoming her I-can't-wear-them attitude, she was fitted for contacts, giving her naturally beautiful blue-green eyes the outlook they deserve.

SHE WAS TAUGHT the first step in wardrobe planning, which is: clean all the clothes skeletons out of your closet, keeping only those items in active use.

Items left are then listed on a wardrobe worksheet.

Lois found she had an over-supply of prints, plaids and checks, also skirts and blouses. She had a drouth of basics and neutrals.

She learned, too, how to make the least of figure "trouble spots." Her long waist, no longer a problem, now figures beautifully in dresses that have no definite line of demarcation at the waist—such as the long-torso, body-skimming jumper above.

All of which proves that not all figures are in history books and that it takes only a bit of fashion know-how to look smart in the classroom.

Gotham Is Home for Pair

After a honeymoon trip to Northern California, New York City will be the first residence of Mr. and Mrs. David George Ball (Morganne Lee Arnold).

Their wedding and reception took place Aug. 31 at St. Luke's Episcopal Church in the presence of 160 guests and united the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Arnold, 3824 Pine Ave., and the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Harold George Ball of Middleport, N.Y.

The bride was attired in an embroidered linen dress. Lace flowers formed a cap to hold the soft folds of her veil of Venetian lace. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis.

Mrs. Robert Lewis attended the bride as matron of honor, while Grace Takahashi and Ruth Ball were bridesmaids.

* * * *

JONATHAN Harold Ball, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Guests were escorted to their seats by William Garnsey and David Dominick.

A third generation Long Beach resident, the new Mrs. Ball was graduated from Poly High School, received her Bachelor of Arts degree from Mills College and her Master of Arts degree from Columbia University. She also attended the University of Bristol in Bristol, Eng.

The bridegroom attended high school at Sir Thomas Rich's School in Gloucester, Eng., and received his Bachelor of Arts degree from Yale University. He now is attending law school at Columbia University.

WHY GROW OLD?

No Easy Task for Woman to Work, Manage Home

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

The married woman who has a job outside her home faces many hazards. Today thousands of women handle a home, family and a career with success and grace, but a woman must experience it to understand the complexity of such a role.

This most modern of all creatures, the married woman who works, falls heir to the crises and pitfalls and demands of both her domestic life and her professional life. These two worlds sometimes place a strain on one another.

The single woman in business can go home at the end of a day to relaxation and leisure, whereas a married woman's responsibilities continue. The married woman who has a full time career leads a double life.

* * * *

SHE MUST maintain a charming home for her husband and be relaxed enough to enjoy it with him and his friends. Of course, if she had children the picture is more complicated. This modern wonder must meet all of the upsets and small catastrophes which happen in every home without allowing them to interfere with her job.

It is easy to see that such a woman must have her life well organized. Her time budget cannot stand the strain of forgotten items on the grocery list, overlooked items needed by her family or activities which have no meaning for her.

Most of all, she must guard her health because she will need superlative health to carry on with glee. She must also have a certain temperament which sloughs off petty annoyances with a sense of humor and flavors life with enthusiasm. A worrier would never survive.

* * * *

IF YOU ARE feeling the strain of a family and a job, discover whether or not your household organization is at fault. If this is true, change the situation. It can make a great difference! It might also be wise to look into your life as a whole and decide whether or not you should be working outside of your home. Perhaps you are losing some important values.

Of course, this depends on so many factors; your health and temperament, how your husband feels about it, the ages of your children and your financial setup.

South Guess Loses Hand

Practically any North-South pair would arrive at a final contract of four hearts and North would have no trouble making his contract. In fact, some North players would make an overtrick.

Three no-trump looks just about as easy. South holds off twice on spades and then loses the heart finesse. East leads back a diamond and while South does not like the idea of taking a finesse into West he sees no other play for his contract. He takes the finesse. It works. He runs off the rest of the heart suit and eventually takes another diamond finesse to make four odd.

Nevertheless, when the hand was actually played in a rubber bridge game, South went down one trick.

* * * *

PLAY STARTED out as advertised. South won the third spade, led the six of hearts and finessed dummy's jack. Not only did the finesse work, but East dropped the ten. There was no question in South's mind but that East had started with the singleton ten of hearts. In that case, it was up to South to get back to his hand for a second spade finesse.

He led the jack of diamonds from dummy. An East who could hold back the king of hearts could also play low on the jack of diamonds. South rose with the ace and led the queen of hearts.

He let it ride. Who wouldn't? East produced the king and led a club. South ran off the rest of his hearts, but had to give East the last two tricks.

Magnolia Marks 10th Anniversary

crew was lucky if it finished by 3:30 a.m. But the play ran four weeks.

"It was necessity that prodded us to the next plateau," Pat recalled. "We just didn't have the energy to keep up with that schedule."

With a shoestring budget, the Browns rented a small, vacant market at 2400 Magnolia Ave. They paid the first and last month's rent, then began converting the premises into a theater-in-the-round.

"Members of the company did everything they could. Plumbing! To meet building requirements, we had to have additional plumbing which called for 18 feet of new pipe. We couldn't lay the pipe, but to save money a couple of other women and I decided to dig the trench. We pounded and chiseled through 18 feet of concrete floor. No outlet!

* * * *

"THEN WE discovered we had read the floor plans upside down. So we filled in the trench and dug 18 feet in the other direction."

The crises of those early days echo the Perils of Pauline. It was a time of experiment, improvising and glowing faith in the theater.

The number and quality of productions increased. More and more Long Beach playgoers discovered rich theatrical fare in Magnolia Theater.

The star system was initiated when Lyle Talbot played in "Time Out for Ginger" in December, 1955.

"We opened on a Friday night; the critics were as pleased with our performance as was the audience.

"At 6 p.m. Saturday, the actress cast in the major role of the mother phoned me she was ill and couldn't go on.

* * * *

"LUCKILY, I have a photographic memory for scripts so I rushed to the theater and began rehearsing. When Lyle came in I said, 'Please run over this scene with me.' He turned white when he realized that the director was stepping into the role. But everything went great and we performed together for six weeks. Later, he asked me to appear with him in out-of-town productions of the play."

The theater's reputation has grown in stature with professional actors. Such stars as Vanessa Brown, Richard Erdman, John Carradine, Juanita Moore and Robert Cornthwaite have welcomed the opportunity to perform with Magnolia casts.

"Our serious purpose is to train young people for professional theater, both in acting and technical fields. There is no better way than to work with professionals. It provides incentive and gives apprentices first-hand experience they cannot get any other way."

* * * *

REHEARSAL schedules are rigorous, standards exacting. As soon as one play opens for its four-week-run, the next production is cast and goes into rehearsal.

"It's hard work," Pat admitted, "but our apprentices learn what will be expected of them in the professional theater."

Magnolia was the first theater to produce a Tennessee Williams play in Long Beach, "Summer and Smoke," in July, 1955. It had its own crisis when an actor playing Dr. Buchanan got carried away in a scene and hit Poppa Gonzales so hard with a cane that the weapon splintered apart, cracking open Poppa's head. He finished the scene before he blacked out and was rushed to the hospital by Pat. Next night, he was back on stage.

In July, 1956, Magnolia came up with another "first." "Pal Joey" was the first musical to be performed in-the-round in Long Beach. "There is no doubt the experiment is a success," wrote a critic.

* * * *

PAT, WHO has directed 55 of Magnolia's productions and performed in 10, was summoned in 1961 by the Ford Foundation to be field director of its new Theater Communications Group. Purpose of the group is to aid regional theaters in order to give actors, directors and technicians a place to work outside of New York. For more than a year, Pat traveled around the country, working with little theaters. Meanwhile, Gerry, who has his own business interests in Los Angeles and is business manager of Magnolia, also took on director's duties here.

By the time Pat resigned her field director post—"because I just couldn't stand being away from home any longer and our phone bills were running so high"—both the Browns were more determined than ever to establish a professional theater.

"LIGHTING IS the most important single factor in circle theater productions," said Pat Brown, director of Magnolia Theater, as Dave Fraser adjusted lights on Judith McCall.

"IF I THOUGHT that after 10 years all we could look forward to is some new seats and new paint, I wouldn't want to go on. We are not willing just to sit and be a successful community theater. We want to grow artistically, to bring the theatrical variety of Broadway to Long Beach, to give talented actors an opportunity to train for professional theater.

"I've had a lot of arguments about that word 'professional.' Certainly, there are many talented people working in little theater who don't make their living acting, but love it and perform well.

"But the fact remains that no matter how talented an actor is, he can't do his best work, be most creative, in two-and-a-half hours after a full working day. Ultimately, standards go down. Of course, we will always need volunteers, but we need a paid staff, too."

* * * *

SO, THE NEXT plateau Magnolia hopes to reach is establishment of a paid, permanent staff of three or four technicians and seven to ten actors. When that is achieved a new theater building.

"We know there are many people in Long Beach hungry for good theater. Our obligation is to present a balanced repertoire, to produce what the public wants to see, not just our own favorites. Nor do we want to produce just 10 commercial comedies in a row."

* * * *

THE '62-'63 season included "Purlie Victorious," a modern satire; "The Miracle Worker," modern drama; "Rape of the Belt," satire of Greek comedy; "Fantasticks," play with music; "The Best Man," comedy drama; "Summer of the 17th Doll," Australian prize-winning play; and "Born Yesterday," a just-for-fun comery. Summer productions were "Blood, Sweat and Stanley Poole," and "Peter Pan."

To build a supporting audience for a professional company, Magnolia last year initiated its first subscription series.

* * * *

ON AUG. 26 it began its second drive which will end Sept. 14. Goal: 2,500 subscribers.

Patrons may buy tickets for all eight of the productions planned for the coming season, or may buy tickets for seven of the eight. With 20 per cent reduction from the cost of single admission tickets, prices range from $8.40 for the seven series to a maximum of $12.80 for the eight performances.

Among projected productions are Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew," Ben Jonson's comedy masterpiece "Volpone," Kurt Weill's "Threepenny Opera," and Lillian Hellman's "Another Part of the Forest" and "The Little Foxes."

Meanwhile, another Pat and Gerry brown production is due in October—a sister or brother to join Barry, 11, and Tony, 8½.

"It had better be a girl," said Pat spiritedly. "I'm outnumbered now three to one!"

'I'M HERE!'

"Lonesome" George Gobel looks longingly at lovely dancer-singer Elaine Dunn, who co-stars with him in the musical "Bye Bye Birdie" at Melodyland Theater in Anaheim. Show runs through Sept. 8. Stuart Damon also is starred as Conrad Birdie.

MAJOR & MINOR NOTES

Readers Respond 'We Want Opera'

By RACHEL MORTON
L. P-T Music Critic

Two weeks ago I wrote a Major & Minor Notes column entitled, "Does Long Beach Want Grand Opera?"

I invited my readers to write me expressing their opinions. The response has been most gratifying and today I am quoting excerpts from some of the letters. It is most interesting and encouraging to note that not one unfavorable reply to the idea was received.

Space limitations do not permit the quoting of the letters in entirety, but I wish to express appreciation and gratitude to those who wrote me. Let's hear from more readers on the subject.

* * * *

"IT WAS MOST interesting to find your article "Does Long Beach Want Grand Opera." I personally was happy to see someone take the first step in this direction. Although this is an expensive venture, surely Long Beach and its surrounding area have grown culturally enough to have the support of our socially prominent people to the extent that plans could be made to proceed with such a wonderful idea.

"However, like yourself, I feel there must be NAME stars in the lead roles. Without them I feel it would be a miserable flop."

Elsie Rockwell
1215 Temple Ave.

"We were thrilled with your article regarding the possibility of having opera performances in Long Beach. Should such a wonderful dream come true, count upon us for any assistance we may be able to render to further the cause for such an enjoyable project."

Jack and Paula Margon
719 East 36th St.

* * * *

"YOUR SPLENDID article regarding opera in Long Beach was very stimulating and being a recent arrival from New York where I was only a stone's throw from the Metropolitan Opera House, I am in happy accord with your hopeful project of promoting enthusiasm among the Long Beach community to desire an opera house of their own and where people with a cultural background may be able to listen to the best artists in the operatic field.

"However, until that dream could be achieved, by all means let us have opera."

Susan Sanford
5492 Anaheim Road

* * * *

Mrs. A. O. Arguello
1833 Appleton St.

"Does Long Beach want Grand Opera? I surely think they do. I have been waiting for opera to come to Long Beach for years. I attend opera in Los Angeles every season and always think it would be so much better if we could have it right here."

Mrs. Walter Miller Jr.
3130 Mariquita St.

"I like the idea of opera in Long Beach."

Ruben Camacho
1213 E. Mauretania

"I WAS pleased to read your article and know how you feel about grand opera in Long Beach and I am with you all the way.

"I've been here seven years and love Long Beach but do miss the music. I'm from Cincinnati and no doubt you know what a musical city it is.

"I go to everything musical that comes and have been amazed at the attentive audiences they have here. You could hear a pin drop—and I am sure opera or any good music will go over here and it surely would bring up the cultural side of Long Beach. Here's hoping we can get more music here."

Pope Show at LBSC of Unusual Promise

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Dan Pope has accomplished a unique achievement, the development of a new art form, which is remarkable in the climate of artistic proliferation in our time and area. His master's show at Long Beach State College continues through Friday (closed Monday) from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the small gallery.

There are several crafts exhibited in the show: fine silver jewelry, elegant ceramics, objects of sand-cast aluminum, indifferent hand-blocked fabrics, but Pope's great claim to fame is his use of iron and steel for decorative objects that previously might have been made of precious metals, carved hardwood, or ceramic.

* * * *

THOSE familiar with the current art scene will recognize Pope's magnificent circular iron candelabra and bowl which were not only in the LBSC student show last year, but also were in the outstanding "Design West" show at the Pasadena Museum last summer.

From these, Pope has developed a whole new craft medium of this metal. There is a hanging made of 70 steel plates, each with a different treatment, with spot welding, application of other metals (copper, bronze, tin, nickel, silver), and a variety of burnishings and patinas.

* * * *

USING THESE methods, he has created small boxes and jars with fitted lids (often inlaid with contrasting metal on the underside) and lined with rich-toned wool felt. Several of these are surrounded by faceted screens of undercut steel made with a gas cutting torch. Some have a finish similar to "japanned" metal. There are three "scepters" like long hat pins to serve as ash trays or candle holders in the garden.

There is a large footed container made of steel sheets which might hold wood or charcoal. There is a bowl-shaped steel table, about 3 feet in diameter, glass-topped.

Recipe by Girl, 15, Is Best in Annual Cook Book Contest

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I. P-T Food Editor

Again, for the ninth consecutive year, our readers, both men and women — from teen-age to grown-up, have responded in a great way to the call-of-the-I, P-T Cook Book.

To thank the thousands of participants, individually, who contributed their favorite recipes would be an impossible task at best. To find the proper adjectives to describe the many mouth-watering recipes submitted would take a poet laureate, and of course, I don't qualify. However, Owen Meredith expresses how I feel in the following poem:

We may live without books (without music and art),
We may live without conscience, and live without heart,
We may live without friends, we may live without books,
But civilized man cannot live without cooks.

We may live without books (what is knowledge but grieving),
We may live without hope (what is hope but deceiving),
We may live without love (what is passion but pining),
But where is the man who can live without dining."

* * * *

SO, TO EACH OF you who took time to send in old family secrets, those who experimented and sent us the results of their labors; and to all the various club members who spent hours testing, tasting and judging, my sincerest thanks.

MILDRED FLANARY

It is because of you that the 1963 Cook Book has expanded from 23 classifications nine years ago, to 40, today.

This year's grand prize winner exemplifies two "brand news" in our cook book contest—she is a teenager, and her recipe comes under the "quantity cooking" classification . . . "Party Tacos for 24."

Pam Stillman, 5918 Gaviota Ave., who won the O'Keefe & Merritt Gas Contempo Range is just 15 years old.

Mrs. Walda Anderson, 3602 Fairman St., Lakewood, won the dishwasher with her recipe for "Peach Custard Cake," and Mrs. Donald Evans, 9507 Glandon St., Bellflower, won a third prize cash award for her "Huevos Mariposa" (that means eggs).

THE WINNERS were determined by five graduate home economists.

Mrs. Elaine G. McNally, Home Economist, U. S. Dept. of the Interior, Bureau of

GRAND PRIZE WINNER

Pam Stillman, 15 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Stillman, 5918 Gaviota Ave., submitted the grand-prize-winning recipe among 4,781 entries in the annual Cook Book Contest. "I like to putter around the kitchen," commented the teen-ager, "but I don't like to do dishes."

Second Grand Prize

PEACH CUSTARD CAKE

1½ cups all purpose flour
½ tsp. salt
½ cup soft butter or margarine
1 can (1 lb. 14 oz.) sliced peaches (drain and save juice)
¼ cup peach syrup
½ cup sugar
½ tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. rum or other flavoring
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 cup evaporated milk

Put the flour, salt and butter in a 1½ quart bowl. Mix with pastry blender until mixture is like coarse meal. Press mixture firmly on bottom and halfway up sides of buttered 8-inch square pan.

Drain the sliced peaches well and save ½ cup syrup. Arrange peach slices on crust in pan. Sprinkle over the peaches a mixture of ½ cup sugar, ½ tsp. cinnamon and flavoring. Bake in 375 degree oven for 20 minutes. Mix the ½ cup peach syrup, the egg, slightly beaten, and the cup of evaporated milk. Pour over peaches. Bake 30 minutes more or until custard is firm except in center. Center becomes firm on standing. Serve warm or cold. Serves 9.

Pretty Jordan High Girl's Recipe Best

Don't worry about cooking becoming a lost art with all the modern convenience foods making meal preparation so easy.

Pam Stillman, a pretty Jordan High junior, just 15 years old, has proven that modern youngsters—some of them at least—are as much at home in the kitchen as was grandma.

Pam is the winner of the annual Cook Book Contest conducted by the Independent, Press-Telegram. She captured the sweepstakes prize after a committee of nationally known home economists weeded through the 4,781 entries.

"OH, I LIKE to putter around the kitchen," says Pam, "but I never dreamed one of my recipes would win over all of the good cooks who participated. What a surprise. Now I'll have to take my cooking more seriously."

As pert and modern as any school girl, Pam took her first home economic course this summer at Jordan. "It just seemed that home ec didn't fit into my study courses so I decided to go to summer school to learn about nutrition and food studies."

Undecided as to whether she plans a home economics career, Pam disclosed that she loves to sew, makes most of her clothes and like most other moderns hates to do dishes.

PAM'S WINNING recipe was "Party Tacos." Mildred Flanary, Independent, Press-Telegram food editor and director of the recipe contest, said the judges found Pam's recipe outstanding because of the taste appeal and the fact that it could be prepared well in advance so the hostess wouldn't be spending time in the kitchen when her guests were present.

Pam is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim M. Stillman, 5918 Gaviota Ave. Her dad is a commercial fisherman.

'You should taste my baked Alaska—Alaska salmon, that is," quipped the teener.

Pam is an outstanding student in her studies in school and is very active in the North Long Beach Brethren Church.

PARTY TACOS
(Makes Sauce for 24)

24 tortillas, quickly fried in bacon fat
8 fresh tomatoes, coarsely chopped
1½ qts. lettuce, shredded (measured after shredding)
5 cups mild cheddar cheese, shredded
2 cups onions, shredded

MEAT SAUCE

3 lbs. ground beef (lean ground chuck, shoulder or round)
3 tblsp. bacon fat
2 large onions, chopped
2 green peppers, chopped
(if out of season, the canned green chillis may be used—1 can for this recipe)
2½ tsp. salt
2 tblsp. chili powder (alter to suit taste)
2 tsp. soy sauce
2 tsp. cumin
¼ tsp. pepper
3 cans tomato sauce, each diluted with 1 can of water
1 tblsp. brown sugar

Brown ground beef, onions and green peppers in bacon fat over medium heat, stirring occasionally to break up meat. Add seasonings, brown sugar and diluted tomato sauce and cover. Simmer slowly for one hour.

The tortillas (purchased in the delicatessen section of markets in packages of 12) are fried in shallow fat and cooked until puffy. Turn with pancake turner and fry other side. Remove and fold over paper towel. Stack folded.

Shred and chop vegetables and cheese and arrange separately in large bowls or sectioned dishes for buffet service. Have meat sauce in chafing dish or heated casserole. Arrange hot tortillas on large platter. (They may be kept crisp and hot in slow oven). Allow guests to assemble their own, placing a quantity of each item in folded tortilla.

(Paper napkins should be provided to wrap finished products. If desired, commercially prepared "hot sauce" may be dashed on for added warmth.)

Note: Everything for these tacos may be done at least a day in advance. The meat sauce improves with standing in refrigerator and may be heated at the last minute. Or, for serving smaller numbers, it may be frozen. Only the lettuce and tomatoes need be hand chopped the day of the party).

Norwalk Woman Loses 21½ Pounds in Six Weeks

Here you see Mrs. Harvey, with her husband in their Norwalk home. She is reducing to be more active with her children and to be more presentable at P-T A meetings.

as told by Virginia Harvey, Norwalk

"I want to lose weight. The most important reason is because of my health. Since I've gained all my weight, I'm tired all the time, get exhausted very easy, and I'm very short of breath.

"I have a wonderful husband and four lovely children. When we go out and do a lot of walking, my legs get sore, and I have to stop and rest. This ruins their fun because they have to wait for me.

"When I go out to buy a nice dress for a party, or special occasion; it's very hard to find something in a size 18½ or 20 that doesn't make me feel and look like an old lady. Rather than wear them, I stay home, or else I make a suit with a loose jacket.

"This year I'm going to be the 1st Vice President of our school's P.T.A., and that means getting up in front of a group every month to introduce the program and also attend other meetings all over the state. Therefore, I'd like to look and feel my best, and I cannot do it with this excess weight.

"I used to get so disgusted when I looked in a mirror, that I would turn away real fast, and if I felt this way, others must feel the same when they looked at me."

Mrs. Harvey's family is very thrilled and happy with her weight and inch loss. She looks so wonderful, and is beginning to resemble again the girl her husband married. Mrs. Harvey's husband is so pleased with her progress, that he has promised her a new wardrobe when she has completed her program.

Here you see Virginia Harvey with Pat Walker, the national figure authority. After only 6 weeks she has reduced 21½ pounds, 4½ inches from her waist, 5 inches from her abdomen, 4½ inches from her hips, 4 inches off each thigh, and still going down.

How This Newspaper Helps Advertisers . . .

By Having Our Temperature Taken Regularly

Every newspaper has an editorial thermometer. It's called "circulation." The paper's ups and downs in its efforts to satisfy the greatest number of editorial interests is reflected in its circulation.

So that there is no possibility that the calibrations on our thermometer become blurred by self-satisfaction, we have our temperature taken regularly—by a trained A.B.C.* circulation auditor.

When he leaves, there's no question of how we feel.

And, we're feeling quite healthy today, thank you—an indication that we're doing our job of providing an interested audience for your sales messages.

We would welcome the opportunity of showing you the A.B.C. facts on our circulation, and to explain just how our editorial program is helping to build reader interest for your advertising messages. Call us this week . . .

Electric Barbecue Is Ideal for Summer

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
L-P-T Food Editor

Time was when the turkey remained in hiding until the Thanksgiving or Christmas seasons rolled around. Now, the king of birds may turn up in any size and at any time. It's no longer confined to oven cooking, either, for its equally good baked, fried or barbecued. Today we're spit barbecuing a whole turkey.

The electric barbecues, now available, are just right for small apartment or compact barbecue area. Besides being easy to start, it gives instant controlled heat with no waiting for charcoal briquettes to light.

With your spit-barbecued turkey, serve Muffins made from a dressing mix, Foil Wrapped Zucchini, Fresh Peach Turnovers and Roquefort Chive French Bread.

Here's how you do them:

Choose your turkey from 4 to 25 lbs. If frozen, thaw completely, then brush inside of bird with basting sauce. Run spit rod from center of neck skin through body cavity and out just above the tail. Fasten tightly with spot forks at both ends. Tie twine around turkey to hold wings against body, and tie legs and tail together below spit rod. Roll spit rod on palms of hands to check balance. Insert thermometer into thickest part of thigh, being careful not to touch bone.

Arrange charcoal at back of firebox and knock off gray ash. Place drip pan, made of double thickness heavy-duty foil, in front of coals. Attach spit, then brush turkey with basting sauce or salad oil. Start motor, with turkey close to coals until seared (not blistered). Then move turkey about 7 inches from coals and continue cooking, adding charcoal as necessary. Baste occasionally, adding drippings from foil pan to your basting mixture.

Turkey is done when the thermometer registers 185 to 190 deg., or when thickest part of drumstick feels soft (approx. 12 to 15 minutes per lb.).

Here are some treats to serve with it:

Mrs. Cubbison's Dressing Muffins

1 6½-oz. package all-purpose dressing
1 small onion, finely chopped
¾ cup water or broth
¼ cup melted butter or margarine
1 cup finely chopped parsley

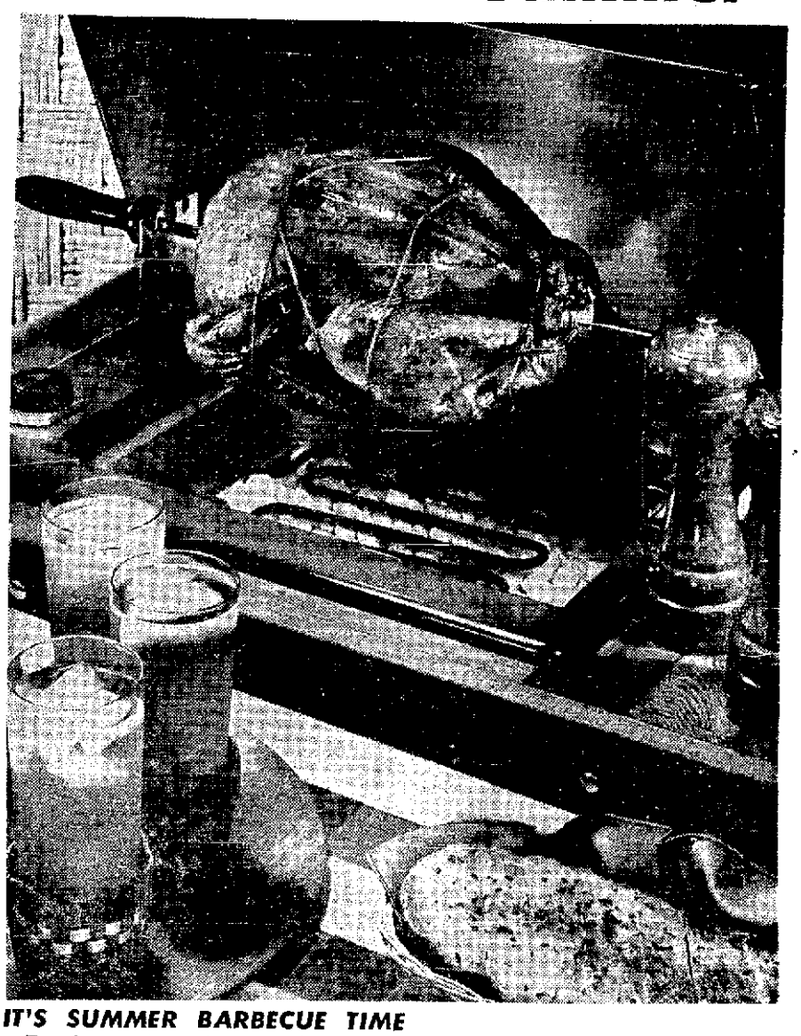

Combine all-purpose dressing with melted butter or margarine. Add onion and liquid. Blend well, but lightly. Shape into eight balls and brush with melted butter or margarine. Roll in parsley. Place in greased muffin pans. Bake at 325 degrees 35 to 45 minutes, until a golden brown. Serve hot from the pans at the Barbecue table.

Foil Wrapped Zucchini

Slice zucchini crosswise, in quarter inch slices. Place individual portions on double thickness of heavy duty aluminum foil. Add cubed fresh tomato; sliced celery; salt; coarse, freshly ground black pepper; tablespoon Frozen Chopped Chives and a patty of butter or margarine. Wrap foil securely around food. Barbecue on briquets 15 minutes or on grill around 20 to 25 minutes, turning once.

Roquefort Chive French Bread

Cut a long loaf of French bread in half lengthwise. Combine 2 tablespoons Frozen Chopped Chives with 1 cube soft butter or margarine. Blend in 2 ounces Roquefort cheese and 2 dashes Tabasco sauce. Spread on cut sides of bread. Then slash each half loaf on the bias into 1½- 2-inch slices, being careful not to cut through bottom crust. Place on baking sheet and heat in oven at 400 deg. 10 minutes, or until hot and crusty.

IT'S SUMMER BARBECUE TIME

For the small apartment patio or compact barbecue area, one of the electric barbecues now available beautifully "fits the spot." Besides being easy to start, it gives instant controlled heat with no waiting for charcoal briquettes to light. With your turkey we suggest Dressing Muffins, Foil Wrapped Zucchini, Peach Turnovers and Roquefort Chive French Bread. —(Lee & Associates photo.)

Fresh California Peach Turnovers

Prepare bisquick dough as for rolled biscuits, using 2 cups bisquick mix. Roll out ¼-inch thick and brush with melted butter. Cut into 3-inch squares. Combine 1 cup chopped fresh California peaches with ¼ cup sugar and 2 tablespoons flour. Spoon a generous portion of peach mixture onto each square. Fold dough over to make a triangle. Seal edges. Bake on greased baking sheet at 400 degrees F., 20 to 25 minutes.

TURKEY TIPS

Summer Marinating

2 cups Sauterne wine
1 cup soy sauce
1 cup salad oil
1 clove garlic, minced
juice of ½ lemon

Combine all ingredients, and blend thoroughly.

Marinade for Turkey

½ cup olive oil
1 cup Sauterne wine
2 tblsps. fresh lemon juice
1 tblsp. minced parsley
1 teasp. salt
1 clove garlic, minced
½ teasp. oregano
¼ teasp. allspice
¼ teasp. powdered ginger

Combine all ingredients, and blend thoroughly.

Care of Cooked Turkey

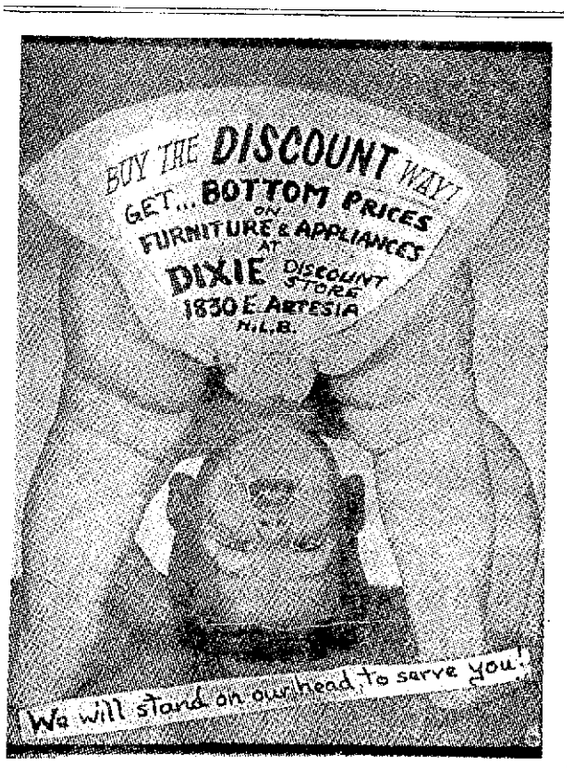

After the meal is over, the turkey meat should be wrapped or placed in a covered dish to prevent drying out and loss of flavor, then refrigerated promptly. If it is a stuffed bird, stuffing should be removed from cavities, placed in a covered bowl, and stored in the refrigerator. Also be sure to refrigerate or freeze the gravy for use in your "planned over" meals.

Turkey Salad

3 cups diced cooked turkey
1 cup diced fresh pineapple
1 cup diced cantaloupe
Salt and pepper
Fresh lemon juice

Combine turkey, pineapple and cantaloupe. Season with salt and pepper and a generous squeeze of fresh lemon

QUALITY CARPET WILLBANKS SELLS FOR LESS

The Willbanks Story:

The Wilbanks Carpet Co. is a departure from the usual carpet specialty shop. It was founded on the premise that quality carpet, backed by expert installation, could be sold at a minimum mark-up in sufficient volume to be profitable. The extension of this premise was to operate without frills and costly fixtures from a low rent and thus low overhead location in a factory warehouse on a side street in Signal Hill. By eliminating high rent and other cost-raising features, the company decided it could afford to pass on to its customers the substantial savings by giving more carpet at less cost.

Zimbalist: at Home on the Ranch

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Tweedy, pipe-smoking Efrem Zimbalist Jr. leads an off-screen life that contrasts sharply with his exciting television role as a private eye.

Zimbalist is a gentleman rancher.

His Norman-style farm house is quaint by Southern California standards, and old, too. Both Zimbalist and his home are 40 years old.

Single after two marriages, Zimbalist lives alone in the roomy house — six bedrooms — except during school holidays when his two children by his first marriage, Nancy 18, and Skipper (Efrem III), 15, visit him. A frequent visitor, too, is 6-year-old Stephanie, his daughter by his last marriage.

A visit with Zimbalist is a soothing experience, an oasis in the hurry-hurry, freeway existence of movieland life. The man himself is unruffled and relaxed to a fault.

* * * *

USING HIS PIPE as a pointer, the star of ABC-TV's "77 Sunset Strip" takes pleasure in showing guests about his "ranch."

At the moment he is busy converting a corral into a small lake on his 2½-acre estate. He plans to fill the area — about ¼ of an acre — with fresh water and stock it with fish.

It will be a welcome addition for the wild fowl which he keeps on the place; flamingoes, peacocks, jungle fowl and a few chickens. There are two barns, a small corral and a guest house in which live a couple who have worked for Zimbalist for almost five years.

A gardener appears thrice weekly to help the actor whip his property into shape. Part of the acreage is in wooded areas, another rarity in southern California.

* * * *

AT FIRST GLANCE it would appear that Efrem leads a lonely life. Frequently he dines alone and spends the evenings writing music—"unpopular music," is the way he

THE UNWILLING HOST OF 'TWILIGHT ZONE'

A Man Who Dislikes His TV Image

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rod Serling, the eminent five-time winner of the Emmy award, is a wiry slip of a millionaire with a nut-brown face, a twice-broken nose, a consuming enthusiasm for human beings, and a good reason for not liking his job of hosting his own shows:

"My wife says that I come over on the television screen looking like a constipated Sicilian prize fighter."

Matter of fact, he was once a fighter—a Golden Glove boxer at 121 pounds—and he was a paratrooper in the Pacific in World War II. ("I actually wanted to be in the quartermaster corps.") And he really does look tall on the screen.

* * * *

"THAT'S BECAUSE there's nothing on camera to compare me with," he explained. "But there I am, 5-feet-5 of solid gristle.

"I really don't like to do the hosting. I do it by default. I have to. If I had my druthers, I wouldn't do it. I just tense up terribly before going before the cameras. It's an ordeal. If I had to go on live, of course, I'd never do it. It's like boxing. I'm the only fighter in history who had to be carried both into and out of the ring.

"I got two broken noses and later I quit. I fought for the 11th Airborne Division championship in the war, and I lost.

"It's also like teaching. Recently I completed a term teaching playwriting classes at my alma mater, Antioch College. I wasn't a good teacher. I went back there to find out what was the truth, and I found out. The truth was at home, and I should have stayed there."

Rod Serling

* * * *

SERLING IS the inventor, executive producer and main writer of "Twilight Zone," which is getting ready to spook its way into a new psychle—if I may be so bold—its fifth season on television.

The show will be back down to a half hour this season, after one season as an hour-long production, and Serling has completed 10 of the 26 plays he will present.

"In my writing I work with a secretary and a recorder," he said. "I dictate everything. It's a free-wheeling thing. I act out all the parts. I do three or four drafts, but by the time I get through with the second, things are pretty well set.

"The first draft is right off the top. I do it very fast. I think about it three or four weeks, and then do the first draft practically overnight."

* * * *

BECAUSE Serling comes on screen and introduces each show, his face is an institution in itself now.

"Fame is short-lived," he said. "One year after this show goes off the air, they'll never remember who I am. And I don't care a bit. Anonymity is fine with me. My place is as a writer."

But he is proud of the show: "We're part of the language now. Archie Moore when he last got knocked out said he felt like he was in the twilight zone. Dean Rusk spoke of the twilight zone in international diplomacy. And there is a twilight zone defense in basketball."

A police car went by with one of New York's new-fangled sirens sounding (they beep and haw like some weird message from space) and Serling's eyes popped wide.

"They're playing our song," he said.

Zimbalist the Rancher

put it. He tinkers with classical music ideas, claiming that about 1 per cent of his famed violinist father's talent rubbed off on him.

"I like being alone," Zimbalist says. "I enjoy going out to dinner by myself and reading a good book or magazine."

He also enjoys occasional dates, primarily with Kay Gable, Clark Gable's widow, who is a neighbor of Zimbalist in Encino, a swank section of the San Fermando valley.

In addition to music, books and lake-building, Efrem collects pipes, some 40 of them, most of which he smokes. He's given up puffing exotic mixtures of imported tobaccos, settling for a Kentucky type.

"I fiddled around for 20 years mixing my own blends, but none of them turned out very well," he admits.

Even in old work clothes around his ranch Zimbalist looks well groomed. His hair has a magic way of staying in place and he's the only man I know whose hands look clean when they're dirty.

When Zimbalist does escort Mrs. Gable out at night it frequently is to dinner parties with friends. Sometimes they go to quiet, out-of-the-way restaurants where other diners let them pass unrecognized.

"I hate night clubs," he says with feeling. "I'd rather climb in the ring at a bullfight than go to a club."

Still, as a television detective, Zimbalist spends a good deal of his video life prowling the late spots for miscreants of all kinds, principally murderers.

* * * *

WHEN EFREM can't be found working on his lake, writing music or enjoying fine food he usually is in the comfortable den of his home with his modest collection of first editions and rare books.

"Sometimes, when the TV schedule is heavy, I think my life is somewhat frantic," he says. "But on the whole it's a pleasant way of life. My feeling is that in movie and television work if all your resources rely on the job you wind up with nothing.

"Therefore I have to furnish my life outside acting. Performing, after all, is a pretty thin diet to live on."

Thus Zimbalist continues to fill his days with small activities attuned to his way of life — which is as far as any star can manage to break away from the stereotyped image of the Hollywood actor.

WALTER CRONKITE will will inaugurate one of the first two daily half-hour news broadcasts in TV history Monday at 7 p.m. on channel 2 with the premiere of "CBS Evening News." The other broadcast will be "Morning News With Mike Wallace" at 9 a. m. on channel 2.

SPECIAL

WALTER CRONKITE—It's to be the year of half-hour network news shows, with an "in-depth" approach and more time for analysis. Cronkite kicks off the trend at 7 p.m., ch. 2, with Eric Sevareid, Charles Collingwood and Harry Reasoner reporting regularly, and KNXT's own "Big News" expanded to an hour immediately preceding. Next week NBC gets on the bandwagon with an expanded 30-min. "Huntley-Brinkley" report at 6:30 p.m. (Mike Wallace begins a half hour news series at 9 a.m. today.)

AMERICAN REVOLUTION '63—Frank McGee is anchor man for an unprecedented 3-hour prime-time examination of all the aspects of the civil rights issue, at 7:30 p.m., ch. 4. The movement's history is traced from the Emancipation Proclamation to today, with discussion by civil rights leaders and their critics, Administration representatives, members of Congress, governors, labor leaders and clergymen. Reports from more than 75 places across the nation will probe differing views on public accommodation, housing, voting, jobs and education.

JOHN L. LEWIS—A special Labor Day "Perspective on Greatness" hour looks at the loved, hated and respected granddaddy of the labor unions from the early coal mining days until the present. H. V. Kaltenborn narrates at 7:30 p.m., ch. 9.

THE ESTABLISHMENT — The irreverent, satirical revue popular in both London and off-Broadway, gets it's first TV showing at 9 p.m., ch. 11. Produced by talented British writer-comedian Peter Cook, the revue takes a dim view of most people and happenings, past and present. (Another off-Broadway success, "Second City," will be seen in a television Sept. 11 on the same channel.)

Sports Today

BASEBALL, 11:25 a.m., ch. 9, with the first half of an Angels-White Sox doubleheader at Comiskey Park.

A TV Study: Beauty Title, How It's Won

A behind-the-scenes candid study of the experiences of a girl who aspires to the Miss America crown will be the subject of NBC's "Show of the Week" series this fall.

The story will portray the experiences of girls from normal backgrounds who become celebrities overnight by focusing on 21-year-old Jeanne Richey Amacker of Beaumont, Tex., who recently won the Miss Texas title.

Cameras now are following Miss Amacker as she prepares for the finals in Atlantic City Saturday, and will continue to film her activities until after the contest's conclusion — whether she wins or loses.

It is doubtful, though, if NBC cameras will film the telecasting of the finals by CBS cameras.

The Miss America finals will be telecast Saturday, will be telecast Saturday at 7 p.m. on CBS-TV.

TUESDAY WELD—A GIRL WITH NO REGRETS

Out of Her Teens, and Ready for Life

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Tuesday Weld celebrated her 20th birthday last Tuesday, which opened the floodgates to a welter of jokes about the girl with the funny name and precocious inclinations.

Tuesday arrived in Hollywood six years ago, and as a 14-year-old shocked the jaded movie colony with her antics, cute quotes and views on life.

She was dismissed lightly as being without talent. She She was excoriated for being a brazen teen-ager who smoked, dated and visited night clubs. She was a flash in the pan.

* * * *

BUT BLONDE Tuesday has survived in the Hollywood jungle to emerge as one of the town's finest young actresses. And, particularly, she has grown up with a special kind of wisdom.

Curled up on a couch in her dressing room, Tuesday shrugged off the beginning of her 21st year. "It's nothing special," she said. "Actually, I feel younger now than I did when I was 13 and told everyone I was 18.

"I imagine millions of mothers have told their daughters to behave themselves or they'd turn out to be like Tuesday Weld.

"Well, I have no regrets about my life. All the precocity I had at 13 and 14 is now a real part of me. I am strong-willed and independent. And I'm fortunate that I got all that silly junk out of my system at an early age. Now I can do some real living.

* * * *

"MOST GIRLS my age are getting their first jobs or moving into their own apartments for the first time in their lives—or getting married before they know what life is all about.

"Not me. I've been working (as a model and actress) since I was three years old."

In her six years in Hollywood Tuesday has appeared in 250 television shows and starred in 10 movies.

She is in tremendous demand by producers and studios.

* * * *

"I THINK I've done some good work," she said. "But nothing really great. When I make one really great and beautiful picture about love I'll probably quit acting and try something else."

Has Tuesday regretted not leading a normal teen-ager's life?

"How can you miss what you've never had?" she replied. "I would like to have had a better formal education. Yet I have an education of my own that most other 21-year-olds don't even know about.

"I've learned about human nature, people, and the ways of the world — things that have prepared me for life. Now I guess I'm like an abstract painting — people can make anything they want of me."

TUESDAY WELD stars in repeat of "The Legend of Lylah Clare" on the "Du Pont Show of the Week" Sunday at 10 p. m. on channel 4.

OPEN MONDAY AND FRIDAY NIGHTS UNTIL 9 P.M.

Let's take a good look..

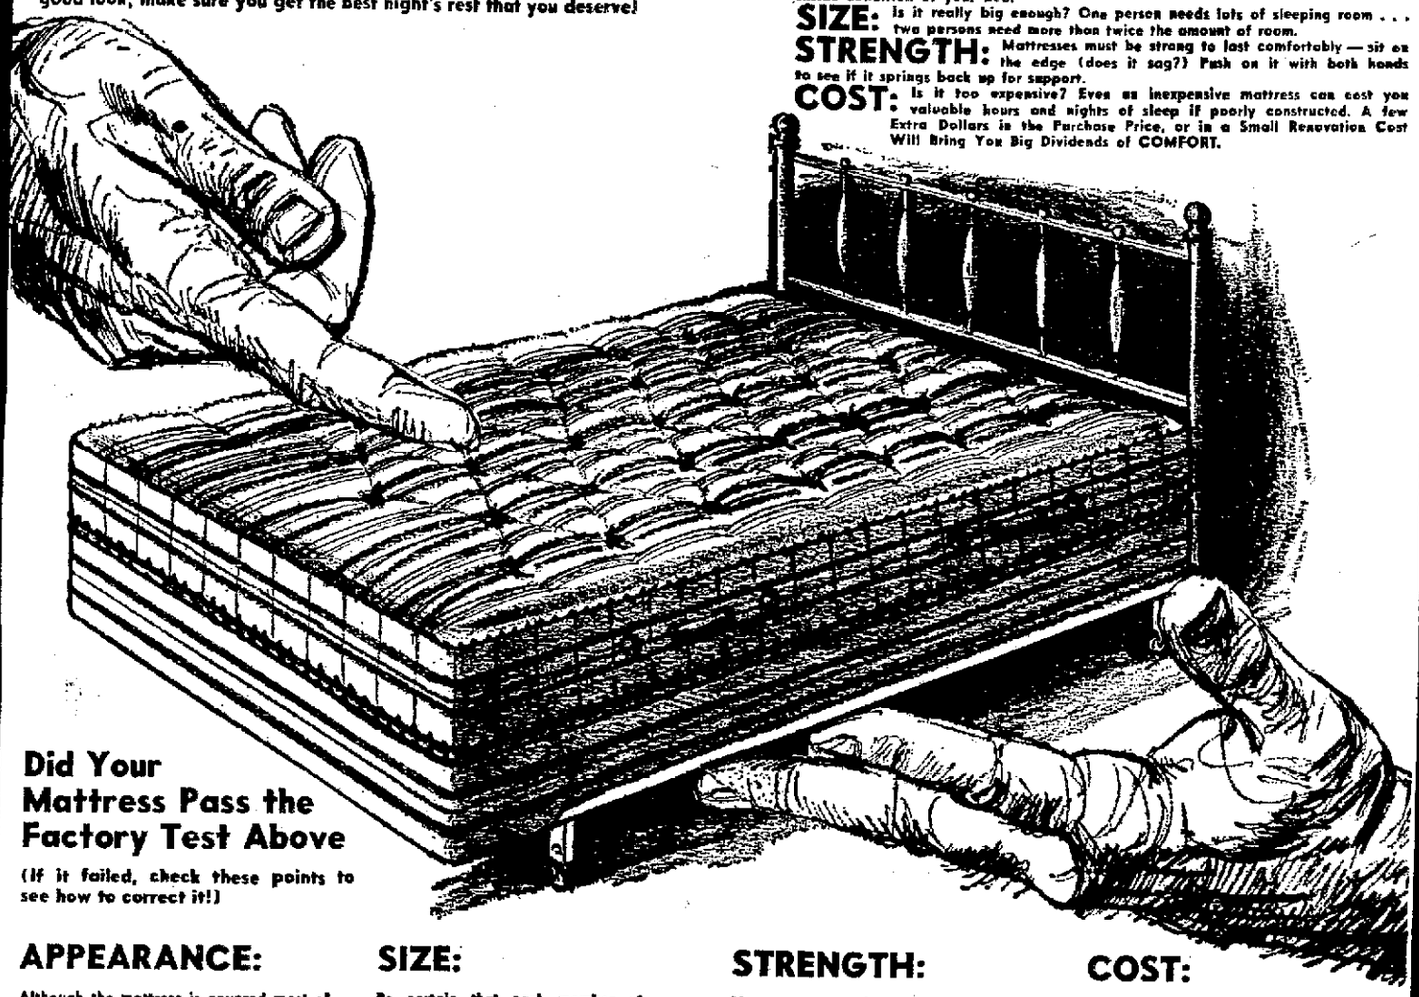

AT YOUR MATTRESS, the mattress YOU sleep on every night, take a good look; make sure you get the best night's rest that you deserve!

APPEARANCE: How does it look? Many people never look at the mattress itself, but take a good look . . . look for sags, lumps, bulges, dips, and bends . . . it may tell you a lot about the inside condition of your bed.

SIZE: Is it really big enough? One person needs lots of sleeping room . . . two persons need more than twice the amount of room.

STRENGTH: Mattresses must be strong to last comfortably — sit on the edge (does it sag?) Push on it with both hands to see if it springs back up for support.

COST: Is it too expensive? Even an inexpensive mattress can cost you valuable hours and nights of sleep if poorly constructed. A few Extra Dollars in the Purchase Price, or in a Small Renovation Cost Will Bring You Big Dividends of COMFORT.

Did Your Mattress Pass the Factory Test Above

(If it failed, check these points to see how to correct it!)

APPEARANCE:

Although the mattress is covered most of the time, appearance does mean a lot and can tell you a lot about the quality of the mattress you are using. Torn or soiled cover means you may need to replace or renovate your mattress cover. Acme's trained technicians can tell you exactly what the trouble is. Renovating your mattress can be done for as low as $14.95 and up. If a mattress is badly damaged, it may cost less to replace it with a brand new mattress.

SIZE:

Be certain that each member of your family has plenty of sleeping room. Extra room does not necessarily mean extra cost. Comfort in sleeping is maintained by having enough room to relax in. With king size sets rising in popularity so fast, Acme is able to offer king size savings with king size sleeping. Priced from $167.50, these six by seven foot beds are a real buy in roomy sleeping comfort.

STRENGTH:

If your mattress is weak, or sagging, it needs replacement or renovation to give support. A mattress must be strong and the springs must be in excellent condition in order to hold the body with an evenly distributed, restful support. For strength that lasts for years and years, an Acme Mattress with Acme-Rest construction is a good, reliable buy. Many excellent mattresses are low priced. Let Acme show you a mattress that is built right — and priced right for you.

COST:

A mattress that is uncomfortable is too expensive for you! It will cost you more in loss of sleep and rest than you can afford. At Acme, we think quality first, cost later. No mattress we sell could be more completely tailored to good sleeping. Whether you buy a twin size mattress and box springs set for $39.50, or a king size, custom built ensemble with everything for $167.50, you can be sure of quality from Acme. Other fine mattresses: Posture Mattress and Box Springs (guaranteed 10 full years), only $59.50; deluxe foam rubber mattress for just $79.50.

OUR COVER

Terry Baker, the most honored player in college football history at Oregon State last year, is discovering that the road to stardom in professional football can be a rocky one from the start. Even before joining the Los Angeles Rams, he was caught in a swirl of controversy. But Baker appears qualified to meet every test, and the Rams are hoping the left-handed "golden boy" finally will give them a quarterback in the tradition of Bob Waterfield and Norm Van Brocklin. For more about this star, read Jerry Wynn's story, "The Rams' Controversial Terry Baker," on Page 7.

Herding a flock of 800 ewes and 950 lambs as they graze on the stubble of the foothills, Luis Echamendi is typical of the Basques who are brought to America to tend the flocks with the help of his two loyal dogs.

Lonely Basques of the Western Ranges

By Jack B. Kemmerer

THE SCENE is a series of low foothills at the edge of the wide San Joaquin Valley near Fresno. Luis Echamendi, a burly man in his middle 30s, uses a chunk of bread to wipe the last of his noontime stew from a tin plate. Holding a worn wineskin at arm's length, he washes down the meal with California burgundy. His meal over, Luis carefully washes the plate and flatware with water drawn from a barrel standing outside his door, and leaves his trailer home with its corrugated iron sides. He walks a hundred yards to a flock of 800 ewes and 950 lambs, for Luis is one of more than 800 Basques who come from northern Spain to work in Western America as sheepherders.

For company Luis has only two faithful black dogs who respond to his every command whether verbal or by arm signal. Together, man and dogs herd sheep the year around in one of the loneliest occupations in existence. He must drive the sheep to favorable feeding grounds, following the weather, occasionally having his trailer moved for him, usually in the midst of solitude where communing with nature must take the place of going to church only at infrequent intervals.

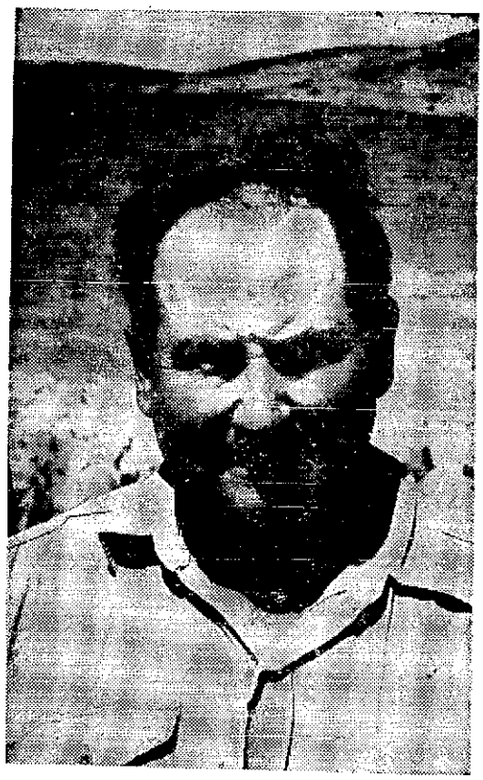

WOOL GROWERS, plagued by falling meat and wool prices, say they would go out of business without the Basques who learned their work in Spain, or in the narrow strip of southern France which is also part of the Basque country. Until 1957 all imported sheepherders could come to the United States only under special legislation, but since then organizations like the Western Range Association have been authorized by law to bring in as many Basques as needed.

During 1961 about 230 arrived while nearly as many returned to Spain, their three-year contracts completed. The association is the industry's largest importer, having contracts with 99 per cent of the sheepherders immigrating since 1957. These rugged men work in 10 western states with the heaviest concentrations in California, Colorado and Utah.

The association acts as a clearing house, arranges passage—which is paid for by the employers—visas, passports, and contracts. Each Basque sheepherder is sponsored, and new recruits are often friends or relatives of those already on the payroll. There is no question of their replacing Americans who might be doing this work, for few Americans are interested in sheepherding. They prefer higher-paying and less isolated occupations.

Though no bonanza by United States standards, employment here pays the Basques many times what they could earn back home in the Pyrenees. They earn a minimum of $200 a month plus room and board, which usually means a trailer—or a tent in some extremely isolated areas—plus all their provisions including wine for their traditional botas or wineskins. When their three-year term ends, in a critical time, they receive extensions, and some return on new contracts after a few months visit to their homeland.

UNLIKE FICTIONAL rangehands seen on television, who seem only to work for Saturday nights in town, the Basques for the most part shun cities during their entire United States stay. Occasionally they take a day off when a replacement is available, and they enjoy gathering at Basque hotels for cards and conversation, but they consistently save their dollars. These savings are the real incentive to take lonely jobs in a strange country, for at the end of their stays most herders, who have only to buy their own clothing and incidentals, return home with $5,000 to $6,000. This nest egg gives them a financial independence that would be virtually impossible ever to achieve in their own land.

With savings, Echamendi will buy printing business when he returns to Spain.

Herders and their dogs live isolated lives as they watch over their flocks. Trailer is herder's home. In the U.S. on 3-year contracts, herders may save more than $5,000, a considerable sum when they return to homeland.

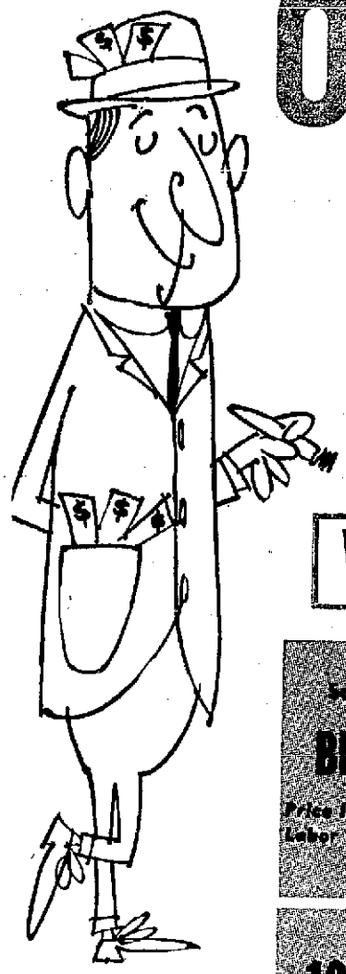

"Basques are a proud and independent people," says Phillip Erro, a second-generation Basque himself, a leading sheep man in the Fresno area, and president of the Western Range Association. "They enjoy the freedom from working closely to a boss, so this program gives them a chance to get started on their own."

Erro, whose father arrived in the United States in 1879 at the age of 17, has been around sheep all his life, and started herding as a teen-ager. "In days past," he says, "there were 250,000 sheep in Fresno County. Now there are about 90,000 because most of the land is under cultivation, and profits go only to the experts who thoroughly understand range operations and sheep raising."

Phil Erro has about 7,000 sheep now which are sold for meat, and shorn for their wool which is shipped to a very competitive market. He knows the business instinctively and from experience, and directs his herders to the best feeding grounds for the various seasons.

These People Look for Trouble

Members rolling on highways are in touch with main dispatch desk manned here by group chief, Gene Peterson.

Assistance on the highway is aim of a public-spirited group of citizens band radio operators. Dexter Kent, a member, shows identification while offering driver aid.

By Mickey Gastwirth

WHEELS of the car were still spinning as the squad car pulled up to the wreck on the freeway. The officer quickly jumped out, and as he opened the car door to help out the dazed driver, he noted the smashed face of the clock. The time was 11:45. He glanced at his own watch. It was 11:47. Someone had seen the accident, set flares, telephoned the police who relayed the call to the nearby squad car, which reached the accident . . . all within the space of two minutes.

The mystery was quickly solved by a man who approached the officer, and presented his identification card. He was a member of the Citizens Assistance Relay League, which was having a regular nightly "operation." This club member had come upon the accident scene, relayed the report to the main dispatch office, where the call was immediately telephoned to the police. He then set the flares, and was about to render assistance, when the police car arrived.

THE LOCAL CARL organizations was formed over a year ago by a group of "CBers," each owning a short wave radio with CB (Citizens Band) license. One evening over coffee, they decided to put good use to their radios. With a fervent desire to perform service to the community, a small group met and formed a club.

Since then, the club has met regularly once a month at the Paramount Community Savings recreation room. The business at hand is short; but with a definite purpose: to make plans for "operations" for the month.

When the date is set, the members assemble in their own cars at a home close to the designated patrol area. An operation officer and one other member are assigned to the main dispatch office to receive all calls; and to telephone whichever agency is needed for assistance. Major highways, freeways, and some side streets are patroled by all the club members, each equipped with CB two-way radio. During the "operation" run, which sometimes lasts for nine hours, the "band" is limited to a four-mile square range. However, this local club's patrol range usually extends from Lynwood to Long Beach; and includes Bellflower, Signal Hill, Lakewood, Paramount, and Compton, and is on a 24-hour monitoring service on channel 11.

EACH CAR carries assistance equipment consisting of flares, tire irons, jack, towrope, gas-filled can, flashing flashlight and small hand tools. When a stalled car is observed, information is immediately flashed into the mike as to location, make, license and color of the car. The club rule is always to travel in pairs. The driver parks the car at the rear of the troubled car; and while his partner remains at the mike, he approaches the driver of the stalled vhicle, and presents his membership identification card.

As soon as confirmation for assistance is given, an attempt is made to start the car. In case of a flat tire, a male driver is asked to fix his own flat. If assistance is needed from a relative, friend, auto club, or other agency, the message is sent over the mike to the control station to phone the desired party. In case of accident, the police are notified immediately. In all cases, the CARL car stands by until aid arrives.

The Citizens Assistance Relay League is a non-profit organization, and will not accept payment for its services. Persons assisted are presented with a card stating: "You have been assisted by Unit No. —— of the CARL, P.O. Box 5326, Long Beach 5, Calif. The club asks only that the message is spread that this organization will assist cars in trouble; and will present proper identification.

CARL publishes its own newsletter to members. Publisher-editor, Melba Peterson, wife of newly-elected president, Gene Peterson, of 5956 Gardenia Ave., Long Beach, keeps the membership informed of "operation" cases, "coffee-breaks," and coming social affairs. The remaining executive board and committee chairmen consists of Norma and Dexter Kent, Jack Clausen, Leota and Gregg Artz, and Cathy Oederkerk.

Strange are some of the cases encountered on "operations." For instance, the boy who was observed running out of a store with a bubble pipe stuck in his throat. A CB call brought both ambulance and parents in time to save his life.

But the oddest case of all was that of the man who had stopped in the middle of a tunnel. The CARL car screeched to a stop at the rear of the car, and set a flare. The driver then ran to the aid of the man who was running ahead through the tunnel . . . he was chasing a CAT and a DOG!

College football's most honored player

The Rams' Controversial Terry Baker

By Jerry Wynn

Associated Press Photos

His career as a collegiate star has ended but Terry Baker, shown here viewing Heisman Trophy, has just begun life as a grid pro.

THE BIG CROWD bit its lip as the heralded rookie quarterback faded back to throw his first pass for the Rams. It was a perfect spiral of 30 yards that reached the intended receiver as he sped between the goal posts. It was a certain touchdown.

But it wasn't.

The receiver let the ball fly through his hands, and for good measure, the Rams were guilty of holding and received a 15-yard penalty.

WELCOME TO THE RAMS, TERRY BAKER!

College football's most honored player had made his debut with professional football's most exasperating team two weeks ago at the Coliseum, and the dream of first-pass touchdown had ended in nightmare.

But Terry Wayne Baker is a sturdy young man of 22, who is blessed with a sharp mind and keen sense of humor. In refusing larger offers to accept a $75,000 three-year contract to play for the Rams, he did so fully aware of problems ahead.

HOWEVER, Baker had no idea the "problems" would arise so quickly. In fact, the first storm hit before his trophies, which turned the Phi Delta Theta fraternity house at Oregon State into a Terry Baker museum, had time to accumulate dust.

It came when the Rams, a team with three quarterbacks already and other problems threefold, tabbed Baker as the No. 1 choice in the National Football League draft meeting in Chicago last December.

"They need another quarterback like I need a hole in the head," was the prompt reaction from an official of the Detroit Lions, and many other clubs joined in the same chorus.

Elroy Hirsch of the Rams rushed to the defense.

"When you have an opportunity to get an athlete the caliber of Terry Baker, you just have to take him regardless of position," explained Crazylegs.

THE CRITICISM of the Rams draft of Baker received added impetus a few weeks later when Ron VanderKelen, the quarterback from Wisconsin who was ignored by the pros, turned in a stunning performance against USC in the Rose Bowl.

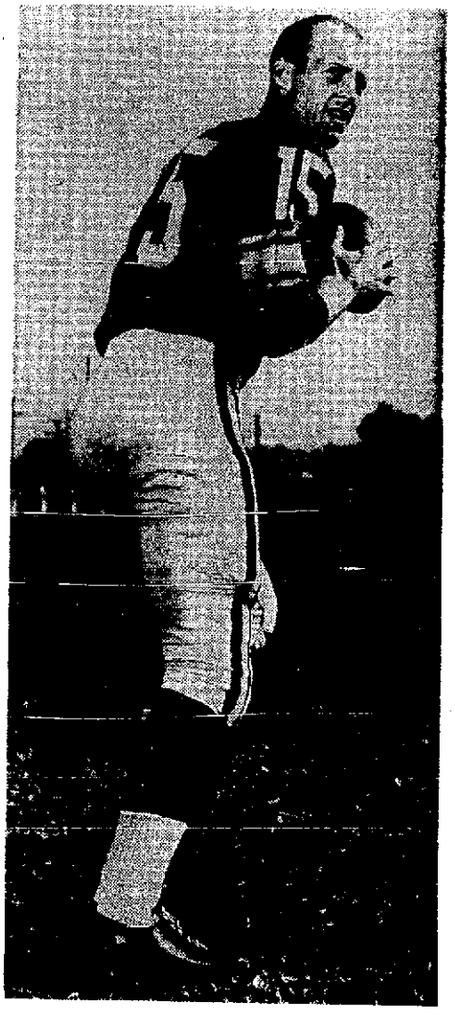

"Why did the Rams have to waste their first draft choice on Baker when they could have had VanderKelen for the asking?" cried the Long Beach-Los Angeles Legion of Second-Guessers.

And the shouting turned into tumult months later when VanderKelen sparked the College All-Stars to a spectacular upset of the world champion Green Bay Packers while Baker sat out the game on the All-Star bench.

Thus did Terry Baker, whose fabulous career at Oregon State had made him a 1962 version of Horatio Alger (the poor boy makes good) and Paul Bunyan (the all-conquering giant of the woodsman legend), finally report to the Rams at their summer training camp at Chapman College in Orange.

"I'M VERY HAPPY to be here," he said upon arrival, and you knew he meant it. But no sooner had he reported than the storm warnings were heard again.

Because Baker had only four days of practice with the Rams, coach Harland Svare wisely elected not to play him in the team's preseason opener against Dallas. Yet, there ensued a barrage of protests all the way from Southern California to Northern Washington. And when Svare refused to start the famous rookie against Minnesota the next week, the howl became horrid.

Vic Stein Photo for Los Angeles Rams

Baker rolls out to pass on the practice field but pose should become very familiar to Ram followers in weekends ahead.

Through all the swirling controversy, Baker remained as hushed and steadfast as the mighty rain forest near his Portland home. Raised by a mother, who had to work to put her three sons through college, Terry never has had things come easy.

HIRSCH RECALLS visiting with him on campus at Corvallis last November when Terry was about to fly to New York to receive the Heisman Trophy as the outstanding player in the nation.

"Here was a boy going to the big city for the first time to receive the biggest award in football, and he acted no differently than if he was going into Portland for a weekend at home," said Hirsch.

"A clothier in town had lent him a new suit, and I helped him pack. The boy never had anything materially, and despite all the hoopla he received, he remained the same unspoiled, genuine, poised personality. Maybe inside he was thrilled to death. But he never showed it."

Ram owner-president Dan Reeves also was impressed by Baker's refreshingly natural manner when Terry came to Los Angeles in March to sign his Ram contract.

"He is one of the most remarkable young men I have ever met," said Reeves. "He has a fine intelligence and will be a great leader."

PUBLICITY DIRECTOR Jack Teele was another Ram executive to pile on the Baker bandwagon.

"Southern California is supposed to have a tough press," said Teele, "but Terry never was ill at ease while facing a battery of newspaper, television and radio interviewers on his first trip here. He has an outstanding inquiring mind. Newsmen would ask him one question, and he would ask them 10 back. He floored one veteran sports editor by asking about the type of presses his paper used."

A top student at Oregon State in mechanical engineering, Baker will attend Stanford Law School after the completion of the 1963 season.

As for his potential as a Ram quarterback, Terry was extremely impressive when he finally got his chance to play in the Minnesota game. "He's going to drive some teams crazy," commented Viking coach Norm Van Brocklin.

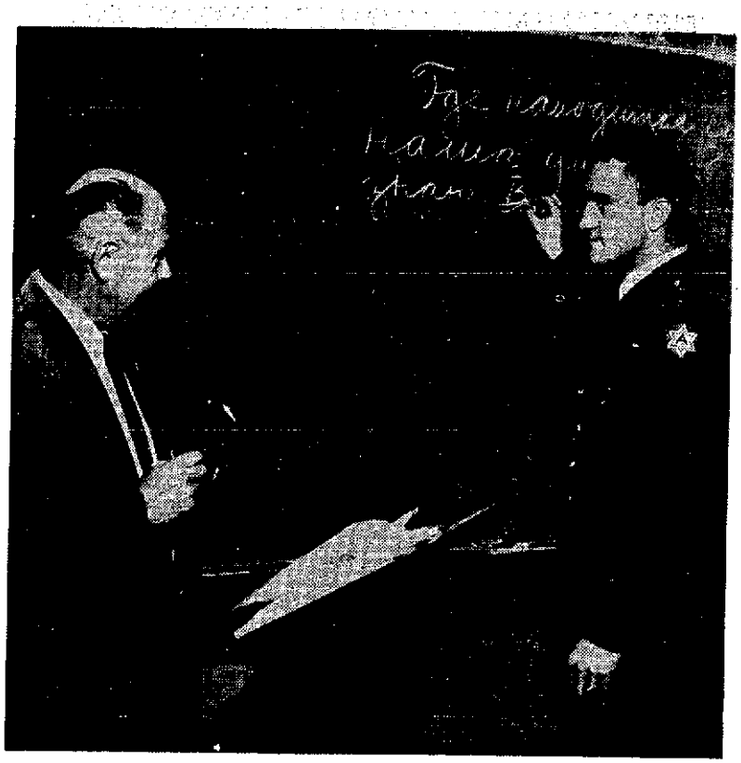

And last weekend, Baker returned home to Portland to spark the Rams to their first victory in 10 games by throwing a 44-yard touchdown pass to beat the Dallas Cowboys.

Yes, the adventures of Terry and the Rams are just beginning.

Arabic to Vietnamese

They Speak 28 Tongues

By Frank L. Remington

In the Army Language School, stress is on oral communication, but reading and writing also are taught. Here, student of Russian receives dictation.

IN A TEHERAN cafe not long ago an affable American sergeant turned to an Iranian soldier and said "Saerboz!" The Iranian glared belligerently and the next instant the cafe became embroiled in a wild brawl.

The sergeant later learned that he'd inadvertently insulted the Iranian. Meaning to say "saerbaz"—the Persian word for "soldier," he actually said—"saerboz"—the Persian word for "goathead," an intolerable affront in Teheran.

Such linguistic misunderstandings hamper American soldiers in carrying out Uncle Sam's global responsibilities. With 40 per cent or more of the Army stationed in some 73 countries around the world, the need for bilingual GIs is pressing, indeed.

TO MEET this ever-increasing demand, some 2,000 soldiers undertake intensified training in 28 foreign languages ranging from Arabic to Vietnamese at the Army Language School (ALS) each year. Ensconced on 400 acres of green hills overlooking the Pacific at Monterey, the school ranks as the world's finest linguistic training center. In six months or a year of concerted study GI students graduate with almost native fluency in the language they study.

The curriculum mirrors the changing international situation. Five years ago, ALS taught no language of Southeastern Asia. Today, with world attention on this critical area, the school boasts 30 instructors teaching Burmese, Thai, Indonesian and Vietnamese. Paradoxically, Laotian, the tongue of embattled Laos, has not yet been added to the curriculum.

About one-third of those enrolled study Russian and more than 7,000 students have earned diplomas in the Russki tongue. The next most popular is Mandarin, the sing-song language of most of Red China. The familiar languages of Western Europe—French, German, Italian, Spanish and Portuguese—are also offered and require six months to complete. Rumanian takes nine months and the other languages a year.

The students come mostly from the Army, though there's a sprinkling of Marine, Air Force and Navy personnel. There are representatives from just about every military occupational specialty: cooks and military policemen, intelligence specialists and medics. They range from recruits newly arrived from basic training to much-decorated colonels. There is no rank in the classroom. Corporals sit next to colonels.

SOME CLASSES are brightened by feminine students—the wives of men destined for important foreign assignments. The Army considers them valuable in strengthening international understanding. They study right along with their husbands and become definite assets to them in their new duties in diplomatic posts.

One young wife of an officer preparing for Japanese duty carried on the same arduous nine-hour-a-day language-learning schedule as her spouse, even though she was also rehearsing lullabies. As graduation day approached speculation grew as to which would come first—the baby or the diploma. As it happened she received her sheepskin in the morning and greeted the stork that same afternoon.

A student expecting a soft life at the Army Language School soon learns that goldbricking doesn't go here. He quickly realizes that learning a language the ALS way is a deadly serious business. Classes meet six hours a day, five days a week, and each student must study at least three hours a night.

English is rarely spoken in the classroom. Learning a new tongue requires considerable directed practice if the student is to speak it in a natural manner. Speaking and understanding receive the emphasis; reading and writing are regarded as by-products. To assure each of ample individual attention and opportunity to speak the language there are never more than eight students to a class.

CLASS DAYS usually begin with a conversation studied the night before. It generally concerns some mundane situation, such as shopping, banking or visiting a dentist. The instructors coach each student to imitate the sounds, stress and intonation of the brief dialogue. Each student also has a tape recorder and can listen repeatedly to his teacher's voice, as well as record his own.

Sometimes the fast rate of learning a new language disturbs and discourages a student, particularly if his high school days are far behind him. One GI studying Russian went to the head of his department in a stew.

"Why," he complained, "I'm even having nightmares about my work."

"What language are you dreaming in?" the instructor asked.

"Why, Russian," the student answered.

"Fine! Fine!" exclaimed the instructor. "When a student dreams in the language he's studying, he can be sure he's making excellent progress."

Visitors to the school are sometimes puzzled to see stern-faced men in Russian uniforms marching at rifle point into a building. Actually these "captured invaders" are GI students participating in a linguistic exercise called "Operation Jabber."

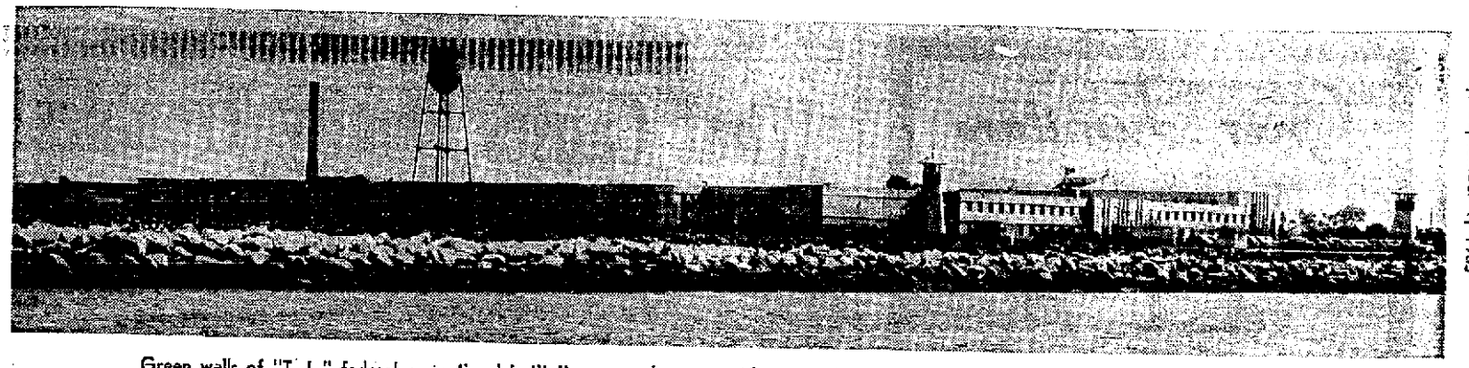

OPERATION JABBER is part of a practical course geared to actual military necessities. Mock situations, such as prisoners-of-war interrogation, map problems, "captured" document translation and intelligence techniques

Culture of peoples also receives attention in studies, and one of popular activities is the Russian choir, joined here by the daughter of a teacher.

Green walls of "T. I.," federal correctional institution, spread over a wide area of Reservation Point. Prison's history has been varied.

A Look Behind the Long Green Walls

By Lou Jobst

ONE OF THE FIRST things the ocean voyager sees when arriving at Los Angeles Harbor are the long green walls and towers of the federal prison at Terminal Island.

Situated on Reservation Point in a complex that includes the federal immigration headquarters and U. S. Coast Guard base, the 26-year-old penal institution is known simply as "T. I."

T. I. is one of more than 30 prisons in the federal system and was built in 1937 at a cost of about $1 million.

It is officially a correctional institution, a title, which in prisoner lingo means it is midway between a maximum security prison, called a "hard can" and a highly permissive honor farm type institution, known as a "soft can."

THE CHIEF PURPOSE of Terminal Island, according to the penal experts, is rehabilitation and not incarceration and punishment.

T. I.'s main object in life is to put a prisoner back in society as a reformed citizen.

For that reason none of the institution's 730 male and 197 female prisoners can be classified as hardened criminals, or incorrigibles.

Many of the inmates are first-time offenders and the average sentence being served there is five years.

The leading reasons for arrest and incarceration at Terminal Island are narcotics, auto theft, forgery and postal thefts.

Terminal Island has had a checkered career. It was built as a federal correctional institution and once housed the notorious Chicago crime czar, Al Capone, before becoming a state of California Medical Facility and a Navy disciplinary barracks during World War II.

It was returned to the jurisdiction of the Federal Bureau of Prisons in 1955 and has been a federal lockup ever since.

BUILDER OF T. I. was Robert E. McKee, probably the nation's most famous military contractor. McKee built military facilities and docks for most of Pearl Harbor and the Panama Canal. His other projects include such famed locations as Hickam Field and Scofield Barracks in the Hawaiian Islands.

While Terminal Island is austere and Spartan in appearance, it has none of the cold and gloom of maximum security prisons such as Leavenworth and the infamous rock, Alcatraz, which was closed last year.

The facilities, although often overcrowded, are modern, clean and marked by an openness not generally associated with prisons. Terminal Island deliberately seeks this effect to maintain a semblance of contact with the outside world. The prison works at readying inmates for a return to society and has pioneered a number of successful rehabilitation programs. It conducts classes in trades training, self-improvement meetings and provides prisoners with a routine of counseling, and community service calculated to make them law-abiding, self-sufficient citizens.

SOME OF THE trade training programs have developed into full-scale industries. The prison has a $500,000 metal equipment factory which produces such items as shelving, waste baskets and lockers, and a glove factory, employing 40 women. Other inside-the-wall industries include a garment factory and a furniture repair service which grosses about $1 million a year.

The prisoner-employes work a 7¼-hour day and the average worker earns in the neighborhood of $30 per month. The routine is similar to what might be found in plants on the outside except there are no coffee breaks at Terminal Island.

The "learn a trade" and keep busy policy of the prison has been extended to the white collar worker, too. At T. I. 10 prisoners hold jobs as clerical workers, doing the prison's paper and book work. This situation has the dual advantage of training prisoners for outside employment and of cutting down prison operating costs.

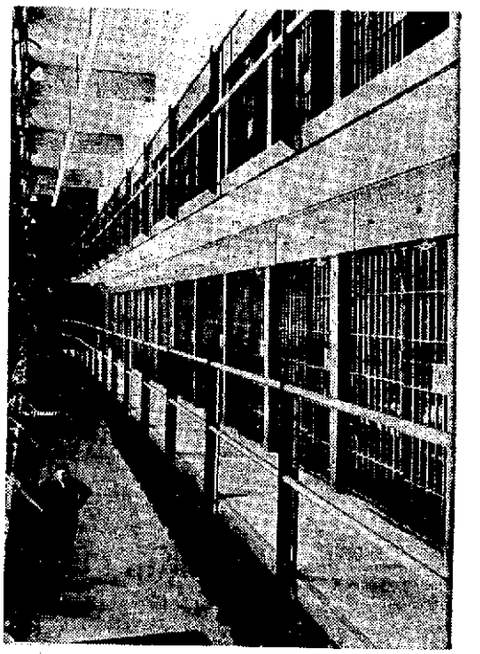

PRISON OFFICIALS have also encouraged prisoners to participate in constructive social programs. The desire to help the needy and ill "is a real thing with the prisoners," says a long-time prison official.

In the past, prisoners have contributed blood in wholesale lots to ill persons and last Christmas turned out more than 1,000 toys for needy families.

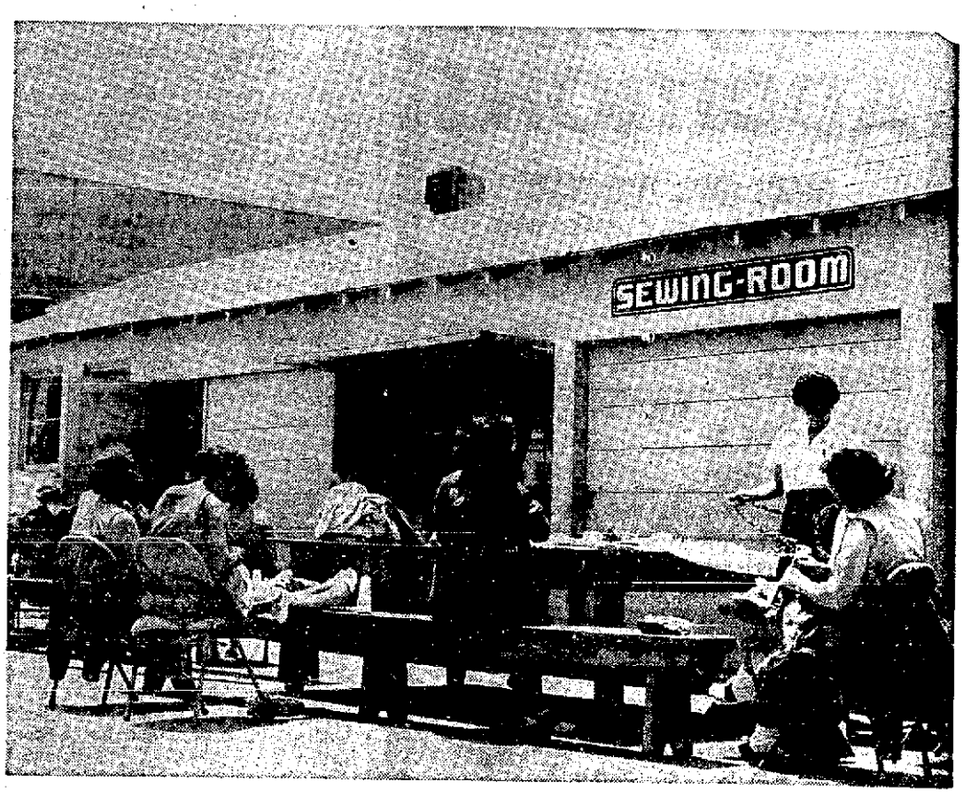

And in a poignant gesture recently the prisoners "adopted" a Korean waif by undertaking the child's expenses.

The letter to the child, 9-year-old Yook Sung Ae, tells about as much as words can:

"We are located on an island," wrote the prisoners, "right on the ocean by Los Angeles, Calif. We call it T. I. There are 600 men and 150 women. We are all your foster parents. All of us love you. Be good girl."

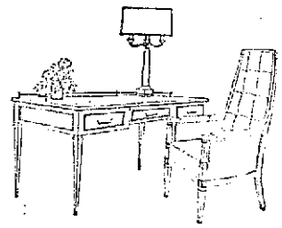

Prison officials look over two-tiered cell block in Terminal Island prison.

Women prisoners find occupation in sewing and garment making, working out of doors when weather permits. Institution aims at rehabilitating inmates and readying them for a return to a useful life after their release.

What Causes Family Troubles?

Director of Family Counseling Service in Long Beach, Arthur H. Heath discusses a problem in interview in his office. Immaturity, he says, is a basic cause of trouble.

By Vera Williams

WHAT'S at the bottom of family difficulties?

Money? Sex? In-laws?

Arthur H. Heath, the man who knows, shakes his head.

"Immaturity," he says. "People carry the emotional problems of childhood into their adult lives, and take out childhood conflicts on marriage partners and/or children."

Monday through Friday, plus Tuesday evenings, Long Beach couples and families with difficulties pour their woes into the ears of Heath, executive director of the Family Counseling Service, 1047 Pine Ave., Long Beach, and his staff.

"We get every problem you ever heard of," says Heath, an easy-going six-footer. "But no matter what the problem is, it boils down to emotional immaturity.

"ALWAYS THERE is an unawareness or an inability to give concern and consideration to the partner's feelings."

Most calls for help initially come from women, Heath finds.

"Things are pretty bad by the time we get them. And here's an interesting fact: Most women come to us because they are considering divorce and they want help in making up their minds whether or not to get a divorce. Men come to us because they DON'T want a divorce, they want help in holding the marriage together."

Family counselors prefer to interview battling husband and wife together; then separately. Usually they prefer to interview a parent or parents and teen-ager separately; then together. Almost always they interview parents and children below teen-age together. The exceptions are when parent or parents or child have psychotic tendencies.

"OUR FIRST task is to help a person involved in husband-wife or family difficulties to understand himself or herself," explains Heath. "If he understands himself, knows why he thinks and reacts the way he does, he can better understand the other person.

"Then we have him look squarely at the problem, and define it. What, exactly, IS the problem? What does the person want to do about it? (You'd be surprised how many don't know.) Then we help work out a solution, if we can."

How about money? Sex? Liquor? Dope? In-laws?

"It isn't a matter of how much money a family has, or, to a degree, how little it has. It matters a great deal how it is spent, and whether there is agreement on how it is spent. Some people shouldn't have charge accounts. Some people shouldn't have anything BUT charge accounts—at least, with accounts they get something tangible for their money, they don't fritter it away.

"When families get a lot of overtime pay, they are likely to splurge in buying a home, a new car, new appliances. Then when overtime is reduced or eliminated, they can't make the payments. Overtime should be considered velvet, a bonanza—it never should be considered an established part of income."

Sex?

"Sex — too much or too little—is the problem that's always with us. Sex, like money, is used symbolically. Women may use it as a weapon to give or withhold if there is dissatisfaction in some other area of the marriage.

"A woman may complain that she is 'too tired.' Or she may fear pregnancy, and suggest that her husband be sterilized.

"One-third of the men who come to us have been sterilized."

LIQUOR? DRUGS?

"They are especially dangerous if teen-agers are involved. Usually if there is serious trouble with teen-agers, there is trouble between the parents. And that trouble between the parents is the cause, not the result. They have used the youngster as a battling ground.

"Too often drinking is glamorized. Teen-agers take up liquor and drugs—glue-sniffing, for instance — solely as experimentation. When their curiosity is satisfied, they usually stop. Otherwise, they are hooked, and the remedy calls for strong measures."

IN-LAW PROBLEMS develop, the counselor says, "when the emotional umbilical cord has not been severed." Young folks seek independence, but they carry over dependence from childhood. "In times of emergency, parents or in-laws will pro-

Suddenly, Home Was Too Large!

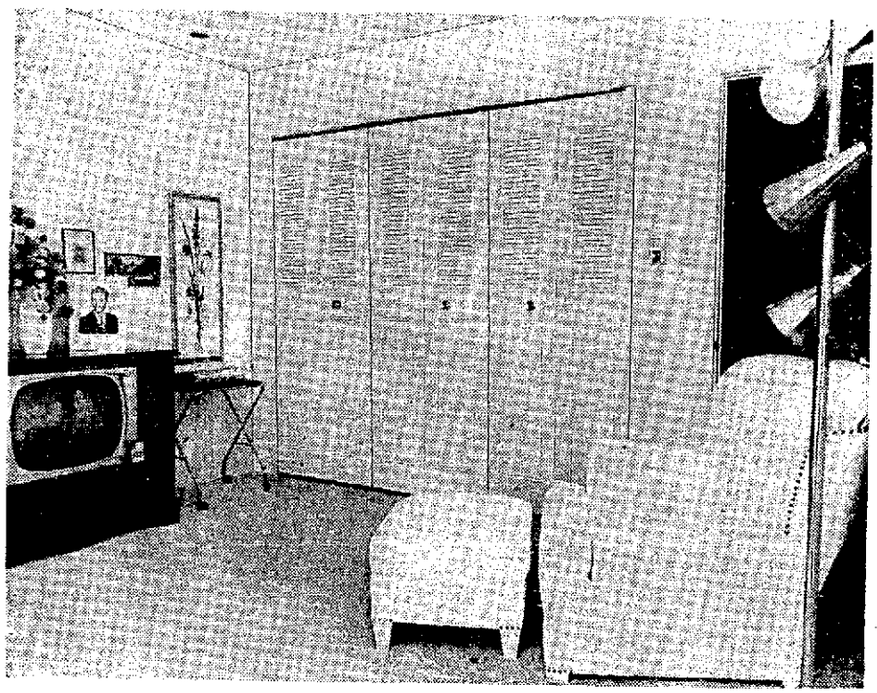

Maximum seating in minimum space is provided in this furniture grouping in the living room of the apartment that is now home for Mr. and Mrs. Edward Saslow who turned to apartment living when home seemed too large.

Photos by Joe Risinger

WITH THEIR children grown and on their own, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Saslow suddenly discovered that their former home seemed much too large for every-day comfort for two; therefore, they turned to apartment living with all the luxuries of a home. Located at 3655 Ocean Blvd., the apartment has many excellent features, not the least of which is a fine view.

Mrs. Saslow engaged the services of interior designer Aurora Fournier to assist in planning of the decor, a blend of French and Italian. A spacious entrance hall leads to the living room, the size of which is enhanced with a wall of glass that opens to a private patio.

A silk brocade sofa faces a round coffee table made of gold leaf under glass. Surrounding the table are three low, baby blue chairs. The latter are extremely comfortable yet surprisingly light weight and easy to move to other locations in the room if desired.

Furnishings from the Saslows' former home have been used in the den, providing warm contrast to the more formal atmosphere of other rooms. Area doubles as a guest room.

HINTS ON "MISSING TUFTS"

Single tufts are sometimes loosened by a cat, dog, or even children. A stray tuft such as this may be clipped off, never pulled out, with no harm to the rest of the carpet. Surrounding yarns automatically close in the space.

If the damage is more extensive, replacing lost tufts is a simple job for your professional rug and upholstery repair service. Contact him as soon as possible so as to prevent any further damage.

Simple items of top quality were chosen in furnishing the apartment. Artistic placement also lends elegance.

EACH PIECE of furniture and each accessory were chosen with care. In an apartment, especially, it is important to maintain a spacious, homey feeling in the decorating theme, particularly when the owners have been used to a large and very livable home. This idea was kept in mind in decorating the Saslow apartment.

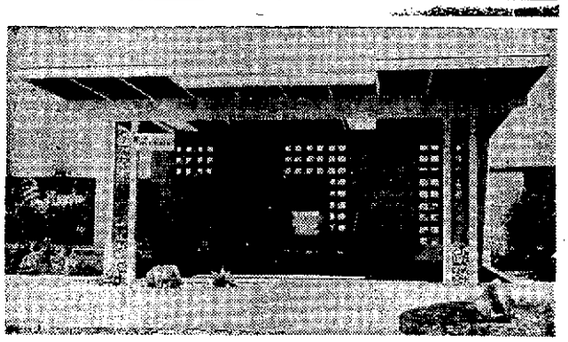

There are no cluttering knickknacks. Adjacent to the sofa is a low, antique white chest upon which rests a tall gold lamp. The painting above the sofa is well chosen and adds a three dimensional feeling to the wall space.

A corner across the room has a French desk, ornate hanging lamp, and occasional chair. Nearby, sliding doors lead to a cozy den, furnished with pieces from the Saslow's former home, and contrasts with the more formal elegance of the other rooms. With a private bath adjacent, it can double as a guest bedroom when needed.

THE STREAMLINED kitchen boasts plenty of cupboard and storage space and a dining area with a view at the far end.

The decor of the master bedroom blends with the living area. Some of the most important accessories in the room include treasured pictures of children and grandchildren.

A favorite with owners and guests is the patio that runs the width of the living room and den. Here, the Saslows may recline on chaise lounges and view the passing parade in the busy city below, serene in their peaceful surroundings.

Everyday's a Holiday . . .
Under a Patio by Sunset!

Why not take time this long weekend to take a good long look at our huge outdoor living display. There's a lot of hot weather ahead, so why not plan that new patio you've been wanting NOW. If you prefer call GA 4-0771 and one of our patio consultants will call at your home. As little as $10 per month puts a new patio in your back yard.

A Vitally Young, Sportive Look...

Fall hair style— a 'Dandy'

Design by Official Hair Fashion Committee of National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Assn.

Especially designed for a young lady's first formal party, this coiffure, called "Fine 'n' Dandy," has all of the fashion knowhow of coming season. Featured are an elegant small-head look, close-fitted nape area so important in fall and winter hair styles. Soft bangs of brushed waves add an extra note of interest to eyes.

Your hair style will be a "Dandy" this fall and winter, according to the Official Hair Fashion Committee of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association, the hair fashion authority of the beauty profession.

Yes, the word is "Dandy," a direct reference to the incredibly elegant dandies of the last century. But, now the term inspires a delightfully free elegance and feminine wile in women's hair fashions.

The "Dandy" features a vitally young and sportive look in a casual "down" line for day, converting dramatically into a frankly feminine "up" line of classic beauty and romantic charm for evening.

The two basic lines of the "Dandy" are designed to grace all of the silhouettes and their wandering waistlines in couture collections for the season. But they must be individualized for each woman. The personal touch is vital.

Key features of both "Dandy" lines are a small and dainty head poised on an elegantly shaped nape of head-hugging waves that lend important back interest. But, here the similarity ends, and the two lines of the "Dandy" are as dramatically different in form and temperament as are clothing silhouettes for day and night.

In the day line of the "Dandy," the mood implies all of the casual elegance of the great Garbo effect with hair brushed down softly from a smooth crown. For evening, the "Dandy" converts into a gloriously feminine and regal coiffure of waves and curls rising at the crown. Important note for both is the new "Dandy" haircut, which gives fuller, richer texture to the hair ends, and professional permanent waving needed to give the hair substance and ease of care.

Hair coloring for fall and winter calls for a plural use of shades of give a shimmering and iridescent glow to natural colors. Key word again is individuality and the personal touch, so that the color is becoming to skin tones, eye color and make-up of the individual. Therefore, no specific shades will dominate fashions, but personal and individually becoming shades will make fashion, and will require professional guidance. Among popular colors will be subdued reds, natural brown tones and softly iridescent blonde shades, all having the shiny, shimmering glow of healthy hair. With colors used in fall clothing, this effect will give a perfect head-to-toe look of good grooming for the coming season.

Individuality is also the keynote in make-up. For daytime, make-up must give a healthy, look-alive glow, like that of the crisp outdoors. Eye and lip colors must be radiant, but natural; rouge subdued, but excitingly fresh. It must be a complement to the complexion, as well as to the colors of the costume.

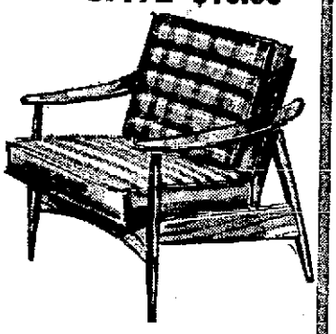

Make-up for evening calls for a subdued, gentle and feminine look for skin, lips and eyes. Eye shadow will complement the natural color of the eye, with the use of a second or third color to pick up complementary colors worn in dress. Lips require an illuminated look achieved with a darker tone topped with lighter color to give a glowing and natural effect. In general, the look should be pretty and feminine, never bizarre.

This forecast of the beauty picture for the coming season comes from the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association, the national association of the beauty profession of the United States. Its 70,000 members direct professional beauty care in salons in every state of the nation, and represent this nation's profession abroad as members of the Confederation Internationale de la Coiffure.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Colds and Climate Unrelated

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical-Science Writer

IF YOU'RE frequently afflicted with colds or other respiratory infections, is it worth while to move to another climate?

Apparently not, according to two consultants to the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Dr. Harold L. Israel, Philadelphia, says all regions of the United States have essentially the same frequency of these ailments.

Dr. Alvan L. Barach, New York City, agrees.

"Exposure to crowds, which does enhance the chances of bacterial and virus infection, may occur in the South as well as the North," he says.

NO EFFECTIVE shark repellent has yet been developed, says Dr. Perry W. Gilbert, Cornell zoologist. Chemicals, mesh fencing, bubble curtains of compressed air under water—all have been found vulnerable.

MORE THAN half of all cases of the "restless leg" syndrome can be helped by the nightly administration of the drug Benadryl, reports a Los Angeles doctor.

"Restless legs" is a condition marked by a variety of sensations in the legs: coldness, crawling, numbness, weakness, pain, pins and needles, creeping, pulling and stretching. It occurs at night, to interfere with sleep, and can be quite painful.

Dr. Roy J. Popkin, reporting in the Journal of the American Geriatrics Society, says a sedative drug sometimes is helpful when given along with the Benadryl. Also recommended: use of elastic stockings, elevation of the foot of the bed, exercises to move the foot and ankle, and walking.

YOGURT, a form of curdled milk, has been used for years as a remedy against infantile diarrhea in many countries along the Mediterranean Sea and the Balkans. But how effective is it, really?

Doctors haven't been sure, says a report in Clinical Pediatrics. Documentation in medical literature has been poor, three New York researchers point out.

The researchers—doctors at Jewish Memorial Hospital—decided to check out its efficacy systematically in a study of 45 hospitalized children, most of them under 1 year old.

Some of the youngsters were given yogurt. Others were given a medication consisting of neomycin, kaolin, pectin and methylcellulose—an old standby in the treatment of diarrhea.

Result: Those given yogurt recovered at a significantly faster rate.

SOME ANIMALS are much more likely to give rabies to man than are others.

Those most likely to convey rabies: dog, bat, fox, cat, skunk, and easily-bitten farm animals such as the cow, horse and hog.

On the other hand, very little risk of rabies infection is associated with the bites of chipmunk, gopher, hamster, rabbit, squirrel, mole and other rodents. So says Dr. D. S. Fleming of Minnesota Department of Health in a report in Minnesota Medicine.

Desk that's designed for budget control and that is easy on the budget when homemade from a pattern fits well into the scheme of modern family housekeeping.

By Bill Meyerriecks

DO YOU maintain careful, continuing records of income and expenses? Are these records easily available and organized? Do you keep orderly files of paid and unpaid bills and receipts for income tax purposes? If you cannot answer affirmatively to these questions, then Sketchbook's design idea this week is of particular interest to you. Even if you are organized about your family budget affairs, S-123, the Budget Control Desk, is a practical aid as well as a fine piece of furniture.

The Budget Control Desk bears out its name. It is designed in modern style (as shown in photo), as well as in traditional and an alternate lowboy type—all detailed in the Sketchbook building plan. The highlight of the desk is its incorporation of a standard accordion manila folder that keeps your bills and records at finger length. The snap drawer pops open at your touch and discloses individual pockets for such items as bank records, correspondence, income tax, insurance, medical and dental records, receipts, unpaid bills, utilities and others.

BESIDES THIS unique file within the desk top, there are two other drawers, three or more pigeonholes in line with the file and also three drawers under the desk top.

The desk can be built with standard size lumber. All pieces that make up the desk have straight saw cuts and offer no difficulty to any handy fellow who can read a ruler and use a saw. Should you build the traditional styled desk, full size patterns are in the plan for the addition of a decorative skirt and side boards.

THE DESK is 40½ inches wide, 67 inches high with moderate depth of approximately 25 inches. To order the Sketchbook plan, specify S-123 and send 50 cents with name and address to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif.

Counseling

vide money. They want the young people to be independent—but they will pay them to be dependent."

Heath, who has been with Family Counseling Service in Long Beach since 1952, has been executive director for six years. He was born in Skogmo, almost the geographic center of North Dakota, and was educated in North Dakota and Washington; served as a counselor for maladjusted children in Spokane, and as a school social worker in Yakima before coming to Long Beach.

FAMILY counselors should have Master's degrees in social work, says Heath. "Most layman advice is based on personal bias and prejudice . . . People with serious problems need objective, professional help. And family counselors must be sharp enough and trained enough to recognize narcotic and psychotic tendencies, and suicidal tendencies."

Family Counseling Service makes a nominal fee for interviews. But 50 per cent of its service is free. Often people with problems don't have anything BUT problems. Once in a while, a situation can be worked out in one interview. More likely, it will take three to five interviews.

In Long Beach, one family has been counselled at intervals for years.

"Well," Heath says philosophically, "the family is still together. Maybe it wouldn't have been, without us."

HOW YOUR CHILD LEARNS

Pin-Up Study List

By Howard E. Kent

QUESTION: "Could you write a list of do's and don'ts for a high school student starting the new school year—something I can cut out and pin on the wall in the bedroom above my son's desk?"

ANSWER: Let's put it in the form of a list of resolutions to be adopted by the student.

New School Year Resolutions

I hereby resolve that in the coming school term I will:

Get to school on time.

Get plenty of sleep so I'll be alert in class each day.

Take all the necessary books and supplies to class.

Respect the rights of others and refrain from creating a disturbance in the classroom.

Listen carefully to the teacher and take notes on the main things he says.

Ask questions about any point in book or lecture which is not clear to me.

Write down each assignment and the date due.

Draw up a schedule of homework, and assign a definite time for doing homework.

Do my homework in a quiet place.

Study the most difficult things first while I'm fresh.

Study longest the things I find most difficult.

Look up all words I do not understand.

Look up the correct answers to questions missed on tests.

Review as I go along instead of waiting until the night before exams.

Do work on term papers and other major projects as I go along instead of waiting until the day before they are due.

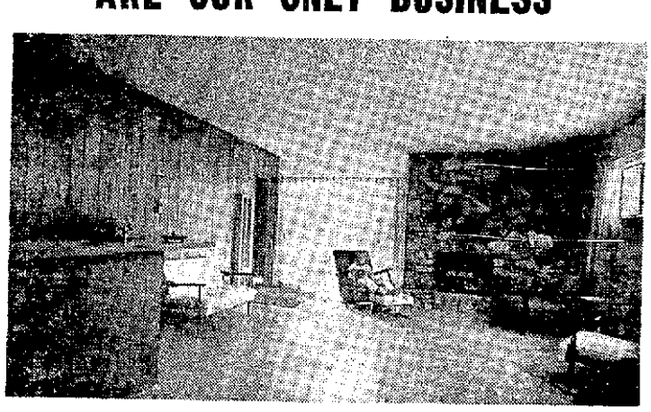

Complete each assignment on time.

Do my own work and refuse to allow others to copy it.

Keep trying even though I've made some low marks.

Do my best at all times and refuse to worry about the outcome.

A Word for Pierre

By Eleanor A. Price

ONCE the clowns of Parisian circuses, born actors adept at thinking up ways to win applause or get laughs, poodles have long been the stars of dog acts. And, while it's a serious event, Los Angeles Poodle Obedience Club's licensed trial next Saturday evening at Lemon Grove Playground, won't be without its poodle capers. The site is on Hobart Boulevard just north of Melrose Avenue, Los Angeles.

Of course, poodles like praise, too, so they are one of the easiest breeds of dogs to train if their trainers are not stingy with praise. Since 25 per cent of all dogs registered in the nation are poodles, a good segment of local readers have poodles, and if you are one, you may have thought of training your dog for obedience trials only you felt your lovable rascal was too scatterbrained. Chances are the real problem may lie in you, not the dog. You may not give enough praise.

Also, you may not know how to keep the attention of your poodle. There are ways to accomplish this. Put him on a 15-foot line and go to a large open area. Now start walking in the direction you choose with the dog privileged to go where he can on the 15 feet. He may elect to go in the opposite direction, but when he comes to the end of his line, he has to go with you if only to follow his nose. In other words, you be the boss. Eventually he will keep half an eye on you most of the time.

IF HE IS walking with you on a short lead and insists on sniffing along the ground, tug on the lead. If he gazes off in a dream world of his own, nudge him with your ankle or knee. Become omnipresent to the dog.

Does your dog seem to associate something unpleasant with a command? You may be giving a command at the exact second you yank him into position. This is not good. Call him by name, give the command, then use the lead to enforce it. Or give your command in a happy voice the first time, and if the dog ignores you, change your voice to a threatening one, then follow it immediately with praise. The sudden change of voice makes the dog attentive to you, the praise will make him eager to obey, or at least eager to please even if you must start over.

There is little that is more ridiculous at a trial than loud high-pitched screams, and too many handlers, women in particular, are guilty of this. Sternness in moderation is permissable, but no screams, please! And punishment in the ring is completely out of place.

OBEDIENCE is for dogs temperamentally suited. A shy dog needs some training but should never be expected to compete. He will present a sorry sight if you force him into a trial.

And do groom your dog even for a trial. A neglected appearance is degrading to the whole breed, and especially to a poodle.

Of note are the meetings of Hub Poodle Club of Compton on the fourth Thursday evening of each month. Anyone interested may obtain further information by telephoning HA 9-4615, KE 3-1232 or DA 6-5649.

Beverly Riviera Kennel Club show and trial entries close Monday. Event is Sept. 14 and 15 at Santa Monica Civic Auditorium. For data on entries in California Specialties Show—including poodles, pugs, chows, chihuahuas and dachshunds—Sept. 21 at Hollywood Turf Club grounds, telephone HO 3-6154.

Aphelandra is a newcomer in indoor plant ranks.

Exclamation Plant!

AS A TABLE decoration, Aphelandra always evokes exclamations of surprise and delight.

One of the newest indoor plants, it bursts into bloom with a spike of yellow flowers that can easily last throughout the fall months, according to the Living Plant Growers Association.

A member of the Acanthus family, Aphelandra is one of the most distinguished indoor plants. Its shiny, emerald green foliage is marked by prominent white veins that give it a distinctive appearance all the year. In pleasant surroundings it blooms in fall and spring.

Aphelandra is a native of Brazil and likes a higher humidity than that usually attained indoors and should be kept where the air is not too dry. The plant reacts to dry air by dropping its leaves.

A planter mix of blended organic composition should be kept moist at all times for best results. The plant tolerates the reduced light of the modern living room but grows best out of direct sunlight.

Aphelandras are easily rooted from cuttings taken from a tip or a section of the stem. Place cuttings deep in planter mix and keep warm, moist.

You Ask, We Answer

By Haskin

Q. Does any part of the Mississippi River run uphill? W. P.

A. The answer to this trick question depends on the definition of "uphill." Because of the earth's bulging shape, the equator is farther from the center of the earth than are the regions north and south of it. The Mississippi's mouth is nearer the equator than is its source, hence farther from the center of the earth. It has been calculated that its headwaters are about 3,956 miles and the mouth about 3,960 miles from the earth's center. Actually, geographic elevation is measured from sea level at the same latitude, and in this sense the river drops (flows downhill) almost 1,500 feet in its journey from its source in Minnesota to its mouth at sea level.

Q. Why do the young of goldfish often stay dark, instead of turning gold? P. H.

A. Goldfish frequently revert to earlier types and change color; changes of this type are biological and part of the inherited tendencies of the fish. Young goldfish are naturally dark in color at first, and do not turn gold until they are from three weeks to two or three months old. Very high bred stock may turn gold in two or three weeks, but the average goldfish takes longer, and some never turn gold.

Q. Was the strawberry ever called the stray-berry? M. L.

A. The "straw" may originally have been "stray," because of the way suckers stray from the parent plant and lie as if strewn on the ground. However, the origin of the berry's name is uncertain. It may refer to the long straw-like suckers of the plant, or to the straw laid between rows to keep the berries clean, or to an old custom of stringing these berries on a straw.

Cool Pleasure for Summer Meals

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

IN HOT WEATHER soups turn cold. They're still richly nourishing which is as it should be. Actually, however, most chilled soups are eaten because they are cool, taste good and look tempting. That's definitely so with the three suggested here.

After a short stay in the refrigerator for chilling, these three soups provide appetizing warm-day meals.

Chilled Cream of Pea

1 can pea soup (11¼ oz.)
1½ cups apple juice
1 cup canned apple sauce
½ cup light cream
2 tblsps. dry vermouth
Lemon slices and curry powder for garnish

Blend soup with apple juice, apple sauce, light cream and dry vermouth; chill. If desired, top with lemon slices sprinkled with curry powder. Makes (about 1 quart) 6-8 servings.

Chilled Curried Cream of Chicken

1½ cups apple juice
1 tsp. curry powder
1 can condensed cream of chicken soup (10½ ozs.)
1 cup canned apple sauce
1 tsp. instant minced onion
½ cup light cream
Sliced stuffed olives and parsley, for garnish

Stir a little of the apple juice into curry powder; mix until smooth. Combine with remaining apple juice, chiken soup, apple sauce, minced onion and cream; chill. Serve in chilled mugs. If desired, top with sliced stuffed olives and parsley. Makes (about 1 quart) 6-8 servings.

Chilled Sherried Pea Soup

Apple juice
1 can condensed pea soup
Sherry
⅓ cup heavy cream, whipped
Chopped chives

Combine an equal amount of apple juice with pea soup. Add sherry to taste; chill. Top each serving of soup with a spoonful of whipped cream and chives. Makes 4-6 servings.

Army Language School: 28 Tongues Spoken

are used. The capture of a key prisoner might be the turning point of a battle and ALS students receive realistic training in the military terminology they would use in questioning so valuable a source of information.

Many students participate in out-of-class activities with a direct bearing on the tongue they are studying. Among the most popular are the Russian Choir, the Presidio Players, the Chinese Choir and the Polish Christmas Pageant. It is amazing to hear students singing flawlessly in a language they never knew a word of just a few months previously.

Acquiring a staff is one of ALS's biggest headaches. But ALS has been so successful that the teachers have aptly been termed "the most distinguished international faculty in the world." All instructors must be native-born to the language they teach. More than 40 nationalities are presently represented on the faculty.

To date the Army Language School has granted more than 25,000 diplomas. The graduates, in a small way at least, are helping the United States to get "on speaking terms" with the rest of the world.

Classes Set

Two adult horticultural classes co-sponsored by UCLA and Los Angeles State and County Arboretum, 301 N. Baldwin Ave., Arcadia, at the Arboretum are "Plant Combination Theory in Landscaping," taught by Philip Chandler, 12 sessions from 7 to 9:30 p.m., starting Monday, Sept. 16, and "Park and Golf Turf Management," taught by Stan Spaulding, starting Tuesday, Sept. 17, 7:30 to 7 to 9:30 p.m.

Registration and $30 fee cards may be obtained at the first meetings of the classes. For further information address the Adult Education Section of the Arboretum, Box 688, Arcadia, or telephone HIllcrest 7-4851.

Camera Guild

Two contests, one in 35mm color and the other in stereo, are scheduled for a meeting of Long Beach Camera Guild at 7:45 p.m. Wednesday in Los Alamitos Library.

Much to Offer

Lantanas are happy-go-lucky shrubs for California. They are especially happy in Southern California where they show color nearly 12 months of the year. The gardener who wants bloom for his garden right now should check with his local nursery and see what the lantanas have to offer.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH DELAPLANE

DORADO BEACH, PUERTO RICO

"My girl friend and I, ages 17 and 18, plan to travel across the country, transportation by VW sedan. Do you consider camping a safe proposition? We have about $800 to cover all expenses."

I THINK you'd be out of your minds to camp. The American highway is one of the dangerous places. Ask any newspaper to get out their files on highway-type murders.

Eight hundred more than covers you—you drive it in eighth days, coast to coast. Take about 15 and you can see it much better. I'd plot a course off the big highways like U.S. 30 and 40. Stay in good motels—Master Hosts, Fort Worth, Tex., will send you a list of cross-country motels with swimming pools. A little more expensive. But did you see that motel in the movie "Psycho"?

"I read a question to you about students camping in Europe. It IS much cheaper. I traveled and camped for as little as $15 for two weeks. Rates are by the tent and I never paid more than 25 cents per night.

"Near all worthwhile cities and resort towns you'll find road signs shaped like a tent showing camping sites."

I'M FOR KIDS camping in Europe. It seems perfectly safe.

"Where do we get information on vacationing in Puerto Rico you've written about?"

WRITE TO ME. There's a lot of information on this treasure island I can send to you.

This is one of the islands in the sun. Long white sand beaches. Blue water full of instant diamonds. Trade winds, coco palms, Spanish towns with fortresses that fired on Drake—and you can drink the water.

"I have an unattached daughter who has secretarial training. She would like some kind of work on a large ship. Do you have any ideas?"

IT'S NOT EASY but—. Have her apply to the personnel offices of the steamship companies at their home offices. (Look at the yellow section of the New York and San Francisco phone books.) Ships do sometimes use a typist. No doubt she'll have to go through some union eventually. But that's a start.

"You say people can live in Spain very well on $300 a month. But where do you find housing? Is there any specific list?"

THE TOURIST PEOPLE in Madrid answered me on this: "We answer EVERY letter." They didn't have a list but indicated they would give advice. I don't have much luck with most tourist bureaus—they seem to be hiring somebody's cousins. And not the bright ones, either. But you could try: Dirrecion General del Turismo, Avenida del Generalisimo, 39, Madrid, Spain.

GOING PLACES —

—with the Sloanes

SO HERE IT IS Labor Day weekend and you haven't had your vacation yet. Well, congratulate yourself. You're one of the lucky ones.

The idea that summer is the only time to travel may have had some validity once, before the days of air conditioning when it was too hot to work, and the only way to get away from the heat was to flee to the seashore or mountains — where it was usually as hot as anywhere else.

But the world goes on regardless of season, and in many ways a lot more interestingly. During the summer, it's more expensive to travel, to eat, and to sleep—wherever you go. It's also more crowded. And as a crowning injustice, many of the people you'd hope to meet are away themselves, and many of the things you'd want to see (plays, museums) may be shut down for the summer.

Most important, much of what the world has to offer is at its best at other times. Some places don't really have seasons, or the so-called high season isn't nearly as reliable, climatically, as the off season.

AS A MATTER of fact, it's a lot easier to find warm places in winter than cool places in summer. Among them are the American Southeast and Southwest, the West Indies, and the entire continents of South America and Australia—where the seasons are the opposite of ours.

So much for climate. What other reasons for off-season travel?

Japan's famed cherry blossoms burst forth, like other blossoms, only in Spring. So do Washington's. So do Holland's tulips.

Those who glory in autumn foliage will find it, naturally, only in autumn, at its best in Colorado, New England, and New York State.

Festivals? There are round-ups and rodeos in the West from now on, also state and county fairs. Munich has its Oktoberfest, the world's largest beer-blast. The Scandinavian countries have a coordinated art and music festival in the late spring. And carnivals in Rio, Port-of-Spain, New Orleans, and many other cities throughout the world can come only at Lent.

Other practical reasons for non-summer travel:

IT'S MORE comfortable. Air travel is smoother, auto travel cooler, and the unavailability of an air-conditioned hotel room is no longer a calamity.

It's cheaper. Special off-season rates go into effect in nearly all forms of public transportation, as well as hotels and resorts.

The food's better. There aren't so many tourists to feed in the restaurants. And the service is better.

Space is available on carriers and in hotels.

September: Mexico's Fun Month

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

FIESTAS, parades, native fairs, all-night dancing, serenades and tremendous displays of fireworks—all these and more will greet the gringo in Mexico this month.

The reason, naturally, is that September is Mexico's month of independence and nowhere is freedom celebrated with so much revelry and rejoicing.

On Sept. 15, eve of National Independence Day, the president shouts the "Grito de Delores" from the balcony of the National Palace to a quarter of a million happy people in Mexico City's famed "Zocalo" below.

THE "GRITO" commemorates Father Hidalgo's plea for freedom from Spain, made on the steps of the church in his home town of Dolores Hidalgo on Sept. 16, 1810 — the start of Mexico's long fight for independence, and governors and municipal officials officiate at ceremonies similar to that of the president all over the land.

Fireworks light up Mexican skies after these speeches, and the shouts of freedom taken up by the crowds echo and reecho over the land. Then, on Sept. 16, the people continue their celebrations with parades and fiestas.

Of course, September — a nice time of go to Mananaland — offers a variety of other events for the visitor.

FOR INSTANCE, in Putla, in the intriguing State of Oaxaca, there will be celebrations for the Virgin of the Nativity Sept. 6-8, including a parade of allegorical floats—each occupied by children and a godmother who is responsible for the flamboyant decoration.

Fresh from a swim in one of many pools in the all-year resort of Phoenix, Judy Long dries off in preparation for working up a sun tan. Phoenix boasts sunshine, many pools.

This Is Living!

For the first time in more than two decades the widely-known 130-room St. Catherine Hotel on Catalina Island will remain open through September.

"Our magic island weather is at its best all through September, so we have decided to offer late vacationers a special weekday inducement rate for accommodations and meals," said manager Edward Maher.

For $24.75, a person may enjoy three days and two nights, 2 breakfasts and 2 gourmet dinners at the hotel, Sunday through Thursday, during September, according to Maher. Extra beds in a room are rated at $2 for children; $4 for adults. Reservations may be arranged by any travel agency.

Indian dancers reenact the historic battle between King Tepoztecatl and his subject princes at a native fair Sept. 8 in Tepoztlan, in the State of Morelos.

At Campeche, picturesque coastal city on the Yucatan Peninsula, a festival will be held Sept. 14-30 dedicated to Cristo de San Roman, and there will be open air vaudeville, fireworks and serenades.

On Sept. 14 at Queretaro—the favorite Mexican city of many Americans — a fiesta will center around the Convent of the Cross. The church is elaborately decorated with garlands of flowers and ears of corn. Chinchines dancers, wearing plumes and gaudy costumes, perform tirelessly from dawn to dusk.

SAN MIGUEL de Allende, one of the most charming cities in all Mexico, will be the site of a huge gathering of "conchero" dancers Sept. 29, the Day of St. Michael the Archangel.

And so it goes, with Morelia and Cuatla celebrating the birthday of independence hero Jose Maria Morelos on Sept. 30. This "windup" event is a big one, with bullfights, rodeos and concerts plus a military parade and grand ball in Cuautla.

Mexicana Airlines (CMA) and Western Airlines jet you to the Mexican capital from Los Angeles International Airport in about three hours.

SCANDINAVIAN Airlines System will inaugurate new low-fare economy class nonstop propeller flights between New York and Copenhagen on Oct. 17 aboard 86-seat DC-7Cs. Basic round trip fare will be $432.20, a reduction of $147.30 from the normal economy class fares in jet aircraft. Application of promotional fares will bring the cost down to as little as $311.20 for a wife traveling with her husband on a family fare. The new fares will be limited to bona fide residents of the United States, Denmark, Norway and Sweden.

NATIONAL Association of Travel Organizations' top 20 travel events for September include three in the West. One of these is the Rough Water Swim and Festival, starring the one-mile ocean rough water course event, at La Jolla next Sunday.

Other western events listed are the Pendleton (Oregon) Round-Up Sept. 11-14, and Lumberjack Days at Orfino, Idaho, Sept. 13-15.

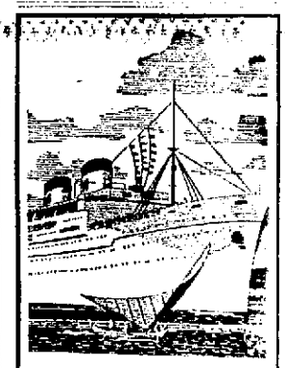

WEEKEND GADABOUTS:

Palm Springs Aerial Tramway opens Sept. 14. Two tramway cars, each carrying 80 passengers, travel 13,200 feet in making the vertical ascent of 5-873 feet to the top of Mt. San Jacinto.

Palm Wells, in Morongo Valley resort about 25 miles north of Palm Springs, holds its Cactus Days and Weed Show Sept. 14-15. Featured will be glass colored by the desert sun, and unique arrangements of weeds and flowers from the surrounding area.

Tahiti Bound?

Going to Tahiti? More and more Americans are now that T. A. I. (Transports Aeriens Intercontinentaux) flies DC-8 jets non-stop from Los Angeles to Tahiti in less than 8½ hours. Travel advisers at T. A. I. for whom Air France is general agent in North America, recommend that you don't limit yourself just to Tahiti. A round trip ticket from Los Angeles now permits you to visit other islands in French Polynesia — Bora Bora, Huahine and Taietea—at no extra cost.

DRAWING BY JAMES STEVENSON for the book "WEEKEND GUESTS" by William Zinsser (Harper, $3.95).

About People, Written for People

By Vera Williams
Independent, Press-Telegram Book Editor

PULITZER PRIZE winning historian Oscar Handlin brings a new treatment to the worn traditions of written history.

His new work, "THE AMERICANS" (Little, Brown & Co., $6.95) — is a history about people written for people.

Harvard man Handlin puts aside the dry and academic format that a history should be a chronological compliation of dates, battles, statistic and names.

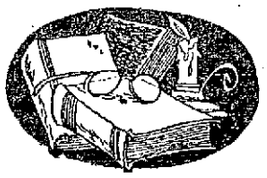

Surveying 350 years of American history he focuses on the broad themes — the evolution of free political, economic and social institutions, the changes in basic ideas and assumptions and the pressures that have squeezed and molded the American experience.

His sole objective is to describe to modern Americans how and why they became the people they are today.

What is the "American Dream"? What is the so-called American character and how was it formed? How did the U. S. become the No. 1 world power, the greatest organized altruistic society in human history? What gave rise to the peculiar philosophy of individualism? Where do Americans go from here?

These are some of the questions that Handlin formulates and endeavors to explain.

FOR THE FIRST TIME, an entire book is devoted to the Carson & Colorado-Southern Pacific narrow gauge railroad. It is "SLIM RAILS THROUGH THE SAND" by George Turner (Crest Publications-Trans Anglo Books, P. O. Box 1562, Long Beach, $6.95), certain to appeal to railroad buffs and those with a flair for history.

Turner, 2037 Crestwood, San Pedro, who admits a lifelong fondness for railroads, recounts the history of the Owens Valley area of eastern California as well as the famed narrow gauge which was a picturesque contemporary of the Virginia & Truckee Railroad.

The author did a lot of research not only in Owens Valley but at UC's Bancroft library. The book has 200 illustrations, some in color, and engineering drawings to aid those who like to make model railroads.

THE BEST of modern Japanese writers, and Junichiro Tanizaki is among them, are obsessed with the same human problems as are their Western colleagues in art; the word colleagues is used advisedly, because all artists in all fields in all countries today are linked by their concern with the human race.

Consider Tanizaki's "SEVEN JAPANESE TALES" (Knopf, $5). The strange relationship of a youth with his stepmother makes "The Bridge of Dreams" one of the finest, most incisive studies of pathological behavior in any language. A typically Tanizaki-esque cruel beauty, blind and a musician, exacts a cruel sacrifice from her disciple and lover in "Portrait of Shunkin." In "Aguri" a Westernized beauty makes an old-fashioned weakling her slave. A man tortured by fear of trains is probed, mind and soul, in "Terror."

Tanizaki, born in 1886, is nonetheless as modern as the newest and youngest of writers anywhere.

A YOUNG French adventurer, Michael Peissel, struggled and hacked his way alone through the nearly impenetrable jungles of Mexico's Yucatan peninsula in one of the greatest archaeological explorations in history.

In his trek he uncovered vast ruins of a great Mayan civilization which occupied this tropical land more than 500 years ago.

Peissel tells of this daring one-man expedition in "THE LOST WORLD OF QUINTANA ROO" (Dutton, $5.95). Plagued by hunger and thirst, pursued by wild and murderous bandits, Peissel found a fabulous ruined city, Chunyaxche, temples and jungle-covered ruins at dozen of other locations.

He also found the survivors of this fabled pre-white man civilization.

FOR 50 YEARS Sam Seabury, a New Yorker of New Yorkers, kept his teeth sunk in that monstrosity, political corruption, shook it like a bulldog, and when he finally let go, had freed New York from the clutches of Tammany Hall. It was virtually a single-handed battle all the way, as Herbert Mitgang makes clear in "THE MAN WHO RODE THE TIGER" (Lippincott, $6.95.)

Samuel Seabury emerges from Mitgang's book as undoubtedly the most-inspired and determined investigator of municipal skullduggery in this century. We see Seabury, first as a young lawyer and then as a judge, starting in the 1890s as a muck-raking disciple of Henry George. Bravely he defends social legislation and labor unions when it was decidedly not the popular thing for young lawyers to do. These were the clashes which sharpened Seabury for the battle with Tammany, culminating in the famous unmasking and unhorsing of Mayor Jimmy Walker.

The book is not a dry record of investigations and political exposes; on the way up Seabury came into contact with a great gallery of colorful figures, from William Jennings Bryan to Polly Adler; from Teddy Roosevelt to Al Smith; from Fiorello LaGuardia to FDR; from Tammany's tin box brigade to Woodrow Wilson.

The titanic battle of wills between Seabury and Walker is the high point of the book, as it was of Seabury's life.

Peruvian Daffodil Is 'Different'

By Joe Littlefield

MANY gardeners like to have something a little different in their floral arrays, and Peruvian daffodil, an evergreen, summer-blooming bulbous plant is one such. Not every nursery will have them in stock but most will order them through specialists.

These plants, known botanically as Pancratium maritimum, produce large white flowers with lily-like fragrance in daffodil form, blooming from July through August. Each stalk provides from 5 to 10 blossoms, not all blooming at one time. Foliage is gray-green and wavy edged. Groups of three planted in triangular spacing 10 inches apart may be left undisturbed for about four years.

SHOWY blooming bulbs that are readily available at your local nursery and which may be set out now are freesias, sparaxis, and grape hyacinths, among others.

Freesias and grape hyacinths are fragrant. All of these bulbs are somewhat low growing and should be planted in the front part of flower beds, whether as edging plants or in clusters.

Apartment house dwellers who miss gardening, can't say its not for them due to lack of soil space. They can grow a number of different kinds of plants in pots, bulb types among them.

Stocks and snapdragons will bloom earlier for you next year if you set some out as soon as plants are available at your nursery.

Iceland poppies and calendulas, too, flower sooner if planted early.

Fuchsia Talk

The public is invited. A plant table is planned.

By Dorothy Jonson

Curling of the leaves of tomato plants is nearly always caused by the tomato mite. In my personal opinion, this vicious pest is frequently responsible for the condition we call tomato blight or wilt because the disease is more apt to attack leaves that have been broken down in vitality by mites.

Unfortunately, the gay little petunia that we all love to see growing in our gardens is a host plant for this mite and since that is the case, I advise you not to plant tomatoes and petunias in close proximity.

Fortunately, however, products containing Kelthane are safe to use on vegetables, including tomatoes. So you can spray your tomato plants with a Kelthane product as soon as you begin to see the signs of this leaf curl, and you can repeat sprayings with it as necessary. Don't let this evil get ahead of you or you will not have the nice crop of tomatoes you anticipate.

Sow bugs are not really insects but belong to the Crustacean family. They are sometimes called "pill bugs" because when disturbed they roll up into a ball or "pill." At any rate they are a nuisance in the garden and when prevalent in large numbers, can do a great deal of damage.

There are several materials, dieldrin for one, that can be sprayed over the surface of the ground to kill these pests, but I prefer a bait which contains all the natural food of the sow bug, combined with a killing agent. This kind of bait, scattered about once a week in the area where sow bugs are numerous, will begin destroying them as soon as it is on the ground. As you water and irrigate, the bait becomes part of the soil and will continue to attract and destroy them for several weeks.

Tips on Gardening

Garden tips for the week:

Dahlias should be watered regularly and deeply. Be sure to stake tall plants to keep them from toppling under the weight of their blooms.

Well-fed fuchsias will continue blooming into fall. Use an acid-type food or fish fertilizer.

Many of your favorite perennials can be sown in flats this month. Check the seed rack at your nursery.

Feed roses for continued bloom into fall. Blooms in November depend on good care now.

Plant sweet peas before the end of the month if you want blooms by Christmas.

Container-grown plants like more frequent watering than those in the ground. Plants in small pots can probably use a daily drink.

Feed chrysanthemums again this month. They can be fed at 3-week intervals right up to the time their buds show some color. After this, feed them no more.

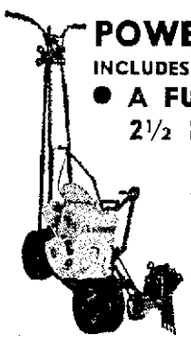

Use weed killer to remove lawn weeds easily and completely. Be sure to read the directions!

Spray tuberous begonias to prevent mildew. Feed them bi-weekly with fish fertilizer.

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have a brief genealogy on FRY and FRYE. — M.F., A.F., R.F., Long Beach; M.F., Norwalk.

FRY and FRYE are from the 13th century English word "frye" designating "free man." This term was used for one of the relatively few persons in the 1200s who was not under bondage to an overlord. The Frye lineage coat-of-arms from Devonshire, granted to them about 1470, has three running silver horses on a red shield. The same emblems appear on the Fry shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Can you explain CHIARO?—Mrs. F.C., Long Beach.

F.C.: CHIARO was first used by this family's progenitor from his baptismal name "Chiaro," meaning "clear-faced," that is, "honest." No coat-of-arms is recorded for Chiaro.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we learn about SAWYER?—E.S., Seal Beach.

E.S.: SAWYER is traced to 13th century Britain, where this word meant "sawer of wood." Progeny of the original woodsman became prominent among English nobility. The Sawyer coat-of-arms from Berkshire has three silver seapie birds (now known as oyster catchers) placed two above, and one below a horizontal stripe composed of checkered gold and black squares. These emblems are on a blue shield. The Sawyer motto "Cherches et tu trouveras" translates from archaic French as "Search and you will find." Somerset tax lists of 1272 recorded William Saweyer. Early American descendants include Jacob Sawyer who settled in Massachusetts in the 1620s, and George Sawyer who migrated to Maryland in 1650.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please analyze BRUMBELOW.—J.B., Long Beach.

J.B.: BRUMBELOW is a very unusual English name that originated as a property description. The source, "Brome - below," described "home among broom - bushes in a lower location than other land."

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the background of TERTELING. My 90 - year - old aunt would so appreciate knowing. —C.A., Long Beach.

C.A.: TERTELING is German, and is a coupling of the north German word "Tertel," meaning "graceful or thin one," with the suffix "-ing" meaning "descendant of." Tertel also had the connotation, "weaver of coarse cloth."

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you give data on ISHAM and ISOM.—D.G., M.I., E.T., Long Beach; E.I., Torrance.

ISHAM and ISOM are of English origin, first used by ancestors who lived at the Northamptonshire town of Isham. This character-descriptive place name was formed from "Isan - ham" and deciphered as "estate of the iron-willed one." The Isham and Isom shield from Kent in southern England has three silver wedges on a green background.

DEAR MISS RULE: Isn't WEBER from Switzerland the same as Weaver? — J.W., Compton.

J.W.: WEBER is German and German-Swiss, and translates in English as "Weaver." Weber was given to a weaver of woolen yardage on a medieval loom. The Weber shield from Prussia has two black bands crossing a silver background, with an iron cross on a silver stripe above the bands. The most famous member of this lineage was the musical composer Baron Karl Maria Von Weber.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please analyze FEILER.

—L. F., Lakewood.

L. F.: FEILER when traced to its German origin, is revealed as meaning "file-maker." No coat of arms seems to be recorded for Feiler.

Corridor With a Purpose

PERFECT planning. Those words are an apt description of the remarkably thoughtful way Welch's, Atlantic Avenue at San Antonio Drive, takes care of its hundreds of well-satisfied guests.

Owner Rex Welch, currently attending to his hotel and restaurant operation in Tahiti, is one of the most skilled restaurateurs in Southern California. Welch's reflects his skill in many ways, some of them so subtle the average guest is unaware of why everything is so pleasing.

For example, did you know that the elegant entrance corridor to Welch's lobby was deliberately made extra-long? This enables the guests to straighten hems and neckties and attend to other personal details as they enter the restaurant, thus allowing them to present an unruffled appearance as they stroll into the serene dining areas. Other Welch's touches which make dining there a supreme pleasure are electric carts which keep the food warm as it's rolled to the table, dining rooms which convert easily into private banquet rooms and attentive service by some of the best-trained waiters and waitresses in town.

During Rex Welch's absences, the restaurant's myriad activities are directed by his right hand man, manager Arnold Vann. A pleasant, cheerful fellow with a great knowledge of restaurant techniques, Vann is responsible for several outstanding new items which grace Welch's extensive menu. Delightfully appetizing, these include mahi-mahi (dolphin) Tahitian ($2.50); unusual baked whitefish au gratin ($1.75) and marvelous brochette of beef teriyaki ($3.50). Another favorite of the throngs is the deviled northern crab casserole ($1.75). All include soup du jour or tossed salad, light hot rolls, potato and beverage.

Q. Is it true that Alfred Hitchcock never goes to the movies?—Ted Dexter, Reno, Nev.
A. That's what he says.

Q. Will you please list Zsa Zsa Gabor's husbands.—Henry Ehrlich, Miami, Fla.
A. Burhan Belge, Turkish diplomat; Conrad Hilton, hotel owner; George Sanders, actor; and the incumbent Herbert Hutner, investor.

Q. In the newspaper reports about Sam Giancana, reputedly chief of the Chicago crime syndicate, mention is made of the fact that he is the frequent escort of one of the McGuire Sisters. Which one?—P. Y., Oak Park, Ill.
A. Phyllis.

Q. Who is Sir John Ellerman? — Frank Escobar, Los Angeles, Calif.
A. At 53, probably the richest man in Great Britain. In 1933 he inherited the estate of his shipping magnate father, then valued at $40,000,000 and since tripled in value.

Q. Can you tell the truth about Walter Wanger and Jill St. John? Despite their age difference, don't they have marriage in mind?—G. P. F., Hollywood, Calif.
A. Not to each other; besides, both are still married.

Q. I read recently that the Greek shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis bought a chess set for $30,000. Is this on the level or just publicity? — Louis Allen, Cleveland, Ohio.
A. Onassis recently purchased from N. Y. jeweler Arthur King a chess set made of gold, diamonds and emeralds for $59,000.

Q. Princess Anne of Great Britain is scheduled to attend the Benenden School for girls in Kent. This is supposed to be one of the best boarding schools in England. What is the tuition?—Peter Knight, Dallas, Tex.
A. $1,470 per year.

Q. I understand that Elizabeth Taylor, without any fanfare or publicity, is paying school tuition for the children of several friends. Is this true? — Leona Jenkins, Memphis, Tenn.
A. True.

Q. Did Gen. Eisenhower and Earl Warren enter into a written agreement in which Eisenhower agreed to appoint Warren Chief Justice of the Supreme Court in exchange for Warren agreeing to throw the support of the California delegation to Eisenhower in the Republican national convention?—Page Stelle, Point Pleasant, Calif.
A. No such written agreements are ever made between possible Presidential candidates. There are "understandings," however, and whether Gen. Eisenhower or his campaign chiefs made the commitment, the popular belief is that such an "understanding" was in the works.

Q. What is the status of the Gloria Vanderbilt-George Montgomery relationship? He is Dinah Shore's ex.—K. Y., Dayton, Ohio.
A. They are warm friends.

Q. These days how goes the Rosemary Clooney-Jose Ferrer marriage? — F. O. P., Princeton, N. J.
A. The reconciliation has taken.

Q. Who said, "The happiness of man consists in life, and life in labor"?—Aileen Korn, Mt. Vernon, N.Y.
A. Russian novelist Leo Tolstoy.

Q. When John Profumo was first accused of an affair with Christine Keeler, he sued several publications and was awarded damages. Has he ever paid this money back?—Therese Edwards, E. Orange, N.J.
A. Yes, to Tempo Illustrato, an Italian magazine, he repaid the 50 pounds originally awarded him. To Continental Magazines, a company he enjoined from distributing 42 periodicals concerning his affair, he paid 2,000 pounds in damages.

Mabaan country—a remote, steaming pocket tucked into the border of Sudan and Ethiopia

THE

Imagine that most Americans lived to be 90 years of age.

Imagine that at 90—or even older—they had all their faculties, could hear a stage whisper at 100 yards and cut such a youthful figure that from the back they were indistinguishable from a 20-year-old.

Imagine, in addition, that they were free of heart disease, high blood pressure, ulcers, asthma, obesity, allergies and other degenerative diseases and complaints that now plague contemporary society.

Would you call this daydreaming? A hopeful vision of some future geriatric utopia?

Actually, the conditions described above exist today. They don't apply to Americans, but to a small tribe of Sudanese, 20,000 strong, called the Mabaan, shown on these pages.

Living in a swampy, steamy, primitive, mud-hut village in the jungles of northeast Africa, the Mabaan are possibly the healthiest people in the world.

To find out what makes them so, PARADE recently hopped a Sabena jet and flew 6,000 miles into the Sudan, accompanying an expedition of doctors to study these paragons of fitness and vigor.

At first glance their ripe old age seems hard to understand, for Mabaan life is anything but easy. Their diet, consisting mainly of sour, pasty bread called durrah, is grim and monotonous. The swamp climate of the White Nile is severe—seared for six months of the year by blistering sun, pelted by rainstorms the rest of the time.

Yet despite the diet and extremes of climate, the Mabaan are a tall, muscular people who remain extraordinarily youthful into old age.

Dramatic proof of the Mabaan's ability to halt the aging process is demonstrated by their amazing hearing. Dr. Samuel Rosen, a New York ear specialist who led the expedition, discovered the average Mabaan of 75 can hear as well as the average 25-year-old American. But even more astonishing were the results of the routine medical examinations which enabled Dr. Rosen to report: "The Mabaan simply do not die until their bodies completely wear out."

How were these remarkable people discovered, and what meaning, if any, do their secrets of long life and youthfulness have for you?

The search begins

The road that led to the Mabaan was remarkably roundabout. It began in 1952 on an operating table in Mt. Sinai Hospital when Dr. Rosen, while operating on a patient who had been virtually deaf, jarred loose the stapes, a tiny bone in the middle ear. And that instant, his patient regained his hearing. This happy accident led to the development of several types of stapes surgery which can restore hearing to millions of people who suffer from bone conduction deafness. Dr. Rosen then began traveling the world, teaching the doctors of 39 countries the techniques of stapes surgery.

In Germany, he first learned of the Mabaan, a people who beat no drums and were notably soft-voiced. "The background noises—auto engines and horns, passing airplanes, clattering dishes, blaring radios—that assault civilized ears must have some deleterious effect on our hearing," notes Dr. Rosen. "Science, therefore, has never been able to determine the true potential range of human hearing. The Mabaan are a rare find and may help us to ascertain this true range."

Establishing his camp in the Mabaan village of Boing, Dr. Rosen's first step was to determine the noise level of the area. Using a sound level meter, the ear specialist made a rapid tour of the village, recording a count of minus 40 decibels—about one-tenth that recorded by the hum of a refrigerator.

The loudest noise the scientists heard in the village all day was the cry of a bird. Even during the beating of palm fronds with a wooden club, a method of rope manufacturing, the noise recorded at the worker's ear was a mere 73 decibels—about the same as the plopping sound made by a bat striking a softball.

Just like Park Ave.

The chief of the tribe, a tall, agile 70-year-old named Daga, rounded up 541 people to participate in Dr. Rosen's hearing tests. The Mabaan came to the village, shyly eyeing the audiometer with its dials and earphones. At Daga's urging they donned the earphones and listened to the whistling sounds produced by the instrument. Following instructions as faithfully as any of Dr. Rosen's Park Avenue patients, they raised their hands the instant they heard the whistle and lowered them only when the sound could no longer be heard.

The results were astonishing—the Mabaan displayed the most acute hearing found in any group of human beings ever tested. Almost everyone tested had the ability to hear a soft murmur across the length of a football field. And the problem of Presbycousis (loss of hearing due to advanced age) was virtually nonexistent. The average Mabaan hears as well at the age of 70 or 80 as he does at the age of 15. This ability is unknown among Americans and Europeans, whose hearing deteriorates significantly as they age.

Even more startling were the results obtained from routine blood pressure tests. Among the Mabaan, blood pressure remains essentially the same throughout their lives. Healthy Americans, on the other hand, have a higher blood pressure to begin with, and it climbs steadily as they grow older.

This low, relatively stable blood pressure, plus the comparatively noise-free environment, Dr. Rosen feels, may account for their amazingly acute hearing. It may also be responsible for the complete absence of coronary heart disease. High blood pressure is associated with many heart conditions, and heart disease is America's number-one killer.

Science hopes to find the answers to a number of basic questions from these remarkably healthy people. What are the reasons for their phenomenally slow aging process? Can it be the meager, fat-free diet? Dr. Rosen doesn't think so. He points to another tribe, the Samburu, where heart disease is also unknown. Their diet, however, is composed of 65 per cent fat.

The answers lie elsewhere, perhaps in a combination of factors: absence of noise, peaceful life, lack of emotional stress. Dr. Rosen feels alleviation of the fierce pressures of modern existence might increase our life span dramatically.

The final note of proof seems to come from the Mabaan themselves. When one of their tribe moves to Khartoum, the nearest outpost of civilization, he, too, falls prey to heart attacks, ulcers and other "civilized ailments."

HEALTHIEST PEOPLE IN THE WORLD

Heavy melons are carried with ease by Mabaan women. Scientific expedition flew 6,000 miles via Sabena jet to visit the tribe.

Dr. Samuel Rosen uses audiometer to test hearing of young Mabaan. Over 500 tribesmen were tested in this manner and displayed the most acute hearing of any people on earth.

Scar patterns are marks of beauty for both sexes. Child will receive scars at age of 8.

Festive dances each week are the only occasions when Mabaan life rises above a whisper.

Spear is more decorative than functional to Mabaan. Little hunting they do is with snares.

IS THIS ICE TAX-FREE?

by ROSALIND MASSOW

■ An American tourist returning from a trip to Iceland recently, checked in at the customs counter at Idlewild Airport in New York with a bag full of melting ice.

"It's for my wife," the fellow said apologetically to the customs inspector. "She wanted a souvenir from Iceland."

Although a gift of ice, even in the summertime, would leave most people cold, Americans touring foreign ports are sometimes more witty and imaginative than practical in buying mementos.

With the summer vacation season officially ending tomorrow, it's a sure thing that the estimated 882,000 Americans who were abroad these past two months did not come back empty-handed. Customs officials report that although few used up their $100 deductions, all came back with some souvenir from a foreign country.

CONVERSATION PIECES

Natural elements like rain, rocks, snow and sand cost nothing to bring back, but the conversation possibilities for these things are endless. Imagine your reaction to the fellow who shows you the snow he brought back from Mount Kilimanjaro in Kenya? Or how about the lady who brought back rain from the rain forest of Victoria Falls?

Although status is one reason for bringing back sand, snow and rain, sentiment is even more important. Irishmen on a visit to the old sod invariably come back with a few rocks from Blarney Castle or a whiskey flask full of water from the River Shannon.

Water from the Ganges, the Dead Sea and the Jordan also show up on the mantle of visitors to the Holy Places of India and Israel.

Bring 'em back alive whether they're dogs, snakes or lions is the sentiment of a sizable segment of the population. One Maryland housewife on a visit to Ethiopia was so enchanted by the lion cubs she had seen that she bought one for $25 and brought him back as a pet for her children.

A man who purchased a dog in France was stunned when he came to claim his pup. He found he had five dogs to feed instead of one. Four puppies had been born in flight.

Snakes, too, have a habit of popping up at the customs counter. One customs inspector searching the luggage of a young tourist felt something wriggling around. He found two undeclared snakes coiled up in the fellow's clothing.

"Oh, the snakes," the youth said, "I didn't want them to be cold in the baggage compartment so I put them in my clothing. I didn't buy them, I picked them up on the road."

Living jewelry, innocently brought in from Mexico, is one import that gets nabbed by the customs. The jewelry consists of a live two-inch hard-shelled beetle which has been collared and chained to a pin. The shell is cemented with small colorful stones. A little jeweled insect walks around your lapel shocking everybody. These beetles can live two years without food.

The ones that don't come back alive are brought in as pelts. Llama skins, vicunas and sheepskin are most popular, but occasionally you'll get a tiger skin. One fellow back from a hunt in India paid $900 in overweight air charges for a partially cleaned tiger skin.

Food and plants are high on the list of overseas purchases, but because of the stringent rules of the Department of Agriculture and the Pure Food and Drugs Law, few ever make it home to the pantry shelf or the garden. Customs officials, like anyone else, are sentimental, but seem like ogres when they confiscate homemade salamis from the "old country" or small trees. All they're doing is protecting the people and U.S. agriculture, according to law, against the introduction of contagious animal diseases and foreign plant parasites.

SADDLES & SAMOVARS

Ladies in the U.S. are currently on an antique-buying binge, reflected in the items which they hand-carry back. Knights' helmets, samovars, large decorated copper pots, portions of Hindu temple doors and battered old Chinese cooking pots have found their way into American homes. Some remain as they are, to be used as ornaments; others are quickly electrified and made into lamps. One girl, seeking an interesting piece of furniture, brought back an old camel saddle that had been on a mangy camel she rode in Egypt.

If you think travelers to foreign lands are the only ones who buy conversation pieces, you're wrong. Americans touring their own country are known to have taken home cans of Arizona sunshine and Cape Cod air. ■

Customs men have tough time with waggish gifts from abroad. This ice is from Iceland.

The tremendous, and still growing, interest in art on the part of the American public is becoming more and more conspicuous. When Leonardo da Vinci's "Mona Lisa" paid her brief visit to the U.S. last winter, record crowds braved icy winds and endless lines just to see the famous smile. Private galleries and museums are mobbed daily by groups of carefully mustered schoolchildren and ladies from the suburbs in search of culture. Bookstores and art-supply dealers are swamped with customers looking for art books and paper and paints. And perhaps the most convincing proof of the current art mania is the enormous success of the recent Sears, Roebuck venture, which offered for sale original paintings by artists from Rembrandt to Picasso, at prices ranging from $10 to $300.

What does all this mean to the individual artist? To find out, PARADE talked to Joe Lasker, a contemporary American painter, whose "Portrait of Liz Weiss" is reproduced on today's cover.

—MARIANNA HASSOL

an american painter looks at the art boom

Joe Lasker paints in old oyster house on Connecticut shore.

Joe Lasker is one of about 150,000 professional artists painting in the U.S. today. His views on the art boom are shared by many painters, especially those working in a realistic style, painting real people in everyday settings, instead of formless blobs of color and unrecognizable shapes.

Joe doesn't in the least fit the stereotyped idea of the painter, on the job or off. Instead of an unkempt, unshorn Bohemian, he is neatly dressed, crew-cut and entirely respectable. He could pass easily for a banker, insurance salesman or professor.

Although his appearance is perhaps not typical of the artist, his devotion to his work definitely is. He is completely and utterly sincere in what he paints and how he paints. And above all, he is convinced that painting is of paramount importance.

I asked Joe what he thought about the increased interest in art. I wondered if it had anything to do with the present-day tendency of so many artists to return to the warm, human, recognizable scenes that the man in the street as well as the connoisseur can understand and enjoy.

"Certainly it has something to do with the trend away from abstraction," Joe answered. "But the art boom is due mainly to increased per capita income, which gives people the chance for better education, for more leisure time to travel and be exposed to art. And of course it gives them the money to buy originals."

For Joe Lasker, however, the increased demand for original art has had little effect on his own work. Explains Joe, "I can't mass-produce just because there's an easy market now. I can only paint as I feel I must." Wistfully he adds: "I have sometimes found myself wanting to be corrupted. I'd like to have a lot of money."

Joe, who was born in 1919 into a Brooklyn family of very modest circumstances, studied at Cooper Union, New York, and painted in Rome on a fellowship. He taught drawing and painting at City College, New York, and at the University of Illinois. At present he teaches painting at Famous Artists School, a short distance from his home in South Norwalk, Conn.

an artist's worries

I asked Joe if he felt he belonged to any particular group of American painters. Although he considers himself a realist, he confesses to a brief flirtation with abstraction.

"I really am a genre painter [painter of everyday scenes], but when abstraction came into the ascendancy and 'genre' had become almost a dirty word, I began to wonder if my style was really valid. But I no longer worry whether the way I work is smart or sophisticated or in vogue—I just paint."

Despite this dedication and conviction, the question of making a living inevitably arises. Lasker has had ample proof of his talent; among the awards to his credit are the Edwin Austin Abbey Memorial Fellowship, Prix de Rome and a Guggenheim Fellowship. Furthermore, he is represented in such outstanding collections as the Whitney Museum of American Art, the Philadelphia Museum and the Joseph Hirshhorn Collection.

But can he support a family on what he makes from his painting? The answer is a firm and definitive No.

For an original oil, he gets $125 and up; small drawings go for $30-$35. The top price Lasker ever put on a painting is for Team, now at the Kraushaar Galleries in New York, for which he is asking $1,500. Kraushaar handles all his work and gets one-third of the sale price on each painting.

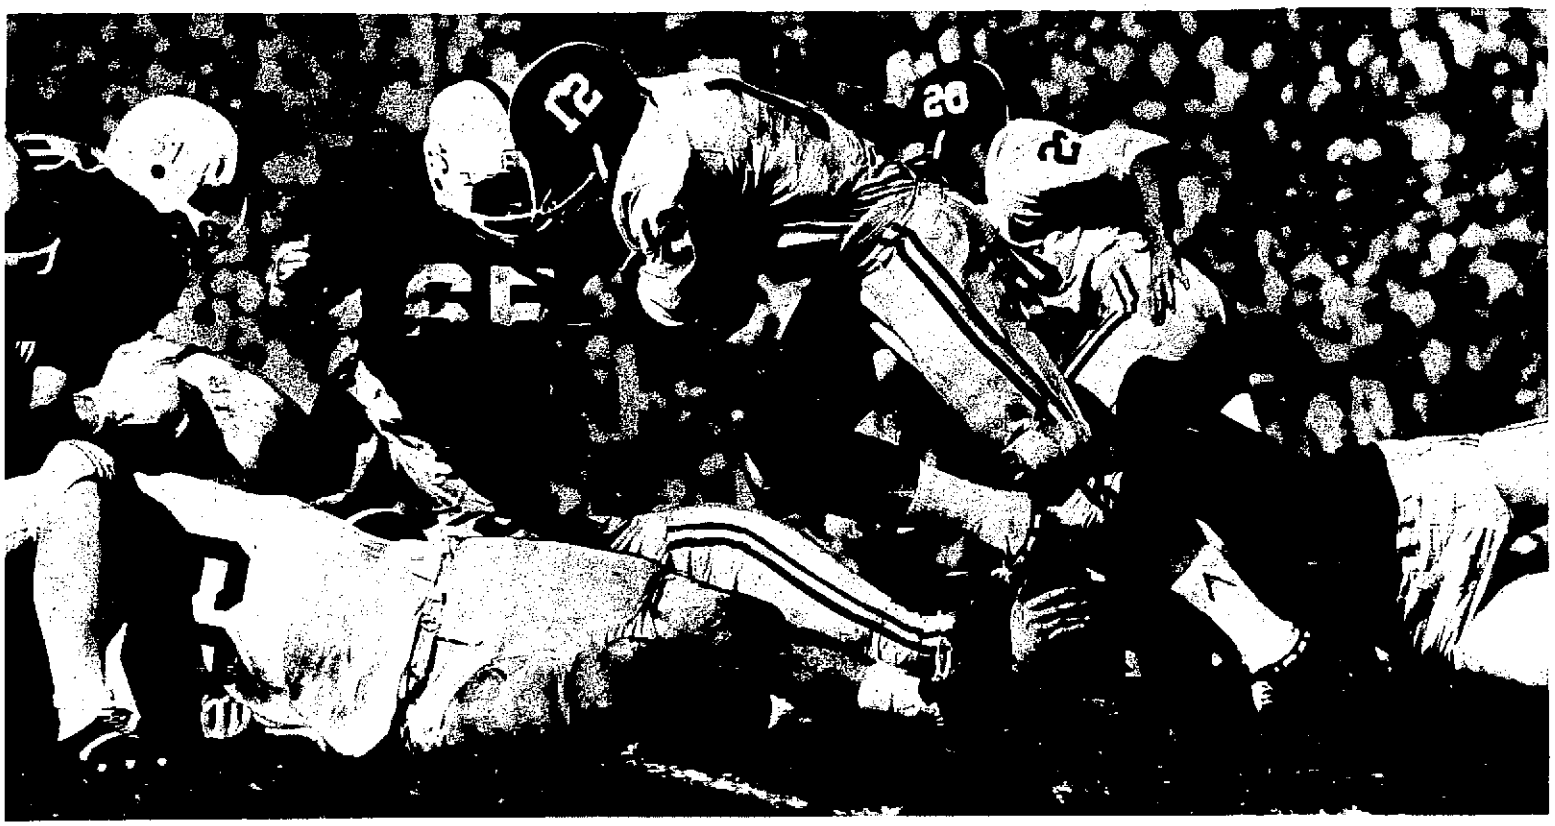

On the one hand, Joe averages $2,000 per year for his art (paintings, drawings, prints). On the other, he has to support his wife Millie, sons David, 13, and Evan, 5½, and daughter Laura, 11. So, to keep body and soul together he teaches and also illustrates children's books. Lasker's comment on this situation is a philosophical one: "I'd like to earn enough to live on my art alone, but I don't know if that will ever happen."

What part does the contemporary artist play in American culture?

"The artist's role is a unique one," Joe says. "Art is just about the last place where the individual still holds forth—everything else has become a big organization."

Joe thinks the art boom is here to stay, and that it may boom even louder in the future. But he feels that for painters like himself, whose work is dictated primarily by inner feelings and convictions, the future is as uncertain as ever. Yet his advice to the young artist and the art lover remains an idealistic one:

"Trust your instinct in what you create and in matters of taste. Trust your feelings. If you work long enough and hard enough, something will come of it."

Will he be year's top player? Quarterback Joe Namath (No. 12) has passing, ball-handling skills to put his Alabama team among contenders for national championship.

PARADE'S 9th ANNUAL FOOTBALL

A fellow coach recently asked Charles (Rip) Engle, of Penn State, for his secret of success. Replied Engle:

"First get yourself a pair of guards weighing 230 apiece. Makes no difference if they can't play. Assign them to carry you off the field after each game. You may lose, but the alumni will say, 'Well, maybe the bum can't coach, but the boys really love him.' "

Football coaches don't take themselves as seriously as they once did, but don't let their jests fool you. Engle and scores of others dedicated to the game are serious—and deeply concerned over nagging problems that have popped up since last season:

1. Playing rules. Many coaches are disgruntled or confused over the new substitution rule. Ivy Leaguers threatened to revolt and play under a sub rule of their own; Murray Warmath of Minnesota suggested the Big Ten do likewise. The new rule, aimed at coaches who insisted on calling the plays, outlaws the three-team system popularized by Army's Paul Dietzel when he was at Louisiana State. Wholesale substitutions may be made only on second and third down. Lively rhubarbs are certain to develop from interpretation of the rule, hassles that will push colleges inevitably toward the pro football format.

2. Ethics. At this writing the profession anxiously awaits the sworn testimony of two football notables, Wally Butts, late of Georgia, and Paul Bryant of Alabama, on sensational charges that they were too cozy last fall before the Georgia-Alabama game. They may have been merely indiscreet. In any event, football can ill afford any appearance of evil.

3. Negroes. In the South the race issue is being felt at the sports level. The University of Maryland is the first Atlantic Coast Conference member to play a Negro, Darryl Hill, a transfer from Navy, on the varsity squad. Kentucky, northernmost member of the Southeastern Conference, has served notice that, come December, it will recruit Negro athletes, a move that could break up the league. The Southwest Conference, too, may break the color line this year.

HOLD THAT FLIP-FLOP

These problems aside, college football has never been so healthy. In 1962, football attendance soared to 21,277,162—an increase for the ninth straight year—and the great accent on passing indicates bigger crowds than ever. You can expect a big swing to National Champion Southern Cal's 'I' formation, and you'll be hearing about the "muddle huddle," the "flip-flop offense," the "monster defense," and all sorts of gibberish... very scientific, you know.

Here's the outlook, region by region.

SOUTH: Ole Miss, our choice for the national championship, and Alabama represent Dixie's best. The Rebels have lost only 3 games in the last 48, Alabama 1 in 29. Ole Miss has huge linemen, fleet backs and a so-so schedule, a combination hard to match. Allen Brown, 220-pound end, and Perry Lee Dunn, senior quarterback, share the pre-season spotlight. Joe Namath's uncanny ball-handling and passing give Alabama a magnificent offense. Florida will be the most improved team. Georgia Tech and Louisiana State are long-shot title contenders. George Mira's throwing makes Miami the best of the independents.

Clemson, starting its 24th year under Frank Howard, is likely to break Duke's three-year hold on the Atlantic Coast title. Maryland has championship hopes, too, as long as Dick Shiner can throw the ball. In the Southern Conference, West Virginia has superior personnel but plays only four league games. VPI and VMI are a step ahead of the others.

SOUTHWEST: Texans insist the Southwest championship will be decided Oct. 19 in Little Rock, when Arkansas meets Texas. Sounds familiar. Darrell Royal's Longhorns won the 1962 title on a 7-3 triumph over Arkansas, the latter's only defeat. The two schools are again co-favorites, with possibly a slight edge to Texas. Arkansas will go with an untried backfield but still have Jerry Lamb, tremendously gifted end. Texas will concentrate on defense and kicking with Tommy Wade as probable quarterback. Texas' Scott Appleton is the best tackle in the league. Texas Christian and Rice are cast in the spoiler role. Don Trull's passing gives Baylor a flashy offense. Southern Methodist, Texas Aggies and Texas Tech are rebuilding.

EAST: Roger Staubach, the sophomore passer who routed Army last December, is expected to lead Navy to a sectional championship with Penn State, 1962 titlist, in furious pursuit. The issue could remain in doubt all the way since the two teams do not meet. Pittsburgh and Syracuse, both improved, are on a par behind the leaders. Army, stripped of its newly-installed three-team system by the new rules, will have to fight to hold its own. A weak schedule will help. Boston College is coming back strong.

Dartmouth, undefeated champ of the Ivy League, is favored to repeat even without Billy King and Don McKinnon. Harvard is the No. 1 challenger, especially if the tackles measure up. Columbia and Princeton are dark-horse threats, followed by Penn, Yale, Cornell and Brown.

MIDWEST: A mild disappointment last fall, Ohio State rates a slight edge this time over the flashier Northwestern and Wisconsin teams. Coach Woody Hayes has depth and defense, a combination traditionally successful. Paul Warfield, brilliant halfback, Mat Snell, end, and Sophomore Tom Barrington, quarterback, are key figures in the Buckeye campaign. Northwestern is the popular favorite, a tribute to the passing of Tom Myers, but the Wildcats are likely to falter in November. Wisconsin will miss its noted passing battery, Ron VanderKelen to Pat Richter.

Purdue's passing and Minnesota's defense label them as outside contenders. Illinois and Indiana are coming out of extended slumps. Notre Dame, under a new coach, expects to improve on the 5-5-0 record of 1962. But its defense must be tightened up.

FAR WEST: Southern Cal is almost certain to win again, but no one expects Coach McKay's gang to present a 1964 rerun of that fantastic 42-37 Rose Bowl victory over Wisconsin. The Trojan offense operates smoothly around quarterback Pete Beathard and Hal Bedsole, rangy end. Washington is the most serious challenger, featuring a fine defense headed by Rick Redman, linebacking guard. Coach Bill Barnes needs another year to develop his new offense at UCLA. Oregon and Oregon State are tops among the independents, but the latter is certain to miss the redoubtable Terry Baker, Heisman Trophy Winner.

Arizona State is coming fast as a ranking football power. Incligible to win the Western Athletic Conference title until 1964, State will content itself with just winning games this fall. A free-for-all is likely among New Mexico, defending champion, Brigham Young, Wyoming, Utah and Arizona. Best of the independents: Air Force and Utah State.

MIDLANDS: Oklahoma's Sooners are back on top of the Big Eight, should stay there for one more year anyway. Bud Wilkinson's Sooners should be better than in 1962, with John Grisham and Joe Don Looney delivering the one-two punch. Nebraska cannot be ignored as long as Dennis Claridge is throwing the ball. Defense-minded Missouri is always tough, but the Tigers will miss Johnny Roland, halfback waved to the sidelines for disciplinary reasons. Kansas has a long-shot chance to go all the way. Iowa State's defense will be better. Tulsa is a heavy favorite for the Missouri Valley title, using flashy transfer athletes to finish ahead of Wichita and Cincinnati.

Climbing steeply, needle-nosed T-38 can hit 800 mph speed. It will be replaced by 3,000-mph rocket trainer.

Has flight training changed

AN OLD

I thought I was a hot pilot when I flew a P-38, that twin-tailed beauty, over three continents in World War II. But compared to today's airmen, I belong to the helmet and goggles school.

I learned this the hard way when I returned recently to Randolph AFB, where I was taught to fly at the beginning of World War II, for a firsthand look at what today's pilots are up to. I was astonished.

In my flying days, cadets trained in BT-9s—propeller planes which flew at 120 mph and today would have trouble overtaking a Piper Cub. The basic trainer I flew a few weeks ago, a sleek, white Northrop T-38, can't even get off the ground at that speed. This supersonic jet won't even stay airborne at the full-out speed of the AT-6 trainers used only 10 years ago.

Incredibly, today's young pilots learn to fly at 800 miles an hour!

When I arrived at Randolph, Lt. Col. Arthur W. Buck, the officer in charge of instructing the instructors for the Air Force Training Command, tucked me into a pressure suit. Then he tucked me into a T-38. "You don't fly this plane, you wear it," he said, as he climbed into the forward cockpit. And I soon learned what he was talking about.

The rear cockpit was different from the old one of my day. The control panels weren't changed too much, and the stick was still there; otherwise there were many changes. You couldn't, for instance, look out and see the wings. Unlike my old P-38, in which you had one comforting engine on each side of you, the power plant was in the tail.

The biggest change was in the pedals, which in the P-38 were used constantly. In the T-38, you use your feet only when on the ground—to turn the nose wheel and apply brakes.

Although it's a basic trainer, the T-38 is faster than any plane the U.S. has ever used in combat. For example, the hottest plane we used in Korea was the F-86. The T-38 trainer can outfly it with one engine.

With Colonel Buck at the controls we screamed down the runway. The T-38 climbed 25,000 feet in less than a minute. I suddenly realized I was flying

Cadet Blumenthal as he appeared at Randolph Field in 1941.

since World War II? A Parade reporter decides to find out ■ by FRED BLUMENTHAL

PILOT FLIES AGAIN

as fast straight up as my old P-38 would fly on the level. For an added thrill Colonel Buck, a pilot's pilot, slow-rolled the aircraft and corkscrewed upstairs.

"Here comes a kick in the tail," Buck said. He turned on the afterburners. We eased through the sound barrier and passed 800 mph. He got on the radio and talked to one of his boys. "I'm over Hondo heading west at 28,000 feet. Meet me. Meet me."

Supersonic acrobatics

I scanned the clear, blue Texas sky for the other airplane. Suddenly it was there nestling under our left wing, and I hadn't even seen it. Then, in tight formation, Colonel Buck and his teammate began doing aerial acrobatics — Immelmans, chandelles, loops, rolls—all at supersonic speed.

I sat aghast. These were the same old maneuvers we used to perform—except three times as fast.

Colonel Buck's voice came at me over the headset: "Care to try it now?"

"Let me follow you through to get the feel of it," I said. The colonel did a few turns, shallow dives and climbs as I kept a light hand on the stick. Then he said: "It's yours."

I wanted to try turns first. I shoved over the stick as we used to do in the old days. Instantly the aircraft swung into a roaring turn far more violent than anything I had expected. Automatically I moved the stick the other way. The aircraft responded instantly in a strong corrective action.

The colonel, from his dual control, exerted a little firm pressure on the stick. I had the idea I was sweating. I hadn't realized this was such a sensitive bird. You didn't need all the muscle we used to throw into steering the old Lightning. We used to use our feet, arms and body. Piloting the T-38 with its power controls was a finger exercise. At 800 mph every little movement brought an immediate, huge response.

I tried again, moving the stick gingerly, a mere fraction of an inch. The plane came around neatly and smoothly. I moved the stick the other way. A little raggedly but effectively, the plane turned.

Why, I can do it! Flying is just like roller-skating or riding a bicycle—once you learn how you never forget it! More confident, I went into a shallow dive. I came out of it, tried a climb.

"Nice," said Colonel Buck. "Want to try a roll?"

Why not? We went into the roll, eased out of it and I was pleased. Not as well as I could have done in 1943, but not bad after 20 years. Then I did an Immelman. Then the chandelle. The loop.

And it wasn't any different—just faster.

But it was different—and the difference was in the men. In my day at Randolph, "the West Point of the Air," we cadets were the lowest form of animal life. We were hazed, razzed, inspected, braced, required to drill and parade and clean up. I walked 10 hours of guard for a dirty wash basin and other "offenses."

Today all that is behind the men, who are no longer cadets but commissioned officers before they begin flight training. But they work perhaps harder than ever. They have 55 weeks of training, including 262 hours of flying, 422 classroom hours, 240 hours of officer training. Yet only 28 per cent of them wash out.

Moment of truth

The pay-off of this intensified training for an Air Force which, despite its missile missions, will never have enough hot pilots, was brought home to me the last few minutes of my flight. After my exhibition of acrobatics, Colonel Buck took over the controls. Deft and sure-handed, he brought the T-38 into a Randolph runway, touched her down, took her upstairs again. He made three of these touch-and-go landings. Then his voice crackled in my headset. "Want to land her now?" he asked.

I thought back to my hundreds of wartime landings in the P-38, that most touchy moment of every flight. I recalled some of my sloppy work upstairs a few minutes before. I realized I'd be coming in in a strange aircraft almost as fast as we used to cruise. It had been exhilarating aloft, but I knew deep down I was just a rusty retread after all. "No, thanks," I said. "I'm a little out of practice." And as the T-38 whirled in to land after my first "hot plane" flight in 20 years, I could swear Colonel Buck breathed a sigh of relief.

Retread Blumenthal gets briefing by Lt. Col. Arthur Buck before first "hot plane" flight in 20 years. Blumenthal flew fighters in Europe until 1944, had flown only a few small single-engine planes in the years since the war.

MY FAVORITE JOKES

by jack wakefield

EDITOR'S NOTE: Jack Wakefield, born in Brooklyn as Milton Fagin, took his name of Wakefield from the Wakefield section of the Bronx where he spent his youth. Originally a singer, Wakefield turned to comedy at age 16. Since then he's played most of the leading night spots throughout the country. For some inexplicable reason he seems to go over biggest with Canadian audiences, who voted him their most popular comedian in 1951. Jack has appeared on many TV variety programs, several Broadway shows and is currently preparing a TV pilot. Herewith a few of his favorite jokes.

The daughter of my next-door neighbor joined the Peace Corps last month. The other day we heard that the girl had married a native in Africa. My neighbor immediately boarded a plane to locate the new bride. To her horror, she discovered the girl in a small hut, dressed in a cloth sack and covered with war paint. Next to her stood a tall, handsome tribesman, wearing a feathered hat, two shrunken heads around his neck and waving a magic stick.

The shocked mother grabbed her little girl and exclaimed: "You misunderstood me, my darling, I told you to marry a rich doctor."

I make it a practice always to patronize a female dentist. It gives me a great deal of pleasure having a woman tell me to open my mouth instead of shut it.

A fellow comic walked into a barber shop and asked for a shave. After being cut a few times, he asked the barber if he could have a razor.

"Why?" asked the surprised barber.

"Because," came the reply, "I'd like a chance to defend myself!"

It seems that every year, no matter how much I send the Internal Revenue I always end up having to pay them more. This year, for the first time, I got a refund—they sent back my accountant!

A grocer was standing in front of his store when he saw a driverless car rolling down the street. He made a quick dash, hopped into the car and jammed on the emergency brake. Relieved that he had prevented an accident, the grocer stepped out of the car with a smile of satisfaction on his face—only to be confronted by the owner of the car walking up to him with bared fists.

"Well," said the grocer, "aren't you going to thank me for stopping your car?"

"No," replied the owner. "I was pushing it!"

There's no doubt that a nickel still goes a long way today. I carried one around with me all week and didn't know what to do with it.

I bought a new suit the other day. The wool was grown in Australia, the cloth was woven in England, the thread comes from India, the suit was made in Hong Kong, and I bought it in New York. It's amazing how so many people can make a living out of something I haven't paid for.

I know my golf must be improving because my wife has finally agreed to let the children watch me play now!

Did you notice that the U.S. gold reserves went down three hundred and fifteen million dollars last year? Mrs. Kennedy must have paid her diaper bill.

DEFINITION OF AN OLD-TIMER: One who can remember when a woman looked the same after washing her face.

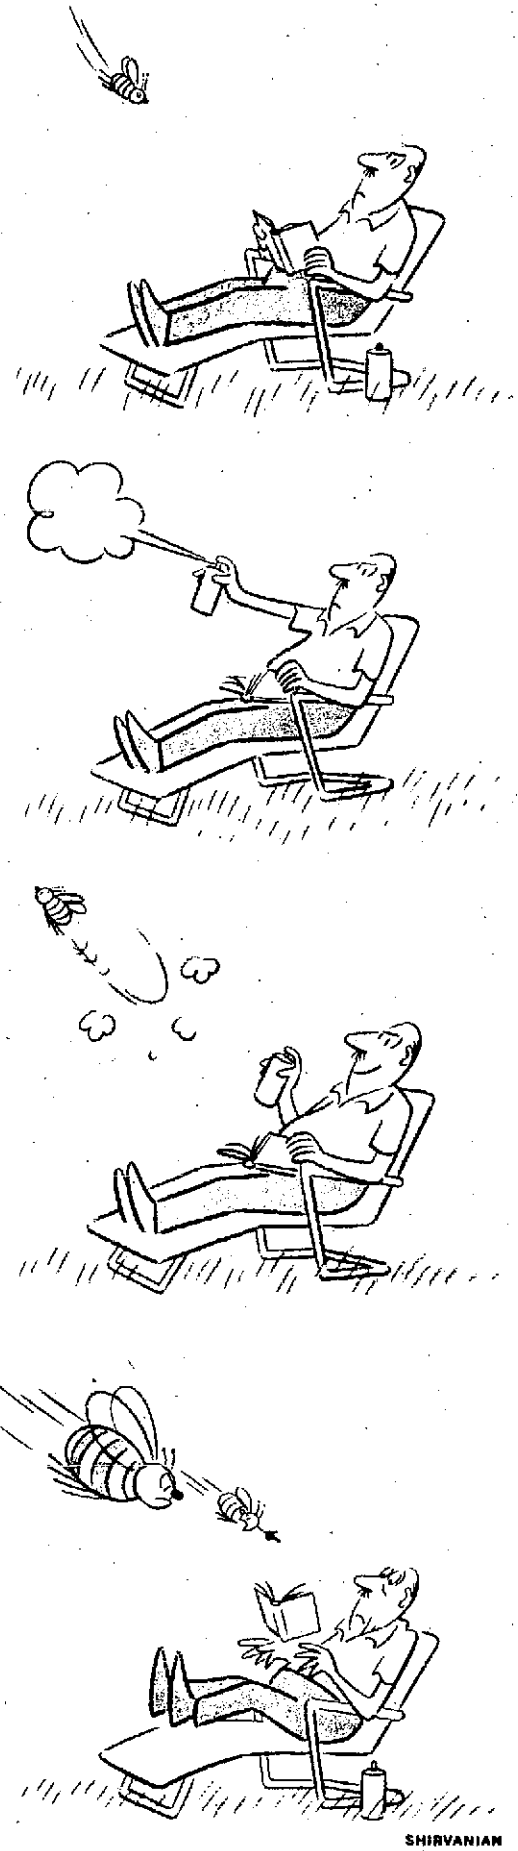

DEFINITION OF A DIPLOMAT: A man who can convince his wife it would be a shame to hide her gorgeous figure under a new fur coat.

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

Because of the volume of mail, it is impossible for PARADE to answer queries in connection with this column.

CHINESE CUSTOMERS. With which nations does Red China do the most business? The answer: (1) Hong Kong; (2) Canada; (3) Australia; (4) Singapore and Malaya; (5) Great Britain; (6) Japan.

PROJECTION. By 1970 the population of the U.S. is expected to increase to 214,000,000, with 67% of the people living in 184 metropolitan areas.

DOUBLING. The human infant doubles his birth weight in 151 days. The puppy doubles its birth weight in 9 days, the foal in 60 days, the calf in 47 days, the bunny in 6 days.

DELIVERY ROOM DADS. Dr. Daniel Moore of the Mason Clinic in Seattle says the presence of the father in the delivery room at the birth of his child creates no problem. The doctor, director of anesthesiology at the clinic, bases his conclusion on 11,383 cases in which fathers were present in the labor and delivery rooms.

HUSBAND WATCHES AS DOCTOR EXAMINES PREGNANT WIFE.

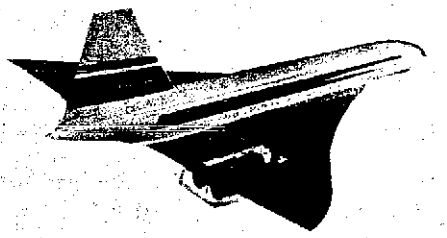

SUPERMARKET TEST. The third-largest supermarket chain in the country, Kroger Co., is testing a credit plan in seven of its stores in Birmingham, Ala. The test is handled by Atlas Finance Company and works this way: A customer applies for credit to Atlas. If cleared, she is given a credit card good for one month. After she pays her monthly bill, she is sent another credit card. Her monthly bill, for which she pays an extra dollar, contains a complete record of her purchases. Since the plan got under way in April, there has not been a single case of delinquent payment. Other supermarket chains have tried credit plans in previous years, but all proved costly failures and the chains returned to a cash-and-carry policy.

BIRTH CONTROL PROGRAMS. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has cut President Kennedy's foreign aid program considerably. But it has quietly okayed the controversial provision authorizing research funds to promote birth control programs overseas.

HOSIERY MACHINES. How many pairs of nylons does the average working girl wear out a year? The answer: from 20 to 36. Result: vending machines which dispense hose are shortly to be installed in large office buildings throughout the country.

SHIPBOARD ROMANCE. The Holland-America line recently completed its first experiment in organized shipboard romance. Its liner, the Statendam, took a group of 85 spinsters and bachelors on a 5-day trip from Holland to England to Spain. Forty-one bachelors and 44 bachelorettes signed up for the "lonely hearts" cruise, and to avoid embarrassing scenes, the doors of all adjoining cabins were locked. Says an official of the Holland-America line: "It's a little too early yet to tell whether there will be any marital results."

MITSUBISHI MERGER. At the end of World War II, Gen. MacArthur broke up the tremendous Japanese monopolies, one of which was the fabulous Mitsubishi combine. It was split into three separate companies. From Tokyo now comes word that the directors of these three companies have agreed to merge, making Mitsubishi again the largest industrial combine in Japan.

MODEL OF CONCORDE, ANGLO-FRENCH SUPERSONIC PLANE.

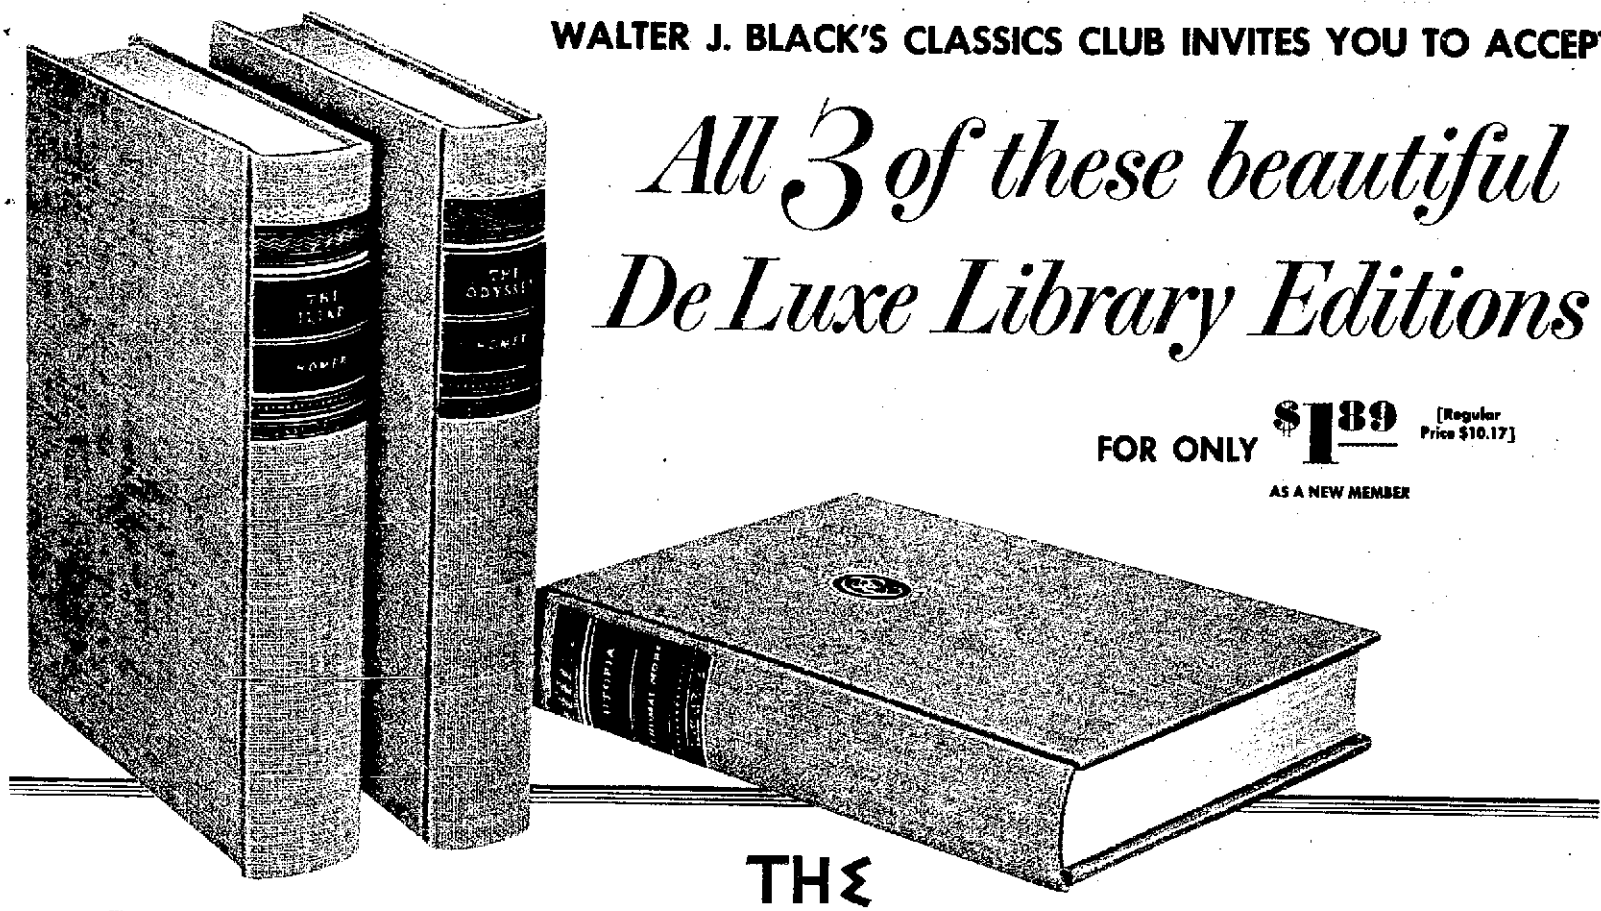

SUPERSONIC PLANE. Work has begun in Toulouse, France, on the Concorde, the Anglo-French supersonic airliner, prototype of which is scheduled to fly in 1966 at a 1,710 mph speed. Estimated cost of this joint project by Sud Aviation and British Aviation Corporation: $420,000,000.

NURSES. General duty nurses in the U.S. now receive an average monthly salary of $340, up from $325 last year.

VACATIONERS. When the summer of 1963 ends, resort operators in this country will have enjoyed one of the busiest vacation seasons of the past decade. Many Americans are spending more vacation money this year than ever before.

Bills for medical treatments, X-rays, hospital rooms, wheel chairs and a dozen other unexpected expenses, take a big chunk out of anyone's hard-earned savings.

This insurance is designed to help you solve the Accident Expense Problem. You may find it hard to believe, BUT this policy — at a cost of little more than a penny a day does pay the benefits shown below, for accidents at work, at home, in your automobile, on the street, and even at play.

Hundreds of claims are paid every week to men and women, like yourself, who never expected to be hurt. But they realized that, since one American in every 12 gets hurt each year, they just couldn't afford to be without this low-cost protection.

ATTEMPT TO EVADE RACE-BIAS BAN CHARGED

Six LBSC Sororities Suspended

By LEE BROWN

Six of Long Beach State College's seven sororities have been suspended from campus activities and face even more severe sanctions, Dr. Carl W. McIntosh, LBSC president, disclosed Saturday.

The sororities, LBSC chapters of Alpha Phi, Delta Delta Delta, Delta Zeta, Gamma Phi Beta, Sigma Kappa and Zeta Tau Alpha, were placed on probation effective Aug. 2.

According to college officials, the six sororities bolted college supervision of the annual "rushing" (recruiting of new members) procedures, and sorority alumnae early this summer rented an office at 3903 E. Anaheim St. in which to undertake independent rushing activities.

Only one sorority, Delta Gamma, is conducting rushing activities as usual through the college activities office under the supervision of Dr. Lois Swanson, dean of activities. Another group, Columns Club, a "colony" of Alpha Epsilon Phi, also is rushing in cooperation with the college. Neither is affected by the probation order.

In a letter received Saturday by sorority chapter presidents, Dr. McIntosh wrote, "I shall continue to insist . . . " that sororities be bound by college policy. He decried the "unilateral action taken . . . by those who usurp the right to act as free agents in opposition to policies and procedures established by the college."

Besides establishing a rushing office off campus "in full knowledge that such action was violative of . . . procedures," three other specific charges were made in the letter: refusing to discuss the issue with Dr. Karl A. Russell, LBSC dean of students; using the name of the college in connection with off-campus rush activities after having been instructed not to do so, and scheduling an off-campus public rushing meeting in violation of college policies.

His letter also stated, "Unless we have satisfactory response from you by Oct. 1, we will regretfully withdraw recognition of your sorority on the campus of LBSC."

According to college officials, the insurgent sororities' move to off-campus rushing is merely a "nominal" issue. They contend that the move is to avoid a statewide legal ban on racial or religious restrictions on sorority and fraternity membership which takes full effect in September, 1964.

A letter circulated to members of Alpha Phi sorority, signed by alumni president Mrs. Nellie Krahenbuhl, confirmed the official's suspicions by stating that the sororities were moving off campus to save college officials from "having to accede to certain pressure groups in their demands for so-called 'rights'."

The California Administrative Code provides that "no state college shall recognize any fraternity, sorority . . . or other student organization which restricts membership on the basis of race, religion or national origin."

Next year, LBSC campus organizations will be required to sign a statement certifying that "student members of (the sorority chapter) are free to choose and accept new members without discrimination on account of race, religion or national origin."

Dean Swanson pointed out that, far from forcing integration, the statement "merely says that the national sorority organizations cannot tell the local chapters whom they may not pledge."

If LBSC withdraws all recognition of the sororities, college officials say that even continuation of sorority houses, all located off campus in Long Beach, will be threatened. Sororities must be recognized by the college in order to obtain and maintain a city zoning permit.

The California Administrative Code states that withdrawal of recognition would end "the granting by a state college of any benefit, resource, or privilege whatsoever, or allowing the use of college facilities."

Representatives of the sororities either declined comment or could not be reached Saturday.

WHITE HOUSE EXPLAINS

Reaction Sharp to Byrd's List of JFK Vehicles

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—White House sources reacted sharply Saturday to a criticism by Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., who wondered aloud whether all those planes, yachts, and helicopters really are needed by President Kennedy.

Byrd, in a speech for his annual apple orchard picnic at Berryville, Va., Friday, noted that a House subcommittee had approved the President's request for two new twin-jet helicopters costing $1,125,000 each.

Maybe the President could get along with less, Byrd said, and ran down the list of planes, boats and such.

A White House source commented on Byrd's list, item by item:

Byrd — "The 10 helicopters."

Comment: "This is a fact. The President has available 10 helicopters which is the same number which was available to the Eisenhower administration. Of these, two are new helicopters since President Kennedy came into office to replace older and slower models..."

Byrd — "The President's private $8-million fan-jet Boeing 707-320 aeroplane . . . Three Boeing 707s assigned to the White House by the Air Force. . . One Air Force Douglas DC-6B for airports that can't take jets."

Comment: "There are such airplanes in the special air missions of the Air Force. They are available to the President as well as other top officials of the government. The fact of the matter is the one new plane, which is the $8-million fan-jet, was ordered at the start of the Kennedy administration because of its greater speed and longer range. It is, however, used by other government officials and for other government purposes. The other three Boeing 707s were in the same pool when President Eisenhower was

Celebrity Choices Sought

The pulse of a city beats only as strong as the people who give it life.

Long Beach has enjoyed vigorous health and steady growth because of many dedicated citizens who had the foresight to plant deep roots and to nurture them.

Many have carried the city's fame to all corners of the earth.

These are the people who will receive special acclaim during Long Beach's 75th anniversary celebration.

SEVENTY-FIVE outstanding personalities of Long Beach heritage will be selected for special recognition during the city's Diamond Jubilee Celebrity Ball, Nov. 15, at Long Beach Arena.

The ball, social event of the century, will be highlight of a month-long celebration which will include a musical spectacular, parades, special salutes and city-wide celebrations.

According to Bill Boyd, manager of the Long Beach Diamond Jubilee, more than 5,000 people are expected to attend the gala event, which is under sponsorship of 20 prominent local organizations.

SELECTION of the 75 individuals to be honored is under direction of Ev Hosking, chairman of the celebrity selection committee.

EIGHTY-YEAR-OLD Fred Ashbridge displays form which enabled him to ski to Catalina Saturday.

By CHARLES SUTTON

Fred Ashbridge, a spunky, rooster-legged octogenarian who doesn't know the meaning of the word retire, successfully completed his fifth water-skiing trip across Catalina Channel Saturday.

And if it weren't for a couple of spills he took off the west end of Catalina Island as he neared the end of his 38-mile journey, he'd have bettered his record of 1 hour, 22 min., he said.

As it was, the 80-year-old sportsman and boat builder had to settle for an elapsed time of 1 hour, 30 min.

He broke one record though. In making his Saturday crossing he used a ski that has traveled more than 3,000 miles.

Ashbridge, who celebrated his 80th birthday Aug. 20, started off from Marineland around 11:15 a.m. behind his boat, the "Lake Queen of Elsinore," a rugged 25-foot runabout with a 375-horsepower engine.

"I was astonished when they told me I'd made it in an hour and a half," he commented after the trip. "I lost between 15 and 20 minutes during those two falls. That means I was traveling at a pretty good clip."

Price Sloan of Rosemead, who piloted the "Queen," estimated that Ashbridge averaged about 25 miles per hour while he was on his skis.

Ashbridge said he fell over backward on each spill.

"The current was running against the ground swell, and both times the waves hit me like a wall of water," he explained.

Except for the rough seas off the west end of the island, the water was "lumpy but fairly smooth

'Mounties' Scatter 150 in Protest

PLAQUEMINE, La. (AP) — Mounted state police, electric cattle prodders in their hands, galloped headlong into a crowd of some 150 Negro demonstrators here Saturday night.

The Negroes broke up, screaming, running wildly across lawns. The horseback policemen followed in close pursuit.

The marchers were on their way to the home of Sheriff C. A. Griffon Jr. after police arrested 31 demonstrators who staged "freedom sings" in front of three cafes and a movie theater here earlier Saturday. (Another 38 demonstrators were arrested during the night, police said.)

* * * *

PLAQUEMINE, a south Louisiana community of 8,000 some 20 miles southwest of the capital at Baton Rouge, has been the scene of demonstrations since Aug. 19. On that day, James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, arrived to push voting and integration activities.

At a press conference after the demonstration, Farmer said he believed about 15 persons were injured. They were between the ages of 10 and 18, he said.

Dr. Bertrand Tyson, local Negro physician, said at least five will need hospitalization including Diane Scott, 15, who appeared to have a stomach injury. Farmer said a horse had stepped on the girl.

* * * *

HALF A dozen Negro children, with cuts and bruises showed up at the press conference.

Farmer called the scene "the worst demonstration of police brutality I have seen in five years." He said it was the first time he had known of horses being allowed to trample children.

Farmer said he sent a telegram to Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy informing him of the incident. He added he planned to file an affidavit with the Justice Department complaining of a violation of civil rights.

* * * *

IN ADDITION, Farmer said he intended to ask for U.S. marshals to come into the town and for an appropriate subcommittee of congress to investigate the situation.

U.S. Gets Tougher With Viet

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI) — The United States appeared Saturday to be heading for a diplomatic showdown with the South Viet Nam government of President Ngo Dinh Diem. Indications pointed to new attempts by Washington to pressure Diem's regime into abandoning its anti-Buddhist campaign through diplomatic means.

An American Army general in charge of U.S. forces fighting the Communist Viet Cong from North Viet Nam told reporters that Vietnamese military leaders were not involved in Diem's repression of the Buddhist majority and were not informed in advance of the action nor of the decision to impose martial law.

Some sources interpreted the general's statement as an invitation to leaders of the South Viet Nam army to seize power from Diem in a coup d'etat. The general said he was aware of the implications of his remark and that it contradicted a statement by Diem.

The Diem government, generally believed led now by his brother Ngo Dinh Nhu, indicated Saturday it was not changing its viewpoint. About 30,000 persons, most of them civil servants or soldiers in civilian clothes, staged a rally in downtown Saigon in support of the Diem stand.

* * * *

GOVERNMENT press reports of the meeting said 200,000 persons attended and enthusiastically heard speakers denounce Buddhist leaders as "political speculators." Actually the crowds were much smaller and the only enthusiasm came when they were freed to return home.

Club Eases Relations of Civilians, Military

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the seventh and last in the series examining the relationship between military installations and neighboring communities. This article tells of a unique organization in Ventura County which is fostering the friendship of service and city leaders.)

OXNARD—At 5 p.m., the Drinking Lamp is lit, Chief Elbow Bender George Poulos mixes the first cocktail and the screwiest club in the world comes to order.

By order, the Rest and Aspiration Club—"We rest while aspiring to greater things," explains a member—means keeping quiet when the big ship bell is rung.

The silence generally is ordered so that a member can take the microphone and tell a good joke.

But the end result of the club has been no joke. Though the military and civilian members of the club may not discuss "business" during a meeting, friendships formed at the sessions have led to understanding and cooperation in city and county chambers and military headquarters.

In an area of increasing air traffic from Oxnard Air Force Base, the U.S. Naval Air Station at Pt. Mugu and the County Airport, here, the Hi, Joe-Hi, Tom attitude" of "Rest and Aspiration has been the lubricant of possible community friction. It is interesting to note that the two military airfields are the base of the latest supersonic — and noisy—jets. In addition, jet airliners serve the county airport.

An example of the harvest of friendship of R&A is that the Chamber of Commerce only last week held its monthly meeting at Oxnard Air Force Base—and heard the Air Force story.

"Before a problem develops," explains one member, "it's easier to call up a buddy on the telephone and say, 'Let's you and I get together and head this thing off.'

California Leading Death Toll

By United Press International

California took an early and nearly unbeatable lead Saturday in the sweepstakes of death being laid out on the nation's highways during the four-day Labor Day weekend.

Californians have eliminated themselves and one another in traffic accidents roughly at the rate of one an hour.

At 11 p.m. the traffic death toll stood at 26. One person drowned and another died in a fire. New York trailed with seven highway fatalities.

A United Press International count at 12:30 a.m. (EDT) showed 178 persons dead in traffic across the nation since the start of the holiday at 6 p.m. Friday.

L.A.C. Says:

Your Hidden Taxes

We all realize that we personally pay large sums in sales, excise and other taxes which we rarely compute. We accept them as hidden taxes and part of the game. Many of us care not at all about the taxes paid by corporations or other individuals. But actually, all these are hidden taxes we all pay in the price of goods we buy and consume. Unless we take an interest in such other taxes, we will pay ever increasing amounts.

Some time ago we quoted Union Oil Co. on what its employes paid out in taxes over a 40-year period. It said: Suppose one of our employes started to work for the company at age 25 and retired at 65. Suppose further that he earned the same salary of $600 a month throughout his career. At $67.68 a month for taxes in 40 years he will have paid out $32,488.40 in taxes on this income. Then suppose the employe had invested this $67.68 a month in a 4 per cent compound interest savings account. In 40 years—at age 65—he would have $79,300. Of course, very few people would do this—but it is a picture of what taxes cost and if saved what they could produce.

I found many of our readers were quite shocked by the totals. Now before us is another example given by Union Oil in one of its advertisements. It says: "In 1932 the company taxes—city, county, state and federal—added up to $1.6 million. By contrast, that year its employes received $13 million in wages and its shareowners received $5.2 million in dividends. In 1962 —30 years later—its employes received $57 million in salaries and wages—its shareowners got $20 million —but taxes totaled $34.5 million.

"Payrolls and dividends have increased approximately four times in 30 years—while taxes have increased 21 times. In addition, the company was also required to withhold $9.6 million from employes' paychecks and pay $1.9 million in payroll taxes. Then the shareowners, on only a 20 per cent income tax basis, paid out another $4 million. The total of $50 million taken by government was $2.6 million more than all the employes—working full time—received." All of this $50 million taken by government had to be paid for in the prices consumers paid for the company's products.

A lot of figures are used in the above. But I believe most of my readers want definite figures to back up the statements that are made. Unless the great majority of people realize that in many industries government is taking more money than all the workers receive, there is little hope for them. These industries employ the people—build the products and provide the services on which our economy and comforts are dependent. They have given us the highest living standards ever known in the world. These standards are endangered by the costs of government.

Let me repeat another startling fact which should concern all the lower bracket income taxpayers. It is that 86 per cent of all federal income taxes are collected from the 20 per cent—lowest—income tax brackets. Only 14 per cent of total taxes are collected from the higher brackets—even though they pay as high as 91 per cent of their top tax incomes in taxes. This is because there are so many in the lower brackets, and so few in the upper brackets.

This is not written to suggest sympathy for the upper income group. Few of us care about what happens to the fellow who has more than we have. But it is written in the hope that all the people may some time come to realize that the increasing tax load is their load—because more taxes can come from only the large group where the vast amount of income is. Unless that group awakens and protests against ever increasing government spending, there is little hope for them—or any other group. When government takes more money from an industry than do all the people working for it—the time is here to do some protesting.—L.A.C.

Conference Wednesday to Study Transit Route

Possible rapid-transit routes between Long Beach and Los Angeles will be discussed at an area-wide transit-development study conference at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Harbor Department Building, 925 Harbor Plaza, Port of Long Beach.

The conference called by Metropolitan Transit Authority, will review two principal proposed routes and the role of the Long Beach Corridor in area-wide rapid-transit development.

The two routes are:

1. Along the Pacific Electric right-of-way south from Santa Monica Freeway, continuing along the alignment to about Carson Street. The alignment would then follow the east bank of the Los Angeles River to a terminal at Ocean Boulevard.

2. South from Santa Monica Freeway along Santa Fe Avenue to Vernon Avenue. It would then cure into Pacific Boulevard and Long Beach Boulevard, continuing to Ocean Boulevard in Long Beach.

Possible variations from the above proposals provide for a combination of both alignments with possible routings via either Randolph Street in Huntington Park, through North Long Beach or near San Diego Freeway.

Representatives of government, business and civic organizations in cities and communities between Long Beach and Los Angeles have been invited to participate in the conference.

C. M. Gilliss, MTA executive director, says, "Routing is the prime factor in determining the total cost of a rapid transit system.

"It is the routing which determines the construction cost, the right-of-way costs and, most important, routing which determines the greatest revenue to help pay for the system.

* * * *

"IT HAS been demonstrated that while the Long Beach Corridor is an integral part of the total area to be served by a comprehensive rapid-transit system, no system can be built in the corridor at this time solely from the farebox."

He says cities and communities to be served by rapid transit in the Long Beach Corridor should agree as soon as possible on the most desirable alignment for their area.

"We can then determine how we can best finance construction," he points out.

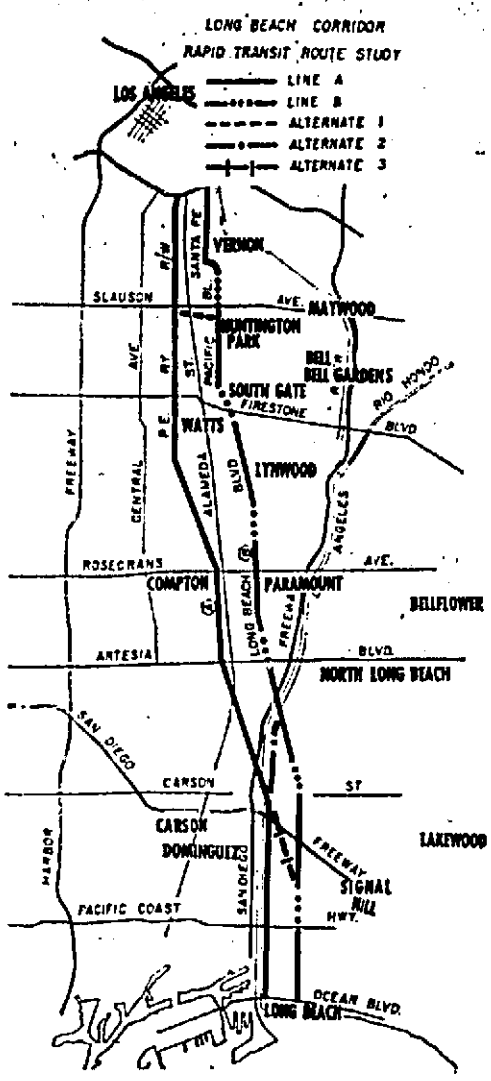

The state legislature has enacted legislation to allow motor-vehicle-tax funds as a means of financing rapid transit. If the County Board of Supervisors authorizes the tax, MTA estimates that $14 million could be received annually to aid in rapid-transit construction.

* * * *

MTA spokesmen say the $14 million per year would enable approximately $300 million in private funds to be raised through revenue bonds, according to investment bankers.

MTA has under study a proposal from the Alweg monorail organization to build and finance a 43-mile system from Westwood Village to El Monte with a branch to Van Nuys. The offer is effective until Wednesday and Gilliss has asked Alweg to extend the offer for 60 days. The MTA conference study for this area is set for Sept. 10 in Los Angeles.

Neither Alweg, nor Goodell, another monorail proponent, has made a proposal to cover service in the Long Beach Corridor.

TWO PRINCIPAL routes and alternates proposed for a rapid-transit system in the Long Beach Corridor are shown in above map.

CHINA NO UTOPIA

GI Turncoat Tells of Hunger, Terror

HONG KONG (UPI)—A former U.S. Army sergeant who spent 10 years in Communist China "looking for Utopia" said Saturday he had gone hungry so his children could eat meat and had watched friends being taken to prison for criticizing the regime.

Albert C. Belhomme, a Belgian citizen who married a Chinese woman and now has three children, returned from China Friday. He said he left so his children could have a better future.

* * * *

THE 34-YEAR-OLD Belhomme, whose mother lives in Ashland, Pa., showed by his description of life in China that even favored foreigners find it hard to get by on their higher rations and pay.

"I was looking for Utopia," he told a news conference, "and it isn't to be found. I think I've stopped looking now."

Belhomme, who plans to return to Belgium with his family, was the second American soldier to leave China in August Lowell D. Skinner of Akron, Ohio, reached Hong Kong Aug. 1 and now is in the United States.

Belhomme said he refused repatriation at the end of the Korean War, along with 20 other U.S. soldiers, because he was looking for "a better society — better conditions than I'd experienced in the past."

He said the brainwashing he received as a prisoner did not influence him much.

"It was mainly my own quest for a better life, and a touch of adventurism," he said.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH Belhomme's description of life in China was grim, he said "I think it was worthwhile. Although I saw hard times, I found my wife there."

The news conference was held in the luxurious new Hilton Hotel here and Belhomme contrasted his surroundings with those in China. "You have a different type of life there—definitely not what it is here."

L.B. Airman Shoots Way to Rifle Title

Airman 1/c Middleton W. Tompkins of Long Beach has regained his title as National High Power Bolt Rifle Champion, the Air Force announced Saturday.

Tompkins, 25, an instructor in the Air Force Marksmanship School (Lackland AFB, Tex., in matches now being held at Camp Perry, Ohio, regained the title he first won as a civilian.

He also shattered the existing national match record for the seven major trophy matches which comprise the championship.

Tompkins, of 2925 Vista St., attended Long Beach City College for two years before entering the Air Force.

Big Increase Seen in World's Oil Use

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI) — World crude oil reserves that seemed overwhelming a decade ago now look more manageable and desirable.

This was the report made this week by an industry publication in its 18th annual survey of international oil trends.

World Oil magazine said mushrooming consumption of the past 10 years will continue.

World demand for oil is expected to increase from 27 million barrels a day this year to 56 million in 1975.

The trade publication estimates United States demand will increase about 2½ per cent annually with areas outside the United States increasing about 8 per cent a year.

"Sharp gains abroad will reflect both growing use of energy and oil's increasing share as the source of energy," the magazine said.

"By 1975, Western Europe, for example, will be using much more energy than now and oil will then be supplying 60 per cent of its energy needs, or double the present proportion."

Oil's share of total energy consumption in the United States, however, is expected to remain relatively constant.

L.B. Medics Report on Fungus Data

By BEN ZINSER
L. P-T Medical Editor

A fast, accurate and inexpensive method of isolating a disease-producing fungus from the soil has been developed by a team of Long Beach researchers.

As a result of the new procedure, scientists for the first time will be able to track down sources of infection within a matter of days instead of weeks.

The isolation procedure, developed by scientists at Long Beach State College and Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital, will be reported next Tuesday in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, to the International Congress of Tropical Medicine and Malaria.

* * * *

THE REPORT will be delivered by one of the researchers, Dr. Betty Hester Kazan, professor of microbiology at State College. Senior author of the report is Dr. F. E. Swatek, chairman of the microbiology department.

The procedure is one in which scientists seek to find a yeast-like fungus called Cryptococcus neoformans, the causative agent of a systemic disease known as crpytococcosis. The disease may involve any organ of the body but it has a marked predilection for the brain. The disease can prove fatal if it involves the central nervous system.

* * * *

DR. KAZAN, a U.S. delegate to the international congress, says the new isolation technique will enable scientists to make epidemiological sense out of the disease.

Scientists now will be able to rapidly track down soil areas that may be sources of crypto fungi.

Key to the new isolation technique is pretreatment of the soil sample with the antibiotic cycloheximide, also known as Actidione.

Temporary exposure of the soil sample to the antibiotic stops the growth of all organisms except Cryptococcus neoformans, Dr. Kazan explains. Otherwise, all the varied organisms in the soil specimen would flourish in the culture media.

As a result of Actidione treatment, only the crypto, if present in the soil, will grow.

* * * *

RESULTS are available in seven to 14 days. With an earlier method employing laboratory mice, five to six weeks and tedious autopsy procedures are required.

Besides Drs. Swatek and Kazan, authors of the research report include Dr. S. William Becker, chief of the VA Hospital's dermatology section; Dr. J. W. Wilson, a dermatology consultant; and D. T. Omieczynski, laboratory technician.

AT R&A CLUB COCKTAIL HOUR

'Beefs' About Noise 'Blown Down' Softly

room, or talking to a stranger about a community situation. It's talking to a buddy about it."

The purpose of the club is serious, but there's a heckuva lot of fun, too.

At times, Poulos, local restaurant manager and one of the founders of the club, bangs the bell to fine members for such flagrant violations as standing on the furniture.

If George feels like it, he will allow the violator to take the microphone in self-defense and speak at a dollar a minute.

Members of the club, the military and civilian leaders of Ventura County, take it in pleasant stride and pay—with a smile.

TONIGHT, George—dressed in yachting cap and bedecked with medals as befits one who mingles with military brass—has taken offense because one of the club members is being transferred by his company to New Orleans.

"You are leaving our club," George moans, "so I will have to fine you.

"Actually, I'm not going to fine you. I'm just going to extract a few dollars from you."

At about this time, George remembers that the treasurer is absent—"he telegramed us from New York on his way to Switzerland"—and bangs the bell again.

"I want Ken Murphy to take the dues," he intones. (The weekly dues are $3 for civilians and $2 for the military.) "Since Murphy has four kids, the club couldn't sue him.

"So let us pray he deposits the money in the bank tomorrow morning."

CLUB meetings are held every Tuesday beginning at 5 p.m. when the Drinking Lamp — actually a large red ship light—is lit. It is extinguished at 7:30 p.m. "unless we have a lively one going," says George.

The sign by the Drinking Lamp explains: "It shall be shown in all weathers during such times as R&A is in formal session and unlimited imbibition is in order . . . and extinguished when all hands are seven sheets to the wind."

The sign also cautions that the Lamp "shall be extinguished when necessary to prevent riots, avoid bloodshed, make announcements, discipline unruly members and/or restore order."

DESPITE its unholy attitude, the unique club is surprisingly orderly.

Lt. Col. Edwin H. Brewer, a squadron commander at nearby Oxnard Air Force Base, calls it "A terrific line of communication between military and civilian leaders." Says Capt. Karl Van Meter of the U.S. Naval Air Station at Pt. Magu, "It is a wonderful way to engender community relations."

Enthusiastic members on transfer from Ventura County have formed club chapters in Washington, D.C., San Diego, Okinawa and Colorado Springs. There is none in the Long Beach-Orange County area where military-community relationships have been strained in the past.

The club was born when business leaders and Army antiaircraft officers began meeting in the back room of George's market here in the early days of World War II. Soon, the back room was too little and the club moved into more spacious quarters.

* * * *

"AFTER 19 years in our second headquarters," one member recalls with awe," we found out why we never received a monthly gas bill for heating.

"We had hooked up our line to a neighboring tenant's."

After that, the club moved its Drinking Lamp and bell to its third and present headquarters, a large wood-paneled room with a few garden-type wooden chairs and plenty of standing room.

In the years of growth, in addition to such military leaders as Gen. James Doolittle, civilians like U.S. Chief Justice Earl Warren and Gov. Pat Brown have joined the organization.

* * * *

ASIDE FROM Poulos, a prime backer of the club is its secretary, Ventura County oil millionaire Fritz Huntsinger. His military career was ended in World War I when the English captured him. He was a private in the German army.

With such an irreverent background and backers, it is bound to be that the club is zany and good-natured in its meetings. Members insist the informality is the foundation of good relationships.

"We have the minimum of bylaws," said George, "When we have a special problem, we get up some kind of a committee."

It was about this time that Murphy interrupted to complain loudly he was having trouble collecting the dues.

"Everybody seems to only have a $50 bill on them."

World's Fair Group to Give Port Board Report in Public

California World's Fair officials will sit down with Long Beach Harbor commissioners Sept. 23 for frank discussions of the 1967-68 exposition and its problems.

In announcing they were accepting the Board of Harbor Commissioners' invitation, the fair leaders, claimed such a hearing was what they had wanted all along.

The fair officials last week took two steps in the wake of Monday's demand for a hearing on fair troubles and current status. They sent a letter to the board, saying they had wanted such a meeting "for some time", but must have at least two hours of board time to cover all bases.

* * * *

THE FAIR officials also put out a three-page news release which gave the impression that the harbor commissioners, not they, were complying with a request for a formal report on the multimillion-dollar project.

Quoting Nelson McCook Jr., president of the fair organization, the release read:

"'We are most pleased that the Harbor Commission has expressed a willingness to take time necessary to receive our report,' McCook said. 'Just two weeks ago, when our newly elected board chairman, Dan A. Kimball, visited with some of the Commissioner, he requested such a meeting. We are delighted that our request has been taken up this quickly.'"

The release made note that the fair has been under attack by a group of 'dissidents."

The release also claimed the fair "has requested the Attorney General of California to intercede to prevent (such) future unwarranted attacks."

Atty. Gen. Stanley Mosk said last week he was considering an investigation into fair matters.

The request for a full public report on fair activities and problems was made by the Harbor Board on the motion of Commissioner John Davis who said he was deeply worried about reports of dissension, court action and fair finances.

* * * *

HE MADE the request after the Harbor Department voted to allocate $50,000-a-year for engineering services to the fair.

Davis said he felt such a hearing would get at all the facts and said he felt it was the harbor's right as landlords. The fair is slated to be held on the 311-acre Pier J. now being built in the harbor.

The Harbor Department has invited the general public to attend the hearing and has asked the fair officials for an outline of their two-hour briefing.

UP BRITISH COLUMBIA WAY

High Charm of Ferryboat Transportation Lingers On

By CHARLES SUTTON

Given a choice between a fast passenger plane and a slow ferryboat, most people today would probably choose the airplane.

Up around Vancouver Island, British Columbia, the folks don't seem to know any better, though. In the past three years, they've been turning to the ferryboat with a consistency that has simply amazed transportation experts.

* * * *

IT ALL started when the provincial government decided to operate a ferry system between the island and the Canadian mainland, explained M. F. Aldous, general manager of the British Columbus Ferry Authority.

The government tried to get private enterprise to enter the business, said Aldous, a recent visitor to Long Beach. But no firm was willing to gamble on what appeared to be a losing proposition. "So we went into it ourselves," he said.

"We bought up the previous existing systems (which, apparently, were losing money) and built nine new ferries, making 18 in all."

* * * *

"BEFORE LONG," he went on, "we found we were not only operating at a profit, but we were taking business away from the airline which had been shuttling passengers between the island and the mainland.

"Thus far, we've drawn 90 percent of their business away from them, and we're one of the few government setups that are actually making money."

Aldous, a tall, ruddy man with a friendly smile, is under no illusions that British Columbia's experience can be repeated elsewhere on the continent—at least not with any regularity.

* * * *

"WE LIVE at such a high tempo that we can't slow down," he observed. "We've lost the art of relaxing, and traveling by ferry is really a relaxed way of living."

Nevertheless, he went on, the ferry is far from dead. Proof of this can be seen in two areas outside of his own British Columbia. In Alaska, he pointed out, ferries are beginning to carry passengers between the coastal cities; and in Hawaii, the government is considering the use of ferries to spread the tourist business to the other islands in the archipelego.

The British Columbia ferries, most of them sleek, 3,000-ton jobs which can do up to 18 knots, travel the 30-odd miles between Vancouver Island and the mainlsnd in an hour and 40 minutes, said Aldous.

* * * *

EACH OF the boats has a capacity of 120 motor vehicles and 1,000 passengers. The whole system carries 1.5 million passengers a year, of whom 100,000 are American tourists.

"As a matter of fact, 55 percent of our California business comes from the southern part of the state," he added.

Aldous said ferries are still an integral part of Europe's transportation network. "But compared to our more functional boats, theirs are quite luxurious."

He said British Columbia and the state of Washington operate the two biggest ferry systems in the world, but that the White Star Line in Hong Kong carries the most passengers.

* * * *

TO ALDOUS, the general decline of the ferry system in North America is a sad phenomenon. And for a moment, as he reflected on that fact, his otherwise smiling face turned serious. "It's too bad," he mused, "but it seems we're losing our romance for the sea."

He might have added: except in British Columbia, where the natives and the tourists alike are choosing the ferry over the airplane, and enjoying every minute of it.

HE GOES OUT OF HIS WAY TO SAVE AT COMMUNITY
(because we go out of our way for him)

He's not quite old enough to use our children's teller window, but he can have a special trust account. Or we'll be glad to open a "custodian for minor" account which gives him various tax advantages. When he gets a little older, he can have an account in his own name, also a joint account with his mother, another with his father and still another with his sister. With any of these accounts, his savings will grow rapidly with our daily interest policy. (His savings earn from the day received as long as they remain through the end of the quarter.) They're well protected too, for they're insured to $10,000 by an instrumentality of the United States government. There are many more reasons why he goes out of his way to save at Community. Not the least of these is the fact that he's a ladies' man... and he just loves all the attention he gets from our tellers.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Sinatra's Casino Being Probed

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI)—State gaming officials Saturday were conducting an investigation to determine if singer Frank Sinatra's Cal-Neva Lodge at Lake Tahoe catered to underworld figure Sam Giancana.

If so, Sinatra could lose his gambling license at the plush hotel-casino about 30 miles from Reno.

Edward Olsen, chairman of the State Gaming Control Board, confirmed "a number of persons" had been questioned to clear up "certain discrepancies in their information."

Giancana, 53, is listed in the state's "Black Book" as persona non grata in Nevada casinos. The book, issued by gaming authorities several years ago, lists many underworld figures and warns casino operators they risk loss of their license if they cater to hoodlums. Those listed may stay at hotels where there is no gambling, however.

Sinatra would not comment on the matter. He and Dean Martin currently are appearing in the hotel's theater-restaurant.

KATHY HALES
Weeps With Joy

Big Girl Wins

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Kathy Hales of Redlands, oldest and tallest of 13 finalists, was named Maid of California at the California State Fair Saturday. She wept with joy when her name was called.

The 21-year-old brunette stands 5-10½ and weighs 136 lbs. Her measurements are 37-24-37. The girls were scored 80 per cent on beauty and the rest on poise and personality.

Earlier this year Miss Hales competed in the Miss California Contest and was named Orange Show Queen in San Bernardino County. She said she won't return to Redlands University where she studied last term, but will keep the job she got this summer as assistant buyer in a Redlands department store.

Patsy Kelly Jailed

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Comedienne Patsy Kelly was booked in county jail Saturday along with two friends on suspicion of drunkenness and disturbing the peace. "I just don't believe what happened," said the 53-year-old actress who played in many films during the thirties.

PATSY

Police said Miss Kelly "passed out" during the booking after she and her companions were taken into custody at 5 a.m. while sitting in a parked car in La Jolla.

Officers said residents in the area complained of loud talk and quarreling. Miss Kelly said her arms were bruised when patrolmen handcuffed her hands behind her back to take her to police headquarters and then to county jail.

JFK to Visit West

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy will visit 10 states in a five-day trip this month to inspect national parks and other projects from Pennsylvania to the West Coast.

The President will be on the trip from Sept. 25 to Sept. 29, and will visit Pennsylvania, Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, Utah, Washington, Oregon, California and Nevada.

Artist Braque Dead at 81

PARIS (AP)—Georges Braque, who joined with Pablo Picasso in launching the cubist revolution in art and altered the course of painting in the 20th century, died Saturday. He was 81.

A member of Braque's family said he had been seriously ill for several months. He passed away in his Paris home in the same Left Bank area from which he and Picasso founded the cubist school of art at the turn of the century with their radical style of brazenly colored geometric patterns.

BRAQUE

Braque's work did not find easy acceptance, and in 1908, the celebrated Salon of Autumn Gallery of then-modern painters refused to exhibit his paintings.

But the dedicated Braque continued to turn out his unprofitable paintings and introduced other innovations in the world of art until he was finally recognized as a giant of his era.

Celebrity Choices Asked for City Ball

ing of the honor.

They can be from any walk of life—business or professional, public service, political, sports, fine arts, from the entertainment world or from the armed services.

Public nominations, starting today, will continue through Sept. 15, Hosking said.

Suggested names, along with reasons why the nominator believes the individual qualifies as one of Long Beach's 75 celebrities, should be sent to Box H-7831, Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12.

• • • •

NOMINATIONS by the public, Hosking said, will provide a list of potential celebrities. Final decesions will be by a celebrity selection jury.

The jury will include representatives of Associated Press, United Press International and City News Service, with Jubilee Executive Committee members serving as advisors.

Final selection will be accomplished by Sept. 18, Hosking said.

He explained, further, that leaders will be selected on the basis of national recognition they have brought to the city or for achievement of outstanding works.

All must have had direct contact with Long Beach, either past or present.

• • • •

IMMEDIATELY after the jury has made its selection, those named will receive official proclamations from the City of Long Beach, the city's official invitation for guests of honor at the Celebrity Ball.

They will be contacted, also, by a specially appointed Long Beach host who will assist with arrangements and accommodations for those now living outside the city.

This is your opportunity to have a voice in Long Beach's 75th anniversary celebration.

Send your nominations to the Independent, Press-Telegram—TODAY.

Eisenhower Party to Be Nonpartisan

WASHINGTON (AP)—Adm. Lewis Strauss said Saturday a gathering of about 700 prominent Americans in Hershey, Pa., Oct. 19 to honor former President Eisenhower will have "no political significance."

Strauss, former chairman of the Atomic Energy Comission, said politics didn't enter into the matter when former guests of Eisenhower at White House stag dinners decided to return the compliment with a celebration two days before the former President's 73rd birthday.

• • • •

"I AM SURE there will be prominent Democrats there as well as prominent Republicans," Strauss said.

There have been reports from other quarters that informal discussion of 1964 GOP presidential possibilities could be expected when Eisenhower chats with some of the party's large financial contributors who rated invitations to the White House dinners.

Despite Strauss' disavowal, it seems likely that anyone who wants to talk a little politics on the side will not be ostracized.

The former President has made it clear to associates that he intends to do all he can to see to it that a moderate Republican is the nominee. But he and his friends have not settled on any individual to challenge the acknowledged current lead of conservative Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona among those publicly mentioned for the nomination.

• • • •

GOLDWATER, who speaks at a Republican fund-raising dinner in Hershey Oct. 10, was not among those invited to the Eisenhower affair.

However, Gov. Rockefeller of New York, for whom Eisenhower seems recently to have little political enthusiasm, could turn up along with several others the former President mentioned as available for the nomination.

Rockefeller and his three brothers were included among guests at the White House stag affairs.

Blonde, 18, From N.Y. Miss USA

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP)—Michele Metrinko, 18-year-old blue-eyed blonde representing New York City, was named Miss USA Saturday.

Miss Metrinko, who stands 5 feet, 8½ inches tall and has a 36-24-36 figure, beat 44 other contestants and will represent the United States in the Miss World Contest in London in November.

The first runner-up was Miss Alabama, Kathy Miller, a 19-year-old student at the University of Southern Mississippi.

• • • •

MISS OHIO, Diane Budan of Parma, 20-year-old student and model was second runner-up.

Third runner-up was Miss Arkansas, Kathlene Darden, 18, a greeneyed brunette from Little Rock.

Miss Metrinko is a student at Georgetown University, majoring in international affairs. She has modeled for photographers and in fashion shows to help pay her tuition.

Her hobbies include dance, drama, singing, and debate. She served as a disc jockey in a Washington, D. C., radio station while going to school.

Rainstorm Hits Railway, Bus Lines in Japan

TOKYO (AP)—A rainstrom cut through western and central Japan Saturday distrupting railway and bus service in numerous places. National police headquarters said one person was known dead and eight others were injured in the storm that brought up to six inches of rain in less than 10 hours in northwestern Japan.

The National Railway Corp. reported nearly 150,000 commuters stranded as trains were suspended or delayed. The Maritime Safety Board said five or six small vessels capsized in central western Japan and at least two crew members were reported missing.

Navy Nets Future Flyer

TEARS TURNED INTO TRIUMPH AS TIPPY TAKES OVER BASE

By ANDY PARK

Tippy's tears turned to triumph Saturday when he took over the Los Alamitos Naval Air Station—with the express permission of Commanding Officer Capt. William P. Tanner.

Tippy, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest T. Hickox, of 2952 Angler Lane, Rossmoor, had been to the base before, to see the Blue Angels, the model airplane show and watch the jets on Aug. 4 when the air station held open house.

His parents couldn't take him, they had to work. So Tippy talked his 16-year-old brother Timmy into borrowing a bicycle to ride out to the station.

Timmy borrowed a 10-speed racing bike from his friend, Mike Anderson, and off went Tippy along with more than 100,000 other visitors to the annual Navy air show.

• • • •

BUT WHEN Tippy got ready to leave late in the day, the bike was gone.

Tippy told it to the Marines, guarding the station. The Marines told it to the Navy, guarding the Marines. And the Navy told it to Tanner, commatiding the Navy.

(Somebody also told it to Vice Adm. Fitzhugh Lee, Chief of Naval Air Training, who was a guest that Saturday at the station. That did it! Tanner told Cmdr. Charles F. Means who, in turn, told LCDR. Reno Bresso who, in turn took over.)

Bresso passed the hat. And a naval officer's hat can hold a lot of hospitality. Money was collected to buy Tippy a new bike to replace the one Timmy had borrowed from Mike. (You still with us?)

But, by then, Hickox had replaced Mike's bike. So the Navy just turned around and turned the base over to Tippy and his family.

Saturday, Tippy, twin brothers Teddy and Terry, 5, mother and dad, were welcomed through the Main Gate by Bresso.

First, a tour of the station in VIP style. Up to the top of the control tower, in and out of the jets, chow with the sailors at noon. ("He never eats corned beef and cabbage at home," Mom sighed, "but here, he thinks it's wonderful!") salutes from the sailors on duty, a movie all about a career as a naval aviator. "It's never too early to get in a plug," Bresso observed.) and then, a spin in the captain's chair.

Capt. Tanner presented Tippy with a model of the latest Navy jet fighter, pictures for Teddy and Terry and, last but not least, a heart-to-heart chat with the boys, answering all their questions.

Tippy took it all in, checked the medals on Tanner's chest, and allowed: "I might be a Navy pilot, when I grow up!"

Tanner—a practical man—considers that statement a promissory note.

FLYING HIGH with Los Alamitos NAS commander, Captain William P. Tanner, are Terry (or Teddy), Tippy, and Teddy (or Terry) Hickox. The NAS skipper turned over the base to the boys Saturday because Tippy lost a bike the last time he visited.

Sen. Engle Sits Up, Expected to Leave Hospital in 3 Weeks

By VIRGINIA KELLY
L. P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—Sen. Clair Engle (D-Calif.) sat up for the first time Saturday since undergoing brain surgery and his wife has every hope he will be recuperating at home by Sept. 21—the senator's 51st birthday.

Mrs. Engle, obviously cheered by her husband's progress since his operation last weekend, called to tell this writer the doctors say Sen. Engle will be allowed to sit up for increasingly long periods of time.

• • • •

HIS PROGRESS is most satisfactory and he should be able to go home in a few days—barring complications—the doctors have told Mrs. Engle.

Meantime, Mrs. Engle is keeping a careful list of all the expressions of concern and sympathy that poured in on the senator since the operation. Hundreds of cards and letters have dropped into his mailbox, not only from California, but from across the nation.

Mrs. Engle is staying with Sen. and Mrs. Stephen Young, Ohio Democrats, so as to be nearer the hospital where her husband is recuperating.

But the expressions of friendship and concern that have come his way have no relationship to partisan politics. As was to be expected, the senator's fellow Democrats in the Senate and former Democratic Congressmen from the days when he served in the House of Representatives, have rallied to his side.

The California Republican delegation quickly expressed its sympathy and concern.

One of the more lovely of the bouquets placed in his hospital room was from Sen. Everett Dirksen, Illinois Republican and minority leader of the Senate.

• • • •

ANOTHER beautiful bouquet was from Sen. Thurston B. Morton of Kentucky, chairman of the Senate Republican Campaign Committee. He is a good personal friend of Sen. Engle, and although they differ on issues in the Senate, the friendship remains strong.

Southern Democrats, with whom Sen. Engle has had his differences, also have told this writer how very fond they are of Sen. Engle personally.

Mrs. Engle said the senator told her he will read each card he has received before he completes his recuperation and is back on the job in the Senate.

White House Notes Few Vehicles New

President as was the Douglas DC-6B which is used to go into airports which cannot accommodate jets."

Byrd—"A 21-foot Lincoln Continental automobile and three other family cars in addition to Secret Service vehicles and the regular White House fleet."

Comment: "This is the President's bubble-top which was ordered by the previous administration and delivered during this administration, and which is leased from the Ford Motor Co. for an infinitesimal sum—so small that I would embarrass the Ford Motor Co. if I told you what it was.

Byrd—"A special railroad car."

Comment: "There have been special railroad cars available to Presidents ever since railroads were organized."

(The White House has no railroad car; the last one was retired to a rail museum in the Truman administration.)

Byrd—"Two yachts, another yacht available from the Navy and a racing yawl supplied through the Coast Guard."

Comment: "Two yachts, these are the same yachts that were described as cabin cruisers by the previous administration. The only change is they have been renamed from the names President Eisenhower gave them to the names President Kennedy gave them. Another yacht from the Navy—I presume he is speaking of the Sequoia, which is assigned to the Secretary of the Navy on which the President has been a guest several times, finally, a racing yawl, the Manitou which is a sailing ship which the President, I think, has used four or five times in 2½ years. It was only available to the President when he was in the area where the boat was."

The President uses a 92-foot yacht named Honey Fitz, the nickname of his maternal grandfather. A second yacht is the Patrick J., named for his paternal grandfather. Former President Eisenhower named the same boats the Barbara Anne and the Susie Q. — after his granddaughters—when he used them.

Arizona Car Crash Kills Redondo Tot

A Redondo Beach baby was killed and four members of his family were injured Friday night in an auto accident 22 miles east of Kingman, Ariz., on U.S. 66, it was reported here Saturday.

Dead is Paul Wayne Xavier, 4 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Xavier, of 2409 Hadley Lane.

The parents and their three other children, Jeanette, 5, Mark, 4, and Craig, 2, are in a Kingman hospital. Officers said none was believed to be in critical condition.

The Arizona Highway Patrol said the Xavier car struck a culvert and overturned.

Pianist Refuses to Play With Robot

NEWCASTLE, England (UPI)—Pianist Alan Blomerey has refused to play on a commercial television program to the accompaniment of a robot drum because it was "a threat to musicians."

The drum, which can beat out a samba or a cha-cha-cha, played alone.

Turncoat Succumbs in Moscow

LONDON, Sunday (AP)—Guy Burgess, British Foreign Office offical who fled to Russia in 1951, has died in a Moscow hospital after a heart attack, friends reported today.

A message announcing his death was received Saturday by his 76-year-old mother, Mrs. Eve Basset. It came from Melinda MacLean, American wife of Donald MacLean, the Foreign Office security chief who defected with Burgess.

Burgess, 53, slipped out of Britain with MacLean 12 years ago and set off one of the greatest spy scandals of the Cold War.

• • • •

MacLEAN had been first secretary at the British Embassy in Washington and had worked in Security in the Middle East. Together Burgess and MacLean held a host of Anglo-American secrets.

They were tipped off by yet another defector, Harold "Kim" Philby.

Philby was exposed as the third man in the affair this year. He vanished from Beirut in January and the British have evidence that he too is in the Soviet Union.

Utility Firm Reveals $714-Million Plan

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—A $714 million electric service expansion program during the next 17 years was announced Saturday by the San Diego Gas & Electric Co.

President Joseph F. Sinnott said the program would add about 3,275,000 kilowatts of generating capability, almost quadrupling the present capacity of the company's four plants. The plan envisages 14 new generating units including four nuclear facilities at a cost of $340 million.

Heavenly Sign, in Its Way

As anyone who knows anything at all knows, there is no such a thing as a skyhook.

But there is something mighty like one. Ask James Owens of 5103 Carmelynn St., Torrance. The closest thing there is to a skyhook came unhooked high in the sky and crashed through Owens' living-room window.

A piece of aluminum tubing and fabric 7½ feet long, it narrowly missed children in the Owens' patio, smashed the window and landed on Owens' couch.

Chuck Burnes of Aircraft Associates, Long Beach, said the tubing was the "tail flag" of a skysign towed by one of his planes. It is what keeps the sign straight so people can read it—just like a skyhook.

But, "the plane hit a cross wind and it whipped off," he said.

And Owens. Was he thinking of skyhooks when his window shattered?

"No," he said, in the practical tones of a father. "I thought one of the kids had done it. It looked like a beach umbrella."

march tonight after a mass rally at a church.

Police Chief Dennis Songy blocked their path two blocks from Griffon's house where they had come to ask him to use his influence on local officials here to meet Negro demands — including formation of a bi-racial committee.

Songy told them he was stopping them to let football traffic from a jamboree pass by. In a few moments, 8-10 mounted state police arrived.

• • • •

SONGY ordered the Negroes to break up. They did'nt He signaled the troopers to charge.

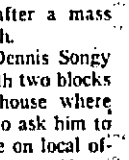

About 50 white bystanders watched, shouting encouragement to police.

One rider went after Brooks Read, a TV new director from Baton Rouge, who was filming the scene.

U.S., Utah Differ Over Mine Blast

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—A dispute erupted Saturday between Utah Gov. George D. Clyde and Interior Secretary Stewart Udall over safety practices at the Moab Patash Mine where 18 men were killed Tuesday.

The governor issued a statement in which he said records of the Harrison International Co., the contractor, and Texas Gulf Sulphur Co., operator of the mine, "fully document compliance with the state mine inspector's orders and recommendations, as well as action taken by them to initiate their own safety programs.

* * * *

"THE SATISFACTORY character of the safety program in the mine is further attested by the inspector for the contractor's insurance company."

Udall said Wednesday the "contractors were warned of the severe danger only three weeks ago when methane gas was ignited while workers were drilling rock bolt holes in the drifts where the explosion occurred."

"Mr. Udall ignored the facts in his use of the Utah mine explosion as an example to underscore 'laxness of safety practices in some segments of the industry,'" the governor claimed. "Few facts were available concerning the explosion and its causes at the time the Udall statement was issued last Wednesday."

However, Clyde noted, "we now know the explosion did not occur at the working base, but in an area near the shaft, some 2,000 feet away from the working space in a different mine opening than the referred to in the Udall statement."

* * * *

UDALL MADE the statement while ordering a federal investigation of the disaster which was survived by seven men. Clyde also ordered a state investigation which he said "will document the safety programs and practices of all parties concerned and which will determine as nearly as possible the cause of the explosion."

The governor said he "fully" expected the reports on the investigation will show the conscientious efforts and good faith of the state and operating parties involved..."

Clyde said Mine Inspector John W. Holmes of the State Industrial Commission made 10 inspections of the property since May 1951, shortly after construction of the mine was started. Five of the inspections were this year with the most recent state inspection made on July 30.

Records indicated the latest visit of authorized personnel from the Interior Department was on July 23.

EIGHTY-YEAR-OLD WOULD HAVE MADE BETTER TIME EXCEPT FOR FALLS

LAND HO!

most of the way, said Sloan, who also skippered the "Queen" on the four previous trips.

Ashbridge, who lives at 16520 Grand Ave., Elsinore, said Saturday's trip was the roughest of all five he's taken.

"Maybe I'm getting old," he observed seriously. "I was worried whether I'd hang together. Right now my muscles are a little sore but you can bet they'll be worse tomorrow."

"I'll tell you one thing," he continued. "I won't make next year's trip without getting in some more practice. I skied only three hours all year before this one, and that just isn't enough."

Ashbridge admittedly was "very tired and winded" at the end of the trying journey, but Sloan said the little octogenarian nevertheless managed to walk a mile and a half when they got ashore at Catalina Harbor.

ASHBRIDGE sported a heavy tan and a slight bulge around the middle as he tested his sea legs Saturday.

Before getting under way, he took a short practice run. Putting on a smile as wide as the channel itself, the British-born boat builder went through a series of maneuvers for the benefit of newsmen. If there were any doubts about either his skill or his durability, they were decisively laid to rest then.

Last year, when he made the trip in record time, the boat-builder was hurried along some by the presence of a 12-foot shark. He spotted the big fish after taking his one and only fall of the trip.

38-MILE SKI, TWO SPILLS

ON SATURDAY'S jaunt, skipper Sloan and his son, Price Sloan Jr., spotted a shark, but Ashbridge said he was too busy water-skiing to nitice it himself.

Despite his aches and pains, Ashbridge said he still intends to water-ski the 27 miles from Catalina Harbor to Avalon Monday.

Is he worried?

"Oh, no, this is going to be easy," he chortled.

LBJ Plans Trip to Scandinavia

By BILL BROOM
I. P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—In its preoccupation with power politics in Europe and wooing the underprivileged countries, the United States becomes vulnerable to accusations that it forgets its friends and allies who are neither big nor destitute.

Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson will set out Monday to erase that charge in at least one area of the globe. He is making a two-week state visit to the nations of Scandinavia. No United States President or vice president has visited them while in office.

There are many reasons for such a tour. Millions of Americans, particularly in Minnesota, Wisconsin and the northern tier of states have strong ethnic and cultural ties with their forebears' homelands.

* * * *

THERE IS, in addition, strong U. S. rapport with the Scandinavian countries in foreign affairs, international peace organization and in trade. The vice president plans to place particular emphasis on the latter in extensive talks with government leaders.

The discussions are expected to center primarily around the effect that new world trade patterns will have on Scandinavia.

According to the state department, the five countries, Finland, Sweden, Norway, Denmark and Iceland are among the nations on the outside looking in as Western Europe's Common Market coalesces into one.

As a member of the "outer seven" in the European free trade area with Great Britain, the Scandinavian countries were left out on a limb when Britain's entry into the Common Market struck a snag named Charles de Gaulle. Their admittance was tied to solution of many of the same problems that the Common Market and Britain found it impossible to solve for the present.

The State Department prefaced the vice president's departure with a statement that he is making the trip "to express the friendship of the United States and pay tribute to the Scandinavian people for their many accomplishments."

* * * *

THE TOUR will follow a pattern Johnson has established in his previous trips to Southeast Asia, the Middle East, Western Europe and the Caribbean. That is to say, hardly any corner of the terrain, no matter how remote, is immune to a spur-of-the-moment stop from LBJ, the onetime host and sponsor of a Pakistani camel driver. Reindeer drivers in Lapland, beware!

The schedule calls for a day in Ronaniemi, on the Arctic Circle, to meet the people of Lapland, a stop at a fishing village in Norway, visits to fairs, speeches to university students, and talks with labor and business groups.

En route back to the United States from Iceland, Johnson will visit American airmen who man the U. S. radar and air defense at Thule, Greenland.

* * * *

ALL TOLD, he has more than 40 speeches scheduled for the 15-day, 15,000-mile tour. Since taking office in January 1961, Johnson has traveled 115,000 miles while making official visits to 17 foreign countries where he has made 110 speeches.

While the vice president tills the diplomatic and political fields, his wife will concentrate on visits to farms and rural co-operatives. Daughter Lynda Bird, a college sophomore, has been invited by the host governments and will visit university campuses and student groups.

* * * *

IN A predeparture statement, the vice president said:

"I am looking forward with great pleasure to visiting the leaders and the peoples of each of the countries. I hope this trip will serve to remind all of us of their close and friendly ties with the United States.

Boatmen! You Can't Sail Across Pier J

Yachtsmen were warned by the Coast Guard Saturday that Long Beach's new Pier J is in the awkward stage.

It is too low in the water to drive across much too high to sail across.

The 310-acre, man-made peninsula rising from the floor of the ocean already has taken a toll of 50 boats either sunk or damaged, the Coast Guard said.

In a special alert to weekend sailors, 11th Coast Guard District Headquarters here has mailed 12,000 copies of charts of the construction area to boat landings and small - craft organizations throughout Southern California.

The pier, which is being constructed by land fill, will be the site of the 1967-68 California World's Fair. Much of it is close enough to the surface to rip the bottoms of boats at high tide.

The Coast Guard noted U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey charts 5147-5148 clearly define boundaries of the construction area, along with the structures and lights which mark the danger area.

$7-Million Contract

A $7-million contract for development of the Shillelagh tank-mounted missile system has been awarded the Aeronutronic Division of Philco Corp., a subsidiary of Ford Motor Co., the Army said Saturday. Work on the surface-to-surface missile will be done at the firm's facilities in Newport Beach.

Brown Raps Foreign Aid Cut

BONN, Germany (UPI) — Gov. Brown of California Saturday called Congress' rejection of President Kennedy's minimum foreign-aid request "a tragedy."

Brown said, "Congress just does not understand the success we are having with our foreign-aid program."

* * * *

HIS COMMENT came at the end of a European tour which included Ireland, Germany, France, Italy, Belgium, Switzerland and Yugoslavia.

"What we did in Europe with our aid program," Brown told newsmen "was the greatest advance in defense against Communism in the last 15 years.

"This was clear to me even in Yugoslavia. Unquestionably communism has been slowed by our aid programs. It is not cheap, but it is cheaper than another war."

Brown said the major purposes of his combined business-pleasure tour have been to study possibilities for increasing sales of California products here and to study medical and health insurance plans.

"California can sell a great deal more here in Europe, and can do more to stimulate trade," he said.

* * * *

BROWN said he may follow the precedent set by New York state, which has established a liaison affice in Brussels to maintain contact with the high commission of the six-nation European Common Market and the U.S. mission attached to it.

Brown indicated he may even go a step further and establish some kind of California trade office in each of the six Common Market countries and also in Switzerland.

Audience Listens In on Slaying

SANTA CRUZ, Brazil (AP)—A state legislator was shot dead in a radio station Saturday while he was on the air in a political debate.

Police said his opponent burst into the studio, drew a pistol and killed him instantly.

Radio listeners in this city of 60,000 northwest of Porto Alegre heard sudden shouting followed by the sound of firing.

Slain was Euclides Kleimann, a legislator for Rio Grande do Sul.

Police arrested Floriano Peixoto, a Santa Cruz city councillor, and held him incommunicado.

* * * *

KLEIMANN'S wife Margit was killed one year ago in Porto Alegre. Police have not been able to find out who killed her or why.

Kleimann and Peixoto had been given equal time on the radio in a statewide election campaign. Each was to alternate a day on the air.

Kleimann was a member of the Social Democratic Party. Peixoto belongs to President Joao Goulart's Brazilian Labor Party. The parties are bitter adversaries in the election scheduled for November.

OLD WORDS have new meanings, and to some of today's kids, those are the only meanings.

Friend of mine discovered this when he and his wife took their granddaughter and friend, both elevenish, to their mountain cabin for a weekend.

It was a chilly night at that high altitude, and about 11 p.m. both girls complained that their heads were cold.

"You should have nightcaps," said the grandmother.

The girls looked at each other in amazement.

"Do you mean," asked the granddaughter, "that it would help keep our heads warm if we had a little something out of grandad's bottle?"

AUTO insurance rates are abominably high because of the frequency of accidents, the high charges for repairs, and the outlandish verdicts juries tend to render when insurance is involved in a damage suit trial.

But in my experience I've observed one saving factor in this otherwise painful situation and it deserves mention.

That is the courteous treatment and excellent service generally given by auto insurance agents.

I've had dealings with a number of these fellows and have found them uniformly prompt, helpful, understanding and efficient. And that's something in a world that sometimes seems to have gone mad for the fast buck and to heck with everything else.

The rates are awful but by golly, the services and general attitude toward the customer is wonderful.

GOSSIP about "wild kids" who hang around Seal Beach has been heard by Mrs. Wm. Testa of Long Beach, and on the basis of a recent experience she is not convinced.

After a recent Cub Scout picnic the Testa car got off the paved parking area and soon was imbedded up to the chassis in sand.

Within two minutes a group of young men, who came running from all directions, came to their aid. They lifted and tugged and soon had the car on solid ground.

"If these are the wild ones, give us more like them," wrote Mrs Testa in a note to this dept.

KIDS WHO make frivolous calls on the telephone are getting to be a local nuisance. It's an old adolescent fad which appears to have had a recent active revival.

One resident tells about a call received the other day:

"Hello," said a teen-age feminine voice. "I don't know you and you don't know me. But will you answer a question?"

The householder agreed and the voice went on: "How do you place six elephants in a Volkswagen?"

It just happened that the householder had heard this one on TV the night before and he promptly replied:

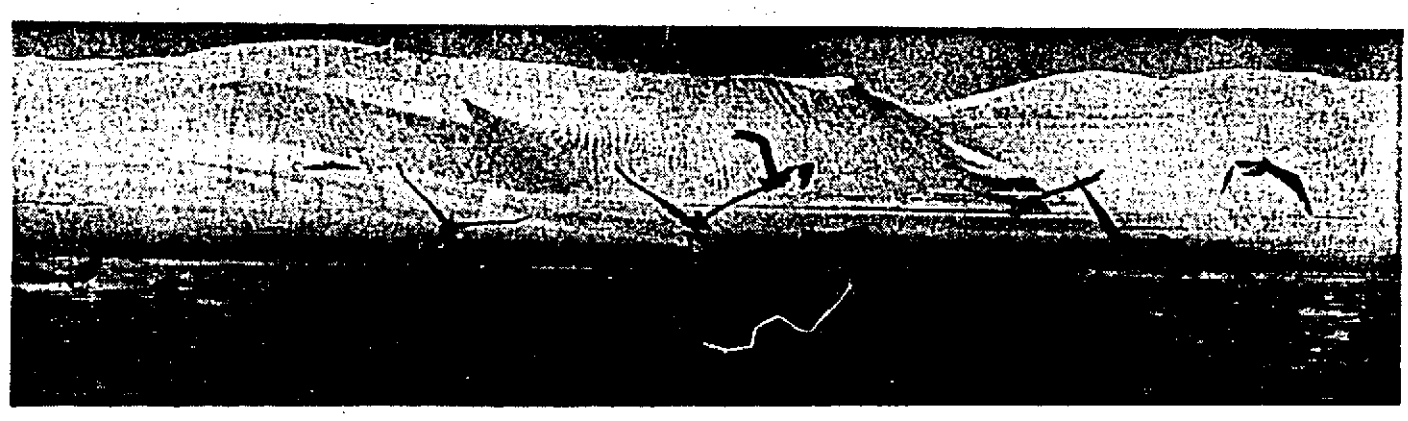

"Sure. Three in the front seat and three in the back seat."

The girl on the other end of the line gasped. "I sure don't like smart Alecs," she said.

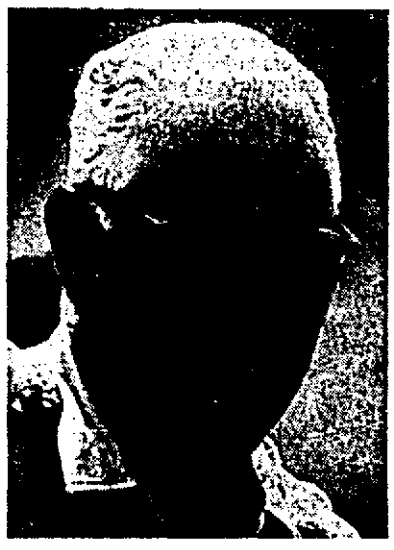

DRIFTWOOD — When an emergency illness occurred in the home, a northside resident rushed out to get a prescription filled at a pharmacy. No one was at home with the sick person, and he wanted to make it quick. It was a holiday and in frantic driving in his area, he found three liquor stores open and every drugstore locked tight . . . They've about got the new sidewalk ready along the Seventh St. side of VA Hospital where it has so long been needed by State College students and faculty pedestrians. Odd thing: It goes inside the concrete fence, not outside along the highway. That great landscaping at VA should make it one of the most pleasant walks in the area.

BLACK WARRIOR LAGOON — Isolated, primitive and majestically empty, Baja California has been breaking men's hearts and smashing their dreams for more than 400 years.

A peninsular land of burning deserts, barren mountains, desolate shores, shimmering mirages and the nightmare Boojum trees, Baja has beaten the best sent its way.

The long line of losers since the first white man came ashore in 1533 have included the Spanish conquistadores, the Mission padres, Yankee whalers and a wily collection of business, mining, ranching and land adventurers.

But at last this hostile country, nearly twice as long as Florida, has met its match in Exportadora de Sal, a U. S.-owned company which has prospered from the peninsula's inhospitable ways.

EXPORTADORA DE SAL is the latest international adventure of Daniel Keith Ludwig, a Michigan millionaire who is the world's biggest individual ship operator, with a $350 million empire that includes 15 per cent of Union Oil Co.

Ludwig, who avoids publicity, has pumped more than $18 million into Exportadora since he took over in 1957 and has made it the world's largest and busiest solar salt works.

The Ludwig enterprise is situated on 225,000 acres of tidal marsh and desert country which he leases from the Mexican government. The leasehold encompasses Guerrero Negro (Black Warrior) and Scammon's lagoons, a pair of big natural inlets about midway down the western coast of Baja and 500 miles south of Long Beach.

Scammon's, bigger of the two, is famed as the gathering grounds of the grey whales which each year migrate 6,000 miles from the Bering Sea to bear their young in its warm waters.

BECAUSE TWO of the Pacific basin's most important ocean streams—the Humboldt and Japanese currents—converge just south of Scammon's, the area gets only about two inches of rainfall a year and is continually swept by dry landward winds.

This and the existence of great beds of ancient salt, 40 feet thick in places, which surround the lagoon, makes the locale an ideal place for a solar salt works.

"We couldn't have found a better spot to make salt if we had looked the world over," says Percival J. (Sandy) Cuttings, 61-year-old globe-trotting mining engineer who is the field boss of Exportadora.

Simply understated, Cuttings and his crew of 140 have only to let the sea into huge spreading basins and the wind and sun do the rest—evaporating water and crystallizing the salt.

THE SEA WATER, brought in from Scammon's Lagoon, through an intricate system of canals and tidal gates, is fed into 22,000 acres of ponds where—in stages lasting up to nine months—an eight to 10 inch thick layer of almost pure (99.4 per cent sodium chloride is created.

Until two years ago when Cuttings was hired by Ludwig, the operation was limping along the brink of trouble.

He assembled a huge fleet of special harvesting machines, trucks and trailers and put the whole operation on a tight timetable.

Production soared and last year his salt harvesters, which can tear up the salt beds and load the $65,000 truck-trailer rigs at a rate of six tons per minute, gathered 1,151,500 tons of industrial salt for shipment to Japan, the U. S. and Canada.

Nearly 100 ships called at the project's deep water port at the headwaters of the lagoon to load this cargo.

These ships carried 700,000 tons to Japan, 400,000 to Seattle-Tacoma and most of the remainder to the operation's newest overseas terminal, the Ocean Salt Co. on Pier A in Long Beach Harbor.

The Pier A facility, which now includes a $500,000 stockpile and a fully-automatic bulkloader, is the distribution point for the southwestern U. S.

THE SALT is used in more than a score of industrial processes including the production of missile fuel, chlorine, paper and lumber bleaches, water softeners and livestock food.

The Long Beach terminal is supported by the world's biggest salt ship, the 66,000-ton SS Argyll, and his plans for major expansions in the very near future including the construction of a refinery.

Where other American interests in Mexico have been accused of exploiting the country, the charge cannot be leveled at Exportadora, says Cuttings.

The company's employes (truckers earn up to $16 a day) are the highest paid industrial workers in the country.

"And we are not exploiting a resource, we are creating one," he says.

Spenders Rule Budget Roost

TALK AS THEY WILL about the relationship between assessment methods and the tax rate increase, county officials realize that the essential factor in any tax picture is spending.

When the county spends more, it has to take in more revenue, which can come mainly from taxes. Increased property development provides the basis for the assessment of additional funds, but this increase has a very hard time keeping up with the demands for expenditures.

The big trouble is that the spenders have strong, well-organized lobbies, and the payers don't.

A COUNTY SUPERVISOR told us the other day: "We hear plenty from the taxpayers when they get their tax bills, but little from them when we're making up the budget. The people we hear from at that time are the groups that want pay raises or more money for projects they're interested in."

The special interest groups exert constant pressure, and there is little or no counter-pressure. An official is naturally responsive to what he hears from the public. He may be reluctant to approve added spending, but with no showing of public support for resistance, he yields to the spending drive. And so the direction of public spending is always UP, never down.

A psychological factor enters here. People who want things are spirited, inspired and have an aura of progressiveness about them. Those who oppose these bright schemes are looked upon as grumpy, mossbackish, unimaginative. Hence there's a reluctance to line up openly on the negative side and enthusiasm is always the other way. It's not easy to be enthusiastically negative.

OBVIOUSLY THERE'S A NEED for a strong, articulate grassroots organization representing the great mass of taxpayers; an organization which will analyze spending proposals, support worthy projects, and carry on a concerted effort to hold the line on wasteful and unnecessary expenditures.

UNFORTUNATELY, many of the people who oppose excessive spending are found among the groups making special demands. The citizen who is a big spender at budget time and an irate taxpayer at collection time just doesn't make sense.

THE IRATE TAXPAYERS need to make up their minds what they really want—and then do something about it. This is an era of demonstrations and marches: How about a taxpayers' march at least once a year at budget time to let the County Board of Supervisors know that the public does care about how its money is spent?

Labor Is Bigger, More Confused

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Every Labor Day finds the American labor situation more confused than it was the year before.

But this is partly paradox. The confusion is not worse. It's just that there is more of it as everything grows bigger.

Actually, more people are employed at higher wages and under better working conditions than ever before in the country's history.

In June the average weekly earnings of factory workers passed the $100 mark for the first time in history.

The minimum wage for workers in interstate commerce industries goes from $1.15 to $1.25 an hour on Sept. 23. The maximum work week will drop to 44 hours at the same time, with overtime bringing one-and-a-half times the basic rate.

THIS WILL AFFECT about 24 million of the 44 million non-supervisory employes of private industry. Minimum wage for another 3.5 million workers previously not covered by the Fair Labor Standards Act will rise to $1 an hour. This will leave another 16.5 million workers still uncovered by the act.

A law passed last year, requiring equal pay for women doing the same work as men, will go into effect June 11, 1964.

Farm employment at eight million workers in July was just half of what it was in the 1910-14 base period. But farm labor earnings are nearly seven times higher than they were 50 years ago.

THOSE ARE THE HIGH LIGHTS on the credit side of the ledger. The problems of the unfortunates whose troubles haven't been solved make up the debit entries. And the inventory of their woes is a constant reminder of what still needs to be done.

The roughly 6 per cent of the nonfarm labor force unemployed—more than four million out of 70 million workers—constitutes the worst blight on the economic landscape.

In all, 14 million workers were unemployed for at least part of last year.

The real underlying cause of unemployment is lack of basic education and training in advanced skills for which there are actual shortages of qualified workers.

The cure for this would seem to be in the nation's school systems and institutions of higher learning—not in labor laws.

But the devices government has come up with to reduce unemployment—public works, manpower training and development, depressed area redevelopment and Social Security—have so far proved inadequate.

Hum of Traffic Now Drowns Out the Roosters in Rumania

BUCHAREST, Rumania—Five years ago when I visited Bucharest, it was a beautiful city where the roosters woke you up in the morning and where the chief sign of free enterprise was the voice of the shoeshine boy drumming up trade.

Today, Bucharest is still beautiful, but the roosters no longer awaken you. The roosters may still crow but they are drowned out by the hum of traffic in the square below. And the voice of the shoeshine boy has been drowned out by the wheels of industry which have been turning so fast that Rumania ranks next to Japan as the fastest-growing country in the world.

PEARSON

Because President Kennedy has set co-existence as the national policy of the U.S.A. and because it has seemed to me important that we learn more about the Communist nations with which we must co-exist, I have been visiting some of these nations around the Black Sea. This included a long motor trip through Rumania.

I found an amazing seaside development near Constanta with new hotels, attractive restaurants, and beaches rivaling Miami. In fact, one Rumanian beach, named Mamaia, seemed patterned after the famous Florida resort city. Mamaia, Rumania, has hotels named Thomas, Neptune, Park Victoria, Rialto, Delta, and has planned them so that wide areas of beautifully planted gardens shout with color in between. They do not jostle and crowd each other as do the hotels in Atlantic City or some parts of Miami. At another beautiful beach area on the other side of Constanta — Eforia, the crowds stream by with the same kind of sports clothes and the same appearance of prosperity as the crowds on Collins Avenue.

In Cluj, Transylvania, in northwestern Rumania, I saw a mixture of the old and the new, the Rumanian, with the Hungarian—a university with old buildings but modern dormitories and a spic-and-span cafeteria able to seat 1,000 at a time; Roman Catholic churches and orthodox churches, some of them rebuilt with government funds.

In Brasov in the Carpathian mountains, I saw a factory turning out 22,000 45-horsepower tractors annually, selling abroad for $2,000. At Plesti, the famous oil center which the U.S. Air Corps tried to knock out during the war, I saw a giant refinery — purchased from the United States — in operation. The Rumanians, incidentally, have developed an oil drill which can operate at great depths without bringing it up to the surface as often as American drills and which they are selling in competition with our drills.

We also had to stop for picturesque but inefficient oxcarts loaded with hay, herds of sheep, and young porkers that spilled out over the highway; and we saw farmers on the hillsides cradling oats with hand cradles that haven't been used on American farms for 50 years.

But despite the backwardness of farm methods, things were moving. There was a spirit of work and enterprise in the air. This was true on the farms and in the cities. Rows of new apartments for workers, and rather handsome apartments, were going up everywhere.

The Rumanians have copied the Soviet technique of taking slabs of concrete and throwing up an apartment house on an assembly-line basis in about 40 days, and Mayor Jon Marcush of Brazov showed me one apartment house, almost completed, which he said hadn't been there two weeks before.

Brazov, a city of 240,000, built 1,800 new apartment units last year, and by August this year had finished 1,600 more. The mayor of Tirgu Mures, a Hungarian city in the heart of Rumania, reported that 1,960 apartments had been built with state funds in 1962 and 3,700 new homes with private funds. He explained in reply to questions that the individual homes had been financed from savings or through loans, in much the same way we finance private building in the U.S.A.

He also revealed that Rumanians not only keep bank accounts but are permitted to have anonymous or numbered accounts, as in Switzerland. This was a bit of capitalism, not permitted in the U.S.A., which I had not expected to find in a socialist state.

The mayor added: "Most of the numbered accounts are opened by husbands who don't want their wives to know how much money they have."

In Bucharest, the great hulking statue of Joe Stalin which towered over the public square five years ago has been removed; also most of the red signs on bridges and overpasses enteating the Rumanian people to work for "the party." They have been replaced by signs which read: "Long live peace and friendship between the people."

Needed: A 'March' Against Crime

WASHINGTON — If a "march on Washington" is the most effective way nowadays to attract national attention, who will organize the next "march?"

Civil rights are supposed to include the right to be safe from robbery, from assault, from rape, from murder. These rights are presumably guaranteed by those provisions in the Constitution which protect the "life, liberty, and property" of all citizens.

LAWRENCE

Orlando W. Wilson, Superintendent of Police in the city of Chicago, said recently:

"Everybody seems to be organizing today to protect civil liberties. I would like to organize the victims of criminal assaults who have been robbed and raped in our streets."

Mr. Wilson is a leading authority on police work, having served as police chief in other cities and as dean of the School of Criminology of the University of California before going to Chicago. He said in a speech this month to a committee of the American Bar Assn.:

"Crime is overwhelming our society . . . in the name of protecting individual liberties, we are permitting so many technicalities to creep into our system of criminal justice that we are no longer convicting a sufficiently high proportion of guilty criminals."

In the nation's capital, Police Chief Robert Murray tells of the frustration among his men due to restrictions on their efforts to enforce the law and due to court decisions that have liberated criminals through technicalities. Chief Murray says:

"The criminal is being afforded more legal protection than the ordinary citizen. I often wonder who, besides the police, is concerned about the rights of citizens to be free from attack by criminals."

Crime in the United States is getting out of hand generally, but some amazing statistics have been issued lately showing the relationship between strict law enforcement and the crime rate. Official figures show, for instance, that in 1962 in Washington, D.C., aggravated assaults were the highest per capita in America. Yet, in Seattle, Wash., and in Milwaukee, Wis.—where criminals are dealt with as criminals—the percentage was about one-tenth of what these crimes were in the national capital.

Chicago has begun an intensive effort to crack down particularly on crimes against persons, and is making progress. But the police chief there thinks crime will never be cleaned up until restrictions that hamstring the police force are removed and court procedures that favor the criminal are changed.

A high-ranking official of the Federal Bureau of Investigation is quoted as saying:

"It's very difficult for law-enforcement people to take the view that crime is a disease and that every person who commits a crime is mentally ill. It's very difficult to tell a policeman who has stood before the blazing gun of a hardened criminal that he's just facing some mentally ill person who should be put away for a while.

"If a person is adjudged insane by competent authorities and his incarceration administered properly, then we in law enforcement can have no kick. But when that person is released to prey upon the public, we are appalled."

The House of Representatives has passed a bill providing for a change in criminal laws that will help the police in the nation's capital, which is governed solely by federal laws. The Senate, however, is under pressure to block the effort, with opposition coming from so-called "liberal" groups and organizations which are more concerned with safeguards for the "civil rights" of those accused of crimes.

The newspapers tell daily of murders, assaults, robberies, rapes and other crimes. But since people in one section of a state are far away from the scene of a vicious crime or don't know the victims, the easy assumption is that "it can't happen here." Yet in the city of Washington, for example, people in the very best residential neighborhoods, as well as those in other areas, do not dare to venture out alone at night.

Whites Now Discriminated Against in the Job Market?

I, P-T Sacramento Bureau

SACRAMENTO—Jobless white persons in California are being discriminated against, a key state employment executive charged this week.

The disclosure was made exclusively to The Independent, Press-Telegram by an official who asked that his name be withheld for fear of reprisals from Sacramento or Washington.

McCAUL.F

He revealed that whites, Negroes and other racial blocs no longer get equal treatment at the hiring desk. Negroes are accorded preferential treatment as a result of bureaucratic pressure to appease Negro citizen groups.

Some California employers are giving job orders to the California Employment Service specifying that they want Negroes and will not hire whites.

The key employment official said these factors account for the present wave of won't-hire-whites policies:

1. The Pentagon has passed on the word that all defense contractors and sub-contractors must have a quota of Negro employees if they hope to land future contracts.

2. A similar edict from Gov. Brown that all successful bidders on state public works projects must comply with a Negro anti-discrimination clause.

3. Threats of Negro boycotts unless more Negroes are hired.

California employers are scrambling to place more Negroes in jobs so they will be in line for further federal and state contracts. That means that most of the new jobs go to Negroes if qualified Negroes are available.

One large Southern California defense contractor still isn't hiring Negroes for back-plant jobs. But it is filling all of its front-office desks with Negro secretaries so visiting Pentagon brass will be impressed by its spirit of integration.

The state official who blew the whistle on the hire-Negroes-first policy has long championed equal employment oportunities, and personally hired several Negroes for his staff. "But I think things have gone too far when Negroes are given special treatment," he declared.

California's tough anti-discrimination clause states in part:

"Non-compliance constitutes a material breach of the contract for which a contractor can be placed on a non-preferred list. The state will not do business with a contractor on that list until the contractor satisfies the state that he will comply with the clause."

Ironically, the firms that are discriminating against whites are the bigoted firms that for years have refused to hire Negroes. In jockeying to catch up on a fair-sprinkling of Negroes, they are forced to exclude whites as new employees.

In Long Beach, government contracts and sub-contracts account for an estimated 30 per cent of the jobs.

THE STATE CURRENTLY has 626 public works contracts in force. That involves a $683 million outlay and an estimated 15 thousand workers.

The state also is discriminating against whites. To make its employment roster look balanced, for years some agencies have hired only Negroes for positions as janitor. Unskilled whites were turned down.

And one state official confided that on marginal cases where he would fire a white employee during the probationary period, he will keep a Negro employee on the payroll. "I am fearful of civil rights repercussions if I dismiss a Negro," he said. The governor has asked each state agency to survey its personnel to determine whether there is a reasonable representation of Negroes. If there is an unusually small percentage of Negroes in an agency, an agency chieftain must advise the governor why.

AN INDICATION of things to come: In San Francisco, the California Employment Service quietly has started recording the races of his job applicants and unemployment insurance applicants.

"The data is being compiled to secure adequate information on the relative socio-economic standing of minorities," said Albert B. Tieburg, State Director of Employment.

State and federal agencies for years have shunned making any racial notations on forms. But now policies are bending so state agencies can identify which applicants are Negroes.

Dove Season Incongruous Relic

EDITOR:

Each year in September in California less than three-quarter of one percent of the citizens participate in what is called the "dove season." This does not take place because the majority of the citizens desire it or enjoy it or benefit from it. It is one of the incongruous relics of the times of the pioneers when wildlife supplied needed food. It is now, according to the Department of Fish and Game, just a jolly lot of recreation and fun! (There is never any report on how many enjoy it!)

Essentially and regrettably this "season" places the citizens on the opposite ends of shot guns, the few who engage in the "sport" on one end and those who live on the land on the other end. As a ranch owner it never seemed to me to be a very popular "sport," since those of us who live where the doves live are on the receiving end! We are, therefore, able to testify that the economic benefit claimed for this "sport" is exclusively limited to the dealers in shot gun shells and liquors and a few motel owners, while no report is ever made of the losses suffered by those on the receiving end.

* * * *

TO PROVE several facts in this regard, we sent 10,000 voting cards to unselected mailbox holders in all parts of the state. Only 83 who responded believed that dove shooting was good. The total response of over 10 per cent showed that all others were opposed to open seasons. Five out of every six purchasers of hunting licenses were against dove shooting. This indicates that this state-promoted fracas is perhaps the most unpopular as well as undemocratic "sport" now hanging-over from the days of Chick Sales, and is certainly doing great damage to the good name of hunting, evidenced by the increased "no hunting" signs.

Test Ban Treaty Haste Alarming

EDITOR:

It is alarming that the Kennedy administration is attempting to speed the passage of the test ban treaty. Why is this dangerous treaty even being considered seriously?

Opinions by Dr. Edward Teller, Craig Hosmer et al should certainly warn us of the inherent dangers of this treaty. If we feel Russia will adhere to its provision if it conflicts with her needs, then we have all learned little from our previous experiences in dealing with her.

Since Russia has negotiated positively in this matter, then I submit we again examine the past and note Russia accepts no deals or treaties unless another part of America's freedom is chipped away and Russia's goal of world domination is closer to fruition.

The World Watched 'A Revolution for Freedom, Jobs'

By HARRY SHARPE
United Press International

The nation's capital was the stage last week for the biggest civil rights rally in American history—a march for racial equality by more than 200,000 dedicated Negroes.

Thousands of white sympathizers, among them noted churchmen of all faiths and congressmen and labor leaders, supported the self-disciplined multitude which chanted freedom songs and slogans while marching from Washington Monument to Lincoln Memorial.

* * * *

THERE, beneath the brooding statue of Abraham Lincoln, they focused world attention on the Negro's century old struggle for equal rights.

They heard their leaders, Negro and white alike, petition Congress under the Constitution for even stronger desegregation bills than President Kennedy had proposed; to redress, as they put it, "old grievances and help resolve an American crisis"; to grant "jobs and freedom" and thus erase the blot of second class citizenship.

It was like a giant religious revival—a moving spectacle from which grew stronger determination to fight for "the cause" in every corner of the land."

The President, who met with the leaders later, said he had been impressed by the marchers' "deep fervor and quiet dignity" and pledged he would push his own campaign to end discrimination.

The integration leaders also met with Democratic and Republican congressional chieftains and voiced hope the march would help their cause legislatively. But realists admitted it probably did not change a single vote, especially in the Southern delegations.

* * * *

THE MARCHERS had come from all over—by train, bus, car and even on foot. Self-discipline was their watchword so no one could point the finger of scorn. The only disturbance was caused by a deputy "feuhrer" of the American Nazi Party. He was arrested.

Underscoring the inter-faith, bi-racial nature of the demonstration was a placard carried by a white clergyman. It read: "We March Together — Protestants, Jews, Catholics—for Dignity And Brotherhood Of All Men Under God."

Another leader promised "little Washingtons all over the country."

Director of the demonstration was A. Philip Randolph, head of the Sleeping Car Porters Union. The vast crowd roared encouragement when he and other speakers made no-compromise calls for racial freedom. Then it broke into a deafening chant of "pass the bill, pass the bill." This was a reference to the President's civil rights program which faces an uncertain fate in Congress.

As the sun went down the weary demonstrators streamed out of the city as they had come, but with Randolph's war cry ringing in their ears: "This is a revolution for freedom and jobs."

* * * *

IN OTHER news spheres a nationwide railroad strike was headed off only hours before it was set to start. The President signed a bill rushed through Congress requiring the carriers and unions to abide by binding arbitration of the two key issues in their lengthy work rules dispute—elimination of firemen's jobs and makeup of train crews.

It marked the first time Congress had ordered arbitration in a peacetime labor crisis. The arbiters, representing the railroads and the unions and neutrals chosen by both, must report within six months. Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz called a meeting for Friday to start negotiations.

Epic drama unfolded at Sheppton, Pa., when two coal miners trapped for two weeks in a cave-in 309 feet below the surface were rescued through a shaft drilled to their dank cell. Rescued were Henry Throne, 28, and David Fellin, 58. Behind them in another cave-in area was Louis Bova., 42, who probably was dead. But rescuers refused to give up hope and started drilling a new shaft to him.

The joy at Sheppton was not shared at Moab, Utah. There, 18 miners perished in a fiery potash mine explosion 3,000 feet underground. Seven others were rescued.

On the foreign affairs front, Russian Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin gave Kennedy a special message expressing Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's appreciation for the signing of the nuclear test-ban treaty —which the Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved 16 to 1 last week —and said the recent visit to Moscow by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and some congressional leaders had been "useful." The Senate will open debate on ratifying the pact Sept. 9.

Khrushchev wound up a long bury-the-hatchet visit to Yugoslav President Tito and proclaimed their major differences at an end. Tito has been a Communist maverick.

At Hyannis Port, Mass., where he was spending the Labor Day weekend with his wife and children, the President fired another blast at the House which slashed his foreign aid authorization request.

Kennedy said the House action could harm the Latin American Alliance for Progress program and deny military aid to nations rimming the Iron Curtain. He said this applied particularly to East-West competition in Asia, Africa and Latin America.

One of the current trouble spots is South Viet Nam in East Asia where nearly 100 American soldiers have died supporting government troops against North Viet Nam Communist guerrillas. The South Viet Nam pro-Catholic government itself is torn by a religious-political crisis in which Buddhists have been suppressed, causing the United States to voice strong words of condemnation.

Fifty U.S. students who violated a State Department ban on visiting Cuba, returned to New York where some of them staged a sit-down strike to keep the department from invalidating their passports. They were warned by letter, however, that their passport privileges were being withheld.

Gas Dept. Sees $60,000 Savings

A yearly saving of $60,000 in operation of the Municipal Gas Department is anticipated from a personnel reorganization now under study by the City Council's Civil Service Committee.

City Manager John R. Mansell, who proposed the changes, said the saving will result primarily from reduction in the staff of gas plant operators from 40 to 30 over a period of three or four years. Staff cuts will be accomplished by normal attrition, he said.

A gas plant foreman will be assigned to continuous responsibility for each of the five plants under the reorganization, made possible in part by greater use of automatic equipment.

* * * *

MANSELL'S proposal will reduce the number of organizational divisions in the department from eight to seven by merging the measurement division with engineering.

The position of measurement engineer, now a division head not under civil service regulation, will become a part of the classified service and retitled gas measurement supervisor.

Also proposed are numerout other title changes. One of them will give L. L. Bendinger, superintendent of gas, the new title of general manager, Gas Department, to conform with terminology in the Water and Harbor departments.

Boy Scout Fund Drive Over Top

Long Beach Area Boy Scout Council's $495,000 capital building campaign has made goal with a tidy sum to spare, it was reported by James Craig Jr., campaign chairman.

"We are happy to report on a Long Beach fund-raising campaign that is a clearcut success," said Craig, who said the total of cash contributions and pledges is about $35,000 over the goal.

"This gives us a cushion to take care of some expenses which are really necessary above the goal and to meet the contingency of any unredeemed pledges. While we know that all pledges were given in good faith, we must recognize that death or people moving away may result in some loss."

* * * *

THE CAPITAL funds campaign will complete the purchase of the Will J. Reid Scout Reservation at Barton Flats in the San Bernardino mountains and finance the full development of the reservation as well as a Sea Explorer base at Long Beach Marina.

Work starts this fall on a swimming pool at Barton Flats property. Some other projects will be completed before next summer but the total completion of the camp will require three years, as many pledges were made for that period.

* * * *

CRAIG SAID that the completed Camp Tahquitz at the Barton Flats reservation will give Long Beach area Scouts one of the outstanding facilities of the kind in the country. The local area covers Long Beach, Lakewood, Bellflower, Signal Hill and Dominguez, and contributions were made from all these communities.

"We deeply appreciate the campaign work and the contributions of thousands of persons," said Craig. "This was a great effort and the results are a community triumph."

School Polio Form Filing Reminder

Pupils entering Long Beach Unified School District schools for the first time this September are required under State law to file a polio immunization statement, Dr. Clayton C. Campbell, M. D., director of school health services, reminded parents.

Such forms already are on file for pupils here last year.

The law states that pupils who do not have an immunization statement on file with the schools must be denied admission, said Dr. Campbell. The law applies to all students under 21, including those at City College.

Parents who have not had their children immunized against polio are asked to contact their family doctor or the nearest public health agency.

NO REST FOR THE EAGLE

Former Leading U.S. Air Force Ace Guides Destiny of Reservists in 2478th Sector

On the colonel's desk at Long Beach Air Force Base sit the control handle of a pursuit plane with its red gun switch—and memory.

For a man whose machine guns tore apart 25 enemy planes—the leading ace of the Ninth Air Force—the requiem to war is understandable.

The small stand with the fighter plane handle is in sharp contrast on the desk with the white papers and the busy black telephone. Mute testimonials to a new challenge.

NOW FOR the Eagle—Col. Glenn T. Eagleston—it is command of the 2478th Air Force Reserve Sector, the responsibility of 3,700 reservists in Southern California, southern Nevada and all of Arizona. Not the kids who flew in the 354th Fighter Group. Not the 4th Fighter Interceptor Group.

Now, the Eagle is grounded.

The Air Force pulled him from the cockpit to give him the new challenge: Moulding civilians into a crack air support team.

But the memories are not grounded:

OCTOBER, 1944, somewhere over Germany: "There were 48 of us, in Mustangs, headed for a strafing job. They must have got wind of us because 100 of their 109s were waiting. They came in behind us.

"The Germans were in a sort of bee-hive formation. We throttled forward to gain speed and then turned and came head-on.

"The fur flew."

The six 50-caliber machine guns on his Mustang put two German planes afire.

* * *

THE THIRD one was a hard shot. I came up in a loop, under his belly. I started clobbering him up a third-of-the-way up and until I lost him going over.

"I had set him on fire and he bailed out. There was no hesitation on his part. He knew he'd been had."

German townspeople below rushed out to see planes falling from the sky.

"They were cheering like mad. But, when they went out they found our guys had knocked 23 of their planes down. We lost only one.

"The mayor of the town wrote us later and said he knew the war was over when he saw so many German planes fall."

* * *

THE THIRD credited plane was the Eagle's 18th kill of the war. He was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for the action.

Miss it?

"Of course," Eagleston said. "It gets under your skin. Ever since I was six, I wanted to become a fighter pilot. I miss the old comardeship, the challenge to fight for my country in the hottest and fastest planes. I wouldn't trade those years."

But World War II—and 23½ enemy planes destroyed, two probables and seven damaged—was not the end.

* * *

1951, Somewhere near the Yalu River, Korea: "One MIG was driving us nuts. He'd sit up high, directing or observing, and then pounce on our sleepers.

COL. GLEN EAGLESTON
. . . Chained to Desk

"I caught a glimpse of this clown once during the dog fight. I noticed he came down on two of our planes everytime they straightened out and then headed upward.

"I made a quick calculation where he would be on his next pass.

"I poured on the coal. He pulled up right in front of me, 30 feet away. He was so close I thought I had hit him, the jet wash was so bad.

"I fired six shots from each of my guns. There was a flash of fire, an explosion inside the plane. And he bailed out. It was one of my life's most joyous moments."

BUT, THE 42-year-old colonel has had other pleasant moments.

"These men I have now, these reservists, are accomplished and well-polished. They're an interesting group, engineers, doctors, lawyers. Most of them are leaders in their community.

"Patroitism is their major motivation. They don't earn enough extra money to make it worthwhile that way.

"I have every confidence in them. If they were called into duty today, they would be as proficient as the regular, the fulltime, Air Force man in a very short time."

ONE OF the primary responsibilities of his command in wartime: Resupply, reload the bombers at scattered airports for a second quick attack on an enemy.

And the memory of war—of sorrow, regret—is still with the Eagle.

"I felt remorseful once. I hit this German and he started to bail out. He was a staunch fighter and I guess he got mad becaue halfway out the cockpit, he changed his mind.

"He got back in and turned into me. I had to hit him again. He tried to bail out again. But his body sailed out and wrapped itself around the back fin. He went down with the plane.

"I was kind of hoping he would get away."

THE COLONEL'S secretary enters the office now. "Here's the mail," she says.

The tanned face looks up. "Throw it on the floor," he says laughlingly.

The memory fades from the blue eyes which are permanently squinted from the long hours in the sky in 180 combat missions. He takes up the pen by the stand with the control handle of a pursuit plane.

Computer's Got Baers in Bonnet

CHICAGO (UPI)—A Chicago executive has claimed victory over an electronic brain.

This computer figured out there were 36 ways to spell what sounds like "Baer." Ed Novotny, assistant manager of the northside social security office, who has jurisdiction over the machine, said the name could be spelled:

Baer, baere, baire, baehr, bahar, baur, bear, beir, behar, barr, balar, bayer, baehre, baher, bayor, beare, beirr, beher, baare, baier, bairr, bahr, bahor, bayer, beair, beahr, beyar, baear, bair, bare, bahre, bauer, bayeur, beaire, beaher and beyer.

Then Novotny got a call from the general manager of the Railroad Transfer Service of Chicago — Edward Bayr — who told him the machine can't cut the mustard, to make it 37 ways.

BROWN IN TROUBLE FOLLOWING SHORT GAIN
Flanker back Ernie Green (48) of Cleveland Browns catches pass from Jim Ninowski in first quarter Saturday night but is immediately brought down by Lamar Lundy (85) of Rams on Browns' 47-yard line. Play went for short gain. Also in on play are Jack Pardee (32) and Mike Henry (53) of Rams and Rich Kreitling (88) of Browns.

Alou's Fourth Hit Drives in Winner

By GEORGE LEDERER

The Giants and the Los Angeles Police Department were the winners Saturday night while the Dodgers' National League lead was reduced to six games.

Felipe Alou's fourth hit of the evening gave the Giants a 4-3 decision over the Dodgers in 12 innings and kept alive manager Alvin Dark's slim hope of winning the last five games between the two perennial California contenders.

Another sellout crowd of 54,858 watched Alou break up the three-hour and 25-minute struggle with a two-out single to right after Jose Pagan singled and reached second on an infield out.

* * * *

LARRY SHERRY (2-5), the third Dodger pitcher, was the loser. The winner was Don Larsen (6-5), who held the Dodgers hitless in 3⅓ innings of relief.

Orlando Cepeda, the injured baby bull of the Giants, was responsible for the late hour, but he also alleviated what would have been a king-size traffic jam on the freeways had the game ended in regulation time.

Cepeda crashed his 24th home run as a pinch-hitter in the ninth inning to produce a 3-3 score that deprived Bob Miller of his first lifetime victory over the Giants. Miller left with a 3-2 lead in the seventh after serving a solo home run to Pagan.

Ron Perranoski was the victim of Cepeda's homer after he retired the slumping Willie McCovey for the first out in the ninth.

Cepeda, batting for Tom Haller, connected shortly before the Coliseum football crowd jammed the Harbor Freeway.

While the loss reduced the Dodger lead to six games over the Cardinals and 6½ over the Giants, the magic numbers remained 23 and 22 respectively

* * * *

THE DODGERS owned a 3-1 lead when manager Walter Alston made some defensive changes to start the seventh inning. Maury Wills, out of the starting lineup because of an ankle injury, went to third base, Tommy Davis switched to the outfield and Frank Howard took his shower.

Howard had hit his 24th homer of the year and eighth of the month for a 1-0 lead in the second inning.

The defensive maneuvering failed to prevent the banjo-hitting Pagan to hit his third homer of the year after two were out in the seventh. Pagan's drive landed in the first row of the left field pavilion, at the 370-foot mark.

* * * *

WHEN MILLER, followed by walking pitcher Jack Sanford, Alston called in Perranoski, who ended the inning by getting Alou to bounce into a force play.

Miller allowed six hits, walked two and struck out eight in his 6⅔ innings. The first San Francisco run was unearned and broke a streak of 19⅓ scoreless innings by Miller in the fourth.

T. Davis, after making a difficult pickup of Harvey Kuenn's hopper threw high to first, allowing Kuenn to reach second.

A wild pitch and McCovey's infield out made it 3-1.

Howard's homer was a 410-foot line drive into the pavilion, a shade to the left of center. He connected on Sanfords' 2-and-2 pitch when Sanford, much to his regret, threw a strike, although Haller set an outside target.

Miller was staked to a 3-0 advantage when Dick Tracewski, Jim Gilliam and Wally Moon singled in the third inning. Gilliam's RBI gave him 43 for the year, the most he

NINOWSKI DIRECTS 23-14 WIN

45,623 See Browns Bump Rams

By JERRY WYNN

The Rams attracted a surprising crowd of 45,623 at the Coliseum Saturday night, but did little to distract its attention from the radio account of the baseball game at Dodger Stadium.

Unable to click on offense nor defense the passing of Jim Ninowski and bone-crushing of Jim Brown, the Rams lost to the Cleveland Browns, 23-14.

The score should have been much larger in favor of the visitors, who had one touchdown and two long gains nullified by penalties. And of the Rams' total of 184 yards gained passing, good-natured enemy defenders tipped about 100 of them into hands of receivers.

Terry Baker quarterbacked the Rams for three quarters with little success. He completed 6 of 14 passes for 99 yards; had one interception and should of had more. His one bright moment was a 31-yard touchdown pass to Jim Phillips which gave the Rams a brief 7-6 lead.

Roman Gabriel guided the Rams to their other touchdown in the final moments of play, but he too was far from impressive with 7 of 13 completions for 85 yards.

Always a Ram nemisis, Ninowski enjoyed a big night. He hit on 11 of 16 passes, twice connected with Rich Kreitling for touchdowns, and ran with abandon. Mighty Jim Brown gained 105 yards in 15 carries and scored one.

The Ram front defense had some moments. Deacon Jones and Marlin McKeever blocked placements by Lou Groza and Jack Pardee had six unassisted tackles on Brown. Art Hunter forgot his lessons in positive thinking and was thrown out of the contest for fighting.

How the game unfolded:

FIRST QUARTER

The Rams had the only scoring threat of the quarter, but it failed to materialize.

Deacon Jones recovered a fumble by Jim Ninowski on the Ram 43. Terry Baker passed to Pervis Atkins for 15 and Gary Henson for 19 and a first down on the Cleveland 13. Dick Bass ran for 5 and Art Perkins for 3, but on third down, Bass was dropped for a three-yard loss attempting to sweep end.

Danny Villanueva tried a field goal from the 16, and he stubbed it wide under pressure from two rushers.

The Browns had a bad break when a 43-yard run by Ninowski to the Ram 10 was nullified by a penalty.

SECOND QUARTER

Browns 6, Rams 0: Cleveland drove 80 yards in 12 plays for its first score with Ninowski passing 12 yards to Rich Kreitling for the touchdown. Lou Groza's attempted conversion was blocked by Jones.

Ninowski moved his team downfield with passes to Ernie Green for 23 and 9 and to Gary Collins for 12. On the TD toss, he found Kreitling wide open in the end zone.

Rams 7, Browns 6: Marlin McKeever crashed through the Browns' line to block an attempted 44-yard field goal by Groza, and the Rams took possession of the Cleveland 46.

Baker ran for 7 and Bass fumbled while making the first down and Frank Varrichione recovered for the Rams on the Browns' 31. On first down, Baker passed neatly to Jim Phillips on the 15 and the Ram end sped into the end zone for the touchdown. Villanueva converted.

Browns 13, Rams 7: A great catch by Ray Renfro of a 44-yard, third-down pass from Ninowski sent the Browns winging to their second touchdown. It put the ball on the Ram 43, and on the next play, Lindon Crow was guilty of interfering with receiver Bob Crespino and it gave

KEENE, N.H. (Special) — Hard-throwing Bob Wiswell hurls for undefeated Long Beach Peterson Post today at 11 a.m. (PDT) as Gale Taylor's team faces once-beaten Memphis, Tenn., for the American Legion Little World Series title.

If the Tennessee nine should dump Long Beach, a second game will be played at 7:30 tonight to decide the champion.

Stocky Wayne Atkins, 10-0 on the season, is scheduled to pitch for Memphis, 34-1, who was upended for the first time in 35 outings by Long Beach Friday night, 12-3.

* * * *

LEFTHANDER Jerry Flynn, with help from a 2-run homer by Merrill Smith, chalked up his first victory of the tourney and Peterson's fourth in succession — a 5-2 triumph over Evansville, Ind., Saturday evening.

The loss eliminated Evansville and left Long Beach and Memphis, 6-3 winner over Omaha, Neb., Saturday afternoon, as the only teams remaining in the eight-team playoffs. Omaha suffered its first loss to Long Beach earlier, 8-1.

Flynn tossed a three-hitter but was constantly on the ropes as he walked eight men in his nine-inning stint. Ten strikeouts and a crucial double play kept the chunky southpaw from serious damage.

* * * *

PETERSON jumped to a 1-0 lead in the second when tourney batting leader Oscar Brown (.417) drew his first of two free passes, stole second, went to third on Larry Lauriha's single and scored on Martin's sacrifice fly. Long Beach extended its lead to 3-0 in the third inning. Ike McCraw singled, advanced to second on losing pitcher Ralph Mueller's errant pickoff throw and took third on Flynn's fly to left. Brown walked for the second time and on a double steal McCraw scored when second baseman Rick Kingston's throw was wide. Lauriha then singled to score Brown.

Smith's 330-foot home run to right scored Terry Roe ahead of him to give Flynn a comfortable 5-0 cushion.

REBOUND FROM FIRST LOSS

Nitehawks Remain Alive, 7-4

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. (Special)—The Long Beach Nitehawks started the long climb back in the loser's bracket of the ISC world tournament here by defeating Forbes Air Force 7-4 Saturday night.

The Hawks were pushed into the loser's draw when Al DeWulf tripled with two out in the sixth inning to give host Rock Island a come-from-behind 4-3 win earlier in the night.

It was Long Beach's first loss in the double-elimination tourney.

Rock Island had taken a 2-0 lead in the fourth, but the Hawks came back and scored three times in their half of the sixth. The runs that decided the first game came at the expense of Hugh Harman, who had taken over in the sixth for Leroy Zimmerman. Zim had been touched for one earned run in the five innings he worked.

The Hawks rallied in the second game, trailing 4-1 going into the fifth. But they pushed across six to keep their title hopes flickering. Zim replaced starter Ed Dewey in the fourth and was credited with the win.

The Hawks must win four games in two days in order to capture the crown. They play Phoenix this afternoon. If they win they face the loser of the Rock Island-Gardena game at 8:30 tonight.

CLEVELAND (AP)—Seswood Boy, a 3-year-old colt entered in a 6½-furlong race at Randall Park Saturday, wound up going three miles—through city traffic.

The horse, who went to the post at odds of 10-1, threw jockey Joe Lopez coming out of the starting gate and followed the rest of the field for about one-quarter of the race. Then he sped through an open gate at the side of the track.

ABOUT 20 PERSONS—security police and trainers—chased the horse on heavily traveled streets before his owner and two stable boys corralled it in the driveway of an apartment building.

No time was taken for the three miles.

Drysdale Greatest Dodger?

Roger Craig, the Lakewood taxpayer who enjoys the "distinction" of being the most pitied player in baseball, dispensed an interesting (and controversial) comment last week.

The comment came while this writer was in the Windy City before entraining for DuQuoin and the Hambletonian. Roger the ex-Dodger was in Chicago, of course, with his pathetic Met teammates.

DON DRYSDALE
No Sore Arm

Asked by a telecaster which Dodger he considered the greatest now and during his long tenure with the O'Malleys, Roger paused only a second, then replied:

"I'd have to say Don Drysdale. He's always available to pitch every four days and never has a sore arm. He's among the top three every year in innings pitched. There were a lot of great ballplayers with the Dodgers during my time and now, but I consider him the greatest. If you go around the league and ask the same question, I believe you'd get the same answer 90 per cent of the time."

That, indeed, is a tribute to Big D . . . particularly when you consider that people like Campanella, Snider, Reese, Furillo, Hodges, Robinson, Newcombe, Wills and T. Davis are included in the field from which Craig could choose.

If it makes a difference, I've agreed with Craig's answer since last season. With Koufax sidelined and Podres erratic, Don virtually was a one-man pitching corps. Drysdale's personality sometimes might not make him the people's choice, but the great Ted Williams never won any popularity contests, either.

CRAIG WAS BLUNT in answering other questions, too. Like this one: Who's going to win the N.L. pennant?

"I think the Dodgers will take it, because of their pitching," replied Roger. "But I think St. Louis is the best club EXCEPT for pitching. The Cardinals have pretty good front-line starters, but their relief men are weak.

"The Dodgers aren't farther in front, in my opinion, because Wills (Maury) is making a lot of mistakes. But I'm rooting for my old buddies all the way."

Asked which Dodger club in recent years he thought was the greatest, Craig split his response.

"The most talented club was the 1955 group, said Roger. "They always had the big inning and sure made things easy for a pitcher.

"But the '59 club that won the pennant in L.A. had the most desire. Everybody was helping everybody else and we fought and scratched for that championship."

A FEW DAYS AGO we reported that St. Louis writers were unanimous in the opinion that the Dodgers would sack the N.L. pennant. We also pointed out that the most consistent question asked California newsmen was whether Alston would be fired if the Dodgers didn't win.

The barrage of questions apparently stems from "rumors" of discontent on the Dodger club. The opinion here is that the "rumors" are about three months old and definitely outdated.

One St. Louis newsman claimed he talked with two Dodger players the last time the club was in his city and both expressed the opinion Alston was a dead owl if he didn't bag the league pennant.

"Drysdale overheard the conversation and bawled them both out," said the midwestern scrivener. "About two minutes later another Dodger said he heard that Gil Hodges or Pete Reiser would be his next boss."

Hodges or Reiser could be the next Dodger manager . . . but only when Alston decides to retire. There's a strong hunch in this typewriter that the quiet man from Darrtown, Ohio, will be around for a few more campaigns . . . even if he loses to the Yankees in the World Series.

One thing that's nice about the Dodgers from a writer's viewpoint is that they're great copy ALL OVER THE COUNTRY.

IT'S A MIRACLE that the Chicago Cubs draw any fans. Owner Phil Wrigley would seem to discourage attendance completely by telecasting ALL his home games and playing them ALL in the daytime.

A fan never has to go to the ballpark to watch the Cubbies. He merely has to install a TV set where he works.

The last day we were in Chicago, anyone who turned up at Wrigley Field had to be the world's greatest fan. It rained all morning and the Cubs played the Mets in the afternoon.

That's a worse parlay than pickles and ice cream.

Cassius...His Other Side

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—No matter how hard Cassius Clay strives to put across his obnoxious "I am the greatest" image, sometimes the colorful Louisville heavyweight contender just can't prevent another side of his personality from showing through.

It emerged not so long ago when he visited a former Louisville Central High School classmate who was dying of multiple sclerosis, and brought his friend several gifts.

The friend, former outstanding basketball player Bob Carpenter, is dead now, but undoubtedly the visit from his famous fellow townsman lifted his spirits considerably even as death approached.

Another manifestation of the "other Cassius Clay," appeared when he joined his clan in honoring his great-grandmother on her 99th birthday. He had the grace to clam up for a change and insist upon her being given the spotlight rather than her celebrated great-grandson.

* * * *

WHEN THE Louisville Lip talks to a hometown group such as the Louisville Quarterback Club, he is all affability. So much so that it tends to offset his cocky words and puts his listeners "in his corner." But with larger audiences his egotism comes out much stronger.

It's paradoxical that Clay thrives on being hero-worshiped, yet does his darndest to repel people with his own self-worship.

The biblical verse that a prophet is not without honor save in his own country is a perfect fit for Clay.

"You know who doubts me the most and who wants to see me get beat the worst?—the people of Louisville," he complained to a reporter. "It bugs me when no one asks for my autograph here, not even the kids."

In his home town, there are two schools of thought about Clay. One is that he believes everything he says. The other is that he's trying to make himself believe it.

Two-Run Homers by Berra, Tresh

BALTIMORE (AP) — Yogi Berra and Tom Tresh cracked two-run homers and Hal Reniff chopped off a ninth-inning rally Saturday night in the New York Yankees' 5-3 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Jim Bouton, shelled out in the Orioles' two-run ninth-inning uprising, gained credit for his 19th victory of the season, tying him with teammate Whitey Ford as the top winner in the American League.

BOUTON, strong young right-hander, had a three-hitter and a 5-1 lead going into the ninth, but allowed a lead-off single to Boog Powell and John Orsino followed with his 14th homer of the season.

McBRIDE SHELLED

Athletics Pound Ailing Angels, 7-0

By ROSS NEWHAN
L. P-T Staff Writer

KANSAS CITY—A triple play boomeranged into a five-run Kansas City first inning Saturday night helping Ken McBride record a first he would rather forget.

For the first time in his Angel career, McBride was sent to the showers in the first inning as the A's came up with a quintet of tallies en route to a 7-0 decision which left L.A.'s eight place advantage at one percentage point.

Orlando Pena, who allowed the Angels only one run in 18 innings last season, was back manufacturing gooseggs and making a "yolk" out of the Autry attack.

He yielded a hit an inning before faltering to allow two in the ninth.

* * * *

McBRIDE lasted only slightly longer than Floyd Patterson before being KOd at one-third of the first round.

Still, had plate umpire Bill Haller had his way in the first inning McBride might have escaped with only one run instead of the 10th defeat against 13 victories.

Jose Tartabull, Wayne Causey and Norm Siebern ignited 9,646 fans with back-to-back singles, producing one run and leaving runners at first and second.

Manny Jimenez then attempted to sacrifice, but his first bunt bounced meekly in front of the plate where Bobby Rodgers pounced on it. Buck fired to third and Felix Torres whipped the ball around the horn, noticing that Haller had his arm waving the bunt fair.

It was a triple play—until the ball reached first where umpire Sam Carrigan ruled it foul.

Given a new life, Jimenez bunted successfully. Charlie Lau and Ed Charles followed with singles, finishing McBride, who has won but one of his last eight starts.

Boyer's Wallops Lift Cards Over Phils, 7-5

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Ken Boyer's 19th homer to the roof of the leftfield stands in the 11th inning gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 7-5 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Saturday.

The winning rally was started by Dick Groat with a single to center off loser Johnny Klippstein. After Bill White flied out, Boyer unloaded his homer, his third extra-base hit of the game.

Cubs Ride on Slam By Burton

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ellis Burton's grand slam home run with two outs in the ninth inning Saturday carried the Chicago Cubs to a 6-5 victory over the Houston Colts.

The last gasp blow came off Hal Woodeshick, who came on after a tiring Skinny Brown had yielded a ninth-inning run on three singles.

Brown, bidding for his sixth victory, had held the Cubs to one run on eight scattered hits entering the ninth.

* * * *

WOODESHICK walked Leo Burke. Then the switch-hitting Burton drove a shot into the left field bleachers to complete the five-run rally for the Cubs and win the game.

Earlier, the Colts, jumped on starter Larry Jackson for four quick runs on six hits in the second inning.

O'Toole Hits, Pitches Win

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Southpaw Jim O'Toole picked up his 17th victory and first two runs batted in of the season Saturday as the Cincinnati Reds blanked the Pittsburgh Pirates, 6-0.

O'Toole allowed four hits in the six innings he worked. He was pulled in the seventh when his arm stiffened and Dom Zanni pitched the final three frames.

O'Toole's bases-loaded single in the fourth inning counted two Red runs. Tommy Harper drove in two more with a third inning single and a lead-off inside-the-park homer in the seventh.

Tigers' Rally in Ninth Subdues Cleveland, 9-8

CLEVELAND (UPI)—The Detroit Tigers rallied for three runs in the ninth inning to beat the Cleveland Indians, 9-8, Saturday with the winning run scoring on Bubba Phillips' "suicide" squeeze bunt.

Catcher Bill Freehan hit two homers for the Tigers, who gained their ninth win in the last 10 games, but they trailed, 8-6, with one out in the ninth inning when Norm Cash singled with the bases loaded to drive in two runs and tie the score.

Then, with George Thomas racing from third base in an all-or-nothing effort, Phillips laid down a bunt in front of the plate. Thomas was across the plate before the ball was fielded and Phillips reached first with a single.

Prep Labor Day? . . . Tuesday!

By DOUG IVES

Labor Day, or at least a day of labor, will be Tuesday and not Monday for Long Beach high school football players as they open fall drills for the 1963 Moore League campaign.

Relaxation is prescribed by all coaches for our official Labor Day holiday Monday, because less than 24 hours later youngsters of all sizes and shapes will be flexing muscles and losing excess poundage in two-a-day workouts.

The tedious twice-daily routine will continue for two weeks until classes, academic style, open Sept. 16. By that time, the men will be separated from the boys.

Who will win the seventh Moore League title? Our choice is Wilson, with Poly nipping at the Bruins' heels.

Since no other school except the two cross-town rivals have ever won a Moore grid title (each have won three), the only question appears to be which team will win the Big Game.

Poly holds an edge in the backfield, and as usual has superior speed, but in experience, and in the line, Wilson has, at least on paper, a whopping advantage.

• • • •

VETERAN COACH Skip Rowland of Wilson could have the best forward wall he has ever had. No less than 10 lettermen linemen are back, half of which were starters last year.

Center-cornerbacker Bob Heckman, an all-City choice last year, heads the impressive corps of veteran linemen. Rod Everling a 268-pound junior, and Doug McKenzie, a 220-pound senior, give Wilson plenty of bulk.

Poly, under new coach Bill Mulligan, has a wealth of backfield talent, including veteran Marv Motley, but has only one starting lineman returning, end Rich Spindler.

Jordan played its best football in six years last year, finishing 3-2 in league and 5-3 overall, and is the only other team that might give Wilson and Poly a strong challenge.

Hard-working head coach Walt Anderson boasts 16 lettermen, most of whom were starters last term. Ron White and Todd Olson each have won two varsity letters and Jack Hadaway is a classy halfback.

Millikan also lays claim to 16 numeral winners, but unlike Jordan, few started in 1962. Offensively, the Rams will start from scratch with all newcomers except center Chuck Milburn.

Lakewood, which has only five wins in six years (in league), has a new coach in John Ford and two excellent backs in Dennis Heffley (QB) and Ken Lynch (FB). The Lancers are lacking in line strength, however.

Downey can't look forward to much of a season with just two lettermen. The Vikes figure to finish in the cellar. They've never won more than one league game in any one season.

St. Anthony of the Catholic League figures to be a title contender, as usual. For once, Loyola doesn't have a powerhouse which should lend confidence to the Saints. Coach Tom Carroll has 12 lettermen, with experience at all positions except halfback.

Moore Leaguers get their first taste of action in the annual Milk Bowl game at Veterans Stadium Sept. 21. St. Anthony opens Friday, Sept. 20.

HOW TO SUCCEED IN BUSINESS BY REALLY TRYING

Have you wondered how Long Beach State's football players spent their summer? Here are examples: Dee Andrews (top left) worked as salesman at Penney's Los Altos; Don Crosby stacked soap at Proctor & Gamble; Dick Parks laid bricks; Hank Edney worked in LBSC library; Don Reed studies last year's game files with quarterbacks Rick Lussier, Chuck Anderson and Jerry Otterson; Darryl Wright did recreation work and Dwayne Robison was electrician.

22 VETERANS BACK AT STATE

49ers Taking Dead Aim at CCAA Title

By AL LARSON

Long Beach State, anxious to establish its imprint on the CCAA football map, steps forward with a firm and heavy foot Monday when the 49ers open fall practice.

The 49ers never have fidished higher than a tie for second place in the conference wars, but optimism is running high what with 22 veterans in camp.

Two-a-day workouts, along with daily squad meetings, will keep the boys busy in preparation for their home opener Sept. 21 against the San Diego Marines.

The team will be housed on campus for the first time which will enable coach Don Reed and his staff to keep the athletes thinking football almost around the clock. The only free time will be from seven to 10 each evening and all day Sunday.

LBSC's hopes of winning the title for the first time since joining the league in 1958 will depend, to a large degree, on fleet-footed Dee Andrews, an improved quarterback corps and tougher line.

The 49ers boast a solid 1-2-3 punch in qbs Chuck Anderson, Rick Lussier and Jerry Otterson. The fullback post looms stronger with Dick Degen, Ted Stipe, Wayne Mickaelian and Jim White battling for the starting job.

With six lettermen manning end positions, Reed figures this is his best suit. For trump cards, he has Pat Brosnan, an all-America JC transfer from Santa Monica, Larry Miller from Chaffey and Don Skinner, last year's freshman standout, giving Long Beach even greater depth at the flanks.

Other men to watch: Guard Darryl Wright, two-year veteran, one as end and last year as guard . . . fast and fine blocker; center Rudy Duarte, a newcomer from Hancock JC who drew frequent praise in spring ball . . . especially strong on defense.

Jerry Riedy, who played center at Santa Monica CC but probably will operate at tackle . . . most consistent lineman in spring; halfback Hank Edney, 2-year letterman, who had 10.0 average for 40 carries in 1961, but was crippled much of last year . . . can get needed yards when healthy.

Tackle Marty Johnson, 1-year vet, gives LBSC experience at vital tackle spot; guard Joe Costanza, 2-year veteran, gives 49ers speed up front . . . Joe will serve as tri-captain along with Montgomery and Wright.

LBSC digs into its CCAA season Oct. 12, traveling to San Diego State for a key game with the defending league champions. Fresno State plays here Nov. 9 while 49ers close out their 10-game slate Nov. 23 against Cal Poly (Pomona). The Broncos will be hungry, considering Long Beach handed them their only defeat last year.

Turning back the clock to this game, Reed hopes to use this as a springboard to improving his 5-5 record of '62. The 49ers are ready!

West's Prestige to Continue Surge in 1963

By JEROME HALL

This may be the year of the Big Ten comeback. This may be the year the Big Ten wins as many as half its games with the Big Six. That's not counting the Rose Bowl, of course.

But though the Big Ten will do considerably better against the AAWU than it did last year (no wins in seven games) it's still going to be another season of rising prestige for West Coast football.

The big teams around the country this year will be USC, Mississippi, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Ohio State, Alabama, Oregon, Texas, Navy and Notre Dame. That well could be the way the top ten reads come December. There's a strong chance that Washington could sneak in, carried further by its reputation than its quarterbacks and halfbacks.

So do not be surprised if the final poll shows three West Coast teams and one Big Ten team in the top 10.

• • • •

OHIO STATE, given little recognition in title predictions now, has the strength, stamina, strategy and schedule to pull through. The Buckeyes, deep in talent but without the huge fullback it usually has and without the polished quarterback, gets a scheduling break when it runs into its toughest league foe late, late in the season.

History shows Northwestern, the popular choice, will have faded by then.

The Big Ten is a manpower conference and for sheer manpower down the bench, it's Ohio State with Wisconsin followed by Northwestern, Illinois, Purdue, Iowa, Michigan State, Minnesota, Michigan and Indiana.

Mississippi will be near the top of the list all season, probably undefeated. But, as the Associated Press pointed out in a recent story, Ole Miss's aces in the hole are "a strong team and a weak schedule."

The Rebels probably will murder the likes of Memphis State, Vanderbilt and Tampa. They may be replaced on the list of elite by Alabama, which isn't a cinch to be undefeated but at least Bear Bryant's team has opposition. Though they both are in the Southeastern Conference, Alabama and Mississippi do not meet.

• • • •

IN THE CORN BELT region, Arkansas is equipped to go unbeaten. The Razorbacks have players that look like razorbacks and probably will beat out Texas for the Southwestern Conference title. Texas doesn't have players that look like longhorns. Oklahoma's a cinch in the Big Eight.

In the East it's Navy. Change that. In the East it's Roger Staubach. The East, you see, controls the nation's publicity and rating services. They're starved for a big winner back there. Staubach, Staubach, Staubach. Listen to that Eastern clatter.

All the foregoing conclusions are subject to change. Weekly.

BACKFIELD INTACT

Big Year Again Looms for Vikes

By KEN PIVERNETZ

Followers of Long Beach City College can expect another winning season this fall. The Vikings will make a serious bid for their third Metropolitan Conference championship in four years.

Considering the fact that LBCC was the nation's top-ranked jaycee eleven last year with a 9-0-1 record, averaged 34.6 points per game and limited the opposition to 50 points in 10 games, it's a big order to fill.

To make this challenge, the Vikes must rebuild their front wall—and the potential is there—to go with a great backfield.

• • • •

COACH JIM Stangeland will welcome back 18 lettermen Tuesday when fall practice gets under way.

JOE PEARSON
LBCC Linebuster

The '63 Vikings will look a lot like last year's model in that they should score a lot of points and there's a possibility the defense might come around a little quicker despite the fact the line will undergo drastic personnel changes and won't have quite as much depth.

"Our defensive system was completely changed last year," says line coach Rollie Eilerts. "This year the staff will start off knowing what to expect and we should be able to make quicker and better adjustments as the season progresses."

• • • •

NORSE CODE: One big change on offense should see track star Tim Russell carry the ball more. Russell gained 116 yards on only 11 carries and caught nine passes for 266 yards last year.

In fact, a returning backfield of Russell (170) and Joe Pearson (183) at halfbacks and all-America Homer Williams (205) at fullback gained close to a mile in yardage last season.

That could well be the starting backfield Along with Jim Dunn (155) at quarterback in the Sept. 28 opener against Glendale, though there's plenty of incoming freshman talent available.

Dunn completed 54 per cent of his passes last year for 892 yards and 12 touchdowns and with the presence of freshmen Craig Vestermark (166) and Jack Herndon (165), the quarterback position could be the best since the Dave Graff-Ed Reddick era of three years ago.

The line will depend more on transfers and freshmen though tackle and guard will have three proven performers in Ken Brewer (224, Jeff Smith (260) and Ed Catlin (220) respectively. Big things are expected of all three.

Transfers Bill Robinson (220), Long Beach's top prep lineman two years ago and 1961 all-CIF selection Bill Wisher (200) from El Rancho should fill in a lot at tackle and guard. Sleepers could be Fred Cervantes (210), a third team all-CIF pick at Downey in 1959 and Jordan's Mike Westahal (225).

The ends should be in the good hands of lettermen Dave Thornton (190) and newcomer Jack Tiener (195). Center might be a problem with lettermen Mike Blume ineligible as is end Rich Croson.

The Vikings had trouble getting an extra pre-league opponent this season and as a result will play only eight games, their lowest regular season schedule since 1945. The break will come Oct. 5, a week before the Metro opener with Santa Monica.

WYNN

Man to Man

THE KING

By JERRY WYNN

It's September again, and King Football returns to his throne.

To give you fuel to light the autumn fires, Man-to-Man presents predictions of things to come during the 1963 season by members of The Independent, Press-Telegram sports staff.

Fools rush in, so I lead off:

NATIONAL FOOTBALL LEAGUE

WESTERN	EASTERN
1. Green Bay	1. New York
2. Detroit	2. Dallas
3. Baltimore	3. Cleveland
4. Chicago	4. St. Louis
5. Minnesota	5. Pittsburgh
6. San Francisco	6. Washington
7. Rams	7. Philadelphia

The only thing certain in the NFL this season is the schedule which begins the night of Sept. 14 with the Lions facing the Rams at the Coliseum.

In the Western Division, the Packers still are too potent and should win their fourth successive title. The Lions have defense, the Colts have Unitas, the Bears have offense, the Vikings have Tarkenton, the 49ers have speed and the Rams have hopes.

There's little to choose from among the clubs in the East. The Giants have the experience and the Cowboys are the darkhorse.

THE BIG SIX
By JEROME HALL

HALL

1. Washington
2. Stanford
3. USC
4. UCLA
5. Cal
6. Wash. State

The Big Six is going to be a confused conference. The guess here is that USC will win the national championship again, but finish third in the AAWU behind Washington (4-1 record) and Stanford (4-1). Then, after some closed-door bickering, USC will be selected for the Rose Bowl. If that needs explaining, here's a try:

Almost to a man, the USC players and coaches expect their toughest game to be the one at Washington. Troy will wind up with a 9-1 overall record (losing to the Huskies) and finish first in the polls because of the caliber of opponents. Washington and Stanford figure to lose at least a couple each, but with 4-1 conference records they'll have a clear-cut percentage edge over Troy because USC doesn't play Washington State.

That's the kind of season it's going to be.

CALIFORNIA COLLEGIATE
By AL LARSON

LARSON

1. San Diego State
2. Fresno State
3. Long Beach State
4. Los Angeles State
5. Cal Poly (SLO)
6. Valley State

Predicting the outcome of the CCAA football race used to be a cinch. Take Fresno State and give the odds.

But last year, things changed when San Diego State dethroned the mighty Bulldogs after a four-year reign. And 1963 looks like another scramble.

With 21 veterans reporting, coach Don Coryell's Aztecs figure to make a lot of noise again. Fresno was hit by wholesale graduation losses, but still figures to have plenty of bite left. Los Angeles State looms as the sleeper with a new coach, Homer Beatty. Long Beach's line appears stronger, especially at end, while Cal Poly and Valley State look for improved campaigns.

METROPOLITAN CONFERENCE
By KEN PIVERNETZ

PIVERNETZ

1. Long Beach
2. Cerritos
3. Bakersfield
4. Santa Monica
5. El Camino
6. San Diego
7. Valley
8. East Los Angeles

Until proven otherwise, defending champion Long Beach must be rated the team to beat for the Metropolitan Conference championship this season although it will be another rough scramble.

The Vikings will have one of their all-time great backfields and if a promising line develops, coach Jim Stangeland will enjoy another winning season.

Four perennial Jaycee powers will give LBCC a tough fight, and again make the Metro loop the strongest two-year conference in the country. Cerritos and Bakersfield will be powerful again while all El Camino and Santa Monica need are good quarterbacks to make them definite challengers.

MOORE LEAGUE
By DOUG IVES

IVES

1. Wilson
2. Poly
3. Jordan
4. Millikan
5. Lakewood
6. Downey

No teams other than Wilson or Poly have ever won a Moore League football title, so it's almost a cinch these clubs will be battling for top honors again.

Wilson is our choice because of a superior line, which is heavier and possibly the toughest Skip Rowland has ever had. Poly will have more speed, as usual, which makes it a threat in any game. Strictly on manpower, the Bruins appear to have a decided edge.

Jordan is the only team that might upset Wilson or Poly, but the Panthers never have yet in Moore history. Millikan has 15 lettermen but not many starters returning. Lakewood should be improved but will be rebuilding under a new coach. Downey has only two lettermen.

Browns Roll Easily Over Rams, 23-14

the Browns another first down on the Ram 15.

On second down, Ninowski passed to Kreitling in between the goal posts for the six points. Groza converted.

Cleveland almost scored again on the last play of the half when Larry Benz intercepted a Baker pass and returned it nine yards before being knocked out of bounds by Varrichione.

THIRD QUARTER

Browns 16, Rams 7: Groza kicked a 47-yard field goal after Cleveland had moved from its own 32 to a first down on the Ram 34. The Rams twice smeared Ninowski while he attempted to pass to lead to the entrance of Groza.

The Rams moved from their own 20 to a first down on the Cleveland 46 thanks to a 30-yard pass from Baker to Phillips that was tipped into Phillips hands. But with a third down-and-one on the Brown 37, Ben Wilson lost six yards attempting to turn left end. Villanueva then missed a 50-yard field goal.

Browns 23, Rams 7: With Jim Brown ripping through and around the Ram line for 59 yards in four carries, Cleveland swept 80 yards on the ground for a touchdown, Brown scored on a four-yard smash carrying Mike Henry into the end zone with him.

FOURTH QUARTER

Frank Ryan replaced Ninowski, and on his first pass connected with Crespino for 43 yards to the Ram 18. Ryan soon hit Ken Webb for 26 yards and a touchdown, but it was nullified by a pushing penalty.

Browns 23, Rams 14: With Roman Gabriel at quarterback, the Rams finally put together a sustained drive for a touchdown. They reeled off four first downs in four plays on runs by Jon Arnett for 14 and 10, by Gabriel for 18 and a pass from Gabriel to Arnett for 14.

Gabriel scored himself on a two-yard sneak, and Villanueva kicked goal.

Colts Edge 'Skins On Rookie's Catch

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—The Baltimore Colts came from behind on rookie quarterback Gary Cuozzo's 54-yard scoring pass to rookie end John Mackey Saturday night and edged the Washington Redskins, 27-21, in a National Football League exhibition game.

The Redskins, trailing 20-7 at halftime, led 21-20 with six minutes remaining when Cuozzo, former University of Virginia star who is fighting to escape the player cut, got off his game-deciding pitch from the Colt 46.

Mackey, who had gotten behind the Redskins' Jim Steffen, gathered in the pass on the Redskin eight and stumbled into the end zone. Grady Wade kicked the extra point.

Touchdowns on short plunges by Norman Snead and Ron Hatcher enabled Washington to move ahead midway the final quarter before Cuozzo got off his decisive pass to Mackey, former star at Syracuse.

Eagles Topple Vikings

HERSHEY, Pa. (UPI)—The Philadelphia Eagles handed the Minnesota Vikings their first pre-season defeat Saturday night, 34-27, as quarterback Sonny Jurgenson completed 18 of 28 passes for 279 yards and three touchdowns.

The Eagles won their second in a row as 15,861 watched in Hershey Stadium. They had lost their first two pre-season games while the Vikings had three victories in a row.

Unable to get their offense moving, the Cardinals all but gave away a first-half touchdown and then saw the Bears execute a 61-yard scoring play, aided by a great block by Mike Ditka, to move into a 14-0 lead early in the third quarter.

BILLY HOEFT started the inning after Sanford was lifted for a hitter and was in immediate difficulty when Wills and Tracewski singled. Wills, his ankle heavily taped, pulled an upset by stealing second and made it to third on Tracewski's infield hit.

That's when Larsen entered and got his first of 10 successive outs.

Johnny Podres (11-10) is scheduled to pitch against Billy O'Dell (12-6) in this afternoon's concluding game of the series. Podres was a doubtful starter because of a stiff neck, but was nominated because Pete Richert was forced to warm up several times during Saturday's marathon.

Full Fields Slated for Monday's Hydro Races

By JIM McCORMACK

Ever been to boat races when only three boats go off in a race and only two finish?

By the end of the third lap, the two craft are usually separated by half of Marine Stadium.

How exciting.

Well, things promise to be different Monday, Sept. 2, when the first race goes at 11 a.m. in the 18th annual Labor Day Boat Races.

Every section figures to have a full house, with the 150 and 280 hydroplane groups running elimination events to narrow the field to the eight maximum boats.

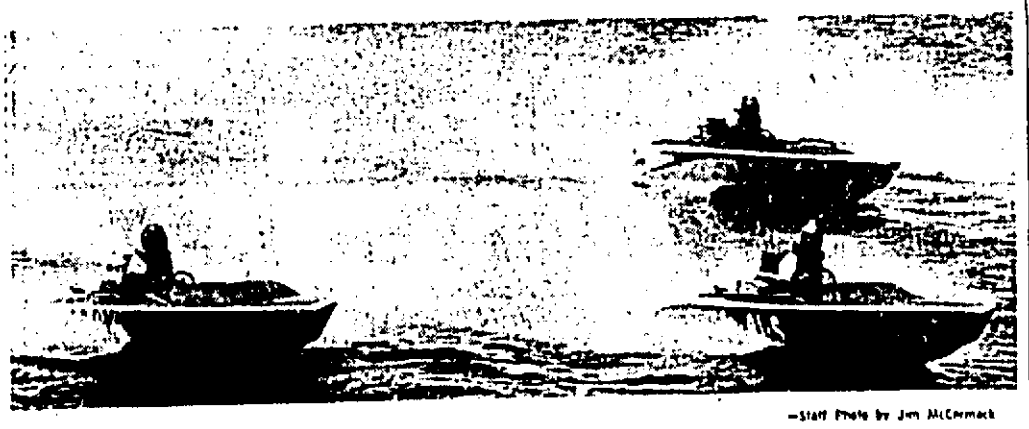

Why is eight the maximum number? It's due to the narrowness of Marine Stadium. With eight boats on the water at once, they are usually wild and wooly.

The SK runabout field figures to be a rematch of the National Championship run when Dan Towle, Los Angeles; Leroy Penhall, Anaheim; Tony Maricich, San Pedro, and Eld Olsen, Garden Grove, battle for the $200 first place money.

In the National regatta earlier this year, these five skippers were the main instigators in a race that saw two boats damaged in collisions—both of which caught fire—and the sinking of Olsen's SK. To top off the chaotic bout, someone sank the two bouys, and they threw in a false start.

EVERY TOP skipper in 11 Western states has thrown his hat in the ring, for one of the nine classes going. Eighteen races will be held during the afternoon.

TELEVISION DEBUT

Benton Knocks Out Smith in 2nd

Benton, ranked fourth by the World Boxing Association and sixth by Ring Magazine, was a 2-1 favorite over his lanky 6-foot opponent, who holds the California middleweight title.

The end came quickly after comparatively little action in the first round and most of the second. The crisp combination flattened Smith and he was counted out by referee Lee Grossman at 2:25 into the second round.

Smith, who had scored 12 straight knockouts at the Olympic, suffered his seventh loss against 22 wins which included 18 knockouts.

Benton, 32, won his 49th against 8 defeats and one draw while registering his 26th knockout.

The first round saw both fighters merely feel each other out while tossing weak left jabs, although Benton, who scaled 161 pounds, landed one good hook and right to the head.

Smith, 156½, absorbed another solid overhand right in the second but appeared unhurt. The 24-year-old Californian had considered giving up boxing only a short time ago due to difficulties he had in getting opponents. He had planned to move to New Zealand only several weeks before the match was made.

Hornung 'In Chips' Despite Ban

HITTIN' THE HIGH SPOTS: It was quite a surprise to learn that Paul Hornung will make more money this fall while under suspension from the National Football League for gambling than he would have made if he had played the season with the Green Bay Packers.

Despite the fact Hornung admitted he had supplied information to a gambler and also had wagered on games himself, the former Heisman Trophy winner from Notre Dame appears to be still as big a hero today as he was when leading the Packers to the NFL title before the scandle broke.

The cold, financial figures prove it. Here are just a few of the things Hornung has going for himself this fall:

He has formed a corporation which will stage three variety shows in Louisville featuring such show business stars as Frank Fontaine, Sophie Tucker and Jimmy Durante. Hornung will emcee the programs.

PAUL HORNUNG
Will Lose $ When Plays

He is being featured by one of the country's top sports wear manufacturing firms in its national advertising.

He has been signed by CBS radio to do a five minute sports show five days a week over a 22-station network in the Midwest; will do a 15-minute Sunday night television show featuring results of the day's pro football games, and will handle the play-by-play broadcast of 25 high school games.

That's just a starter. He has more deals on the fire . . . and they all add up to much more money than he would have collected if he had played.

Meanwhile, Alex Karras, the Detroit Lions' tackle who also was suspended, is doing quite good, too.

He's concentrating his efforts in the Lindell Bar, which he invested $40,000 for a one-third interest.

And although the bar is "off limits" to pro athletes, it has become one of Detroit's most popular spots since moving into new quarters recently.

It also has become quite a tourist attraction for sports fans visiting the Motor City.

JOHN McKAY'S CHIEF ASSET before he suddenly became a winning coach last year was his humor. He always had a quip for everything.

Since the Trojans surprised everyone by going undefeated last season, being voted the nation's No. 1 team and then beating Wisconsin in the Rose Bowl, McKay is even bigger in the laugh department.

Winning helps people laugh . . . especially the alumni.

In fact, they howl when John says he expects the Trojans to be the best team in the country again this season . . . coming out of the tunnel.

The old grads laugh it up. Because there is every reason to believe that the Trojans will be the best . . . on the field of battle.

Although he jokes about it on the banquet circuit he is currently traveling, McKay is still irked over the "play" the papers and sportscasters gave Wisconsin and Ron VanderKelen after the Rose Bowl game.

"I hear so much about VanderKelen and Wisconsin that I sometimes wonder if we really won the game and I have to go look at the films to reassure myself. We did, but wherever I go, there are people who give me that sympathetic look as if to say they were sorry we lost it," McKay reveals.

"I will say, that after that fourth quarter when Wisconsin closed in from 42-14 to 42-37, VanderKelen should give me a 10 percent commission of that $65,000 pro contract he got. Nobody had drafted at him . . . or even showed interest in him until after that."

McKAY ALSO POINTS OUT to alumni how he turned down an assistant professorship and life tenure at USC after last season. "President Topping called me in the office after we had won 10 straight and made me the proposition," John says, "but I reminded him of another coach who won 'em all and was given a life contract. Next year he lost eight games and won only two and the president called him in and said 'Coach, I now pronounce you dead!'"

McKay was up north last week for a special session with officials at Stanford to analyze the new rules.

"They change the rules every year to confuse people," he quips. "It's like new car models. Before you realize what they look like, another change has been made.

"Anyway, I called Wally Butts about the new rules and everything is all right!"

NBC NETWORK OFFICIALS decided the past week—before the crucial Dodger-Giant series opened—that they would show the hour-long documentary, "A Man Named Mays," on Sunday, Oct. 6, even if the Giants failed to repeat as champs.

Naturally, those behind the documentary had hoped that the Giants would be engaged in the World Series at the time of its showing . . . but it looks like Willie will be sitting this one out.

Nevertheless, NBC's film crew got lucky last Tuesday night by recording Willie's 400th career homer . . . just a few minutes after he had predicted in a pre-game interview before the cameras that he would hit it that night!

'Doped' McKinley Wins on 'Nerves'

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—Wimbledon Champion Chuck McKinley tore a muscle in his back reaching for a shot in the first set Saturday but, doped up with pills and playing on sheer nerve, managed to eke out a victory over little known Eduardo Zuleta of Ecuador 4-6, 3-6, 6-6, 6-3, 6-1 in the first round of the National Tennis Championships.

The 22-year-old San Antonio, Tex., star, the nation's No. 1 player, walked off the court with two physicians and there was some doubt he would be able to remain in the meet.

"He should be okay — I think he'll continue," said Dr. Charles Blair.

"I'll do everything possible to stay in the tournament," McKinley said. "But I got a pain like this in Dallas this year and I was out a week."

There were Davis Cup considerations. It is doubtful that any risks will be taken with the team's top player with important cup matches coming up against Venezuela and Britain next month and, if successful, later with India and Australia.

Tournament officials, worried over possible loss of their top gate attraction, changed the schedule, so that McKinley's half of the draw would not play again until Monday. Chuck will take medication and heat treatments in the meantime.

• • • •

McKINLEY'S sudden injury, which he sought to hide from the gallery of 10,000, overshadowed other developments on the second day of this 82-year-old tournament.

Margaret Smith of Australia, the world's best woman player, swept to a second round victory over Mrs. Lisa Gram Andersen, a 100-pound, 42-year-old mother from Copenhagen, 6-0, 6-0, dropping only 12 points in the 20-minute match.

She was far more impressive than her chief American rival, Darlene Hard of Los Angeles, who volleyed poorly and showed little zest in a 6-4, 6-3 triumph over Etta Herdy of Australia.

Billie Jean Moffitt, Long Beach, Calif., did not play in Saturday's round. Miss Moffitt is third seeded.

Hill Garners 69 for 2-Shot Denver Lead

DENVER (AP)—A confident Dave Hill continued his mastery over the tight tree-lined Denver Country Club course Saturday with a 69 to widen his lead in the Denver Open Golf Tournament with a six-under-par 204 for 54 holes.

His closest pursuers were Jacky Cupit at 206 after a 68 Saturday, Jay Hebert and Juan Rodriguez at 207, and Bill Eggers and Pat Rea 208.

Rodriguez and Doug Sanders turned in 65s for the best third round over the 6,774-yard par 35-35—70 course. The round gave Sanders 209.

• • • •

HILL, riding the crest of an eight-week comeback streak, said "there shouldn't be any problems tomorrow. If I can shoot another 69 it will bring home the cheese."

Hill, 26-year-old swinger from Jackson, Mich., parred every hole on the front nine and got birdies at the 10th and 12th with 15-foot putts. He wasn't over par on any hole.

Rodriguez, a 5-foot-7, 120-pound stylist from Puerto Rico, turned in a sensational driving game that enabled him to score six birdies.

DU QUOIN, Ill. (AP) — A. J. Foyt, of Houston, Tex., won the 25-mile U.S. Auto Club national sprint car race at the Du Quoin, Ill., State Fair Saturday.

Foyt led the field of 18 all the way.

No official time was kept on the race, officials said, because of an accident between the seventh and eighth laps. Johnny Rutherford, of Fort Worth, Tex., lost control of his car and hit the fence. He was not seriously injured.

Behind Foyt was Bobby Marshman of Pottstown, Pa. Other top finishers were Chuck Hulse, Downey, Calif., third; Don Branson, Champaign, Ill., fourth and Johnny White, Keokuk, Iowa, fifth.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A St. Louis driver was injured seriously in a spectacular two-car crash at the end of a 146-mile 40-lap run in the National Championship Drag races at Indianapolis Raceway Park.

The second driver, Danny Ongais of Pomona, Calif., was not injured, although his high-powered car also flipped and was damaged badly.

DARLINGTON, S.C. (UPI) — Fred Lorenzen, hoping to become stock racing's first $100,000-a-year winner, will be the favored driver Monday in the 13th annual Southern 500.

Leisurely Kin Romps to 6-Length Debutante Win

By ERNIE MASON

DEL MAR—J. Kel Houssels' Leisurely Kin swept to a spectacular six-length victory over 13 2-year-old filly rivals to win the thirteenth running of the $54,350 gross Del Mar Debutante here Saturday before 18,553 fans.

Unleashing one of her better efforts, the daughter of Kingly—Leisurely Marge ran down C. V. Whitney's Mosquito after a half mile and then widened through the stretch, turning the six furlongs in a brilliant 1:09 1/5.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Talmage's Loukahl was second, a half a length in front of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Heaton's Goyala. Mosquito held on for fourth money, a neck back and a head in front of Pretty Bubbles.

Jockey Jerry Lambert, aboard the winner, summed it all up when he said after unsaddling—"this was the first time she has run for me and she was much sharper than she's been all meeting." Lambert has been riding the Houssels filly in her local engagements.

Leisurely Kin, soundly beaten in her only other two starts here, reverted back to the form which saw her run third, beaten only a half length in the Hollywood Juvenile Championship. She was second choice in the wagering to the entry of Blue Norther and Petite Cricket and paid $10,60, $6.40 and $5. Loukhal, coupled with Reigh Princess, paid $8 and $6.20 and Goyala returned $6.20.

Disappointment of the Debutant, undoubtedly, was Blue Norther, winner of the recent Junior Miss Stakes here for Mrs. William R. Hawn and victorious only nine days ago over the first four Debutante finishers in a prep event.

Blue Norther broke slowly for Johnny Longden and then wouldn't go to running when he asked her to move.

Richest Race to 'Song

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sari's Song, the 4-5 odds-on favorite, led from wire-to-wire Saturday to gallop to a six-length triumph in the richest race ever run for 2-year-old fillies, the $186,505 Arlington Lassie.

Sari's Song, owned by J. Kel Houssels, and ridden by Willie Shoemaker, was the stand-out choice of the 27,690 fans and even though she came out of the outside post position in the 12-horse field, she was in charge from the second the gate opened.

Sari's Song, a daughter of Spy Song, was timed at 1:18 1/5 for the six and a half furlongs on a fast track.

Sari's Song returned $3.60, $3.20 and $2.40. Yecats paid $17.60 and $3.40, and Castle Forbes paid $2.40.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Montpelier Farm's Mongo charged up on the outside in the stretch and beat Bronze Babu by a nose with his final stride in the $35,650 Kelly-Olympic Handicap at Atlantic City Race Track.

Ridden by Wayne Chambers, Mongo set a track record for the mile and an eighth with 1:48 flat.

Salinas Area Hit by Quake

Dr. Don Tocher of the University seismographic station at Berkeley said the quake had a magnitude of about five on the Richter Scale.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Railroads in Spotlight; Cost of Living Up Again

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The great railroad serial thundered toward a cliffhanging climax last week before Congress threw the switch and sent it into another chapter.

It was less than six hours before a national strike deadline when President Kennedy signed legislation shunting the two key issues in the work rules dispute into binding arbitration.

With the railroads canceling some train schedules and industries shifting cargoes to other carriers in anticipation of a crippling strike, Congress highballed the bills aimed at heading off a work stoppage. Little opposition developed, although reservations about impairing the process of collective bargaining were voiced.

* * * *

WITH THE President's signing of the bill, the railroads withdrew the controversial work rules changes which would eliminate the jobs of nearly 40,000 firemen. The five rail unions involved canceled their notice of a strike.

The bill set up a panel of seven arbitrators to rule within 150 days on disputes over firemen's jobs and the make-up of freight and yards crews. Kennedy originally proposed that the Interstate Commerce Commission be given the arbitration assignment.

The board's findings would be binding for two years. It was doubtful that after that time the controversy would be revived.

Congress left to railroad and union negotiators the settlement of six other work rules disputes. It forbade work rules changes or a strike on these issues for at least 30 days after the arbitration panel makes its ruling on the two major issues.

* * * *

KENNEDY SAID the legislation "reaffirmed the essential priority of the public interest over any narrower interest."

Some labor leaders, including James Hoffa, head of the Teamsters, called it a serious setback for collective bargaining.

The stock market drooped when it seemed that Congress wouldn't be able to act in time to head off a strike but came back strongly when favorable action appeared imminent.

New statistics indicated that the economy was moving ahead, slowly but surely.

The National Industrial Conference Board reported a survey indicated that major industries will sharply increase capital spending in the third and fourth quarters. This was partly due to the fact that they spent less in the second quarter than they appropriated.

* * * *

TOTAL VALUE of construction contracts in July climbed 10 per cent above a year earlier. This was largely due to a 7 per cent increase in residential building.

Machine tool orders — a key business barometer — in July showed a 4 per cent gain over June and a 21 per cent advance over July 1962.

On the darker side of the picture, as far as individuals were concerned, was the rise in the cost of living for the second straight month to a record high.

The Labor Department reported a one-half of 1 per cent increase in the consumer price index in July to 107.1 per cent of the 1957-59 base period. This meant that it now takes 71 cents more to buy what $10 would have purchased in consumer items in the 1957-59 period. The rise was attributed to higher prices for food, gasoline and most goods and services.

* * * *

AUTOMOBILE production continued to build up slowly as more 1964 models came into production. Output last week was estimated at 36,000 passenger cars against 22,732 the week before and 35,115 a year ago. Only General Motors is yet to start turning out 1964s.

Production last week boosted the total for the year to 4,852,965 cars, up 10 per cent from the 4,408,740 a year earlier.

Steel output inched up the week before last week for the first time since early June and the second since late May. While the gain was only 1 per cent over the previous week, it was encouraging to steelmakers, who saw in it an indication that the downswing had bottomed out.

Briefly around the business scene: The 11 domestic trunk airlines and the three all-cargo airlines carried 18.3 per cent more cargo in July than a year earlier . . . Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. proposes to acquire Motor Wheel Corp. . . . Natural gas prices are dipping after almost doubling since 1950 . . . General Electric Co. has offered three-year labor contracts which include two pay raises which it says average more than 2.5 per cent each.

Great Trip Aboard the America

If all sportsmen were good sailors, a great percentage of them would be aboard Pierpoint Landing's America or one of the other 85-foot boats this weekend, instead of knocking themselves out trying to go places on dangerous and crowded freeways.

The Labor Day weekend is always one of mixed outdoor activities: Fishing, fresh or salt water, camping, touring, plus the opening of dove season, the first scattergun activity of the year.

I got my kicks aboard the America Friday. It was my first trip on that beautiful 85-foot boat. Charles L. Breese, my brother-in-law, and J. E. (Mac) McClintock, general manager of Pierpoint Landing, and I formed a trio, doing what comes naturally, trying to catch albacore.

Let me say right now that I didn't blow this one. I only sacked two albacore, but by Southern California Tuna Club standards, both were official three-six button fish, 22-8 and 22-4. Charlie sacked two, the larger weighing 27-8. Mac also had two weighing more than 20 pounds, but caught a dozen others and handed the outfits off to other passengers.

Charlie lost two fish and I lost five, each of which I battled for more than 10 minutes.

THINGS THAT I HAVE BEEN WRITING about for weeks happened to all aboard the America. For instance, a rundown of my five lost fish showed that two fish either spit out the hook and tore it out in escaping. Another sawed the line under the boat and the other two just broke the line.

One of my lost fish was a handoff from Mac on a bass outfit with 12-pound-test monofilament. He slapped it in my hands and said, "Try this for size," then told me that the fish already had taken out 200 yards of line. Ever try to horse in a 30-pound albacore that far out with 12-pound-test line? Well, I didn't.

Charlie fought his 27-8 fish around the boat a couple of times, finally landed it and then, perspiring copiously, said, "Any middle-aged person would be a fool to try to catch a limit of these big hogs!"

The star of the day, however, was a black-haired, black-eyed mother of three grown daughters. She caught six fish while her husband was landing five.

She was Mrs. Viola Bowers, 4500 Cerritos Dr., Long Beach, wife of Melvin Bowers, of Oil Well Supply Co. Viola was one of the best anglers I've ever seen handle a rod and reel.

She knew just where to go, over or under, at all times and, as far as I can recall, she never made a single mistake. She has been fishing 23 years, ever since she married Mel. They fish together once a week and she usually beats Mel in numbers caught.

NOW A FEW WORDS ABOUT THE CREW: Arnold (Cookie) Cook, captain of the America, is the type of person who actually stirs up enthusiasm. He is at the peak of his glory when there are 20 or more hookups. He will be shouting encouragement to all, unsnarling lines, gaffing fish, helping neophytes cast near a boil and then setting the hook.

He has a very able relief skipper, Mike Nott, son of Bill Nott, president of Pierpoint. Mike was not aboard Friday, but there were some helpful deckhands, Al Shearin, Mac McAllicher and John Vrana.

Even Jack and Joyce Martin, who operate the sparkling galley, had to get into the thick of things when there were 20 or more hookups at a time. Jack told me later: "I might as well buy white aprons with red dots because that's the way my apron looks after the first fish is decked. For some reason I get the blood from that first flipping albacore."

The Martins, in addition to turning out excellent food, just can't keep away from the rail when the fish are boiling. Joyce, discussing a column I did recently about crews needing public-relations training, said she hoped I wouldn't think that about the crew on the America. One couldn't; everybody was working hard and the 32 passengers were more than pleased. They caught 75 fish and probably lost four times that many. I don't believe one single albacore was lost due to a deckhand's error.

PIERPOINT LANDING HAS POSTED its late September and October runs to Guadalupe Islands off the coast of Baja California. They are as follows: Sept. 23-29 and Sept. 30-Oct. 6; Oct. 7-13 and Oct. 14-20. Departure times are at midnight and returns at noon.

The America will fish either of several Mexican Islands, depending on fishing and weather conditions. Guadalupe, San Martin, Cedros and San Benito are on the list.

The trip, sold as a package for $195, naturally is on a reservation plan only. The ship will maintain radio with Pierpoint Landing throughout the trip and passengers will be limited to 35.

As was the case when the America made her maiden trip to Guadalupe last spring, the following species will be the goals of those aboard: Bluefin and yellowfin tuna, up to 100 pounds, black sea bass, up to 400; yellowtail, up to 70, white sea bass, up to 70, bull bass, barracuda and many others.

An angler fishing in those waters may return with all the fish he wishes, bearing in mind, of course, that the boat can not be overloaded in gross tons.

More details are available simply by calling Pierpoint Landing and asking for the America reservations desk.

Berens Resigns Symphony Post

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Fritz Berens, conductor of the Sacramento Symphony Orchestra for the past 14 years, announced that he will resign at the conclusion of the 1963-64 season. He said he hopes to broaden his musical experience by building an orchestra in another city.

Bernstein Brilliant in Bowl

By DANIEL CARIAGA

The New York Philharmonic's second concert in Hollywood Bowl Friday night showed the virtuoso orchestra in its best form. Under the leadership of its musical director, Leonard Bernstein, the Philharmonic displayed impeccable performances of Mendelssohn's "Italian" Symphony, "Iberia," by Debussy, and Tschaikovsky's Francesca da Rimini.

Sharing the stage with Mr. Bernstein was the American soprano, Ann Moffo, who sang arias from "The Barber of Seville," and "La Traviata."

After a lusty and brilliant National Anthem, Bernstein led the Mendelssohn Symphony with great control, with economy of gesture, and with a restrain befitting its classic lines. The second movement was particularly lovely. Some listeners might prefer smoothness instead of precision in the third movement trio, yet no one could quarrel with the conductor's exciting delivery of the last movement.

• • • •

DEBUSSY'S kaleidoscopic score, "Iberia," makes tremendous demands on an orchestra, and on a conductor. Bernstein and the Philharmonic met these demands brilliantly. In the second movement, "Fragrance of the Night," they evoked the magic of sounds out-of-doors, and all the myriad night-feelings that go with them.

"Francesca da Rimini," Tschaikovsky's fantasy about tragic love, is a brilliant and moving piece; to deliver its full impact, it needs a conductor who can coax from every instrument in the orchestra the maximum of intensity while at the same time keeping the total intensity in check. This is a mean feat, one that only a man of Leonard Bernstein's capabilities can handle. But handle it he does, and with such finesse that there are no bad or awkward moments, just beautiful ones. Stanley Drucker's clarinet tone, pure and limpid, is enough reason for any conductor to program this piece.

THE SCHNOZ AT 70

He's New Idol of Teen Age Set

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — First Elvis shaved off his sideburns. Then All American Boy Pat Boone made sexy love to Nancy Kwan.

But look who is changing his image now — Jimmy Durante.

"All of a sudden," says Jimmy, "I'm a bobby sox idol.

"Just tink what this would have meant when I had hair. It's Richard Burton, Durante and where d'ya go from there?"

• • • •

AFTER Jimmy did "Jumbo" with Doris Day his long-time writer, Jackie Barnett, felt that some of the Durante warmth and sentiment might go on a dramatic album.

Durante, now 70, has been singing "Inka Dinka Doo" for 50 years.

"And it still ain't a hit," moans Jimmy.

But a new Warner Bros. album called "The New Jimmy Durante" is.

Out here — even on the rock 'n' roll stations — the disc jockeys are playing Durante's dramatic singing of "September Song" around the clock.

• • • •

DISC JOCKEY Johnny Grant said, "All of a sudden, Durante is the biggest thing since Chubby Checkers and the twist. The kids drive me nuts calling up to ask me to play Durante's record. I could play it four times an hour and not satisfy them."

Warners, realizing that they have a hit on their hands, asked Durante to go out on a tour a la Fabian.

"What could I do on the Dick Clark Show," The Schnoz asked. "The Surfer's Stomp?

"I ain't pluggin' no record at my age. I'm just pluggin the plugs down at Del Mar race track."

• • • •

IN ONE number of the album, Durante gets so sentimental you hear him cry. He sounds more sincere than Johnny Ray.

The song is "Look Ahead, Little Girl." It's the song he dedicated to his adopted baby daughter, Cecee.

"She's the one who changed my image," says Durante. "Imagine Durante readin' fairy tales out loud."

LAGUNA OPERA FESTIVAL

'Butterfly' Triumphs

By RACHEL MORTON

The Laguna Festival of Opera performance have improved with each production and the final one of the series, "Madame Butterfly," as given in the Irvine Bowl Friday night topped them all.

The artists are not world famous but several of them will become so, and meanwhile, at nominal cost, we are privileged to hear very fine opera. And, best of all—in our own language, with excellent translations by Henry Reese.

Understanding what was being said on stage, the audience Friday night was loud with spontaneous and frequent applause and many bravos.

• • • •

THE CASTING was excellent and the stage settings reflected the artistic taste that is typically Laguna's.

Maralin Niska as Butterfly was well-nigh perfect. Her child-like naivete was truly that of a little Japanese bride of 15. Her gestures were full of meaning; her pitiable plights were heart stirring, and her whole portrayal was romantically convincing. To this was added a beautiful soprano voice that soared effortlessly in the high floating planissimos. And she looked the part without daubing her face in white enamel as do some Butterflys. Her costumes were gorgeous.

David Poleri who sang Pinkerton possesses a voluptuous tenor voice of unusual ring and power. His English diction was excellent and his acting was convincing.

• • • •

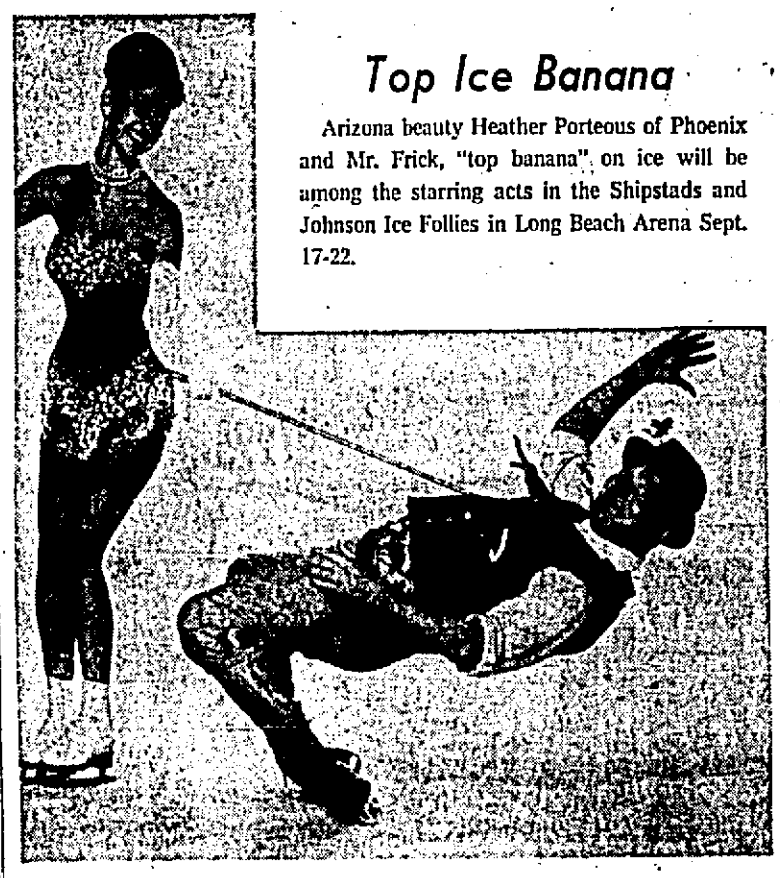

THE SMOOTH sympathetic baritone voice of Calvin Marsh suited well the role of Sharpless. In fact the part suited him much better than his earlier "Rigoletto". His scene with the little child was touching. Suzuki can be a dull role but as sung and acted Friday night by Margery Mackay it lived and breathed realistically. Her voice was warmly colored and expertly handled.

Raymond Gagan was the obsequious Goro. George Bice was a tall and formidable Yamadori with a fine bass voice and Gino Leonetti sang the brief role of Bonzo.

Eugene Ober conducted the excellent orchestra and the singers with expert authority. Especially fine was the playing of the overture to the last act.

Top Ice Banana

Arizona beauty Heather Porteous of Phoenix and Mr. Frick, "top banana", on ice will be among the starring acts in the Shipstads and Johnson Ice Follies in Long Beach Arena Sept. 17-22.

It'll Rain at Follies

The weatherman hasn't said so, but there'll be rain in Long Beach starting Sept. 17, opening night for the nine performances of Shipstads and Johnson Ice Follies at the Arena.

One of the production numbers calls for rain and rain there will be in the Arena. There'll be fog too, with fog-making equipment creating the cloud-like effects needed for one of the production numbers.

The Follies will run through Sept. 22 here, and will feature world famed skaters in the all-new 28th edition of the event. The Follies' own travelling orchestra will play for the event.

Smoking at Age 7

LONDON (UPI)—The Nursing Times said a survey of 156 English schoolboys showed that 50 had started smoking before they were 7. Eleven of the boys interviewed started smoking before they were 5.

Fun for All Ages

Anaheim La Palma Park's community recreation building, started as a Downtown Lions Club project and then taken over by the city, went into use Saturday night by the club which conceived it. Completed at cost of $105,000, it contains 9,500 square feet of floor space and will become the headquarters for the retired who have time to play checkers and chess, persons who occasionally can relax, the ones

10TH YEAR MAJOR MILESTONE

Grove Realty Board Prexy Hails Big Gains

(Editor's note: Dramatically reflecting the growth of the area, the Garden Grove Board of Realtors is chalking up new achievements every day. The story is told in the President's Report for the last six months just released by Dick Casterline, head of the board this year. Text of his report follows.)

One of the laws of nature concerns the fact that nothing remains the same. Everything either grows and improves or erodes and fades away.

Our board has grown rapidly over the years. Since this is our 10th year it should be a milestone for progress and not a year to fade into oblivion.

In reading the two quarterly reports from our 23 committee chairmen plus factual material supplied by the executive secretary, it becomes clear that we are progressing remarkably and possibly faster than in any other like period in our history.

• • • •

HERE ARE a few highlights:

Total membership is up 40% over the first six months of 1962—(267 vs. 193), making us a Gold Star Board once again.

Total listings processed up 11% over 1962 (1,269 vs. 1,153).

Total sales up 60% over 1962 (510 vs. 318).

Total $ volume up 72% over 1962 ($9,092,670 vs. $5,257,789).

Cooperative sales up from 27% in 1962 to 38% in 1963.

Cash assets up 40% over 1962 ($13,517 vs. $9,645).

• • • •

CONCERNING finances, in the future we are not going to ask any of the affiliate members to furnish door prizes for any programs, installation meetings, and so forth. New dues structure makes this possible.

We have more equipment in the office — another desk, another typewriter, plus some $1,100 in real estate supplies for resale at cost; and a greatly expanded library.

Many members have distinguished themselves: One was selected "Man of the Year", another appointed to the Planning Commission; one named "Homemaker of the Year"; others were elected to the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce, Lions Club, Rotary, School Board Trustees; and percentage wise we had the greatest gain in NAREB enrollment of any board in the United States!

• • • •

THE WOMEN'S COUNCIL members have been very active, and acted as hostesses for the regional meeting at the Charter House, even promoting a special edition of the newspaper for this event.

Attendance at the weekly breakfast meetings has exceeded the guarantee ever since the meeting was changed from Wednesday to Tuesday mornings, and each member now has a new professional type identification badge.

Attendance on the caravan has exceeded all expectations.

Realtor Week promotion was the best ever — really putting our board on the map.

• • • •

CIVIC DAY was a smashing success — every table was taken, every seat occupied as recognition was given to civic leaders and Essay Costest winners read their compositions.

The golf tournament was another very real success, bringing our members out for a good day of relaxation and giving all of us a chance to become better acquointed.

We hosted the 23rd District Meeting in March at the Greenbrier.

Our board usually had the greatest number in attendance at the County Council meetings.

Over 40 attended the annual CREA Sales Conference in Santa Ana.

Four members received Real Estate Certificates in May — more graduates than any other board in Orange County.

• • • •

WE INITIATED a reciprocal agreement with Anaheim, and will follow with like agreements with other boards.

A new salesman's contest has been initiated, eliminating the participation of the employing broker and office manager.

Two, four-hour Orientation Classes have been held with nearly a hundred members taking instruction in By-laws and Multiple Listing Rules, in the Code of Ethics and Organized Real Estate, and in Board Office Procedures.

All members who are ill are contacted immediately and given encouragement with gifts and flowers.

• • • •

STATE DIRECTORS have attended CREA meetings in Fresno, Palm Springs and Lake Tahoe, adding their votes and efforts to help defeat adverse legislation. Reports of these meetings are given to the general membership.

Our ad in the Blue Book contained more offices than ever before.

We are in the process of extending our boundaries to include the Rossmoor area.

A new commercial listing form is in the process of completion.

We had an entry in the Strawberry Festival parade with your president, his family, and the executive secretary riding in a 1922 model Ford.

A special classified ad was run for several weeks in the Garden Grove News to help inform the public as to the meaning of the term Realtor and to help distinguish the difference between Multiple Listing Service as offered by a Realtor vs. that offered by non-Realtors.

"The ABC's of Why Real Estate People Succeed" was the theme of the Broker-Salesman Relations meetings, initiating many worthwhile ideas.

• • • •

PROFESSIONALIZING our business has been advanced by the weekly reading of Articles of the NAREB Code of Ethics, with emphasis on using standard CREA forms and investigating non-professional methods as they came to light.

Three grievances have been processed.

All of these activities of our board have been very efficiently recorded in the weekly bulletins and in the newspapers.

Considering the fact that

Start Work at Redondo on $2.8 Million Apartment-Hotel

REDONDO BEACH — Developers of a $2.8 million apartment-hotel in Redondo Beach King Harbor have disclosed that they plan to open their luxury, ocean-front hostelry on New Year's Eve, 1964.

Ground was broken for the 140-unit Portofino Inn and the 21-unit Portofino Apartments last week, and plans call for completion within five months. It is the first major construction undertaken on land surrounding the recently-completed harbor.

Frank Arciero, president of the development firm, said the hotel units will be ultramodern, designed with Roman landscaping and Italian provincial decor.

• • • •

EACH WILL HAVE a stall shower and bath, and 66 will have kitchens. Boat slips able to accommodate yachts up to 76 feet adjoin the building.

The 21 Gold Medallion apartments will have panoramic views of the harbor, as well as fireplaces and lanai patios with private balconies.

The boat slips and two fresh water swimming pools are common to both dwellings.

• • • •

THE INN will have 15 2-bedroom apartments, leasing for approximately $350 a month, and 6 1-bedroom apartments, leasing for approximately $275 a month.

Being built as an adjunct to both buildings, Arciero said is a cocktail lounge, liquor-delicatessen, coffee shop and epicurian restaurant, which will occupy a two-story building east of the two apartments.

Mary Davis, firm vice president and general manager, is Arciero's partner in the project. Architects are Weber and Nicholson, West Los Angeles.

AT GARDEN GROVE

Mayor Gives Wife Home on Anniversary

GARDEN GROVE—After living adjacent to a mortuary since 1940, answering telephones and doorbells every other night and every other weekend—alternating with employes—Mayor and Mrs. George B. Honold have moved into a new home on Lambert Circle.

The home is the mayor's 25th wedding anniversary present to his wife, Edith.

The mortuary is Honold Bros. Mortuary, 10781 Garden Grove Blvd.

Following a lengthy search which located two much needed business associates, Honold decided he and his wife at last could leave the noisy boulevard and some of the responsibilities at the funeral home in the hands of his new associates, Al Mettler and Terry Speers of San Diego.

As for Mrs. Honold, the new home is a dream come true—a place to relax or to entertain friends without the demands of constant interruptions as in the past. And there's a large yard for the Honold pets—Kathie, the dog, and Susie, the cat.

But the Honolds are not going into complete retirement. They will carry on the family business, only with a less interrupted schedule.

NOT KEYS TO THE CITY, BUT TO HOME

Garden Grove Mayor George Honold sometimes presents keys of the city to someone; but here he's on the receiving end, and the keys are to the new home he bought as a silver wedding anniversary gift for his wife. Keys are being presented to the couple by Bill Stewart (left) of Stewart Realty.

Know What Condominiums Are? Maybe This Will Help You

By VERN ANTHONY
Southland Progress Editor

Con-do-min-i-um. Accent it on the third syllable.

The word condominium has gained the spotlight in the building industry of late—but many persons are baffled by it.

Actually, it's a Latin word dating back to the Sixth Century. It means "joint dominion" or "joint ownership." As now used, it is a method of ownership offering some advantages over both renting or buying into a cooperative.

This form of apartment or real estate ownership is gaining popularity not only in California but in Hawaii, Arizona, Florida and Illinois, according to California Home magazine.

• • • •

PLANS for the first Los Angeles high-rise condominium apartment-home project were announced only recently. This will be a 17-story building known as the Royce. It will cost $7.5 million, and it will be built on Wilshire Boulevard at Westholm Avenue in Westwood Hills.

The 96 apartment homes will have sunken living rooms, Roman baths and 10-foot ceilings. The Royce is slated for completition late next year.

• • • •

IN A CONDOMINIUM, the occupant is the sole owner of his own apartment or house in a multifamily project but shares the ownership of everything else—the land, hallways, walls, roof, swimming pool, gardens, lobbies, shops and other common areas.

This means that when you buy a condominium, you get clear title to your residence just as you do when you buy a house.

You buy the condominium on your own terms, get your own individual mortgage, pay your own individual principle, interest and property tax, and are free at any time to sell your apartment to anyone you want to at the best price you can get.

• • • •

AT THE SAME time, as co-owner of all the common elements of the property, you abide by certain rules, spelled out in a "public deed" describing how the project shall be operated.

You and other owners elect a board of directors who manage the property and each

Bellflower Board Seeks Another Win

BELLFLOWER—Bob Prigmore, president of the Bellflower District Board of Realtors, has announced entry of the local board in the Achievement Book competition of the California Real Estate Association.

Judging and awards will be made at the convention of the California Real Estate Association to be held Sept. 22-26th in Los Angeles.

Esa Rodgers, associate member of the board, was chairman of the committee which compiled the book and was assisted by Mary Johnson, Dorothy Grimm, Hattie Branham and Linora Dutcher.

Mrs. Rodgers was 1962 chairman of the committee whose entry received first place for boards of its size.

The book, 18 by 20 inches in size, contains 57 pages depicting the board activities from Sept. 1 of one year through Aug. 31 of the next year.

Compton-Lynwood Unit to Hear Panel

COMPTON—The Compton-Lynwood Board of Realtors again will host the panel of educational authorities from Long Beach City College when that panel appears Wednesday to bring to the board the latest developments in real estate techniques and developments in real estate licensing, especially with reference to recent legislation.

The meeting will be held at Lueder's Park at 8 a.m., according to R. L. Dressendorfer, program chairman.

The panel will be headed by Dr. Keith James, coordinator of Business Education for the college.

Accompanying James will be James C. Hoffman, Jr., a professional real estate appraiser, and Clarence Knox, public accountant and teacher of the course, Real Estate Taxation.

Also appearing with the group will be Barry Laffoon, loan expert and teacher of Real Estate Financing at the college.

3 Permits at Stanton

STANTON—Only three permits for construction totaling $6,050 were issued by the Stanton Building Department during the week. Permits were issued to Wilson Six, 7661 Santa Barbara St., aluminum siding, $2,850; John Gilmore, 7556 Cody Drive, swimming pool, $1,900; and Henry H. Yeager, Anaheim, for commercial remodeling of Ricardo's at 10428 Dale St., $1,300.

who like organized recreation, and the small fry of the area.

Built adjacent to the park's famed fly casting pool, the new structure nestles beside sycamores shading its modern entrance. It is built with a gracefully-curved laminated arched roof, and the pool side is framed by a curving wall of decorative cement block.

The building can seat 900 for theater use or 450 for banquets.

Its first use Saturday night was by the Lions, who started a square dancing class. Beginning Monday, the building will be open to all other groups and to individuals. An official dedication will be set later.

• • • •

THE LIONS CLUB raised $14,500 toward the construction, and laid the foundation. It decided it couldn't finance the building as planned and so enlisted municipal money.

The club had staged a rodeo, a circus and other entertainments to raise money for the project.

NEW YORK (UPI)—The use of prison inmates as medical guinea pigs is growing. Upjohn Co. is building a $261,000 research lab inside the walls of Southern Michigan prison.

State Lottery Plan Hit by Homeowners Group

The Statewide Homeowners Association has announced it will oppose plans for a state controlled lottery as a tax injustice to homeowners, and will rally homeowners, taxpayers, educational and church groups to help defeat the scheme.

Arrangements are being made for a mass meeting Sept. 19, probably in Hollywood. The location will be announced later.

John Nagy, president of Statewide Homewoners, said the lottery "is an obvious device by gambling interests to reap huge profits for a syndicate through a proposed state-controlled swindle. It would be tax relief for land speculators and slum owners, but not for homeowners."

Nagy said homeowners already are paying too much taxes, inasmuch as they are under-assessed and pay little in taxes. Consequently, the homeowners and businessmen have to pay more than their share of local property taxes."

"Instead of assessing property uniformly and getting all the tax revenue allowed, homeowners and businessmen are being asked to support a lottery to give further tax relief to land speculation and slum development."

• • • •

"CALIFORNIA is too great a state to consider weak and tawdy schemes of financing through lotteries. The state that asks for men to match its mountains is strong enough to find a legitimate method of collecting public revenue without resorting to petty gambling which will enrich mainly the operators. And in the wake of gambling usually comes crime."

Nagy said Statewide Homeowners Association will begin at once to warn organizations of the lottery plan and ask help in fighting "an ill-advised proposal to further injure homeowners and the state's economy."

Now with a new, and most efficient executive secretary, and a competent assistant, and an equally eager part-time worker, board service in the future should be exceptional and dedicated to aid you in your work.

Building Records Tumble

California's construction boom rose to record levels in the first half of the year, with value of permits issued in the private sector totaling nearly $2.6 billion, State Finance Director Hale Champion has announced in Sacramento.

The figure represents an increase of 22.3 per cent over the January-June period of 1962, also a record-breaking year, Champion said.

The value of residential construction permits at $1.74 billion was up 28.6 per cent over last year's first half. Private non-residential construction was up 11.6 per cent, with a permit value of $827 million. The volume in both categories set new records.

• • • •

CHAMPION said residential permits indicated a total of 150,300 new dwelling units, up 28 per cent over the 117,062 authorized from January to June, 1962.

The booming construction activity was reflected in higher employment levels throughout the industry.

Figures released jointly by the State Department of Employment and Industrial Relations showed 397,000 workers employed in construction during June, an increase of 41,000 or 11.5 per cent over the same month last year. The increase for the six months period was 6.1 per cent.

Champion said the employment increase did not exactly parallel the permit increase because of automation developments in the construction industry.

• • • •

AMONG construction categories showing major gains were hospitals and institutional structures—up 18 per cent; stores and mercantile buildings—up 13 per cent; and schools and educational buildings—up 9.9 per cent.

Industrial building, with a half-year total of $99.2 million was 3 per cent above the January-June volume of 1962.

Additions and alterations to existing structures also were being undertaken in record volume, with a gain of 56.9 per cent for alterations to nonresidential buildings and 14.2 per cent for residential categories.

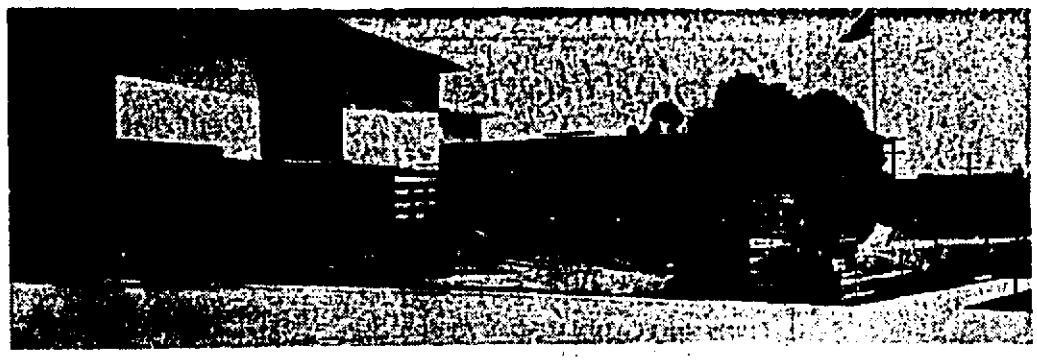

Three categories of construction showed declining volumes. Value of permits for new amusement and recreational buildings was down 40.9 per cent; churches and other religious structures, down 7.4 per cent; and office, bank and professional buildings, down 1.4 per cent.

Retail Sales at Redondo Gain $14 Million in Year

REDONDO BEACH — Retail sales skyrocketed to $122.4 million here in 1962, more than $14 million higher than the previous year.

Chamber of Commerce president LeRoy L. Center said his organization is "thrilled at the unparalleled increase because we feel a great part of it may be credited to an active Chamber."

The city's quality index, which measures each community's buying ability as compared to other sections of the nation, places Redondo Beach ahead of many surrounding cities.

Redondo Beach placed 34th in the statewide compilation of total retail sales.

• • • •

HIGHEST RANKING category of retail outlets was the drug stores, which were $669,000 higher last year than in 1961.

Largest percentage of increase was a gain of almost $4 million in food store sales, followed by increases of $3 million in general merchandising and $2 million in automobile sales.

Although 45 California cities have a larger population, Center said, only 33 have higher retail sales.

Bank Dividend Increase Voted

Directors of United California Bank last week voted to increase the quarterly dividend from 40 to 45 cents per share payable Sept. 27 to stock of record Sept. 13, it was announced by Frank L. King, chairman of the board.

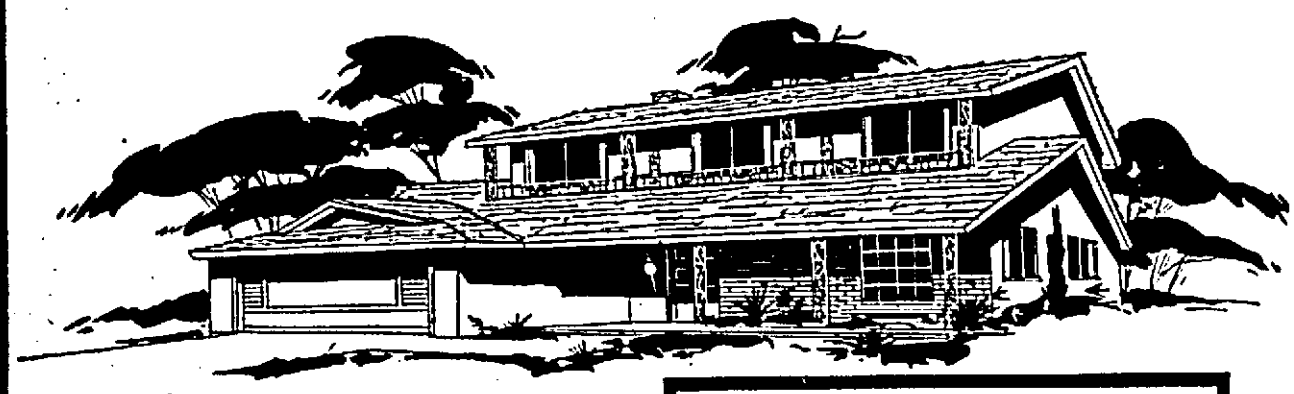

This action, King stated, was in recognition of the substantially increased earnings of the bank.

The board also approved a plan to increase the bank's capital funds by $60 million through the sale of $35 million of capital notes and the issuance of $25 million of common stock. UCB thus becomes the largest bank in the nation to expand its capitalization through the sale of capital notes.

Peter Aernout (left) of Voss International Pipe Corp., and Ken Westerman, operations manager, Kerr Steamship Co., Inc., general agents for the "K" Line, examine Japanese-made pipe just unloaded at Long Beach from SS Mizashaw Maru.

Voss Pipe to Expand Operations

Voss International Pipe Corp., a major west coast importer of pipe, plans to double its operations at the Port of Long Beach.

Voss officials said they expect to step up importations of Japanese manufactured asbestos-cement pipe to 2,000 tons a month within three years.

The announcement was made with the record unloading 1,000 tons of pipe from the freighter SS Mizahawa Maru.

This is enough pipe to build a water line 260 miles in length.

Voss said the shipment means the 25-year-old firm will import 12,000 tons at a value of $1.5 million through the Port of Long Beach next year.

• • • •

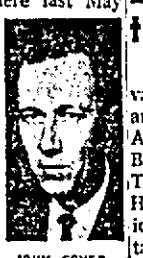

THE COMPANY, which leases a five-acre stockpile in the port area, said a growing demand for the pipe has led to a steady increase in importations.

The cement-asbestos pipe, which is produced by the Kubota Co. in Osaka, is noncorrosive and virtually indestructible. Voss officials say that some of the pipe has been buried in the ground for more than 80 years and still is useable.

Long Beach Harbor is the distribution point for Voss sales throughout the Southwestern U.S.

New Job Set Up at Aeronutronic

NEWPORT BEACH — John H. Cover Jr., who joined Aeronutronic here last May as assistant to general manager John B. Lawson, has been named to a newly-created position of director of advanced programs.

Lawson said Cover will be responsible for developing and maintaining the Aeronutronic position in the Shillelagh missile, the re-entry systems being developed, and in space and electronics fields generally.

Cover was division director of the space and information systems for North American Aviation in Downey, had served with an El Segundo firm, and was with the U.S. Naval ordnance test station at China Lake.

Wilbur H. Molander, 1728 Catalina, Seal Beach, of the Howard E. Nevonen General Insurance Agency, Los Angeles, is due to attend the Washington National Insurance Company's general agency convention at the Broadmoor Hotel, Colorado Springs, Tuesday through Friday.

Approximately 400 delegatest and guests will participate in the business sessions and entertainment activities.

Bank to Be Built Near Autonetics

ANAHEIM — Capt. Richard Burns, industrial manager of Penniman & Co., has announced sale of a three-acre bank site from Thomas A. Beyrle to Security First National Bank for a new branch.

The new East Anaheim bank will serve North American Aviation's huge Autonetics complex and will be situated across the street from its soon to be completed high rise office building on Anaheim Road.

Both Autonetics and the City of Anaheim are closely scrutinizing all new proposals for development in the area, Burns reports, in order to avoid any land usage incompatible with long-range healthy industrial growth.

• • • •

THE SAME SITE was rejected last year by the City Council after considerable study as to the feasibility of locating a convention center restaurant and hotel there. It was felt that a development including any residential use at all would necessarily be indirectly dependent on Autonetics contracts, would tend to overload the road system and might be affected by the noise of the industry in the area.

The presently proposed use as a site for the Security First National Bank was greeted by all as a fine addition to the area.

Penniman & Co. cooperated in the sale with the firm of John B. Kilroy Co., industrial realtors and developers who pioneered the East Anaheim industrial development.

Lakewood East Sunshine Homes, a development by S. V. Hunsaker & Sons, offers a wide variety of stylings. Here is one of the models available.

Enderle Gardens Homes Have Appeal

Enderle Gardens opened successfully this past weekend with throngs of interested homeseekers from many points thronging through the 16 different model homes, it was announced by builders Nelson & Nelson.

Enderle Gardens, located on Yorba south of 17th Street in Tustin, is a community of exclusive individual homes—each one entirely separate and each with its own different styling located in a 20-acre park with common greens, flowering trees and plantings with year around maintenance.

"We are extremely pleased and more than satisfied," J. A. Nelson stated, "that our new concept of small but expensive homes located in a created park of beautiful surroundings is appealing to so many people."

* * * *

THIS NEWEST concept in building has been three years in the planning stage by the Nelsons and consists mainly of smaller homes with large living rooms, formal dining rooms, large master bedrooms and the elimination of many extra bedrooms and family rooms no longer needed by adults and adults with children about to go into college.

Each home has also planned screening of different styled walls and plants and flowering trees to leave a feeling of openness of everyone and still give the privacy desired for those who want their own patios.

Homes in Enderle Gardens offer many luxury extras such as a spacious patio and high-screen walls. The development is in a 20-acre park setting.

Fashion Homes Offering Bonus to Buyers

The Fashion Homes development in Huntington Beach and Westminster are now offering prospective home buyers an "extra," the bonus being the buyer's choice, as an added incentive to move into the big three and four-bedroom, family-room homes before the start of the school year.

Buyers may have immediate possession of any quality constructed Fashion Home in either Orange County community.

Both developments have received the Bronze Medallion for their "wife-saving" kitchens with Hotpoint built-in range, oven and dishwasher. The outstanding kitchen and family room combination has been instrumental in the manner in which the home buying public has purchased Fashion Homes in both locations. Fashion Homes in Huntington Beach offers block wall fencing at no extra cost while Westminster's Fashion Homes has hardwood floors on raised foundations.

EACH IS LOCATED within a five-minute drive of the new Douglas Space Center complex in Huntington Beach, as well as being just short drives from the beautiful Orange coast with its small boat marinas and public beaches.

60 Showcase Homes Sold in Four Weeks

William Krueger developer and builder of Showcase homes, Westminster, stated Saturday that they have sold 60 homes in four week from the first public showing.

The developer, who has been in the business of building homes since 1946, is a graduate engineer and builds his houses on the basis of good engineering. It is his opinion that engineering combined with architectural control, landscaping and spacious yard areas are contributing to the rapid sale of the properties.

* * * *

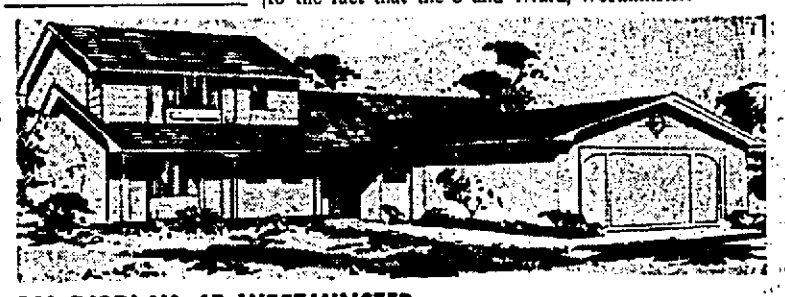

HE CONTINUED his comments on the ready buyer acceptance of Showcase Homes to the fact that the 3 and 4 bedroom homes are equipped with quality features, large two car garages and that extra growing room being introduced in the two story homes.

The growing room is unfinished. Plumbing for bath is in, ready for the fixtures to be installed. This room can be finished in 1- 2- or 3-bedroom with choice of plans furnished by the builder.

THE DECOR of the entire tract from attractive street layout to finished homes creates the atmosphere of park like privacy.

Furnished model homes are open daily for viewing at the tract located on Hazard Avenue, corner of Beach Boulevard, Westminster.

Another Unit of Homes Planned for Sol Vista

COLOR-PLEASING KITCHEN
This color-coordinated kitchen in the new Mediterranean model at International Home Fair in Westminster is expected to have big appeal for the next Sol Vista home unit.

Ground will be broken in the near future for a fourth unit of 118 residences and initial reservations are now being accepted at the Sol Vista International Home Fair sales office, it was announced by Baxter Caterson, sales director for this Alco-Pacific Construction Co. community in Westminster.

Caterson and his staff have been phoning a number of families who had not been able to get in the first two units and informing them that the preliminary commissioner's report had arrived.

New model home being introduced is the Mediterranean, which contains four bedrooms, two baths and is available in four elegant exteriors. The model contains 1,662 square feet and is priced from $25,350 to $26,250.

• • • •

THERE WILL BE 565 homes in this new 160-acre master planned community. It will have a school as well as park site and be within a short distance of churches, shopping centers, the ocean, Knott's Berry Farm, Movieland Wax Museum, Disneyland and the $50,000,000 Douglas Aircraft Missile and Space Center.

Streets, sewers, curbs and ornamental street lights are in and paid for by the developers.

Special design features available are sunken living rooms, recessed, floor to ceiling, or raised hearth fireplaces, master bedroom-bath-dressing room suites, spacious sliding door wardrobes, Hilite aluminum windows and doors, elegant wallpaper, Robertshaw thermostat control, custom lighting fixtures manufactured especially for Sol Vista homes and color coordination throughout.

Six fully furnished models and the attractive sales pavilion may be viewed at the corner of Westminster Blvd. and Bolsa Chica in Westminster.

May Occupy Home by End of Vacation

Anticipating the opening of school less than two weeks away, buyers are moving into the new Regal Homes subdivision at a rapid rate, states Tom Simms, developer of the Buena Park community. According to Simms there are still several choice homes available for immediate occupancy. The excellent location of Regal Homes is one of the biggest reasons for the fine sales reported in this new subdivision, Simms further stated.

Loated on Orangethorpe between Valley View and Knott Avenue in the City of Buena Park, Regal Homes are short driving distances from Long Beach, the industrial areas of Fullerton, Anaheim and East Los Angeles. Knott's Berry Farm is but minutes away—the Southland's most famous beaches and Newport Harbor within 15 minutes drive.

• • • •

REGAL HOMES are three and four bedrooms, family rooms and two baths. They are priced from $21,300 and can be purchased on low down FHA financing. Families with an income of $650 monthly can qualify.

The homes feature balanced power and have built-in range and oven with exhaust fan and hood over range, fireplaces with log-lighters. The back yards are enclosed with a block wall. Other features include furniture finish birch cabinets, tile stall shower with glass doors, also shower over tub, Del Piso entry floors, spacious master bedroom suites, forced air heating and other fine features.

From Long Beach drive out Carson St. to Valley View, left to Orangethorpe and right to furnished models.

Heavy Homes Sales Prior to Opening

Who would believe that acceptance of a brand new idea in home ownership would be so great the 146 homes would be sold before the models were built. This is exactly what happened at Scottsdale Townhouses, located on Avalon Blvd. between Carson and Sepulveda, which is just south of the San Diego Freeway and between the Long Beach and Harbor freeways.

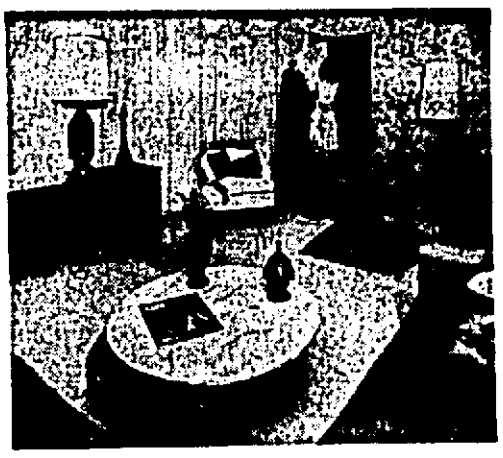

Scottsdale Townhouses are a perfect example of the newest type of California home value. The three-bedroom home is priced at $16,995 with only $500 down plus small costs. Four bedroom homes also are available.

• • • •

IN THIS new Balanced Power community every home has an O'Keefe and Merritt gas range and oven, Frigidaire washer and gas dryer, Hotpoint refrigerator, Insinkerator garbage disposal and wall-to-wall carpeting.

The Scottsdale family also becomes a part owner in the Scottsdale clubhouse and community center, swimming and wading pool, playgrounds, picnic areas, tennis courts and many other recreational facilities.

"Once you visit the model homes, you too will understand why 146 homes sold at a sneak preview," says a spokesman. The sales office and model homes are on Avalon north of Sepulveda and are open from 9:30 to 9:30 daily.

Homebuilding Upturn Noted by Dodge Corp.

The recent dip in residential home building appears to have flattened out, F. W. Dodge Corp., construction news specialists, reported the past week.

Dodge said a spurt in residential building contracts boosted the value of contracts for new construction in July to $4,124,713,000, or 10 per cent above a year ago.

It was enough to put residential awards slightly ahead of June, after a seasonal adjustment, and to put them 19 per cent above July 1962.

The Dodge figures show that all classes of construction contracts awards combined held a healthy lead of 7 per cent for the January-July period over the like period last year.

LONG BEACH 12, CALIF., SUNDAY, SEPT. 1, 1963, SECTION W

How to Succeed in Show Business Without Really Flying

By ELISE EMERY

When scripts for Magnolia Theater productions call for things to fly—they fly!

Jeeps, airplanes, most recently, Peter Pan.

The flying magic is invoked by an apparatus devised and rigged by an eager technical crew intent on learning the art of stagecraft.

To Long Beach audiences who have enjoyed the theater's 71 performances in the past 10 years, it seems that Magnolia itself has flown along its successful course.

Not so, know Pat and Gerry Brown.

The rise has been a long, sometimes hazardous climb from plateau to plateau.

On a warm summer afternoon, with sunlight slicing through the darkened theater-in-the-round at 2400 Magnolia Ave., vivacious, green-eyed, auburn-haired Pat, 33, recalled the 10-year enterprise.

Both Pat and Gerry had had a solid, successful background in professional theater when they met at the famous Alley Theater in Houston, Tex. After their marriage in 1950, they came to Long Beach and in 1953 began the theater they dreamed of.

"We put an ad in the paper asking anyone who was interested to meet with us.

"Twenty-five men and a few women showed up. We began rehearsing 'Stalag 17' because it has an all-male cast.

"We didn't have a place to rehearse, but we rehearsed anyway—in garages, backyards—any place we could find. We rehearsed. And rehearsed. And rehearsed—for six months. Because we didn't have a place to put on the play.

"Finally, we rented a room at the Jewish Community Center which was then at 2026 Pacific Ave.

"The play was billed for one weekend, from Jan. 9 through 11, 1954. Response was so great that we held it over a second weekend. That was our beginning."

Next production, "Detective Story," was given in a day nursery at 30 Termino Ave. There were problems there, too.

Each night before performance, nursery equipment had to be moved out, stage sets and seats moved in. After the show, the routine was reversed and the cast and crew swept, mopped and waxed the nursery, picked up cigarette butts from the ground and got the premises ready for the next day's pre-schoolers. The weary theater

PROPS are important responsibility of hard-working stage crew, are especially challenging for theater-in-the-round.

FOR DIRECTOR Pat Brown, business manager Gerry Brown, work never stops. New season at Magnolia will open on September 19.

JUDITH McCALL tests flying rig, frequently used in Magnolia shows; Dean Hess, Roger McClure observe (above).

REHEARSALS continue all day Sundays from 8 to 10:30 p.m. and each weekday except Saturdays when cast rests.

MAKE-UP is one of the many skills of their profession which young actors must learn—as Nancy Auguston is doing at show's rehearsal.

PARTY LINES WERE BUZZING

Everyone Was Busy

Ye Olde Long Beach Yacht Club rocked with shrieks of "I NEVER wore my skirt that long" and "Look at that hair" and "Who's that?" because this wasn't just an ordinary luncheon where chat focuses on current doings, but a sentimental journey into the recent past via old yearbooks, scrapbooks and wedding albums.

Deonne Christensen Griffiths, along with Nancy Jennings Bryne and Dee Anthony Trent dreamed up the gathering of girl chums from Wilson High class of '52, and two former State College cohorts, Cecelia Dennis Tallichet and Shirley Wesser Starr.

Perhaps the champagne punch had something to do with the bubbly good time, but more likely it was just being together again for Eleanor Hartnett Lyne, Marilyn Nelson Lonsdale, Fredna Moore McPhee, Pearl Nichols Cannan, Kathy Cunningham Edwards, Beverly Robinson Tunnell, Sheila Farmen Bjorkland and Mary Ann McHenry.

Plus Valerie White Becker, Beverly Brown Burnett, Carole Brox Block, Aggie Boudreaux Smith, Frances Satariano Keyes and Marian Scherzinger Daughtry.

ENERGETIC and enthusiastic Betty Benwell has just returned from two round trips to Hawaii. No, she didn't forget her compact or sandals. Each trip was a special treat for her two grandsons. She geared the first three week trip to the intercsts of her elder grandson, Bob Benwell, 16½; then came the turn for Dale, 13½, who toted along his surfboard for some comber riding during his three weeks.

THE DAY BEGAN with overcast skies Aug. 25 in Greenwich, Conn., but it's hoped the sun nudged its way through for the garden wedding of Judy Gimbel, daughter of Barbara (Poulson) and Bruce Gimbel, at Chieftans, home of the Bernard Gimbels. While taking graduate work at Columbia, Judy met her bridegroom, Ben Mendelsund, who will continue at the university's school of architecture.

IF THE TRAVEL bug bites early enough, the pleasant sting may be there for keeps. At least it seems that way for Karen Lindgren. As a youngster, along with other little Lindgrens, she spent a year with her mother Vivian and father Raymond in Norway. Now a student at State College's nursing school, she has just returned from more than two months in Brazil where she not only visited the back country to see firsthand the medical and health facilities, but found time in Rio to study Brazilian cookery and pattern drafting.

Karen made the trip to South America with an Eastern friend, Dorothy Nicholls, whose father is cultural and economic advisor to Brazil.

No sooner was she home than it was time for another Lindgren to depart, this time her father who is college dean at State. He departed Tuesday for several weeks in Sweden to evaluate the summer session program at Upsala University. LBSC has 56 students enrolled there on the California state college overseas program.

AS IF THERE wasn't enough excitement in the C. Thomas Dean household Friday, what with daughter Carolyn's wedding to Denis Smithson, into town for the big event flies Carmen Arbunies from Barcelona, Spain.

Six years ago, when Carmen was a Lakewood High student participating in the American Field Service international scholarship program, she lived with the Deans and she and Carolyn became close friends. In fact, two years ago Carmen, who looks upon Long Beach as a second home town, brightened the Deans' Thanksgiving holiday.

Carolyn's wedding was reason enough to close her desk temporarily at Scandinavian Airlines in Spain. From here she flies to Mexico City to visit a sister and her family.

FRED HEIM was a lad of 19 when he arrived in Long Beach 58 years ago. Quick figuring reveals he's 77. Actually his birthday is on Labor Day this year, and Fred's going to just take it easy. When he came to Long Beach in 1906 he was in the importing business, and for 13 recent years he managed a downtown imported and domestic food store.

THE LITTLE feller is getting on, but at least the news isn't so furry that he can read the fact himself that he's James Randall and that on Aug. 9 he yelled "Waw" to his parents, Dolores and Bob Burt. . . . Another heart stealer is the little girl welcomed into Marlene and Larry Robert's home. Things pinky and frilly were presented Marlene at a recent shower given by Mmes. Daniel Renaud, Philip Schuster and Paul Roper.

EDNA STOWMAN is bustling about these days preparing to welcome her daughter, June, her husband, Major Charles Leon Moss, and their daughters, Mary and Diane, who will arrive in Long Beach this week from Whiteman Air Force Base in Knobnoster, Mo.

The Mosses will have a gay three weeks here visiting relatives and friends before taking off again, this time for a three year assignment in Japan. Prior to spending the past six years in Missouri, the Mosses lived in the La Canada area while Charles was an instructor at Occidental College.

WINNERS and also rans—or rather, also sailed—of Alamitos Bay Yacht Club's Labor Day Regatta discussed their sea prowess at the conclusion of the first day's race at cocktail parties in several Long Beach homes.

Cocktails and a Mexican buffet were served the National Fleet, with Vice Captain and Mrs. Clyde W. Ellerman the hosts.

Woodard-Johnson Wed

Mrs. William Alexander Woodard

Immediate family members gathered Friday evening in Our Saviour's Lutheran Church to witness the marriage ceremony uniting Judith Ann Johnson and William Alexander Woodard.

Parents of the newlyweds are Mrs. S. C. Cameron, 5517 E. Ocean Blvd., and the late Dr. William M. Woodard, and Mrs. George M. Palmer, Long Beach, and Alfred B. Johnson, Los Angeles.

The bride chose for her vows a gown of silk organza and Alencon lace with chapel train. An embroidered pill box of lace held her elbow length veil of illusion and she carried an orchid surrounded by white roses and stephanotis.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Kathleen Johnson, who wore a floor length gown of flowing chiffon.

The bridegroom was served by his step-brother, Garvin Tankersley, as best man, and ushering duties were performed by Tom Crosby and William McCook.

FOLLOWING a honeymoon trip to Colorado, the newlyweds will be at home Sept. 19 in Palo Alto where the bridegroom will complete work toward a master's degree at Stanford University. He received his B.S. from Stanford where he affiliated with Phi Gamma Delta.

Larry Murman acted as best man. Ushers were Clark Burns, Middleton Squier, Clyde Thumm, Robert Scroggie and Charles Hudson.

The bride's gown of delustered satin, trimmed with reembroidered Alencon lace, was a floor length sheath with fitted bodice, long sleeves and detachable overskirt.

Following a wedding trip to Carmel, Lake Tahoe and Yosemite the couple will reside in Newport Beach.

Seeks a Solution to Her Untidiness

Dear Molly Mayfield

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I have been married one year and have found that I have very little self-discipline in the matter of keeping my house clean and the dishes washed.

'Molly, I admit it!

My husband, bless his heart, is the sweetest thing in the world. He never yells around or nags me about my untidiness, but I know it must bother him, as he is a very neat person and came from a neatly kept home.

The first part of this year I worked and used that as an excuse for letting things go. Then, three months ago I had a baby, and spend all day at home now. And, let's face it, there's just no excuse for my messiness.

Do you think that somewhere among your readers there are housewives with very young children who keep their homes moderately clean and neat at all times — the dishes washed, etc. — without the aid of many appliances, who would share with me their workable weekly schedule?

—MESSY HOUSEKEEPER

DEAR MESSY:

I'll be glad to forward suggestions to you — and give your name so they can contact you directly if I receive requests for it.

May I say, I like your spirit in admitting your lack of aptitude as a housekeeper, because lots of young wives know they are failures, too, but just don't care. —M. M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I am 12 years old and my boy friend has hurt me terribly. I wrote him a note and told him to drop by and walk to Sunday School with me last Sunday. He wrote back, "You may be the rose of your mother's heart, but you're only a thorn to me."

How should I answer him?

—LILA

DEAR LILA:

DON'T. He's too rude to bother with. —M. M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I'm a boy 19 years old and have been going with Gail, 18, for a year and a half.

The other day she told me she was pregnant. I said I wanted to marry her, but since the baby isn't mine, she said no. In a way though I feel at fault. You see, Molly, we had a fight and she went out with this other fellow to prove to me she could still get a date with someone else.

She was so mad and hurt she started drinking (which she NEVER did), and I guess she got pretty smashed, and, well, you can guess the rest.

The other boy will not marry her, but I still want to. Please tell me what to do. —MANUEL

DEAR MANUEL:

Think about yourself for a minute. You're so mad and hurt you're thinking about doing a very foolish thing—marrying a very foolish girl.

No, now hold your hat! You try to make excuses for her, but they don't really stand up. She was YOUR girl for a year and a half, and then just because of a spat, she goes out and is intimate with another fellow.

She drinks readily enough with him, but you say she NEVER drank.

Oh, Manuel, this problem is out of your hands now, and unfortunately no one can face it for Gail but herself. Marriage would be no solution. After all, what kind of marriage could it possibly be?

Think it over, Manuel. Think it over long and hard.

—M. M.

A peau de soie rose held her two tier bouffant veil. Her crescent bouquet consisted of phalaenopsis orchids and stephanotis.

Nancy Osborn was maid of honor, and Mark Reichner was best man. Misses Macrate and Lord attended as bridesmaids, while ushers were Dennis G. Naiman and Herbert F. Matter.

* * * *

AFTER A tour of California the newlyweds will depart for Fort Knox, Ky., where the bridegroom is aide-de-camp to the Deputy Commanding General, U.S. Army Training Center, Armor.

The new Mrs. Randolph was graduated from UC, Berkeley.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

She's Remiss In Her Duties

DEAR ABBY: I know a practical nurse who is a disgrace to the profession. She was hired to care for an elderly lady who is almost helpless. After the P.N. puts this elderly lady to bed she goes out the back door and across the street to spend the night with a widower who lives alone. She is supposed to be sleeping in the bedroom next to the patient in case she is needed during the night. I am not the kind of person who makes trouble, but I think somebody ought to tell the family of this poor old helpless woman, and I don't know them well enough.—SEEING IS BELIEVING

ABBY

DEAR SEEING: To be aware of this situation and withhold it from the family is, in my opinion, morally wrong. Since you don't know the family well enough to tell them, find someone who does. But see to it that the family learns the truth immediately.

• • • • •

DEAR ABBY: I am married, but for reasons I cannot put in a letter I am unable to keep my baby. Will a home for unwed mothers take me?—NIGHTMARE

DEAR NIGHTMARE: Yes, there are SOME homes that will take married girls. Send me your name and address.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: About six years ago a nice young couple moved into our neighborhood. I'll call them Mabel and Pete, which are not their real names. My husband and I became very friendly with them. They had two children and so did we. Two years ago, for no reason at all, Pete walked off and left Mabel. She was five months pregnant at the time. We never saw Pete again, but Mabel said they were divorced and she gets alimony and support money regularly. We have been like a family to Mabel. Out of the blue my husband told me wanted to ADOPT Mabel's youngest child, a sweet boy. I knew my husband was fond of this child, but I can't see why he would want to ADOPT him. He said Mabel would continue to raise him but the boy would be legally his "son." Isn't this rather unusual? What would you do, Abby? —IN A DAZE

DEAR IN: I'd tell my husband to forget it. And if you are like a "family" to Mabel, do her a favor and help her find a nice man to complete her own family.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: Last night I took a baby-sitting job in the neighborhood. I had just started to sit for money and it was my first time with these people. I am 14 and my mother won't let me sit anywhere later than midnight. It was agreed with these people that I'd sit from seven until midnight for 50c an hour. The children were perfect and gave me no trouble. It got to be 12:30 and the parents were not home yet. My mother called twice and I had to tell her I couldn't leave because the parents were still out. Finally, at 1 a. m., I telephoned the parents(they were at a relative's home) and asked them please to come home. They came right away and apologized for forgetting the time. They tipped me a dollar, too. Now my mother won't let me sit for them any more. It only happened once. Do you think my mother is being fair?—SITTER

DEAR SITTER: I would say, give the night owls one more chance.

• • • •

Tell your troubles to Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Box 3365, Beverly Hills.

BEFORE: Lois Lavender lacked chic, needed help with beauty and wardrobe problems.

FOURTH IN 'NEW MODEL YOU' SERIES

A Timetable for Beauty

"I don't know where to start building my college wardrobe," wrote 18-year-old Lois Lavender in an S.O.S. enumerating her wardrobe and beauty problems. We took her in tow, arranged a self-improvement course at Vogue Modeling Agency . . . and, as you can see, she's now in-the-know about what's right for her in hairstyling and makeup.

Lois' before and after pictures prove that anytime is the right time for a beauty overhaul . . . and that the best investments in back-to-school clothes are coordinates that take you around the clock.

AFTER: With contacts to replace glasses, a new hairstyle, livelier makeup, Lois is off to good start for success in college.

DEAR FASHION EDITOR:

I am 17 years old and will start to Long Beach State College this fall.

I have three main beauty problems: My hair is unwieldy, I wear glasses and don't know what style of clothes are "right" for me.

My hair is very fine, very thick, permanents won't stay and I have a styling problem. I can't find stylish shoes for my size 9AAAA feet . . . and because I am exceptionally long-waisted, I have trouble finding dresses that fit.

Can you help me with these problems?

LOIS' NEW FIGURE and a nine-piece coordinate set add up to around-the-clock chic for busy school days. From left, yellow cotton blouse and earthy brown tweed skirt, topped with bulky sweater, take her to school in fine style . . . off with sweater, on with matching jacket and fur hat, she's ready for luncheon date . . . blouse with weskit and pants, the right formula for study hours . . . jumper, sans blouse, is date bait; with blouse is class material. Country Set fashions from Harris Aire; Shicca boots from Jacobs Quality Footwear.

Here's How Lois' Dazzling New Look Was Achieved

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON

College-bound Lois Lavender's beauty and fashion complaints are the same as those echoed by school girls everywhere:

"I can't do a thing with my hair. . . ."

"I don't know how to put on my make-up. . . ."

"My clothes never seem to fit me OR the occasion."

While there is no set formula for solving every girl's wardrobe problems, we believe any young thing who wants to look prettier and more fashionable can easily tailor this beauty story to her own needs.

FIRST OF ALL, whether you're college coed or grandmother, take a studied view of yourself. List your assets and deficits.

"This is the first thing we ask of our students," said Elda Barry, owner-operator of Vogue Modeling Agency, where Lois was treated to a 15-week self-improvement and charm course.

Vital statistics working in Lois' favor: even features, lovely teeth, an oval-shaped face (can wear any coif or any hat style), appealingly wide-apart eyes and naturally blond hair.

Even with these assets, however, Lois' potential attractiveness was hidden under beauty-robbing spectacles, her hair was too short and unflatteringly styled; makeup, improperly applied, failed to bring out her best features.

Basically, though, her problem was the real familiar one of not knowing what to do with herself.

BECAUSE LOIS' improvement program was based on simple and fundamental principles of beauty, we believe they can help any young woman, anywhere, approximate her dazzling do-over.

Here are the highlights. Help yourself!

First of all, hair stylist Mr. Stanley at Vogue recommended that she allow her hair to grow to a length approximately six inches over-all. He later gave her a foundation wave permanent and created the "page fluff" coif (pictured above.)

An energy-giving diet helped pare off pounds and posture-improving exercises brought her steps closer to model beauty. She learned that a seeming tendency toward bowleggedness can be corrected by relaxing the knees, pulling hips in and walking properly (balls of feet first, one foot directly in front of the other).

Overcoming her I-can't-wear-them attitude, she was fitted for contacts, giving her naturally beautiful blue-green eyes the outlook they deserve.

SHE WAS TAUGHT the first step in wardrobe planning, which is: clean all the clothes skeletons out of your closet, keeping only those items in active use.

Items left are then listed on a wardrobe worksheet.

Lois found she had an over-supply of prints, plaids and checks, also skirts and blouses. She had a drouth of basics and neutrals.

She learned, too, how to make the least of figure "trouble spots." Her long waist, no longer a problem, now figures beautifully in dresses that have no definite line of demarcation at the waist—such as the long-torso, body-skimming jumper above.

All of which proves that not all figures are in history books and that it takes only a bit of fashion know-how to look smart in the classroom.

Gotham Is Home for Pair

After a honeymoon trip to Northern California, New York City will be the first residence of Mr. and Mrs. David George Ball (Morganne Lee Arnold).

Their wedding and reception took place Aug. 31 at St. Luke's Episcopal Church in the presence of 160 guests and united the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Arnold, 3624 Pine Ave., and the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Harold George Ball of Middleport, N.Y.

The bride was attired in an embroidered linen dress. Lace flowers formed a cap to hold the soft folds of her veil of Venetian lace. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis.

Mrs. Robert Lewis attended the bride as matron of honor, while Grace Takahashi and Ruth Ball were bridesmaids.

* * * *

JONATHAN Harold Ball, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Guests were escorted to their seats by William Garnsey and David Dominick.

A third generation Long Beach resident, the new Mrs. Ball was graduated from Poly High School, received her Bachelor of Arts degree from Mills College and her Master of Arts degree from Columbia University. She also attended the University of Bristol in Bristol, Eng.

The bridegroom attended high school at Sir Thomas Rich's School in Gloucester, Eng., and received his Bachelor of Arts degree from Yale University. He now is attending law school at Columbia University.

WHY GROW OLD?

No Easy Task for Woman to Work, Manage Home

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

The married woman who has a job outside her home faces many hazards. Today thousands of women handle a home, family and a career with success and grace, but a woman must experience it to understand the complexity of such a role.

This most modern of all creatures, the married woman who works, falls heir to the crises and pitfalls and demands of both her domestic life and her professional life. These two worlds sometimes place a strain on one another.

The single woman in business can go home at the end of a day to relaxation and leisure, whereas a married woman's responsibilities continue. The married woman who has a full time career leads a double life.

* * * *

SHE MUST maintain a charming home for her husband and be relaxed enough to enjoy it with him and his friends. Of course, if she had children the picture is more complicated. This modern wonder must meet all of the upsets and small catastrophes which happen in every home without allowing them to interfere with her job.

It is easy to see that such a woman must have her life well organized. Her time budget cannot stand the strain of forgotten items on the grocery list, overlooked items needed by her family or activities which have no meaning for her.

Most of all, she must guard her health because she will need superlative health to carry on with glee. She must also have a certain temperament which sloughs off petty annoyances with a sense of humor and flavors life with enthusiasm. A worrier would never survive.

* * * *

IF YOU ARE feeling the strain of a family and a job, discover whether or not your household organization is at fault. If this is true, change the situation. It can make a great difference! It might also be wise to look into your life as a whole and decide whether or not you should be working outside of your home. Perhaps you are losing some important values.

Of course, this depends on so many factors; your health and temperament, how your husband feels about it, the ages of your children and your financial setup.

If you would like to have my free leaflet "The Married Woman" send a stamped self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet number 62 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

South Guess Loses Hand

Practically any North-South pair would arrive at a final contract of four hearts and North would have no trouble making his contract. In fact, some North players would make an overtrick.

Three no-trump looks just about as easy. South holds off twice on spades and then loses the heart finesse. East leads back a diamond and while South does not like the idea of taking a finesse into West he sees no other play for his contract. He takes the finesse. It works. He runs off the rest of the heart suit and eventually takes another diamond finesse to make four odd.

Nevertheless, when the hand was actually played in a rubber bridge game, South went down one trick.

• • • •

PLAY STARTED out as advertised. South won the third spade, led the six of hearts and finessed dummy's jack. Not only did the finesse work, but East dropped the ten. There was no question in South's mind but that East had started with the singleton ten of hearts. In that case, it was up to South to get back to his hand for a second spade finesse.

He led the jack of diamonds from dummy. An East who could hold back the king of hearts could also play low on the jack of diamonds. South rose with the ace and led the queen of hearts.

He let it ride. Who wouldn't? East produced the king and led a club. South ran off the rest of his hearts, but had to give East the last two tricks.

Magnolia Marks 10th Anniversary

crew was lucky if it finished by 3:30 a.m. But the play ran four weeks.

"It was necessity that prodded us to the next plateau," Pat recalled. "We just didn't have the energy to keep up with that schedule."

With a shoestring budget, the Browns rented a small, vacant market at 2400 Magnolia Ave. They paid the first and last month's rent, then began converting the premises into a theater-in-the-round.

"Members of the company did everything they could. Plumbing! To meet building requirements, we had to have additional plumbing which called for 18 feet of new pipe. We couldn't lay the pipe, but to save money a couple of other women and I decided to dig the trench. We pounded and chiseled through 18 feet of concrete floor. No outlet!

• • • •

"THEN WE discovered we had read the floor plans upside down. So we filled in the trench and dug 18 feet in the other direction."

The crises of those early days echo the Perils of Pauline. It was a time of experiment, improvising and glowing faith in the theater.

The number and quality of productions increased. More and more Long Beach playgoers discovered rich theatrical fare in Magnolia Theater.

The star system was initiated when Lyle Talbot played in "Time Out for Ginger" in December, 1955.

"We opened on a Friday night; the critics were as pleased with our performance as was the audience.

"At 6 p.m. Saturday, the actress cast in the major role of the mother phoned me she was ill and couldn't go on.

• • • •

"LUCKILY, I have a photographic memory for scripts so I rushed to the theater and began rehearsing. When Lyle came in I said, 'Please run over this scene with me.' He turned white when he realized that the director was stepping into the role. But everything went great and we performed together for six weeks. Later, he asked me to appear with him in out-of-town productions of the play."

The theater's reputation has grown in stature with professional actors. Such stars as Vanessa Brown, Richard Erdman, John Carradine, Juanita Moore and Robert Cornthwaite have welcomed the opportunity to perform with Magnolia casts.

"Our serious purpose is to train young people for professional theater, both in acting and technical fields. There is no better way than to work with professionals. It provides incentive and gives apprentices first-hand experience they cannot get any other way."

• • • •

REHEARSAL schedules are rigorous, standards exacting. As soon as one play opens for its four-week-run, the next production is cast and goes into rehearsal.

"It's hard work," Pat admitted, "but our apprentices learn what will be expected of them in the professional theater."

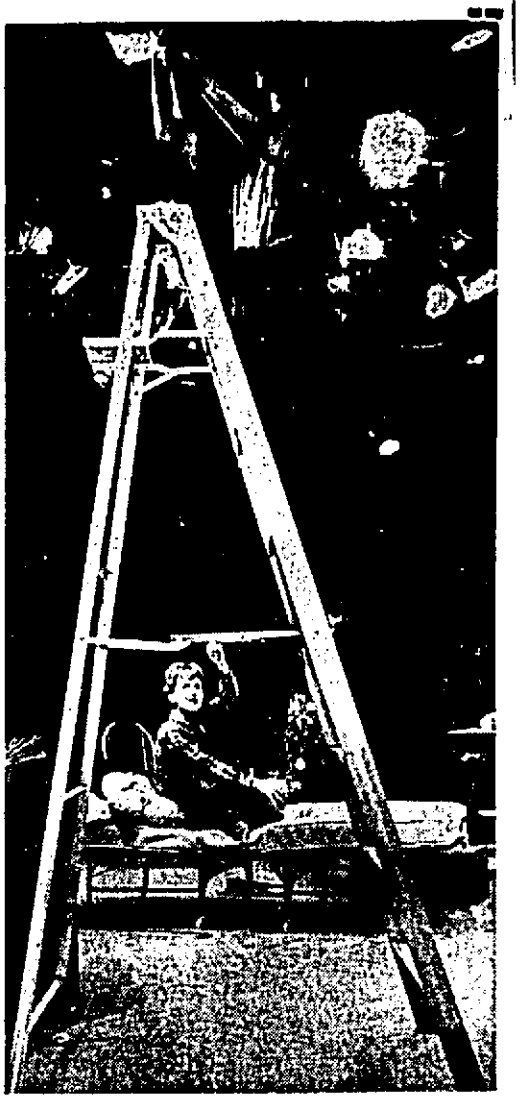

Magnolia was the first theater to produce a Tennessee Williams play in Long Beach, "Summer and Smoke," in July, 1955. It had its own crisis when an actor playing Dr. Buchanan got carried away in a scene and hit Poppa Gonzales so hard with a cane that the weapon splintered apart, cracking open Poppa's head. He finished the scene before he blacked out and was rushed to the hospital by Pat. Next night, he was back on stage.

In July, 1956, Magnolia came up with another "first." "Pal Joey" was the first musical to be performed in-the-round in Long Beach. "There is no doubt the experiment is a success," wrote a critic.

• • • •

PAT, WHO has directed 55 of Magnolia's productions and performed in 10, was summoned in 1961 by the Ford Foundation to be field director of its new Theater Communications Group. Purpose of the group is to aid regional theaters in order to give actors, directors and technicians a place to work outside of New York. For more than a year, Pat traveled around the country, working with little theaters. Meanwhile, Gerry, who has his own business interests in Los Angeles and is business manager of Magnolia, also took on director's duties here.

By the time Pat resigned her field director post—"because I just couldn't stand being away from home any longer and our phone bills were running so high"—both the Browns were more determined than ever to establish a professional theater.

"LIGHTING IS the most important single factor in circle theater productions," said Pat Brown, director of Magnolia Theater, as Dave Fraser adjusted lights on Judith McCall.

"IF I THOUGHT that after 10 years all we could look forward to is some new seats and new paint, I wouldn't want to go on. We are not willing just to sit and be a successful community theater. We want to grow artistically, to bring the theatrical variety of Broadway to Long Beach, to give talented actors an opportunity to train for professional theater.

"I've had a lot of arguments about that word 'professional.' Certainly, there are many talented people working in little theater who don't make their living acting, but love it and perform well.

"But the fact remains that no matter how talented an actor is, he can't do his best work, be most creative, in two-and-a-half hours after a full working day. Ultimately, standards go down. Of course, we will always need volunteers, but we need a paid staff, too."

• • • •

SO, THE NEXT plateau Magnolia hopes to reach is establishment of a paid, permanent staff of three or four technicians and seven to ten actors. When that is achieved a new theater building.

"We know there are many people in Long Beach hungry for good theater. Our obligation is to present a balanced repertoire, to produce what the public wants to see, not just our own favorites. Nor do we want to produce just 10 commercial comedies in a row."

• • • •

THE '62-'63 season included "Purlie Victorious," a modern satire; "The Miracle Worker," modern drama; "Rape of the Belt," satire of Greek comedy; "Fantasticks," play with music; "The Best Man," comedy drama; "Summer of the 17th Doll," Australian prize-winning play; and "Born Yesterday," a just-for-fun comery. Summer productions were "Blood, Sweat and Stanley Poole," and "Peter Pan."

To build a supporting audience for a professional company, Magnolia last year initiated its first subscription series.

• • • •

ON AUG. 26 it began its second drive which will end Sept. 14. Goal: 2,500 subscribers.

Patrons may buy tickets for all eight of the productions planned for the coming season, or may buy tickets for seven of the eight. With 20 per cent reduction from the cost of single admission tickets, prices range from $8.40 for the seven series to a maximum of $12.80 for the eight performances.

Among projected productions are Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew," Ben Jonson's comedy masterpiece "Volpone," Kurt Weill's "Threepenny Opera," and Lillian Hellman's "Another Part of the Forest" and "The Little Foxes."

Meanwhile, another Pat and Gerry brown production is due in October—a sister or brother to join Barry, 11, and Tony, 8½.

"It had better be a girl," said Pat spiritedly. "I'm outnumbered now three to one!"

'I'M HERE!'

"Lonesome" George Gobel looks longingly at lovely dancer-singer Elaine Dunn, who co-stars with him in the musical "Bye Bye Birdie" at Melodyland Theater in Anaheim. Show runs through Sept. 8. Stuart Damon also is starred as Conrad Birdie.

MAJOR & MINOR NOTES

Readers Respond 'We Want Opera'

By RACHEL MORTON
L. P-T Music Critic

Two weeks ago I wrote a Major & Minor Notes column entitled, "Does Long Beach Want Grand Opera?"

I invited my readers to write me expressing their opinions. The response has been most gratifying and today I am quoting excerpts from some of the letters. It is most interesting and encouraging to note that not one unfavorable reply to the idea was received.

Space limitations do not permit the quoting of the letters in entirety, but I wish to express appreciation and gratitude to those who wrote me. Let's hear from more readers on the subject.

• • • •

"IT WAS MOST interesting to find your article "Does Long Beach Want Grand Opera." I personally was happy to see someone take the first step in this direction. Although this is an expensive venture, surely Long Beach and its surrounding area have grown culturally enough to have the support of our socially prominent people to the extent that plans could be made to proceed with such a wonderful idea.

"However, like yourself, I feel there must be NAME stars in the lead roles. Without them I feel it would be a miserable flop."

Elsie Rockwell
1215 Temple Ave.

"We were thrilled with your article regarding the possibility of having opera performances in Long Beach. Should such a wonderful dream come true, count upon us for any assistance we may be able to render to further the cause for such an enjoyable project."

Jack and Paula Margon
719 East 36th St.

• • • •

"YOUR SPLENDID article regarding opera in Long Beach was very stimulating and being a recent arrival from New York where I was only a stone's throw from the Metropolitan Opera House, I am in happy accord with your hopeful project of promoting enthusiasm among the Long Beach community to desire an opera house of their own and where people with a cultural background may be able to listen to the best artists in the operatic field.

"However, until that dream could be achieved, by all means let us have opera."

Susan Sanford
5492 Anaheim Road

• • • •

Mrs. A. O. Arguello
1833 Appleton St.

"Does Long Beach want Grand Opera? I surely think they do. I have been waiting for opera to come to Long Beach for years. I attend opera in Los Angeles every season and always think it would be so much better if we could have it right here."

Mrs. Walter Miller Jr.
3130 Mariquita St.

"I like the idea of opera in Long Beach."

Ruben Camacho
1213 E. Mauretania
Wilmington

• • • •

"I WAS pleased to read your article and know how you feel about grand opera in Long Beach and I am with you all the way.

"I've been here seven years and love Long Beach but do miss the music. I'm from Cincinnati and no doubt you know what a musical city it is.

"I go to everything musical that comes and have been amazed at the attentive audiences they have here. You could hear a pin drop—and I am sure opera or any good music will go over here and it surely would bring up the cultural side of Long Beach. Here's hoping we can get more music here."

Pope Show at LBSC of Unusual Promise

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Dan Pope has accomplished a unique achievement, the development of a new art form, which is remarkable in the climate of artistic proliferation in our time and area. His master's show at Long Beach State College continues through Friday (closed Monday) from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the small gallery.

There are several crafts exhibited in the show: fine silver jewelry, elegant ceramics, objects of sand-cast aluminum, indifferent hand-blocked fabrics, but Pope's great claim to fame is his use of iron and steel for decorative objects that previously might have been made of precious metals, carved hardwood, or ceramic.

• • • •

THOSE familiar with the current art scene will recognize Pope's magnificent circular iron candelabra and bowl which were not only in the LBSC student show last year, but also were in the outstanding "Design West" show at the Pasadena Museum last summer.

From these, Pope has developed a whole new craft medium of this metal. There is a hanging made of 70 steel plates, each with a different treatment, with spot welding, application of other metals (copper, bronze, tin, nickel, silver), and a variety of burnishings and patinas.

• • • •

USING THESE methods, he has created small boxes and jars with fitted lids (often inlaid with contrasting metal on the underside) and lined with rich-toned wool felt. Several of these are surrounded by faceted screens of undercut steel made with a gas cutting torch. Some have a finish similar to "japanned" metal. There are three "scepters" like long hat pins to serve as ash trays or candle holders in the garden.

There is a large footed container made of steel sheets which might hold wood or charcoal. There is a bowl-shaped steel table, about 3 feet in diameter, glass-topped.

It costs a whale of a lot to be laid up by an accident—any kind of accident. When the family bread-winner is hurt and can't work, his income is usually reduced or stopped entirely. Result? The family savings are drained so much that it may take years to recover from the high accident costs.

Bills for medical treatments, X-rays, hospital rooms, wheel chairs and a dozen other unexpected expenses, take a big chunk out of anyone's hard-earned savings.

This insurance is designed to help you solve the Accident Expense Problem. You may find it hard to believe, BUT this policy—at a cost of little more than a penny a day does pay the benefits shown below, for accidents at work, at home, in your automobile, on the street, and even at play.

Hundreds of claims are paid every week to men and women, like yourself, who never expected to be hurt. But they realized that, since one American in every 12 gets hurt each year, they just couldn't afford to be without this low-cost protection.

Recipe by Girl, 15, Is Best in Annual Cook Book Contest

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
L. P-T Food Editor

Again, for the ninth consecutive year, our readers, both men and women — from teen-age to grown-up, have responded in a great way to the call-of-the-I, P-T Cook Book.

To thank the thousands of participants, individually, who contributed their favorite recipes would be an impossible task at best. To find the proper adjectives to describe the many mouth-watering recipes submitted would take a poet laureate, and of course, I don't qualify. However, Owen Meredith expresses how I feel in the following poem:

We may live without books (without music and art),
We may live without conscience, and live without heart,
We may live without friends, we may live without books,
But civilized man cannot live without cooks.

We may live without books (what is knowledge but grieving),
We may live without hope (what is hope but deceiving),
We may live without love (what is passion but pining),
But where is the man who can live without dining."

* * * *

SO, TO EACH OF you who took time to send in old family secrets, those who experimented and sent us the results of their labors; and to all the various club members who spent hours testing, tasting and judging, my sincerest thanks.

MILDRED FLANARY

It is because of you that the 1963 Cook Book has expanded from 23 classifications nine years ago, to 40, today.

This year's grand prize winner exemplifies two "brand news" in our cook book contest—she is a teenager, and her recipe comes under the "quantity cooking" classification . . . "Party Tacos for 24."

Pam Stillman, 5918 Gaviota Ave., who won the O'Keefe & Merritt Gas Contempo Range is just 15 years old.

Mrs. Walda Anderson, 3602 Fairman St., Lakewood, won the dishwasher with her recipe for "Peach Custard Cake," and Mrs. Donald Evans, 9507 Glandon St., Bellflower, won a third prize cash award for her "Huevos Mariposa" (that means eggs).

THE WINNERS were determined by five graduate home economists.

Mrs. Elaine G. McNally, Home Economist, U. S. Dept. of the Interior, Bureau of

GRAND PRIZE WINNER

Pam Stillman, 15 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Stillman, 5918 Gaviota Ave., submitted the grand prize-winning recipe among 4,781 entries in the annual Cook Book Contest. "I like to putter around the kitchen," commented the teen-ager, "but I don't like to do dishes."

Second Grand Prize

PEACH CUSTARD CAKE

- 1½ cups all purpose flour
- ½ tsp. salt
- ½ cup soft butter or margarine
- 1 can (1 lb. 14 oz.) sliced peaches (drain and save juice)
- ¼ cup peach syrup
- ½ cup sugar
- ½ tsp. cinnamon
- 1 tsp. rum or other flavoring
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 1 cup evaporated milk

Put the flour, salt and butter in a 1½ quart bowl. Mix with pastry blender until mixture is like coarse meal. Press mixture firmly on bottom and halfway up sides of buttered 8-inch square pan.

Drain the sliced peaches well and save ½ cup syrup. Arrange peach slices on crust in pan. Sprinkle over the peaches a mixture of ½ cup sugar, ½ tsp. cinnamon and flavoring. Bake in 375 degree oven for 20 minutes. Mix the ½ cup peach syrup, the egg, slightly beaten, and the cup of evaporated milk. Pour over peaches. Bake 30 minutes more or until custard is firm except in center. Center becomes firm on standing. Serve warm or cold. Serves 9.

Pretty Jordan High Girl's Recipe Best

Don't worry about cooking becoming a lost art with all the modern convenience foods making meal preparation so easy.

Pam Stillman, a pretty Jordan High junior, just 15 years old, has proven that modern youngsters—some of them at least—are as much at home in the kitchen as was grandma.

Pam is the winner of the annual Cook Book Contest conducted by the Independent, Press-Telegram. She captured the sweepstakes prize after a committee of nationally known home economists weeded through the 4,781 entries.

"OH, I LIKE to putter around the kitchen," says Pam, "but I never dreamed one of my recipes would win over all of the good cooks who participated. What a surprise. Now I'll have to take my cooking more seriously."

As pert and modern as any school girl, Pam took her first home economic course this summer at Jordan. "It just seemed that home ec didn't fit into my study courses so I decided to go to summer school to learn about nutrition and food studies."

Undecided as to whether she plans a home economics career, Pam disclosed that she loves to sew, makes most of her clothes and like most other moderns hates to do dishes.

PAM'S WINNING recipe was "Party Tacos." Mildred Flanary, Independent, Press-Telegram food editor and director of the recipe contest, said the judges found Pam's recipe outstanding because of the taste appeal and the fact that it could be prepared well in advance so the hostess wouldn't be spending time in the kitchen when her guests were present.

Pam is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim M. Stillman, 5918 Gaviota Ave. Her dad is a commercial fisherman.

'You should taste my baked Alaska—Alaska salmon, that is," quipped the teener.

Pam is an outstanding student in her studies in school and is very active in the North Long Beach Brethren Church.

Here is her winning entry:

PARTY TACOS
(Makes Sauce for 24)

- 24 tortillas, quickly fried in bacon fat
- 6 fresh tomatoes, coarsely chopped
- 1½ qts. lettuce, shredded (measured after shredding)
- 5 cups mild cheddar cheese, shredded
- 2 cups onions, shredded

MEAT SAUCE

- 3 lbs. ground beef (lean ground chuck, shoulder or round)
- 3 tblsp. bacon fat
- 2 large onions, chopped
- 2 green peppers, chopped
  (if out of season, the canned green chillis may be used—1 can for this recipe)
- 2½ tsp. salt
- 2 tblsp. chili powder (alter to suit taste)
- 2 tsp. soy sauce
- 2 tsp. cumin
- ¼ tsp. pepper
- 3 cans tomato sauce, each diluted with 1 can of water
- 1 tblsp. brown sugar

Brown ground beef, onions and green peppers in bacon fat over medium heat, stirring occasionally to break up meat. Add seasonings, brown sugar and diluted tomato sauce and cover. Simmer slowly for one hour.

The tortillas (purchased in the delicatessen section of markets in packages of 12) are fried in shallow fat and cooked until puffy. Turn with pancake turner and fry other side. Remove and fold over paper towel. Stack folded.

Shred and chop vegetables and cheese and arrange separately in large bowls or sectioned dishes for buffet service. Have meat sauce in chafing dish or heated casserule. Arrange hot tortillas on large platter. (They may be kept crisp and hot in slow oven). Allow guests to assemble their own, placing a quantity of each item in folded tortilla.

(Paper napkins should be provided to wrap finished products. If desired, commercially prepared "hot sauce" may be dashed on for added warmth.)

Note: Everything for these tacos may be done at least a day in advance. The meat sauce improves with standing in refrigerator and may be heated at the last minute. Or, for serving smaller numbers, it may be frozen. Only the lettuce and tomatoes need be hand chopped the day of the party).

Norwalk Woman Loses 21½ Pounds in Six Weeks

Here you see Mrs. Harvey, with her husband in their Norwalk home. She is reducing to be more active with her children and to be more presentable at P-T A meetings.

as told by Virginia Harvey, Norwalk

"I want to lose weight. The most important reason is because of my health. Since I've gained all my weight, I'm tired all the time, get exhausted very easy, and I'm very short of breath.

"I have a wonderful husband and four lovely children. When we go out and do a lot of walking, my legs get sore, and I have to stop and rest. This ruins their fun because they have to wait for me.

"When I go out to buy a nice dress for a party, or special occasion; it's very hard to find something in a size 18½ or 20 that doesn't make me feel and look like an old lady. Rather than wear them, I stay home, or else I make a suit with a loose jacket.

"This year I'm going to be the 1st Vice President of our school's P.T.A., and that means getting up in front of a group every month to introduce the program and also attend other meetings all over the state. Therefore, I'd like to look and feel my best, and I cannot do it with this excess weight.

"I used to get so disgusted when I looked in a mirror, that I would turn away real fast, and if I felt this way, others must feel the same when they looked at me."

Mrs. Harvey's family is very thrilled and happy with her weight and inch loss. She looks so wonderful, and is beginning to resemble again the girl her husband married. Mrs. Harvey's husband is so pleased with her progress, that he has promised her a new wardrobe when she has completed her program.

Here you see Virginia Harvey with Pat Walker, the national figure authority. After only 6 weeks she has reduced 21½ pounds, 4½ inches from her waist, 5 inches from her abdomen, 4½ inches from her hips, 4 inches off each thigh, and still going down.

How This Newspaper Helps Advertisers . . .

By Having Our Temperature Taken Regularly

Every newspaper has an editorial thermometer. It's called "circulation." The paper's ups and downs in its efforts to satisfy the greatest number of editorial interests is reflected in its circulation.

So that there is no possibility that the calibrations on our thermometer become blurred by self-satisfaction, we have our temperature taken regularly—by a trained A.B.C.* circulation auditor.

When he leaves, there's no question of how we feel.

And, we're feeling quite healthy today, thank you—an indication that we're doing our job of providing an interested audience for your sales messages.

We would welcome the opportunity of showing you the A.B.C. facts on our circulation, and to explain just how our editorial program is helping to build reader interest for your advertising messages. Call us this week . . .

Electric Barbecue Is Ideal for Summer

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
L. P-T Food Editor

Time was when the turkey remained in hiding until the Thanksgiving or Christmas seasons rolled around. Now, the king of birds may turn up in any size and at any time. It's no longer confined to oven cooking, either, for its equally good baked, fried or barbecued. Today we're spit barbecuing a whole turkey.

The electric barbecues, now available, are just right for small apartment or compact barbecue area. Besides being easy to start, it gives instant controlled heat with no waiting for charcoal briquettes to light.

With your spit-barbecued turkey, serve Muffins made from a dressing mix, Foil Wrapped Zucchini, Fresh Peach Turnovers and Roquefort Chive French Bread.

Here's how you do them:

Choose your turkey from 4 to 25 lbs. If frozen, thaw completely, then brush inside of bird with basting sauce. Run spit rod from center of neck skin through body cavity and out just above the tail. Fasten tightly with spot forks at both ends. Tie twine around turkey to hold wings against body, and tie legs and tail together below spit rod. Roll spit rod on palms of hands to check balance. Insert thermometer into thickest part of thigh, being careful not to touch bone.

Arrange charcoal at back of firebox and knock off gray ash. Place drip pan, made of double thickness heavy-duty foil, in front of coals. Attach spit, then brush turkey with basting sauce or salad oil. Start motor, with turkey close to coals until seared (not blistered). Then move turkey about 7 inches from coals and continue cooking, adding charcoal as necessary. Baste occasionally, adding drippings from foil pan to your basting mixture.

Turkey is done when the thermometer registers 185 to 190 deg., or when thickest part of drumstick feels soft (approx. 12 to 15 minutes per lb.).

Here are some treats to serve with it:

Mrs. Cubbison's Dressing Muffins

- 1 6½-oz. package all-purpose dressing
- 1 small onion, finely chopped
- ¾ cup water or broth
- ¼ cup melted butter or margarine
- 1 cup finely chopped parsley

Combine all-purpose dressing with melted butter or margarine. Add onion and liquid. Blend well, but lightly. Shape into eight balls and brush with melted butter or margarine. Roll in parsley. Place in greased muffin pans. Bake at 325 degrees 35 to 45 minutes, until a golden brown. Serve hot from the pans at the Barbecue table.

Foil Wrapped Zucchini

Slice zucchini crosswise, in quarter inch slices. Place individual portions on double thickness of heavy duty aluminum foil. Add cubed fresh tomato; sliced celery; salt; coarse, freshly ground black pepper; tablespoon Frozen Chopped Chives and a patty of butter or margarine. Wrap foil securely around food. Barbecue on briquets 15 minutes or on grill around 20 to 25 minutes, turning once.

Roquefort Chive French Bread

Cut a long loaf of French bread in half lengthwise. Combine 2 tablespoons Frozen Chopped Chives with 1 cube soft butter or margarine. Blend in 2 ounces Roquefort cheese and 2 dashes Tabasco sauce. Spread on cut sides of bread. Then slash each half loaf on the bias into 1½- 2-inch slices, being careful not to cut through bottom crust. Place on baking sheet and heat in oven at 400 deg. 10 minutes, or until hot and crusty.

IT'S SUMMER BARBECUE TIME

For the small apartment patio or compact barbecue area, one of the electric barbecues now available beautifully "fits the spot." Besides being easy to start, it gives instant controlled heat with no waiting for charcoal briquettes to light. With your turkey we suggest Dressing Muffins, Foil Wrapped Zucchini, Peach Turnovers and Roquefort Chive French Bread. —(Lee & Associates photo.)

Fresh California Peach Turnovers

Prepare bisquick dough as for rolled biscuits, using 2 cups bisquick mix. Roll out ¼-inch thick and brush with melted butter. Cut into 3-inch squares. Combine 1 cup chopped fresh California peaches with ¼ cup sugar and 2 tablespoons flour. Spoon a generous portion of peach mixture onto each square. Fold dough over to make a triangle. Seal edges. Bake on greased baking sheet at 400 degrees F., 20 to 25 minutes.

Also be sure to refrigerate or freeze the gravy for use in your "planned over" meals.

QUALITY CARPET WILLBANKS SELLS FOR LESS

The Willbanks Story:

The Wilbanks Carpet Co. is a departure from the usual carpet specialty shop. It was founded on the premise that quality carpet, backed by expert installation, could be sold at a minimum mark-up in sufficient volume to be profitable. The extension of this premise was to operate without frills and costly fixtures from a low rent and thus low overhead location in a factory warehouse on a side street in Signal Hill. By eliminating high rent and other cost-raising features, the company decided it could afford to pass on to its customers the substantial savings by giving more carpet at less cost.

Mabaan country—a remote, steaming pocket tucked into the border of Sudan and Ethiopia

THE

Imagine that most Americans lived to be 90 years of age.

Imagine that at 90—or even older—they had all their faculties, could hear a stage whisper at 100 yards and cut such a youthful figure that from the back they were indistinguishable from a 20-year-old.

Imagine, in addition, that they were free of heart disease, high blood pressure, ulcers, asthma, obesity, allergies and other degenerative diseases and complaints that now plague contemporary society.

Would you call this daydreaming? A hopeful vision of some future geriatric utopia?

Actually, the conditions described above exist today. They don't apply to Americans, but to a small tribe of Sudanese, 20,000 strong, called the Mabaan, shown on these pages.

Living in a swampy, steamy, primitive, mud-hut village in the jungles of northeast Africa, the Mabaan are possibly the healthiest people in the world.

To find out what makes them so, PARADE recently hopped a Sabena jet and flew 6,000 miles into the Sudan, accompanying an expedition of doctors to study these paragons of fitness and vigor.

At first glance their ripe old age seems hard to understand, for Mabaan life is anything but easy. Their diet, consisting mainly of sour, pasty bread called durrah, is grim and monotonous. The swamp climate of the White Nile is severe—seared for six months of the year by blistering sun, pelted by rainstorms the rest of the time.

Yet despite the diet and extremes of climate, the Mabaan are a tall, muscular people who remain extraordinarily youthful into old age.

Dramatic proof of the Mabaan's ability to halt the aging process is demonstrated by their amazing hearing. Dr. Samuel Rosen, a New York ear specialist who led the expedition, discovered the average Mabaan of 75 can hear as well as the average 25-year-old American. But even more astonishing were the results of the routine medical examinations which enabled Dr. Rosen to report: "The Mabaan simply do not die until their bodies completely wear out."

How were these remarkable people discovered, and what meaning, if any, do their secrets of long life and youthfulness have for you?

The search begins

The road that led to the Mabaan was remarkably roundabout. It began in 1952 on an operating table in Mt. Sinai Hospital when Dr. Rosen, while operating on a patient who had been virtually deaf, jarred loose the stapes, a tiny bone in the middle ear. And that instant, his patient regained his hearing. This happy accident led to the development of several types of stapes surgery which can restore hearing to millions of people who suffer from bone conduction deafness. Dr. Rosen then began traveling the world, teaching the doctors of 39 countries the techniques of stapes surgery.

In Germany, he first learned of the Mabaan, a people who beat no drums and were notably soft-voiced. "The background noises—auto engines and horns, passing airplanes, clattering dishes, blaring radios—that assault civilized ears must have some deleterious effect on our hearing," notes Dr. Rosen. "Science, therefore, has never been able to determine the true potential range of human hearing. The Mabaan are a rare find and may help us to ascertain this true range."

Establishing his camp in the Mahaan village of Boing, Dr. Rosen's first step was to determine the noise level of the area. Using a sound level meter, the ear specialist made a rapid tour of the village, recording a count of minus 40 decibels—about one-tenth that recorded by the hum of a refrigerator.

The loudest noise the scientists heard in the village all day was the cry of a bird. Even during the beating of palm fronds with a wooden club, a method of rope manufacturing, the noise recorded at the worker's ear was a mere 73 decibels—about the same as the plopping sound made by a bat striking a softball.

Just like Park Ave.

The chief of the tribe, a tall, agile 70-year-old named Daga, rounded up 541 people to participate in Dr. Rosen's hearing tests. The Mabaan came to the village, shyly eyeing the audiometer with its dials and earphones. At Daga's urging they donned the earphones and listened to the whistling sounds produced by the instrument. Following instructions as faithfully as any of Dr. Rosen's Park Avenue patients, they raised their hands the instant they heard the whistle and lowered them only when the sound could no longer be heard.

The results were astonishing—the Mabaan displayed the most acute hearing found in any group of human beings ever tested. Almost everyone tested had the ability to hear a soft murmur across the length of a football field. And the problem of Presbycousis (loss of hearing due to advanced age) was virtually nonexistent. The average Mabaan hears as well at the age of 70 or 80 as he does at the age of 15. This ability is unknown among Americans and Europeans, whose hearing deteriorates significantly as they age.

Even more startling were the results obtained from routine blood pressure tests. Among the Mabaan, blood pressure remains essentially the same throughout their lives. Healthy Americans, on the other hand, have a higher blood pressure to begin with, and it climbs steadily as they grow older.

This low, relatively stable blood pressure, plus the comparatively noise-free environment, Dr. Rosen feels, may account for their amazingly acute hearing. It may also be responsible for the complete absence of coronary heart disease. High blood pressure is associated with many heart conditions, and heart disease is America's number-one killer.

Science hopes to find the answers to a number of basic questions from these remarkably healthy people. What are the reasons for their phenomenally slow aging process? Can it be the meager, fat-free diet? Dr. Rosen doesn't think so. He points to another tribe, the Samburu, where heart disease is also unknown. Their diet, however, is composed of 65 per cent fat.

The answers lie elsewhere, perhaps in a combination of factors: absence of noise, peaceful life, lack of emotional stress. Dr. Rosen feels alleviation of the fierce pressures of modern existence might increase our life span dramatically.

The final note of proof seems to come from the Mahaan themselves. When one of their tribe moves to Khartoum, the nearest outpost of civilization, he, too, falls prey to heart attacks, ulcers and other "civilized ailments."

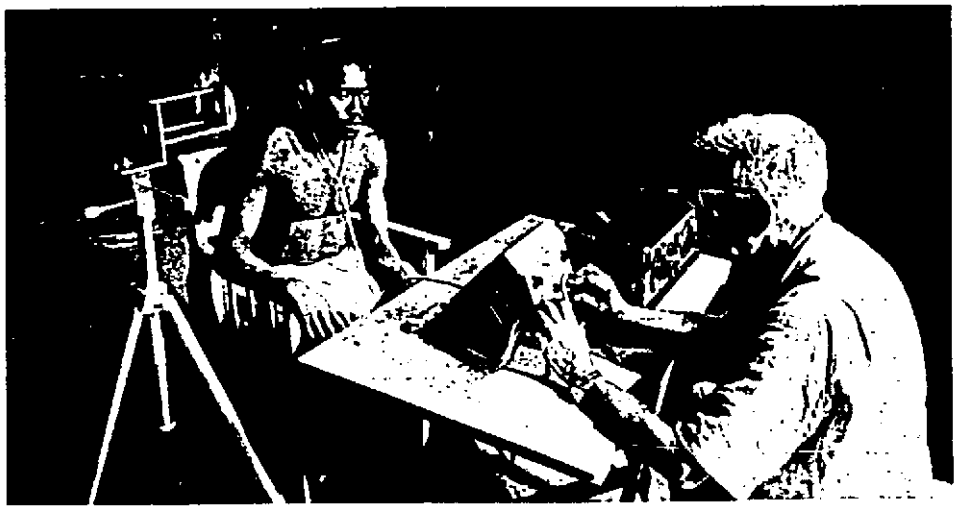

HEALTHIEST PEOPLE IN THE WORLD

Heavy melons are carried with ease by Mabaan women. Scientific expedition flew 6,000 miles via Sabena jet to visit the tribe.

Dr. Samuel Rosen uses audiometer to test hearing of young Mabaan. Over 500 tribesmen were tested in this manner and displayed the most acute hearing of any people on earth.

Scar patterns are marks of beauty for both sexes. Child will receive scars at age of 8.

Festive dances each week are the only occasions when Mabaan life rises above a whisper.

Spear is more decorative than functional to Mabaan. Little hunting they do is with snares.

IS THIS ICE TAX-FREE?

by ROSALIND MASSOW

■ An American tourist returning from a trip to Iceland recently, checked in at the customs counter at Idlewild Airport in New York with a bag full of melting ice.

"It's for my wife," the fellow said apologetically to the customs inspector. "She wanted a souvenir from Iceland."

Although a gift of ice, even in the summertime, would leave most people cold, Americans touring foreign ports are sometimes more witty and imaginative than practical in buying mementos.

With the summer vacation season officially ending tomorrow, it's a sure thing that the estimated 882,000 Americans who were abroad these past two months did not come back empty-handed. Customs officials report that although few used up their $100 deductions, all came back with some souvenir from a foreign country.

CONVERSATION PIECES

Natural elements like rain, rocks, snow and sand cost nothing to bring back, but the conversation possibilities for these things are endless. Imagine your reaction to the fellow who shows you the snow he brought back from Mount Kilimanjaro in Kenya? Or how about the lady who brought back rain from the rain forest of Victoria Falls?

Although status is one reason for bringing back sand, snow and rain, sentiment is even more important. Irishmen on a visit to the old sod invariably come back with a few rocks from Blarney Castle or a whiskey flask full of water from the River Shannon.

Water from the Ganges, the Dead Sea and the Jordan also show up on the mantle of visitors to the Holy Places of India and Israel.

Bring 'em back alive whether they're dogs, snakes or lions is the sentiment of a sizable segment of the population. One Maryland housewife on a visit to Ethiopia was so enchanted by the lion cubs she had seen that she bought one for $25 and brought him back as a pet for her children.

A man who purchased a dog in France was stunned when he came to claim his pup. He found he had five dogs to feed instead of one. Four puppies had been born in flight.

Snakes, too, have a habit of popping up at the customs counter. One customs inspector searching the luggage of a young tourist felt something wriggling around. He found two undeclared snakes coiled up in the fellow's clothing.

"Oh, the snakes," the youth said, "I didn't want them to be cold in the baggage compartment so I put them in my clothing. I didn't buy them, I picked them up on the road."

Living jewelry, innocently brought in from Mexico, is one import that gets nabbed by the customs. The jewelry consists of a live two-inch hard-shelled beetle which has been collared and chained to a pin. The shell is cemented with small colorful stones. A little jeweled insect walks around your lapel shocking everybody. These beetles can live two years without food.

The ones that don't come back alive are brought in as pelts. Llama skins, vicunas and sheepskin are most popular, but occasionally you'll get a tiger skin. One fellow back from a hunt in India paid $900 in overweight air charges for a partially cleaned tiger skin.

Food and plants are high on the list of overseas purchases, but because of the stringent rules of the Department of Agriculture and the Pure Food and Drugs Law, few ever make it home to the pantry shelf or the garden. Customs officials, like anyone else, are sentimental, but seem like ogres when they confiscate homemade salamis from the "old country" or small trees. All they're doing is protecting the people and U.S. agriculture, according to law, against the introduction of contagious animal diseases and foreign plant parasites.

SADDLES & SAMOVARS

Ladies in the U.S. are currently on an antique-buying binge, reflected in the items which they hand-carry back. Knights' helmets, samovars, large decorated copper pots, portions of Hindu temple doors and battered old Chinese cooking pots have found their way into American homes. Some remain as they are, to be used as ornaments; others are quickly electrified and made into lamps. One girl, seeking an interesting piece of furniture, brought back an old camel saddle that had been on a mangy camel she rode in Egypt.

If you think travelers to foreign lands are the only ones who buy conversation pieces, you're wrong. Americans touring their own country are known to have taken home cans of Arizona sunshine and Cape Cod air. ■

Customs men have tough time with waggish gifts from abroad. This ice is from Iceland.

The tremendous, and still growing, interest in art on the part of the American public is becoming more and more conspicuous. When Leonardo da Vinci's "Mona Lisa" paid her brief visit to the U.S. last winter, record crowds braved icy winds and endless lines just to see the famous smile. Private galleries and museums are mobbed daily by groups of carefully mustered schoolchildren and ladies from the suburbs in search of culture. Bookstores and art-supply dealers are swamped with customers looking for art books and paper and paints. And perhaps the most convincing proof of the current art mania is the enormous success of the recent Sears, Roebuck venture, which offered for sale original paintings by artists from Rembrandt to Picasso, at prices ranging from $10 to $300.

What does all this mean to the individual artist? To find out, PARADE talked to Joe Lasker, a contemporary American painter, whose "Portrait of Liz Weiss" is reproduced on today's cover.

—MARIANNA HASSOL

an american painter looks at the art boom

Joe Lasker paints in old oyster house on Connecticut shore.

Joe Lasker is one of about 150,000 professional artists painting in the U.S. today. His views on the art boom are shared by many painters, especially those working in a realistic style, painting real people in everyday settings, instead of formless blobs of color and unrecognizable shapes.

Joe doesn't in the least fit the stereotyped idea of the painter, on the job or off. Instead of an unkempt, unshorn Bohemian, he is neatly dressed, crew-cut and entirely respectable. He could pass easily for a banker, insurance salesman or professor.

Although his appearance is perhaps not typical of the artist, his devotion to his work definitely is. He is completely and utterly sincere in what he paints and how he paints. And above all, he is convinced that painting is of paramount importance.

I asked Joe what he thought about the increased interest in art. I wondered if it had anything to do with the present-day tendency of so many artists to return to the warm, human, recognizable scenes that the man in the street as well as the connoisseur can understand and enjoy.

"Certainly it has something to do with the trend away from abstraction," Joe answered. "But the art boom is due mainly to increased per capita income, which gives people the chance for better education, for more leisure time to travel and be exposed to art. And of course it gives them the money to buy originals."

For Joe Lasker, however, the increased demand for original art has had little effect on his own work. Explains Joe, "I can't mass-produce just because there's an easy market now. I can only paint as I feel I must." Wistfully he adds: "I have sometimes found myself wanting to be corrupted. I'd like to have a lot of money."

Joe, who was born in 1919 into a Brooklyn family of very modest circumstances, studied at Cooper Union, New York, and painted in Rome on a fellowship. He taught drawing and painting at City College, New York, and at the University of Illinois. At present he teaches painting at Famous Artists School, a short distance from his home in South Norwalk, Conn.

an artist's worries

I asked Joe if he felt he belonged to any particular group of American painters. Although he considers himself a realist, he confesses to a brief flirtation with abstraction.

"I really am a genre painter [painter of everyday scenes], but when abstraction came into the ascendancy and 'genre' had become almost a dirty word, I began to wonder if my style was really valid. But I no longer worry whether the way I work is smart or sophisticated or in vogue—I just paint."

Despite this dedication and conviction, the question of making a living inevitably arises. Lasker has had ample proof of his talent; among the awards to his credit are the Edwin Austin Abbey Memorial Fellowship, Prix de Rome and a Guggenheim Fellowship. Furthermore, he is represented in such outstanding collections as the Whitney Museum of American Art, the Philadelphia Museum and the Joseph Hirshhorn Collection.

But can he support a family on what he makes from his painting? The answer is a firm and definitive No.

For an original oil, he gets $125 and up; small drawings go for $30-$35. The top price Lasker ever put on a painting is for Team, now at the Kraushaar Galleries in New York, for which he is asking $1,500. Kraushaar handles all his work and gets one-third of the sale price on each painting.

On the one hand, Joe averages $2,000 per year for his art (paintings, drawings, prints). On the other, he has to support his wife Millie, sons David, 13, and Evan, 5½, and daughter Laura, 11. So, to keep body and soul together he teaches and also illustrates children's books. Lasker's comment on this situation is a philosophical one: "I'd like to earn enough to live on my art alone, but I don't know if that will ever happen."

What part does the contemporary artist play in American culture?

"The artist's role is a unique one," Joe says. "Art is just about the last place where the individual still holds forth—everything else has become a big organization."

Joe thinks the art boom is here to stay, and that it may boom even louder in the future. But he feels that for painters like himself, whose work is dictated primarily by inner feelings and convictions, the future is as uncertain as ever. Yet his advice to the young artist and the art lover remains an idealistic one:

"Trust your instinct in what you create and in matters of taste. Trust your feelings. If you work long enough and hard enough, something will come of it."

Will he be year's top player? Quarterback Joe Namath (No. 12) has passing, ball-handling skills to put his Alabama team among contenders for national championship.

PARADE'S 9th ANNUAL FOOTBALL

A fellow coach recently asked Charles (Rip) Engle, of Penn State, for his secret of success. Replied Engle:

"First get yourself a pair of guards weighing 230 apiece. Makes no difference if they can't play. Assign them to carry you off the field after each game. You may lose, but the alumni will say, 'Well, maybe the bum can't coach, but the boys really love him.'"

Football coaches don't take themselves as seriously as they once did, but don't let their jests fool you. Engle and scores of others dedicated to the game are serious—and deeply concerned over nagging problems that have popped up since last season:

1. Playing rules. Many coaches are disgruntled or confused over the new substitution rule. Ivy Leaguers threatened to revolt and play under a sub rule of their own; Murray Warmath of Minnesota suggested the Big Ten do likewise. The new rule, aimed at coaches who insisted on calling the plays, outlaws the three-team system popularized by Army's Paul Dietzel when he was at Louisiana State. Wholesale substitutions may be made only on second and third down. Lively rhubarbs are certain to develop from interpretation of the rule, hassles that will push colleges inevitably toward the pro football format.

2. Ethics. At this writing the profession anxiously awaits the sworn testimony of two football notables, Wally Butts, late of Georgia, and Paul Bryant of Alabama, on sensational charges that they were too cozy last fall before the Georgia-Alabama game. They may have been merely indiscreet. In any event, football can ill afford any appearance of evil.

3. Negroes. In the South the race issue is being felt at the sports level. The University of Maryland is the first Atlantic Coast Conference member to play a Negro, Darryl Hill, a transfer from Navy, on the varsity squad. Kentucky, northernmost member of the Southeastern Conference, has served notice that, come December, it will recruit Negro athletes, a move that could break up the league. The Southwest Conference, too, may break the color line this year.

HOLD THAT FLIP-FLOP

These problems aside, college football has never been so healthy. In 1962, football attendance soared to 21,277,162—an increase for the ninth straight year—and the great accent on passing indicates bigger crowds than ever. You can expect a big swing to National Champion Southern Cal's 'I' formation, and you'll be hearing about the "muddle huddle," the "flip-flop offense," the "monster defense," and all sorts of gibberish... very scientific, you know.

Here's the outlook, region by region.

SOUTH: Ole Miss, our choice for the national championship, and Alabama represent Dixie's best. The Rebels have lost only 3 games in the last 48, Alabama 1 in 29. Ole Miss has huge linemen, fleet backs and a so-so schedule, a combination hard to match. Allen Brown, 220-pound end, and Perry Lee Dunn, senior quarterback, share the pre-season spotlight. Joe Namath's uncanny ball-handling and passing give Alabama a magnificent offense. Florida will be the most improved team. Georgia Tech and Louisiana State are long-shot title contenders. George Mira's throwing makes Miami the best of the independents.

Clemson, starting its 24th year under Frank Howard, is likely to break Duke's three-year hold on the Atlantic Coast title. Maryland has championship hopes, too, as long as Dick Shiner can throw the ball. In the Southern Conference, West Virginia has superior personnel but plays only four league games. VPI and VMI are a step ahead of the others.

SOUTHWEST: Texans insist the Southwest championship will be decided Oct. 19 in Little Rock, when Arkansas meets Texas. Sounds familiar. Darrell Royal's Longhorns won the 1962 title on a 7-3 triumph over Arkansas, the latter's only defeat. The two schools are again co-favorites, with possibly a slight edge to Texas. Arkansas will go with an untried backfield but still have Jerry Lamb, tremendously gifted end. Texas will concentrate on defense and kicking with Tommy Wade as probable quarterback. Texas' Scott Appleton is the best tackle in the league. Texas Christian and Rice are cast in the spoiler role. Don Trull's passing gives Baylor a flashy offense. Southern Methodist, Texas Aggies and Texas Tech are rebuilding.

EAST: Roger Staubach, the sophomore passer who routed Army last December, is expected to lead Navy to a sectional championship with Penn State, 1962 titlist, in furious pursuit. The issue could remain in doubt all the way since the two teams do not meet. Pittsburgh and Syracuse, both improved, are on a par behind the leaders. Army, stripped of its newly-installed three-team system by the new rules, will have to fight to hold its own. A weak schedule will help. Boston College is coming back strong.

Dartmouth, undefeated champ of the Ivy League, is favored to repeat even without Billy King and Don McKinnon. Harvard is the No. 1 challenger, especially if the tackles measure up. Columbia and Princeton are dark-horse threats, followed by Penn, Yale, Cornell and Brown.

MIDWEST: A mild disappointment last fall, Ohio State rates a slight edge this time over the flashier Northwestern and Wisconsin teams. Coach Woody Hayes has depth and defense, a combination traditionally successful. Paul Warfield, brilliant halfback, Mat Snell, end, and Sophomore Tom Barrington, quarterback, are key figures in the Buckeye campaign. Northwestern is the popular favorite, a tribute to the passing of Tom Myers, but the Wildcats are likely to falter in November. Wisconsin will miss its noted passing battery, Ron VanderKelen to Pat Richter.

Purdue's passing and Minnesota's defense label them as outside contenders. Illinois and Indiana are coming out of extended slumps. Notre Dame, under a new coach, expects to improve on the 5-5-0 record of 1962. But its defense must be tightened up.

FAR WEST: Southern Cal is almost certain to win again, but no one expects Coach McKay's gang to present a 1964 rerun of that fantastic 42-37 Rose Bowl victory over Wisconsin. The Trojan offense operates smoothly around quarterback Pete Beathard and Hal Bedsole, rangy end. Washington is the most serious challenger, featuring a fine defense headed by Rick Redman, linebacking guard. Coach Bill Barnes needs another year to develop his new offense at UCLA. Oregon and Oregon State are tops among the independents, but the latter is certain to miss the redoubtable Terry Baker, Heisman Trophy Winner.

Arizona State is coming fast as a ranking football power. Ineligible to win the Western Athletic Conference title until 1964, State will content itself with just winning games this fall. A free-for-all is likely among New Mexico, defending champion, Brigham Young, Wyoming, Utah and Arizona. Best of the independents: Air Force and Utah State.

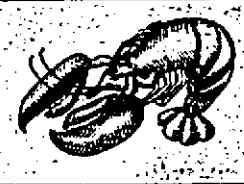

MIDLANDS: Oklahoma's Sooners are back on top of the Big Eight, should stay there for one more year anyway. Bud Wilkinson's Sooners should be better than in 1962, with John Grisham and Joe Don Looney delivering the one-two punch. Nebraska cannot be ignored as long as Dennis Claridge is throwing the ball. Defense-minded Missouri is always tough, but the Tigers will miss Johnny Roland, halfback waved to the sidelines for disciplinary reasons. Kansas has a long-shot chance to go all the way. Iowa State's defense will be better. Tulsa is a heavy favorite for the Missouri Valley title, using flashy transfer athletes to finish ahead of Wichita and Cincinnati.

Climbing steeply, needle-nosed T-38 can hit 800 mph speed. It will be replaced by 3,000-mph rocket trainer.

Has flight training changed

AN OLD

I thought I was a hot pilot when I flew a P-38, that twin-tailed beauty, over three continents in World War II. But compared to today's airmen, I belong to the helmet and goggles school.

I learned this the hard way when I returned recently to Randolph AFB, where I was taught to fly at the beginning of World War II, for a firsthand look at what today's pilots are up to. I was astonished.

In my flying days, cadets trained in BT-9s—propeller planes which flew at 120 mph and today would have trouble overtaking a Piper Cub. The basic trainer I flew a few weeks ago, a sleek, white Northrop T-38, can't even get off the ground at that speed. This supersonic jet won't even stay airborne at the full-out speed of the AT-6 trainers used only 10 years ago.

Incredibly, today's young pilots learn to fly at 800 miles an hour!

When I arrived at Randolph, Lt. Col. Arthur W. Buck, the officer in charge of instructing the instructors for the Air Force Training Command, tucked me into a pressure suit. Then he tucked me into a T-38. "You don't fly this plane, you wear it," he said, as he climbed into the forward cockpit. And I soon learned what he was talking about.

The rear cockpit was different from the old one of my day. The control panels weren't changed too much, and the stick was still there; otherwise there were many changes. You couldn't, for instance, look out and see the wings. Unlike my old P-38, in which you had one comforting engine on each side of you, the power plant was in the tail.

The biggest change was in the pedals, which in the P-38 were used constantly. In the T-38, you use your feet only when on the ground—to turn the nose wheel and apply brakes.

Although it's a basic trainer, the T-38 is faster than any plane the U.S. has ever used in combat. For example, the hottest plane we used in Korea was the F-86. The T-38 trainer can outfly it with one engine.

With Colonel Buck at the controls we screamed down the runway. The T-38 climbed 25,000 feet in less than a minute. I suddenly realized I was flying

Cadet Blumenthal as he appeared at Randolph Field in 1941.

since World War II? A Parade reporter decides to find out ■ by FRED BLUMENTHAL

PILOT FLIES AGAIN

as fast straight up as my old P-38 would fly on the level. For an added thrill Colonel Buck, a pilot's pilot, slow-rolled the aircraft and corkscrewed upstairs.

"Here comes a kick in the tail," Buck said. He turned on the afterburners. We eased through the sound barrier and passed 800 mph. He got on the radio and talked to one of his boys. "I'm over Hondo heading west at 28,000 feet. Meet me. Meet me."

Supersonic acrobatics

I scanned the clear, blue Texas sky for the other airplane. Suddenly it was there nestling under our left wing, and I hadn't even seen it. Then, in tight formation, Colonel Buck and his teammate began doing aerial acrobatics — Immelmans, chandelles, loops, rolls—all at supersonic speed.

I sat aghast. These were the same old maneuvers we used to perform—except three times as fast.

Colonel Buck's voice came at me over the headset: "Care to try it now?"

"Let me follow you through to get the feel of it," I said. The colonel did a few turns, shallow dives and climbs as I kept a light hand on the stick. Then he said: "It's yours."

I wanted to try turns first. I shoved over the stick as we used to do in the old days. Instantly the aircraft swung into a roaring turn far more violent than anything I had expected. Automatically I moved the stick the other way. The aircraft responded instantly in a strong corrective action.

The colonel, from his dual control, exerted a little firm pressure on the stick. I had the idea I was sweating. I hadn't realized this was such a sensitive bird. You didn't need all the muscle we used to throw into steering the old Lightning. We used to use our feet, arms and body. Piloting the T-38 with its power controls was a finger exercise. At 800 mph every little movement brought an immediate, huge response.

I tried again, moving the stick gingerly, a mere fraction of an inch. The plane came around neatly and smoothly. I moved the stick the other way. A little raggedly but effectively, the plane turned.

Why, I can do it! Flying is just like roller-skating or riding a bicycle—once you learn how you never forget it! More confident, I went into a shallow dive. I came out of it, tried a climb.

"Nice," said Colonel Buck. "Want to try a roll?"

Why not? We went into the roll, eased out of it and I was pleased. Not as well as I could have done in 1943, but not bad after 20 years. Then I did an Immelman. Then the chandelle. The loop.

And it wasn't any different—just faster.

But it was different—and the difference was in the men. In my day at Randolph, "the West Point of the Air," we cadets were the lowest form of animal life. We were hazed, razzed, inspected, braced, required to drill and parade and clean up. I walked 10 hours of guard for a dirty wash basin and other "offenses."

Today all that is behind the men, who are no longer cadets but commissioned officers before they begin flight training. But they work perhaps harder than ever. They have 55 weeks of training, including 262 hours of flying, 422 classroom hours, 240 hours of officer training. Yet only 28 per cent of them wash out.

Moment of truth

The pay-off of this intensified training for an Air Force which, despite its missile missions, will never have enough hot pilots, was brought home to me the last few minutes of my flight. After my exhibition of acrobatics, Colonel Buck took over the controls. Deft and sure-handed, he brought the T-38 into a Randolph runway, touched her down, took her upstairs again. He made three of these touch-and-go landings. Then his voice crackled in my headset. "Want to land her now?" he asked.

I thought back to my hundreds of wartime landings in the P-38, that most touchy moment of every flight. I recalled some of my sloppy work upstairs a few minutes before. I realized I'd be coming in in a strange aircraft almost as fast as we used to cruise. It had been exhilarating aloft, but I knew deep down I was just a rusty retread after all. "No, thanks," I said. "I'm a little out of practice." And as the T-38 whirled in to land after my first "hot plane" flight in 20 years, I could swear Colonel Buck breathed a sigh of relief.

Retread Blumenthal gets briefing by Lt. Col. Arthur Buck before first "hot plane" flight in 20 years. Blumenthal flew fighters in Europe until 1944, had flown only a few small single-engine planes in the years since the war.

MY FAVORITE JOKES

by jack wakefield

EDITOR'S NOTE: Jack Wakefield, born in Brooklyn as Milton Fagin, took his name of Wakefield from the Wakefield section of the Bronx where he spent his youth. Originally a singer, Wakefield turned to comedy at age 16. Since then he's played most of the leading night spots throughout the country. For some inexplicable reason he seems to go over biggest with Canadian audiences, who voted him their most popular comedian in 1951. Jack has appeared on many TV variety programs, several Broadway shows and is currently preparing a TV pilot. Herewith a few of his favorite jokes.

The daughter of my next-door neighbor joined the Peace Corps last month. The other day we heard that the girl had married a native in Africa. My neighbor immediately boarded a plane to locate the new bride. To her horror, she discovered the girl in a small hut, dressed in a cloth sack and covered with war paint. Next to her stood a tall, handsome tribesman, wearing a feathered hat, two shrunken heads around his neck and waving a magic stick.

The shocked mother grabbed her little girl and exclaimed: "You misunderstood me, my darling, I told you to marry a rich doctor."

I make it a practice always to patronize a female dentist. It gives me a great deal of pleasure having a woman tell me to open my mouth instead of shut it.

A fellow comic walked into a barber shop and asked for a shave. After being cut a few times, he asked the barber if he could have a razor.

"Why?" asked the surprised barber.

"Because," came the reply, "I'd like a chance to defend myself!"

It seems that every year, no matter how much I send the Internal Revenue I always end up having to pay them more. This year, for the first time, I got a refund—they sent back my accountant!

A grocer was standing in front of his store when he saw a driverless car rolling down the street. He made a quick dash, hopped into the car and jammed on the emergency brake. Relieved that he had prevented an accident, the grocer stepped out of the car with a smile of satisfaction on his face—only to be confronted by the owner of the car walking up to him with bared fists.

"Well," said the grocer, "aren't you going to thank me for stopping your car?"

"No," replied the owner. "I was pushing it!"

There's no doubt that a nickel still goes a long way today. I carried one around with me all week and didn't know what to do with it.

I bought a new suit the other day. The wool was grown in Australia, the cloth was woven in England, the thread comes from India, the suit was made in Hong Kong, and I bought it in New York. It's amazing how so many people can make a living out of something I haven't paid for.

I know my golf must be improving because my wife has finally agreed to let the children watch me play now!

Did you notice that the U.S. gold reserves went down three hundred and fifteen million dollars last year? Mrs. Kennedy must have paid her diaper bill.

DEFINITION OF AN OLD-TIMER: One who can remember when a woman looked the same after washing her face.

DEFINITION OF A DIPLOMAT: A man who can convince his wife it would be a shame to hide her gorgeous figure under a new fur coat.

DOUBLING. The human infant doubles his birth weight in 151 days. The puppy doubles its birth weight in 9 days, the foal in 60 days, the calf in 47 days, the bunny in 6 days.

DELIVERY ROOM DADS. Dr. Daniel Moore of the Mason Clinic in Seattle says the presence of the father in the delivery room at the birth of his child creates no problem. The doctor, director of anesthesiology at the clinic, bases his conclusion on 11,383 cases in which fathers were present in the labor and delivery rooms.

HUSBAND WATCHES AS DOCTOR EXAMINES PREGNANT WIFE.

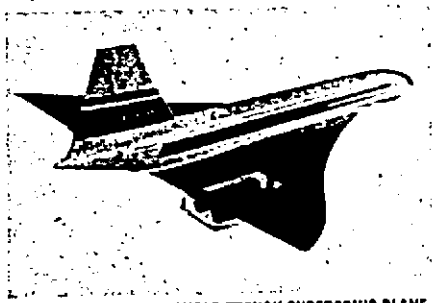

SUPERMARKET TEST. The third-largest supermarket chain in the country, Kroger Co., is testing a credit plan in seven of its stores in Birmingham, Ala. The test is handled by Atlas Finance Company and works this way: A customer applies for credit to Atlas. If cleared, she is given a credit card good for one month. After she pays her monthly bill, she is sent another credit card. Her monthly bill, for which she pays an extra dollar, contains a complete record of her purchases. Since the plan got under way in April, there has not been a single case of delinquent payment. Other supermarket chains have tried credit plans in previous years, but all proved costly failures and the chains returned to a cash-and-carry policy.

BIRTH CONTROL PROGRAMS. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has cut President Kennedy's foreign aid program considerably. But it has quietly okayed the controversial provision authorizing research funds to promote birth control programs overseas.

HOSIERY MACHINES. How many pairs of nylons does the average working girl wear out a year? The answer: from 20 to 36. Result: vending machines which dispense hose are shortly to be installed in large office buildings throughout the country.

SHIPBOARD ROMANCE. The Holland-America line recently completed its first experiment in organized shipboard romance. Its liner, the Statendam, took a group of 85 spinsters and bachelors on a 5-day trip from Holland to England to Spain. Forty-one bachelors and 44 bachelorettes signed up for the "lonely hearts" cruise, and to avoid embarrassing scenes, the doors of all adjoining cabins were locked.' Says an official of the Holland-America line: "It's a little too early yet to tell whether there will be any marital results."

MITSUBISHI MERGER. At the end of World War II, Gen. MacArthur broke up the tremendous Japanese monopolies, one of which was the fabulous Mitsubishi combine. It was split into three separate companies. From Tokyo now comes word that the directors of these three companies have agreed to merge, making Mitsubishi again the largest industrial combine in Japan.

MODEL OF CONCORDE, ANGLO-FRENCH SUPERSONIC PLANE.

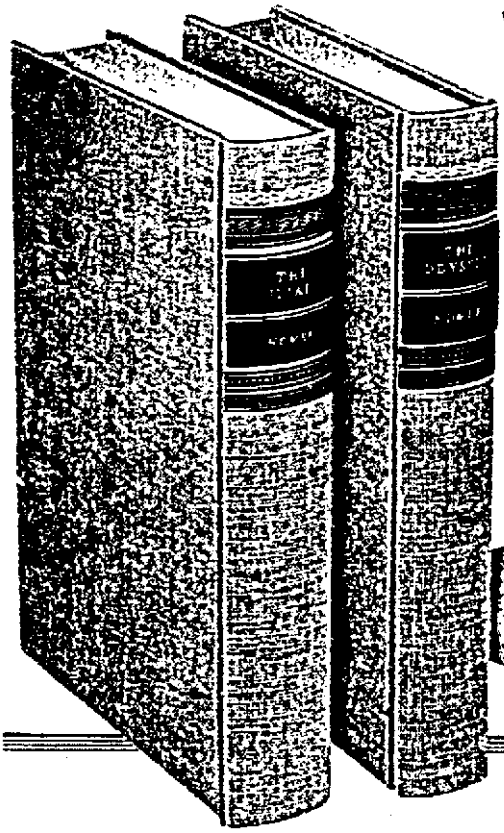

SUPERSONIC PLANE. Work has begun in Toulouse, France, on the Concorde, the Anglo-French supersonic airliner, prototype of which is scheduled to fly in 1966 at a 1,710 mph speed. Estimated cost of this joint project by Sud Aviation and British Aviation Corporation: $420,000,000.

NURSES. General duty nurses in the U.S. now receive an average monthly salary of $340, up from $325 last year.

VACATIONERS. When the summer of 1963 ends, resort operators in this country will have enjoyed one of the busiest vacation seasons of the past decade. Many Americans are spending more vacation money this year than ever before.

One by one, Sir Thomas More considers in Utopia the social and economic problems that have beset man in all societies, in all ages. You will be amazed at his conclusions — and you'll marvel at the brilliance of a man who — four centuries ago — could take such an enlightened view of social progress.

Why Are Great Books Called "Classics"?

A true "classic" is a living book that will never grow old. For sheer fascination it can rival the most thrilling modern novel. Have you ever wondered how the truly great books have become "classics"? First, because they are so readable. They would not have lived unless they were read; they would not have been read unless they were interesting. To be interesting they had to be easy to understand. And those are the very qualities which characterize these selections: readability, interest, simplicity.

Only Book Club of Its Kind

The Classics Club is different from all other book clubs. 1. It distributes to its members the world's classics at a low price. 2. Its members are not obligated to take any specific number of books. 3. Its volumes are luxurious De Luxe Editions — bound in the fine buckram ordinarily used for $5 and $10 bindings. OPEN MONDAY AND FRIDAY NIGHTS UNTIL 9 P.M.

Let's take a good look..

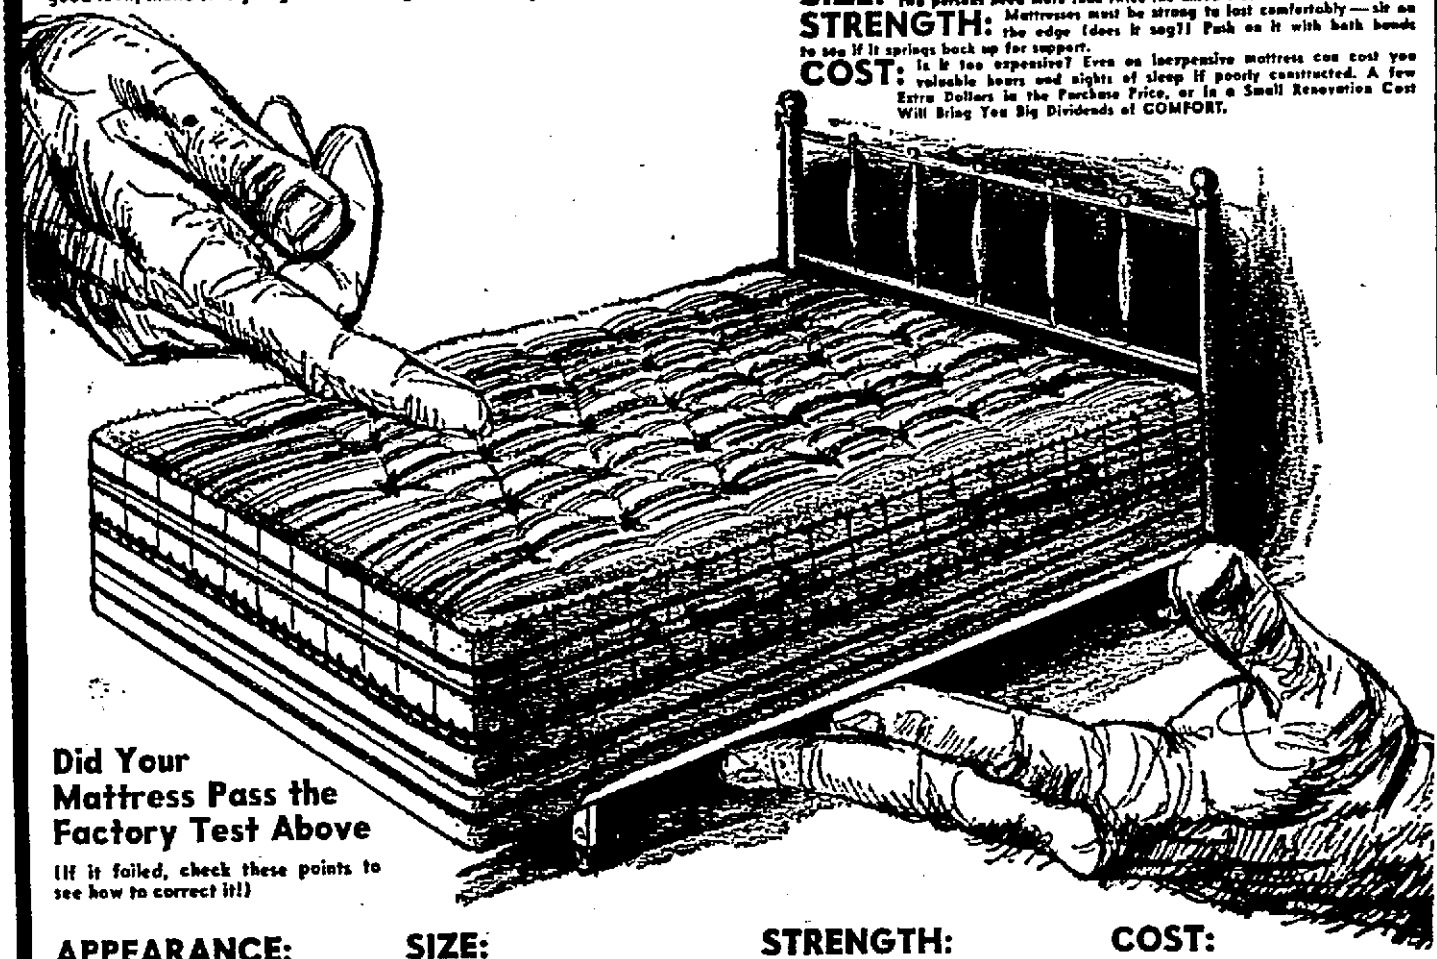

AT YOUR MATTRESS, the mattress YOU sleep on every night, take a good look; make sure you get the best night's rest that you deserve!

APPEARANCE: How does it look? Many people never look at the mattress itself, but take a good look . . . look for seams, lumps, bulges, dips, and beads . . . it may tell you a lot about the inside condition of your bed.

SIZE: Is it really big enough? One person needs lots of sleeping room . . . two persons need more than twice the amount of room.

STRENGTH: Mattresses must be strong to last comfortably — sit on the edge (does it sag?) Push on it with both hands to see if it springs back up for support.

COST: Is it too expensive? Even an inexpensive mattress can cost you valuable hours and nights of sleep if poorly constructed. A few Extra Dollars in the Purchase Price, or in a Small Renovation Cost Will Bring You Big Dividends of COMFORT.

Did Your Mattress Pass the Factory Test Above

(If it failed, check these points to see how to correct it!)

APPEARANCE:

Although the mattress is covered most of the time, appearance does mean a lot and can tell you a lot about the quality of the mattress you are using. Torn or soiled cover means you may need to replace or renovate your mattress cover. Acme's trained technicians can tell you exactly what the trouble is. Renovating your mattress can be done for as low as $14.95 and up. If a mattress is badly damaged, it may cost less to replace it with a brand new mattress.

SIZE:

Be certain that each member of your family has plenty of sleeping room. Extra room does not necessarily mean extra cost. Comfort in sleeping is maintained by having enough room to relax in. With king size sets rising in popularity so fast, Acme is able to offer king size savings with king size sleeping. Priced from $167.50, these six by seven foot beds are a real buy in roomy sleeping comfort.

STRENGTH:

If your mattress is weak, or sagging, it needs replacement or renovation to give support. A mattress must be strong and the springs must be in excellent condition in order to hold the body with an evenly distributed, restful support. For strength that lasts for years and years, an Acme Mattress with Acme-Rest construction is a good, reliable buy. Many excellent mattresses are low priced. Let Acme show you a mattress that is built right — and priced right for you.

COST:

A mattress that is uncomfortable is too expensive for you! It will cost you more in loss of sleep and rest than you can afford. At Acme, we think quality first, cost later. No mattress we sell could be more completely tailored to good sleeping. Whether you buy a twin size mattress and box springs set for $39.50, or a king size, custom built ensemble with everything for $167.50, you can be sure of quality from Acme. Other fine mattresses: Posture Mattress and Box Springs (guaranteed 10 full years), only $59.50; deluxe foam rubber mattress for just $79.50.

Terry Baker, the most honored player in college football history at Oregon State last year, is discovering that the road to stardom in professional football can be a rocky one from the start. Even before joining the Los Angeles Rams, he was caught in a swirl of controversy. But Baker appears qualified to meet every test, and the Rams are hoping the left-handed "golden boy" finally will give them a quarterback in the tradition of Bob Waterfield and Norm Van Brocklin. For more about this star, read Jerry Wynn's story, "The Rams' Controversial Terry Baker," on Page 7.

Herding a flock of 800 ewes and 950 lambs as they graze on the stubble of the foothills, Luis Echamendi is typical of the Basques who are brought to America to tend the flocks with the help of his two loyal dogs.

Lonely Basques of the Western Ranges

By Jack B. Kemmerer

THE SCENE is a series of low foothills at the edge of the wide San Joaquin Valley near Fresno. Luis Echamendi, a burly man in his middle 30s, uses a chunk of bread to wipe the last of his noontime stew from a tin plate. Holding a worn wineskin at arm's length, he washes down the meal with California burgundy. His meal over, Luis carefully washes the plate and flatware with water drawn from a barrel standing outside his door, and leaves his trailer home with its corrugated iron sides. He walks a hundred yards to a flock of 800 ewes and 950 lambs, for Luis is one of more than 500 Basques who come from northern Spain to work in Western America as sheepherders.

For company Luis has only two faithful black dogs who respond to his every command whether verbal or by arm signal. Together, man and dogs herd sheep the year around in one of the loneliest occupations in existence. He must drive the sheep to favorable feeding grounds, following the weather, occasionally having his trailer moved for him, usually in the midst of solitude where communing with nature must take the place of going to church only at infrequent intervals.

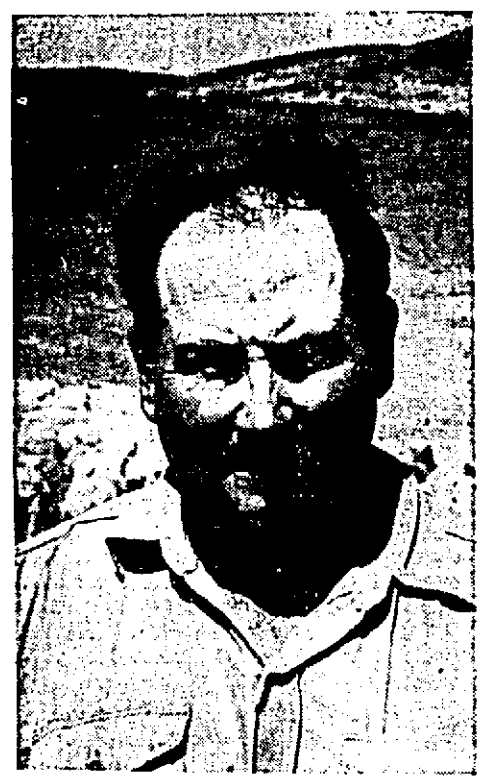

WOOL GROWERS, plagued by falling meat and wool prices, say they would go out of business without the Basques who learned their work in Spain, or in the narrow strip of southern France which is also part of the Basque country. Until 1957 all imported sheepherders could come to the United States only under special legislation, but since then organizations like the Western Range Association have been authorized by law to bring in as many Basques as needed.

During 1961 about 230 arrived while nearly as many returned to Spain, their three-year contracts completed. The association is the industry's largest importer, having contracts with 99 per cent of the sheepherders immigrating since 1957. These rugged men work in 10 western states with the heaviest concentrations in California, Colorado and Utah.

The association acts as a clearing house, arranges passage—which is paid for by the employers—visas, passports, and contracts. Each Basque sheepherder is sponsored, and new recruits are often friends or relatives of those already on the payroll. There is no question of their replacing Americans who might be doing this work, for few Americans are interested in sheepherding. They prefer higher-paying and less isolated occupations.

Though no bonanza by United States standards, employment here pays the Basques many times what they could earn back home in the Pyrenees. They earn a minimum of $200 a month plus room and board, which usually means a trailer—or a tent in some extremely isolated areas—plus all their provisions including wine for their traditional botas or wineskins. When their three-year term ends, in a critical time, they receive extensions, and some return on new contracts after a few months visit to their homeland.

UNLIKE FICTIONAL rangehands seen on television, who seem only to work for Saturday nights in town, the Basques for the most part shun cities during their entire United States stay. Occasionally they take a day off when a replacement is available, and they enjoy gathering at Basque hotels for cards and conversation, but they consistently save their dollars. These savings are the real incentive to take lonely jobs in a strange country, for at the end of their stays most herders, who have only to buy their own clothing and incidentals, return home with $5,000 to $6,000. This nest egg gives them a financial independence that would be virtually impossible ever to achieve in their own land.

With savings, Echamendi will buy printing business when he returns to Spain.

Herders and their dogs live isolated lives as they watch over their flocks. Trailer is herder's home. In the U.S. on 3-year contracts, herders may save more than $5,000, a considerable sum when they return to homeland.

"Basques are a proud and independent people," says Phillip Erro, a second-generation Basque himself, a leading sheep man in the Fresno area, and president of the Western Range Association. "They enjoy the freedom from working closely to a boss, so this program gives them a chance to get started on their own."

Erro, whose father arrived in the United States in 1879 at the age of 17, has been around sheep all his life, and started herding as a teen-ager. "In days past," he says, "there were 250,000 sheep in Fresno County. Now there are about 90,000 because most of the land is under cultivation, and profits go only to the experts who thoroughly understand range operations and sheep raising."

Phil Erro has about 7,000 sheep now which are sold for meat, and shorn for their wool which is shipped to a very competitive market. He knows the business instinctively and from experience, and directs his herders to the best feeding grounds for the various seasons.

These People Look for Trouble

Photos by Paul Watts

Members rolling on highways are in touch with main dispatch desk manned here by group chief, Gene Peterson.

Assistance on the highway is aim of a public-spirited group of citizens band radio operators. Dexter Kent, a member, shows identification while offering driver aid.

By Mickey Gastwirth

WHEELS of the car were still spinning as the squad car pulled up to the wreck on the freeway. The officer quickly jumped out, and as he opened the car door to help out the dazed driver, he noted the smashed face of the clock. The time was 11:45. He glanced at his own watch. It was 11:47. Someone had seen the accident, set flares, telephoned the police who relayed the call to the nearby squad car, which reached the accident . . . all within the space of two minutes.

The mystery was quickly solved by a man who approached the officer, and presented his identification card. He was a member of the Citizens Assistance Relay League, which was having a regular nightly "operation." This club member had come upon the accident scene, relayed the report to the main dispatch office, where the call was immediately telephoned to the police. He then set the flares, and was about to render assistance, when the police car arrived.

THE LOCAL CARL organizations was formed over a year ago by a group of "CBers," each owning a short wave radio with CB (Citizens Band) license. One evening over coffee, they decided to put good use to their radios. With a fervent desire to perform service to the community, a small group met and formed a club.

Since then, the club has met regularly once a month at the Paramount Community Savings recreation room. The business at hand is short; but with a definite purpose: to make plans for "operations" for the month.

When the date is set, the members assemble in their own cars at a home close to the designated patrol area. An operation officer and one other member are assigned to the main dispatch office to receive all calls; and to telephone whichever agency is needed for assistance. Major highways, freeways, and some side streets are patroled by all the club members, each equipped with CB two-way radio. During the "operation" run, which sometimes lasts for nine hours, the "band" is limited to a four-mile square range. However, this local club's patrol range usually extends from Lynwood to Long Beach; and includes Bellflower, Signal Hill, Lakewood, Paramount, and Compton, and is on a 24-hour monitoring service on channel 11.

EACH CAR carries assistance equipment consisting of flares, tire irons, jack, towrope, gas-filled can, flashing flashlight and small hand tools. When a stalled car is observed, information is immediately flashed into the mike as to location, make, license and color of the car. The club rule is always to travel in pairs. The driver parks the car at the rear of the troubled car; and while his partner remains at the mike, he approaches the driver of the stalled vhicle, and presents his membership identification card.

As soon as confirmation for assistance is given, an attempt is made to start the car. In case of a flat tire, a male driver is asked to fix his own flat. If assistance is needed from a relative, friend, auto club, or other agency, the message is sent over the mike to the control station to phone the desired party. In case of accident, the police are notified immediately. In all cases, the CARL car stands by until aid arrives.

The Citizens Assistance Relay League is a non-profit organization, and will not accept payment for its services. Persons assisted are presented with a card stating: "You have been assisted by Unit No. —— of the CARL, P.O. Box 5326, Long Beach 5, Calif. The club asks only that the message is spread that this organization will assist cars in trouble; and will present proper identification.

CARL publishes its own newsletter to members. Publisher-editor, Melba Peterson, wife of newly-elected president, Gene Peterson, of 5956 Gardenia Ave., Long Beach, keeps the membership informed of "operation" cases, "coffee-breaks," and coming social affairs. The remaining executive board and committee chairmen consists of Norma and Dexter Kent, Jack Clausen, Leota and Gregg Artz, and Cathy Oederkerk.

Strange are some of the cases encountered on "operations." For instance, the boy who was observed running out of a store with a bubble pipe stuck in his throat. A CB call brought both ambulance and parents in time to save his life.

But the oddest case of all was that of the man who had stopped in the middle of a tunnel. The CARL car screeched to a stop at the rear of the car, and set a flare. The driver then ran to the aid of the man who was running ahead through the tunnel . . . he was chasing a CAT and a DOG!

College football's most honored player

The Rams' Controversial Terry Baker

By Jerry Wynn

Associated Press Photos

His career as a collegiate star has ended but Terry Baker, shown here viewing Heisman Trophy, has just begun life as a grid pro.

THE BIG CROWD bit its lip as the heralded rookie quarterback faded back to throw his first pass for the Rams. It was a perfect spiral of 30 yards that reached the intended receiver as he sped between the goal posts. It was a certain touchdown.

But it wasn't.

The receiver let the ball fly through his hands, and for good measure, the Rams were guilty of holding and received a 15-yard penalty.

WELCOME TO THE RAMS, TERRY BAKER!

College football's most honored player had made his debut with professional football's most exasperating team two weeks ago at the Coliseum, and the dream of first-pass touchdown had ended in nightmare.

But Terry Wayne Baker is a sturdy young man of 22, who is blessed with a sharp mind and keen sense of humor. In refusing larger offers to accept a $75,000 three-year contract to play for the Rams, he did so fully aware of problems ahead.

HOWEVER, Baker had no idea the "problems" would arise so quickly. In fact, the first storm hit before his trophies, which turned the Phi Delta Theta fraternity house at Oregon State into a Terry Baker museum, had time to accumulate dust.

It came when the Rams, a team with three quarterbacks already and other problems threefold, tabbed Baker as the No. 1 choice in the National Football League draft meeting in Chicago last December.

"They need another quarterback like I need a hole in the head," was the prompt reaction from an official of the Detroit Lions, and many other clubs joined in the same chorus.

Elroy Hirsch of the Rams rushed to the defense.

"When you have an opportunity to get an athlete the caliber of Terry Baker, you just have to take him regardless of position," explained Crazylegs.

THE CRITICISM of the Rams draft of Baker received added impetus a few weeks later when Ron VanderKelen, the quarterback from Wisconsin who was ignored by the pros, turned in a stunning performance against USC in the Rose Bowl.

"Why did the Rams have to waste their first draft choice on Baker when they could have had VanderKelen for the asking?" cried the Long Beach-Los Angeles Legion of Second-Guessers.

And the shouting turned into tumult months later when VanderKelen sparked the College All-Stars to a spectacular upset of the world champion Green Bay Packers while Baker sat out the game on the All-Star bench.

Thus did Terry Baker, whose fabulous career at Oregon State had made him a 1962 version of Horatio Alger (the poor boy makes good) and Paul Bunyan (the all-conquering giant of the woodsman legend), finally report to the Rams at their summer training camp at Chapman College in Orange.

"I'M VERY HAPPY to be here," he said upon arrival, and you knew he meant it. But no sooner had he reported than the storm warnings were heard again.

Because Baker had only four days of practice with the Rams, coach Harland Svare wisely elected not to play him in the team's preseason opener against Dallas. Yet, there ensued a barrage of protests all the way from Southern California to Northern Washington. And when Svare refused to start the famous rookie against Minnesota the next week, the howl became horrid.

Vic Stein Photo for Los Angeles Rams

Baker rolls out to pass on the practice field but pose should become very familiar to Ram followers in weekends ahead.

As one critic piquantly expressed it, the big question concerning Baker—an ambidextrous marvel who passes with his left hand, pitches with his right, plays tennis left and bowls right, writes left and bats right, eats left and golfs right—is whether he will cross his left foot over his right or vice versa on the Coliseum bench.

Through all the swirling controversy, Baker remained as hushed and steadfast as the mighty rain forest near his Portland home. Raised by a mother, who had to work to put her three sons through college, Terry never has had things come easy.

HIRSCH RECALLS visiting with him on campus at Corvallis last November when Terry was about to fly to New York to receive the Heisman Trophy as the outstanding player in the nation.

"Here was a boy going to the big city for the first time to receive the biggest award in football, and he acted no differently than if he was going into Portland for a weekend at home," said Hirsch.

"A clothier in town had lent him a new suit, and I helped him pack. The boy never had anything materially, and despite all the hoopla he received, he remained the same unspoiled, genuine, poised personality. Maybe inside he was thrilled to death. But he never showed it."

Ram owner-president Dan Reeves also was impressed by Baker's refreshingly natural manner when Terry came to Los Angeles in March to sign his Ram contract.

"He is one of the most remarkable young men I have ever met," said Reeves. "He has a fine intelligence and will be a great leader."

PUBLICITY DIRECTOR Jack Teele was another Ram executive to pile on the Baker bandwagon.

"Southern California is supposed to have a tough press," said Teele, "but Terry never was ill at ease while facing a battery of newspaper, television and radio interviewers on his first trip here. He has an outstanding inquiring mind. Newsmen would ask him one question, and he would ask them 10 back. He floored one veteran sports editor by asking about the type of presses his paper used."

A top student at Oregon State in mechanical engineering, Baker will attend Stanford Law School after the completion of the 1963 season.

As for his potential as a Ram quarterback, Terry was extremely impressive when he finally got his chance to play in the Minnesota game. "He's going to drive some teams crazy," commented Viking coach Norm Van Brocklin.

And last weekend, Baker returned home to Portland to spark the Rams to their first victory in 10 games by throwing a 44-yard touchdown pass to beat the Dallas Cowboys.

Yes, the adventures of Terry and the Rams are just beginning.

Arabic to Vietnamese

They Speak 28 Tongues

By Frank L. Remington

In the Army Language School, stress is on oral communication, but reading and writing also are taught. Here, student of Russian receives dictation.

IN A TEHERAN cafe not long ago an affable American sergeant turned to an Iranian soldier and said "Saerboz!" The Iranian glared belligerently and the next instant the cafe became embroiled in a wild brawl.

The sergeant later learned that he'd inadvertently insulted the Iranian. Meaning to say "saerbaz"—the Persian word for "soldier," he actually said—"saerboz"—the Persian word for "goathead," an intolerable affront in Teheran.

Such linguistic misunderstandings hamper American soldiers in carrying out Uncle Sam's global responsibilities. With 40 per cent or more of the Army stationed in some 73 countries around the world, the need for bilingual GIs is pressing, indeed.

TO MEET this ever-increasing demand, some 2,000 soldiers undertake intensified training in 28 foreign languages ranging from Arabic to Vietnamese at the Army Language School (ALS) each year. Ensconced on 400 acres of green hills overlooking the Pacific at Monterey, the school ranks as the world's finest linguistic training center. In six months or a year of concerted study GI students graduate with almost native fluency in the language they study.

The curriculum mirrors the changing international situation. Five years ago, ALS taught no language of Southeastern Asia. Today, with world attention on this critical area, the school boasts 30 instructors teaching Burmese, Thai, Indonesian and Vietnamese. Paradoxically, Laotian, the tongue of embattled Laos, has not yet been added to the curriculum.

About one-third of those enrolled study Russian and more than 7,000 students have earned diplomas in the Russki tongue. The next most popular is Mandarin, the sing-song language of most of Red China. The familiar languages of Western Europe—French, German, Italian, Spanish and Portuguese—are also offered and require six months to complete. Rumanian takes nine months and the other languages a year.

The students come mostly from the Army, though there's a sprinkling of Marine, Air Force and Navy personnel. There are representatives from just about every military occupational specialty: cooks and military policemen, intelligence specialists and medics. They range from recruits newly arrived from basic training to much-decorated colonels. There is no rank in the classroom. Corporals sit next to colonels.

SOME CLASSES are brightened by feminine students—the wives of men destined for important foreign assignments. The Army considers them valuable in strengthening international understanding. They study right along with their husbands and become definite assets to them in their new duties in diplomatic posts.

One young wife of an officer preparing for Japanese duty carried on the same arduous nine-hour-a-day language-learning schedule as her spouse, even though she was also rehearsing lullabies. As graduation day approached speculation grew as to which would come first—the baby or the diploma. As it happened she received her sheepskin in the morning and greeted the stork that same afternoon.

A student expecting a soft life at the Army Language School soon learns that goldbricking doesn't go here. He quickly realizes that learning a language the ALS way is a deadly serious business. Classes meet six hours a day, five days a week, and each student must study at least three hours a night.

English is rarely spoken in the classroom. Learning a new tongue requires considerable directed practice if the student is to speak it in a natural manner. Speaking and understanding receive the emphasis; reading and writing are regarded as by-products. To assure each of ample individual attention and opportunity to speak the language there are never more than eight students to a class.

CLASS DAYS usually begin with a conversation studied the night before. It generally concerns some mundane situation, such as shopping, banking or visiting a dentist. The instructors coach each student to imitate the sounds, stress and intonation of the brief dialogue. Each student also has a tape recorder and can listen repeatedly to his teacher's voice, as well as record his own.

Sometimes the fast rate of learning a new language disturbs and discourages a student, particularly if his high school days are far behind him. One GI studying Russian went to the head of his department in a stew.

"Why," he complained, "I'm even having nightmares about my work."

"What language are you dreaming in?" the instructor asked.

"Why, Russian," the student answered.

"Fine! Fine!" exclaimed the instructor. "When a student dreams in the language he's studying, he can be sure he's making excellent progress."

Visitors to the school are sometimes puzzled to see stern-faced men in Russian uniforms marching at rifle point into a building. Actually these "captured invaders" are GI students participating in a linguistic exercise called "Operation Jabber."

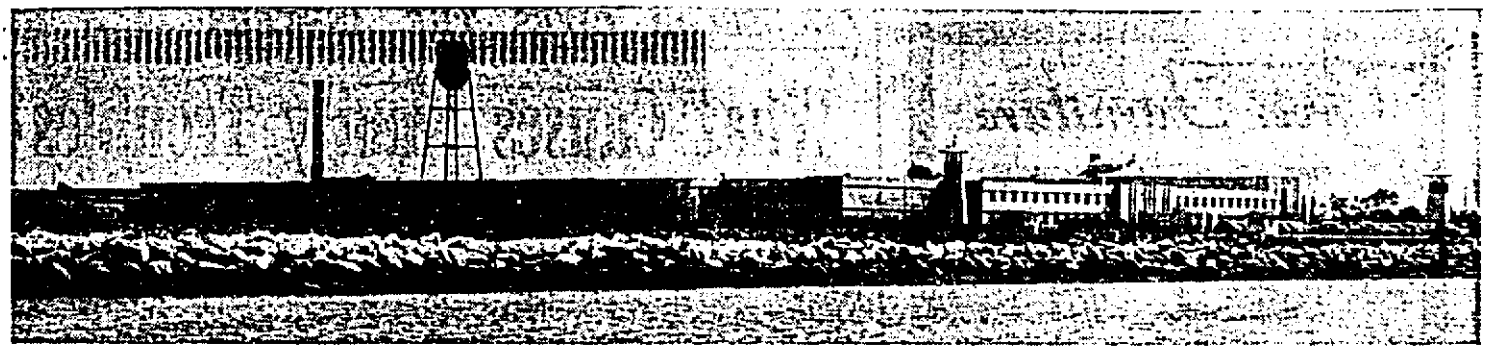

OPERATION JABBER is part of a practical course geared to actual military necessities. Mock situations, such as prisoners-of-war interrogation, map problems, "captured" document translation and intelligence techniques

Culture of peoples also receives attention in studies, and one of popular activities is the Russian choir, joined here by the daughter of a teacher.

Green walls of "T. I." federal correctional institution, spread over a wide area of Reservation Point. Prison's history has been varied.

A Look Behind the Long Green Walls

By Lou Jobst

ONE OF THE FIRST things the ocean voyager sees when arriving at Los Angeles Harbor are the long green walls and towers of the federal prison at Terminal Island.

Situated on Reservation Point in a complex that includes the federal immigration headquarters and U. S. Coast Guard base, the 26-year-old penal institution is known simply as "T. I."

T. I. is one of more than 30 prisons in the federal system and was built in 1937 at a cost of about $1 million.

It is officially a correctional institution, a title, which in prisoner lingo means it is midway between a maximum security prison, called a "hard can" and a highly permissive honor farm type institution, known as a "soft can."

THE CHIEF PURPOSE of Terminal Island, according to the penal experts, is rehabilitation and not incarceration and punishment.

T. I.'s main object in life is to put a prisoner back in society as a reformed citizen.

For that reason none of the institution's 730 male and 197 female prisoners can be classified as hardened criminals, or incorrigibles.

Many of the inmates are first-time offenders and the average sentence being served there is five years.

The leading reasons for arrest and incarceration at Terminal Island are narcotics, auto theft, forgery and postal thefts.

Terminal Island has had a checkered career. It was built as a federal correctional institution and once housed the notorious Chicago crime czar, Al Capone, before becoming a state of California Medical Facility and a Navy disciplinary barracks during World War II.

It was returned to the jurisdiction of the Federal Bureau of Prisons in 1955 and has been a federal lockup ever since.

BUILDER OF T. I. was Robert E. McKee, probably the nation's most famous military contractor. McKee built military facilities and docks for most of Pearl Harbor and the Panama Canal. His other projects include such famed locations as Hickam Field and Scofield Barracks in the Hawaiian Islands.

While Terminal Island is austere and Spartan in appearance, it has none of the cold and gloom of maximum security prisons such as Leavenworth and the infamous rock, Alcatraz, which was closed last year.

The facilities, although often overcrowded, are modern, clean and marked by an openness not generally associated with prisons. Terminal Island deliberately seeks this effect to maintain a semblance of contact with the outside world. The prison works at readying inmates for a return to society and has pioneered a number of successful rehabilitation programs. It conducts classes in trades training, self-improvement meetings and provides prisoners with a routine of counseling, and community service calculated to make them law-abiding, self-sufficient citizens.

SOME OF THE trade training programs have developed into full-scale industries. The prison has a $500,000 metal equipment factory which produces such items as shelving, waste baskets and lockers, and a glove factory, employing 40 women. Other inside-the-wall industries include a garment factory and a furniture repair service which grosses about $1 million a year.

The prisoner-employes work a 7¼-hour day and the average worker earns in the neighborhood of $30 per month. The routine is similar to what might be found in plants on the outside except there are no coffee breaks at Terminal Island.

The "learn a trade" and keep busy policy of the prison has been extended to the white collar worker, too. At T. I. 10 prisoners hold jobs as clerical workers, doing the prison's paper and book work. This situation has the dual advantage of training prisoners for outside employment and of cutting down prison operating costs.

PRISON OFFICIALS have also encouraged prisoners to participate in constructive social programs. The desire to help the needy and ill "is a real thing with the prisoners," says a long-time prison official.

In the past, prisoners have contributed blood in wholesale lots to ill persons and last Christmas turned out more than 1,000 toys for needy families.

And in a poignant gesture recently the prisoners "adopted" a Korean waif by undertaking the child's expenses.

The letter to the child, 9-year-old Yook Sung Ae, tells about as much as words can:

"We are located on an island," wrote the prisoners, "right on the ocean by Los Angeles, Calif. We call it T. I. There are 600 men and 150 women. We are all your foster parents. All of us love you. Be good girl."

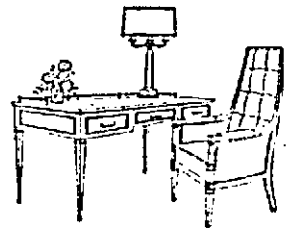

Prison officials look over two-tiered cell block in Terminal Island prison.

Women prisoners find occupation in sewing and garment making, working out of doors when weather permits. Institution, aims at rehabilitating inmates and readying them for a return to a useful life after their release.

What Causes Family Troubles?

Director of Family Counseling Service in Long Beach, Arthur H. Heath discusses a problem in interview in his office. Immaturity, he says, is a basic cause of trouble.

By Vera Williams

WHAT'S at the bottom of family difficulties?

Money? Sex? In-laws?

Arthur H. Heath, the man who knows, shakes his head.

"Immaturity," he says. "People carry the emotional problems of childhood into their adult lives, and take out childhood conflicts on marriage partners and/or children."

Monday through Friday, plus Tuesday evenings, Long Beach couples and families with difficulties pour their woes into the ears of Heath, executive director of the Family Counseling Service, 1017 Pine Ave., Long Beach, and his staff.

"We get every problem you ever heard of," says Heath, an easy-going six-footer. "But no matter what the problem is, it boils down to emotional immaturity.

"ALWAYS THERE is an unawareness or an inability to give concern and consideration to the partner's feelings."

Most calls for help initially come from women, Heath finds.

"Things are pretty bad by the time we get them. And here's an interesting fact: Most women come to us because they are considering divorce and they want help in making up their minds whether or not to get a divorce. Men come to us because they DON'T want a divorce, they want help in holding the marriage together."

Family counselors prefer to interview battling husband and wife together; then separately. Usually they prefer to interview a parent or parents and teen-ager separately; then together. Almost always they interview parents and children below teen-age together. The exceptions are when parent or parents or child have psychotic tendencies.

"OUR FIRST task is to help a person involved in husband-wife or family difficulties to understand himself or herself," explains Heath. "If he understands himself, knows why he thinks and reacts the way he does, he can better understand the other person.

"Then we have him look squarely at the problem, and define it. What, exactly, IS the problem? What does the person want to do about it? (You'd be surprised how many don't know.) Then we help work out a solution, if we can."

How about money? Sex? Liquor? Dope? In-laws?

"It isn't a matter of how much money a family has, or, to a degree, how little it has. It matters a great deal how it is spent, and whether there is agreement on how it is spent. Some people shouldn't have charge accounts. Some people shouldn't have anything BUT charge accounts—at least, with accounts they get something tangible for their money, they don't fritter it away.

"When families get a lot of overtime pay, they are likely to splurge in buying a home, a new car, new appliances. Then when overtime is reduced or eliminated, they can't make the payments. Overtime should be considered velvet, a bonanza—it never should be considered an established part of income."

Sex?

"Sex—too much or too little—is the problem that's always with us. Sex, like money, is used symbolically. Women may use it as a weapon to give or withhold if there is dissatisfaction in some other area of the marriage.

"A woman may complain that she is 'too tired.' Or she may fear pregnancy, and suggest that her husband be sterilized.

"One-third of the men who come to us have been sterilized."

LIQUOR? DRUGS?

"They are especially dangerous if teen-agers are involved. Usually if there is serious trouble with teen-agers, there is trouble between the parents. And that trouble between the parents is the cause, not the result. They have used the youngster as a battling ground.

"Too often drinking is glamorized. Teen-agers take up liquor and drugs—glue-sniffing, for instance—solely as experimentation. When their curiosity is satisfied, they usually stop. Otherwise, they are hooked, and the remedy calls for strong measures."

IN-LAW PROBLEMS develop, the counselor says, "when the emotional umbilical cord has not been severed." Young folks seek independence, but they carry over dependence from childhood. "In times of emergency, parents or in-laws will pro-

Maximum seating in minimum space is provided in this furniture grouping in the living room of the apartment that is now home for Mr. and Mrs. Edward Saslow who turned to apartment living when home seemed too large.

Suddenly, Home Was Too Large!

WITH THEIR children grown and on their own, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Saslow suddenly discovered that their former home seemed much too large for every-day comfort for two; therefore, they turned to apartment living with all the luxuries of a home. Located at 3655 Ocean Blvd., the apartment has many excellent features, not the least of which is a fine view.

Mrs. Saslow engaged the services of interior designer Aurora Fournier to assist in planning of the decor, a blend of French and Italian. A spacious entrance hall leads to the living room, the size of which is enhanced with a wall of glass that opens to a private patio.

A silk brocade sofa faces a round coffee table made of gold leaf under glass. Surrounding the table are three low, baby blue chairs. The latter are extremely comfortable yet surprisingly light weight and easy to move to other locations in the room if desired.

Furnishings from the Saslows' former home have been used in the den, providing warm contrast to the more formal atmosphere of other rooms. Area doubles as a guest room.

Simple items of top quality were chosen in furnishing the apartment. Artistic placement also lends elegance.

EACH PIECE of furniture and each accessory were chosen with care. In an apartment, especially, it is important to maintain a spacious, homey feeling in the decorating theme, particularly when the owners have been used to a large and very livable home. This idea was kept in mind in decorating the Saslow apartment.

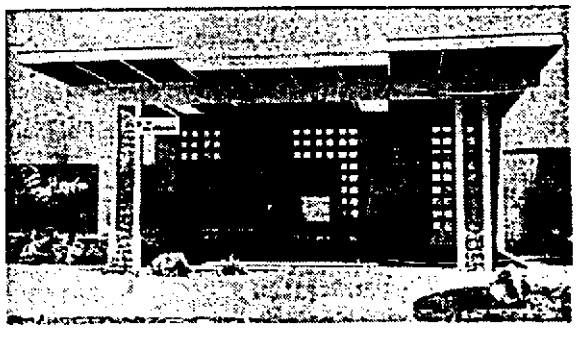

There are no cluttering knickknacks. Adjacent to the sofa is a low, antique white chest upon which rests a tall gold lamp. The painting above the sofa is well chosen and adds a three dimensional feeling to the wall space.

A corner across the room has a French desk, ornate hanging lamp, and occasional chair. Nearby, sliding doors lead to a cozy den, furnished with pieces from the Saslow's former home, and contrasts with the more formal elegance of the other rooms. With a private bath adjacent, it can double as a guest bedroom when needed.

THE STREAMLINED kitchen boasts plenty of cupboard and storage space and a dining area with a view at the far end.

The decor of the master bedroom blends with the living area. Some of the most important accessories in the room include treasured pictures of children and grandchildren.

A favorite with owners and guests is the patio that runs the width of the living room and den. Here, the Saslows may recline on chaise lounges and view the passing parade in the busy city below, serene in their peaceful surroundings.

A Vitally Young, Sportive Look...

Fall hair style— a 'Dandy'

Design by Official Hair Fashion Committee of National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Assn.

Especially designed for a young lady's first formal party, this coiffure, called "Fine 'n' Dandy," has all of the fashion knowhow of coming season. Featured are an elegant small-head look, close-fitted nape area so important in fall and winter hair styles. Soft bangs of brushed waves add an extra note of interest to eyes.

Your hair style will be a "Dandy" this fall and winter, according to the Official Hair Fashion Committee of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association, the hair fashion authority of the beauty profession.

Yes, the word is "Dandy," a direct reference to the incredibly elegant dandies of the last century. But, now the term inspires a delightfully free elegance and feminine wile in women's hair fashions.

The "Dandy" features a vitally young and sportive look in a casual "down" line for day, converting dramatically into a frankly feminine "up" line of classic beauty and romantic charm for evening.

The two basic lines of the "Dandy" are designed to grace all of the silhouettes and their wandering waistlines in couture collections for the season. But they must be individualized for each woman. The personal touch is vital.

Key features of both "Dandy" lines are a small and dainty head poised on an elegantly shaped nape of head-hugging waves that lend important back interest. But, here the similarity ends, and the two lines of the "Dandy" are as dramatically different in form and temperament as are clothing silhouettes for day and night.

In the day line of the "Dandy," the mood implies all of the casual elegance of the great Garbo effect with hair brushed down softly from a smooth crown. For evening, the "Dandy" converts into a gloriously feminine and regal coiffure of waves and curls rising at the crown. Important note for both is the new "Dandy" haircut, which gives fuller, richer texture to the hair ends, and professional permanent waving needed to give the hair substance and ease of care.

Hair coloring for fall and winter calls for a plural use of shades of give a shimmering and iridescent glow to natural colors. Key word again is individuality and the personal touch, so that the color is becoming to skin tones, eye color and make-up of the individual. Therefore, no specific shades will dominate fashions, but personal and individually becoming shades will make fashion, and will require professional guidance. Among popular colors will be subdued reds, natural brown tones and softly iridescent blonde shades, all having the shiny, shimmering glow of healthy hair. With colors used in fall clothing, this effect will give a perfect head-to-toe look of good grooming for the coming season.

Individuality is also the keynote in make-up. For daytime, make-up must give a healthy, look-alive glow, like that of the crisp outdoors. Eye and lip colors must be radiant, but natural; rouge subdued, but excitingly fresh. It must be a complement to the complexion, as well as to the colors of the costume.

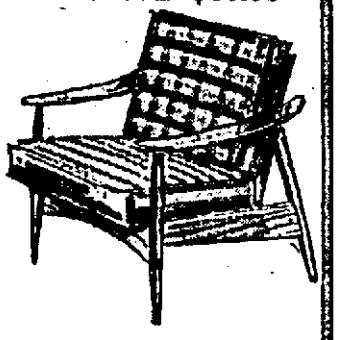

Make-up for evening calls for a subdued, gentle and feminine look for skin, lips and eyes. Eye shadow will complement the natural color of the eye, with the use of a second or third color to pick up complementary colors worn in dress. Lips require an illuminated look achieved with a darker tone topped with lighter color to give a glowing and natural effect. In general, the look should be pretty and feminine, never bizarre.

This forecast of the beauty picture for the coming season comes from the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association, the national association of the beauty profession of the United States. Its 70,000 members direct professional beauty care in salons in every state of the nation, and represent this nation's profession abroad as members of the Confederation Internationale de la Coiffure.

Colds and Climate Unrelated

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical-Science Writer

IF YOU'RE frequently afflicted with colds or other respiratory infections, is it worth while to move to another climate?

Apparently not, according to two consultants to the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Dr. Harold L. Israel, Philadelphia, says all regions of the United States have essentially the same frequency of these ailments.

Dr. Alvan L. Barach, New York City, agrees.

"Exposure to crowds, which does enhance the chances of bacterial and virus infection, may occur in the South as well as the North," he says.

NO EFFECTIVE shark repellent has yet been developed, says Dr. Perry W. Gilbert, Cornell zoologist. Chemicals, mesh fencing, bubble curtains of compressed air under water—all have been found vulnerable.

MORE THAN half of all cases of the "restless leg" syndrome can be helped by the nightly administration of the drug Benadryl, reports a Los Angeles doctor.

"Restless legs" is a condition marked by a variety of sensations in the legs: coldness, crawling, numbness, weakness, pain, pins and needles, creeping, pulling and stretching. It occurs at night, to interfere with sleep, and can be quite painful.

Dr. Roy J. Popkin, reporting in the Journal of the American Geriatrics Society, says a sedative drug sometimes is helpful when given along with the Benadryl. Also recommended: use of elastic stockings, elevation of the foot of the bed, exercises to move the foot and ankle, and walking.

YOGURT, a form of curdled milk, has been used for years as a remedy against infantile diarrhea in many countries along the Mediterranean Sea and the Balkans. But how effective is it, really?

Doctors haven't been sure, says a report in Clinical Pediatrics. Documentation in medical literature has been poor, three New York researchers point out.

The researchers—doctors at Jewish Memorial Hospital—decided to check out its efficacy systematically in a study of 45 hospitalized children, most of them under 1 year old.

Some of the youngsters were given yogurt. Others were given a medication consisting of neomycin, kaolin, pectin and methylcellulose—an old standby in the treatment of diarrhea.

Result: Those given yogurt recovered at a significantly faster rate.

SOME ANIMALS are much more likely to give rabies to man than are others.

Those most likely to convey rabies: dog, bat, fox, cat, skunk, and easily-bitten farm animals such as the cow, horse and hog.

On the other hand, very little risk of rabies infection is associated with the bites of chipmunk, gopher, hamster, rabbit, squirrel, mole and other rodents. So says Dr. D. S. Fleming of Minnesota Department of Health in a report in Minnesota Medicine.

Desk that's designed for budget control and that is easy on the budget when homemade from a pattern fits well into the scheme of modern family housekeeping.

By Bill Meyerriecks

DO YOU maintain careful, continuing records of income and expenses? Are these records easily available and organized? Do you keep orderly files of paid and unpaid bills and receipts for income tax purposes? If you cannot answer affirmatively to these questions, then Sketchbook's design idea this week is of particular interest to you. Even if you are organized about your family budget affairs, S-123, the Budget Control Desk, is a practical aid as well as a fine piece of furniture.

The Budget Control Desk bears out its name. It is designed in modern style (as shown in photo), as well as in traditional and an alternate lowboy type—all detailed in the Sketchbook building plan. The highlight of the desk is its incorporation of a standard accordion manila folder that keeps your bills and records at finger length. The snap drawer pops open at your touch and discloses individual pockets for such items as bank records, correspondence, income tax, insurance, medical and dental records, receipts, unpaid bills, utilities and others.

BESIDES THIS unique file within the desk top, there are two other drawers, three or more pigeonholes in line with the file and also three drawers under the desk top.

The desk can be built with standard size lumber. All pieces that make up the desk have straight saw cuts and offer no difficulty to any handy fellow who can read a ruler and use a saw. Should you build the traditional styled desk, full size patterns are in the plan for the addition of a decorative skirt and side boards.

THE DESK is 40½ inches wide, 67 inches high with moderate depth of approximately 25 inches. To order the Sketchbook plan, specify S-123 and send 50 cents with name and address to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif.

Counseling

vide money. They want the young people to be independent—but they will pay them to be dependent."

Heath, who has been with Family Counseling Service in Long Beach since 1952, has been executive director for six years. He was born in Skogmo, almost the geographic center of North Dakota, and was educated in North Dakota and Washington; served as a counselor for maladjusted children in Spokane, and as a school social worker in Yakima before coming to Long Beach.

FAMILY counselors should have Master's degrees in social work, says Heath. "Most layman advice is based on personal bias and prejudice . . . People with serious problems need objective, professional help. And family counselors must be sharp enough and trained enough to recognize narcotic and psychotic tendencies, and suicidal tendencies."

Family Counseling Service makes a nominal fee for interviews. But 50 per cent of its service is free. Often people with problems don't have anything BUT problems. Once in a while, a situation can be worked out in one interview. More likely, it will take three to five interviews.

In Long Beach, one family has been counselled at intervals for years.

"Well," Heath says philosophically, "the family is still together. Maybe it wouldn't have been, without us."

HOW YOUR CHILD LEARNS

Pin-Up Study List

By Howard E. Kent

QUESTION: "Could you write a list of do's and don'ts for a high school student starting the new school year—something I can cut out and pin on the wall in the bedroom above my son's desk?"

ANSWER: Let's put it in the form of a list of resolutions to be adopted by the student.

New School Year Resolutions

I hereby resolve that in the coming school term I will:

Get to school on time.

Get plenty of sleep so I'll be alert in class each day.

Take all the necessary books and supplies to class.

Respect the rights of others and refrain from creating a disturbance in the classroom.

Listen carefully to the teacher and take notes on the main things he says.

Ask questions about any point in book or lecture which is not clear to me.

Write down each assignment and the date due.

Draw up a schedule of homework, and assign a definite time for doing homework.

Do my homework in a quiet place.

Study the most difficult things first while I'm fresh.

Study longest the things I find most difficult.

Look up all words I do not understand.

Look up the correct answers to questions missed on tests.

Review as I go along instead of waiting until the night before exams.

Do work on term papers and other major projects as I go along instead of waiting until the day before they are due.

Complete each assignment on time.

Do my own work and refuse to allow others to copy it.

Keep trying even though I've made some low marks.

Do my best at all times and refuse to worry about the outcome.

A Word for Pierre

By Eleanor A. Price

ONCE the clowns of Parisian circuses, born actors adept at thinking up ways to win applause or get laughs, poodles have long been the stars of dog acts. And, while it's a serious event, Los Angeles Poodle Obedience Club's licensed trial next Saturday evening at Lemon Grove Playground, won't be without its poodle capers. The site is on Hobart Boulevard just north of Melrose Avenue, Los Angeles.

Of course, poodles like praise, too, so they are one of the easiest breeds of dogs to train if their trainers are not stingy with praise. Since 25 per cent of all dogs registered in the nation are poodles, a good segment of local readers have poodles, and if you are one, you may have thought of training your dog for obedience trials only you felt your lovable rascal was too scatterbrained. Chances are the real problem may lie in you, not the dog. You may not give enough praise.

Also, you may not know how to keep the attention of your poodle. There are ways to accomplish this. Put him on a 15-foot line and go to a large open area. Now start walking in the direction you choose with the dog privileged to go where he can on the 15 feet. He may elect to go in the opposite direction, but when he comes to the end of his line, he has to go with you if only to follow his nose. In other words, you be the boss. Eventually he will keep half an eye on you most of the time.

IF HE IS walking with you on a short lead and insists on sniffing along the ground, tug on the lead. If he gazes off in a dream world of his own, nudge him with your ankle or knee. Become omnipresent to the dog.

Does your dog seem to associate something unpleasant with a command? You may be giving a command at the exact second you yank him into position. This is not good. Call him by name, give the command, then use the lead to enforce it. Or give your command in a happy voice the first time, and if the dog ignores you, change your voice to a threatening one, then follow it immediately with praise. The sudden change of voice makes the dog attentive to you, the praise will make him eager to obey, or at least eager to please even if you must start over.

There is little that is more ridiculous at a trial than loud high-pitched screams, and too many handlers, women in particular, are guilty of this. Sternness in moderation is permissable, but no screams, please! And punishment in the ring is completely out of place.

OBEDIENCE is for dogs temperamentally suited. A shy dog needs some training but should never be expected to compete. He will present a sorry sight if you force him into a trial.

And do groom your dog even for a trial. A neglected appearance is degrading to the whole breed, and especially to a poodle.

Of note are the meetings of Hub Poodle Club of Compton on the fourth Thursday evening of each month. Anyone interested may obtain further information by telephoning HA 9-4615, KE 3-1232 or DA 6-5649.

Beverly Riviera Kennel Club show and trial entries close Monday. Event is Sept. 14 and 15 at Santa Monica Civic Auditorium. For data on entries in California Specialties Show—including poodles, pugs, chows, chihuahuas and dachshunds—Sept. 21 at Hollywood Turf Club grounds, telephone HO 3-6154.

Aphelandra is a newcomer in indoor plant ranks.

Exclamation Plant!

AS A TABLE decoration, Aphelandra always evokes exclamations of surprise and delight.

One of the newest indoor plants, it bursts into bloom with a spike of yellow flowers that can easily last throughout the fall months, according to the Living Plant Growers Association.

A member of the Acanthus family, Aphelandra is one of the most distinguished indoor plants. Its shiny, emerald green foliage is marked by prominent white veins that give it a distinctive appearance all the year. In pleasant surroundings it blooms in fall and spring.

Aphelandra is a native of Brazil and likes a higher humidity than that usually attained indoors and should be kept where the air is not too dry. The plant reacts to dry air by dropping its leaves.

A planter mix of blended organic composition should be kept moist at all times for best results. The plant tolerates the reduced light of the modern living room but grows best out of direct sunlight.

Aphelandras are easily rooted from cuttings taken from a tip or a section of the stem. Place cuttings deep in planter mix and keep warm, moist.

You Ask, We Answer

By Haskin

Q. Does any part of the Mississippi River run uphill? W. P.

A. The answer to this trick question depends on the definition of "uphill." Because of the earth's bulging shape, the equator is farther from the center of the earth than are the regions north and south of it. The Mississippi's mouth is nearer the equator than is its source, hence farther from the center of the earth. It has been calculated that its headwaters are about 3,956 miles and the mouth about 3,960 miles from the earth's center. Actually, geographic elevation is measured from sea level at the same latitude, and in this sense the river drops (flows downhill) almost 1,500 feet in its journey from its source in Minnesota to its mouth at sea level.

Q. Why do the young of goldfish often stay dark, instead of turning gold? P. H.

A. Goldfish frequently revert to earlier types and change color; changes of this type are biological and part of the inherited tendencies of the fish. Young goldfish are naturally dark in color at first, and do not turn gold until they are from three weeks to two or three months old. Very high bred stock may turn gold in two or three weeks, but the average goldfish takes longer, and some never turn gold.

Q. Was the strawberry ever called the stray-berry? M. L.

A. The "straw" may originally have been "stray," because of the way suckers stray from the parent plant and lie as if strewn on the ground. However, the origin of the berry's name is uncertain. It may refer to the long straw-like suckers of the plant, or to the straw laid between rows to keep the berries clean, or to an old custom of stringing these berries on a straw.

Cool Pleasure for Summer Meals

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

After a short stay in the refrigerator for chilling, these three soups provide appetizing warm-day meals.

IN HOT WEATHER soups turn cold. They're still richly nourishing which is as it should be. Actually, however, most chilled soups are eaten because they are cool, taste good and look tempting. That's definitely so with the three suggested here.

Chilled Cream of Pea

1 can pea soup (11¼ oz.)
1½ cups apple juice
1 cup canned apple sauce
½ cup light cream
2 tblsps. dry vermouth
Lemon slices and curry powder for garnish

Blend soup with apple juice, apple sauce, light cream and dry vermouth; chill. If desired, top with lemon slices sprinkled with curry powder. Makes (about 1 quart) 6-8 servings.

Chilled Curried Cream of Chicken

1½ cups apple juice
1 tsp. curry powder
1 can condensed cream of chicken soup (10½ ozs.)
1 cup canned apple sauce
1 tsp. instant minced onion
½ cup light cream
Sliced stuffed olives and parsley, for garnish

Stir a little of the apple juice into curry powder; mix until smooth. Combine with remaining apple juice, chiken soup, apple sauce, minced onion and cream; chill. Serve in chilled mugs. If desired, top with sliced stuffed olives and parsley. Makes (about 1 quart) 6-8 servings.

Chilled Sherried Pea Soup

Apple juice
1 can condensed pea soup
Sherry
½ cup heavy cream, whipped
Chopped chives

Combine an equal amount of apple juice with pea soup. Add sherry to taste; chill. Top each serving of soup with a spoonful of whipped cream and chives. Makes 4-6 servings.

½ cup sugar	½ cup milk
½ cup milk	4 tblsp. butter

1½ tsp. baking powder	1½ tsp. baking powder
2 eggs, (whites) beaten	2 egg yolks
½ tsp. almond extract	½ tsp. vanilla
	Red vegetable coloring to make pink
	½ cup raisins

Combine the "white part" ingredients and pour into a long narrow pan lined with waxed paper. Combine the "pink part" and pour over the white part in same pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. When cool, make a white uncooked icing and color it a pale green. Cut cake in strips to serve.

What's your favorite recipe? For each recipe published in this space, Southland will pay $5. Men are urged to submit their recipes along with the ladies. Send yours, with name and address to: Recipe Contest Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif.

Army Language School: 28 Tongues Spoken

are used. The capture of a key prisoner might be the turning point of a battle and ALS students receive realistic training in the military terminology they would use in questioning so valuable a source of information.

Many students participate in out-of-class activities with a direct bearing on the tongue they are studying. Among the most popular are the Russian Choir, the Presidio Players, the Chinese Choir and the Polish Christmas Pageant. It is amazing to hear students singing flawlessly in a language they never knew a word of just a few months previously.

Acquiring a staff is one of ALS's biggest headaches. But ALS has been so successful that the teachers have aptly been termed "the most distinguished international faculty in the world." All instructors must be native-born to the language they teach. More than 40 nationalities are presently represented on the faculty.

To date the Army Language School has granted more than 25,000 diplomas. The graduates, in a small way at least, are helping the United States to get "on speaking terms" with the rest of the world.

Classes Set

Two adult horticultural classes co-sponsored by UCLA and Los Angeles State and County Arboretum, 301 N. Baldwin Ave., Arcadia, at the Arboretum are "Plant Combination Theory in Landscaping," taught by Philip Chandler, 12 sessions from 7 to 9:30 p.m., starting Monday, Sept. 16, and "Park and Golf Turf Management," taught by Stan Spaulding, starting Tuesday, Sept. 17, 7:30 to 7 to 9:30 p.m.

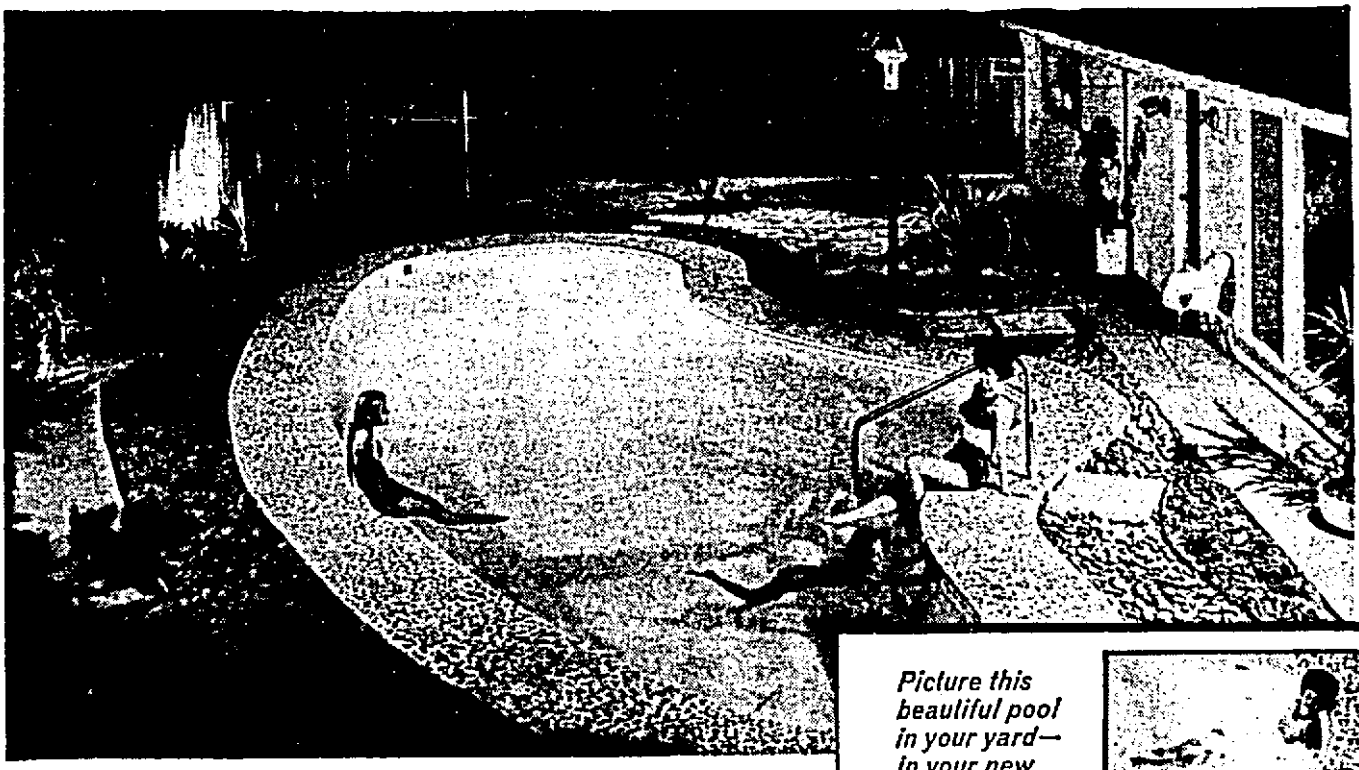

Registration and $30 fee cards may be obtained at the first meetings of the classes. For further information address the Adult Education Section of the Arboretum, Box 688, Arcadia, or telephone Hillcrest 7-4851.

Camera Guild

Two contests, one in 35mm color and the other in stereo, are scheduled for a meeting of Long Beach Camera Guild at 7:45 p.m. Wednesday in Los Alamitos Library.

Much to Offer

Lantanas are happy-go-lucky shrubs for California. They are especially happy in Southern California where they show color nearly 12 months of the year. The gardener who wants bloom for his garden right now should check with his local nursery and see what the lantanas have to offer.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH DELAPLANE

DORADO BEACH, PUERTO RICO

"My girl friend and I, ages 17 and 18, plan to travel across the country, transportation by VW sedan. Do you consider camping a safe proposition? We have about $800 to cover all expenses."

I THINK you'd be out of your minds to camp. The American highway is one of the dangerous places. Ask any newspaper to get out their files on highway-type murders.

Eight hundred more than covers you—you drive it in eighth days, coast to coast.

Take about 15 and you can see it much better. I'd plot a course off the big highways like U.S. 30 and 40. Stay in good motels—Master Hosts, Fort Worth, Tex., will send you a list of cross-country motels with swimming pools. A little more expensive. But did you see that motel in the movie "Psycho"?

"I read a question to you about students camping in Europe. It IS much cheaper. I traveled and camped for as little as $15 for two weeks. Rates are by the tent and I never paid more than 25 cents per night.

"Near all worthwhile cities and resort towns you'll find road signs shaped like a tent showing camping sites."

I'M FOR KIDS camping in Europe. It seems perfectly safe.

"Where do we get information on vacationing in Puerto Rico you've written about?"

WRITE TO ME. There's a lot of information on this treasure island I can send to you.

This is one of the islands in the sun. Long white sand beaches. Blue water full of instant diamonds. Trade winds, coco palms, Spanish towns with fortresses that fired on Drake—and you can drink the water.

"I have an unattached daughter who has secretarial training. She would like some kind of work on a large ship. Do you have any ideas?"

IT'S NOT EASY but—Have her apply to the personnel offices of the steamship companies at their home offices. (Look at the yellow section of the New York and San Francisco phone books.) Ships do sometimes use a typist. No doubt she'll have to go through some union eventually. But that's a start.

"You say people can live in Spain very well on $300 a month. But where do you find housing? Is there any specific list?"

THE TOURIST PEOPLE in Madrid answered me on this: "We answer EVERY letter." They didn't have a list but indicated they would give advice. I don't have much luck with most tourist bureaus—they seem to be hiring somebody's cousins. And not the bright ones, either. But you could try: Direccion General del Turismo, Avenida del Generalisimo, 39, Madrid, Spain.

GOING PLACES —

—with the Sloanes

SO HERE IT IS Labor Day weekend and you haven't had your vacation yet. Well, congratulate yourself. You're one of the lucky ones.

The idea that summer is the only time to travel may have had some validity once, before the days of air conditioning when it was too hot to work, and the only way to get away from the heat was to flee to the seashore or mountains — where it was usually as hot as anywhere else.

But the world goes on regardless of season, and in many ways a lot more interestingly. During the summer, it's more expensive to travel, to eat, and to sleep—wherever you go. It's also more crowded. And as a crowning injustice, many of the people you'd hope to meet are away themselves, and many of the things you'd want to see (plays, museums) may be shut down for the summer.

Most important, much of what the world has to offer is at its best at other times. Some places don't really have seasons, or the so-called high season isn't nearly as reliable, climatically, as the off season.

AS A MATTER of fact, it's a lot easier to find warm places in winter than cool places in summer. Among them are the American Southeast and Southwest, the West Indies, and the entire continents of South America and Australia—where the seasons are the opposite of ours.

So much for climate. What other reasons for off-season travel?

Japan's famed cherry blossoms burst forth, like other blossoms, only in Spring. So do Washington's. So do Holland's tulips.

Those who glory in autumn foliage will find it, naturally, only in autumn, at its best in Colorado, New England, and New York State.

Festivals? There are roundups and rodeos in the West from now on, also state and county fairs. Munich has its Oktoberfest, the world's largest beer-blast. The Scandinavian countries have a coordinated art and music festival in the late spring. And carnivals in Rio, Port-of-Spain, New Orleans, and many other cities throughout the world can come only at Lent.

Other practical reasons for non-summer travel:

IT'S MORE comfortable. Air travel is smoother, auto travel cooler, and the unavailability of an air-conditioned hotel room is no longer a calamity.

It's cheaper. Special off-season rates go into effect in nearly all forms of public transportation, as well as hotels and resorts.

The food's better. There aren't so many tourists to feed in the restaurants. And the service is better.

Space is available on carriers and in hotels.

September: Mexico's Fun Month

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

FIESTAS, parades, native fairs, all-night dancing, serenades and tremendous displays of fireworks—all these and more will greet the gringo in Mexico this month.

The reason, naturally, is that September is Mexico's month of independence and nowhere is freedom celebrated with so much revelry and rejoicing.

On Sept. 15, eve of National Independence Day, the president shouts the "Grito de Delores" from the balcony of the National Palace to a quarter of a million happy people in Mexico City's famed "Zocalo" below.

THE "GRITO" commemorates Father Hidalgo's plea for freedom from Spain, made on the steps of the church in his home town of Dolores Hidalgo on Sept. 16, 1810 — the start of Mexico's long fight for independence, and governors and municipal officials officiate at ceremonies similar to that of the president all over the land.

Fireworks light up Mexican skies after these speeches, and the shouts of freedom taken up by the crowds echo and reecho over the land. Then, on Sept. 16, the people continue their celebrations with parades and fiestas.

Of course, September — a nice time of go to Mananaland — offers a variety of other events for the visitor.

FOR INSTANCE, in Putla, in the intriguing State of Oaxaca, there will be celebrations for the Virgin of the Nativity Sept. 6-8, including a parade of allegorical floats—each occupied by children and a godmother who is responsible for the flamboyant decoration.

Indian dancers reenact the historic battle between King Tepoztecatl and his subject princes at a native fair Sept. 8 in Tepoztlan, in the State of Morelos.

At Campeche, picturesque coastal city on the Yucatan Peninsula, a festival will be held Sept. 14-30 dedicated to Cristo de San Roman, and there will be open air vaudeville, fireworks and serenades.

On Sept. 14 at Queretaro—the favorite Mexican city of many Americans — a fiesta will center around the Convent of the Cross. The church is elaborately decorated with garlands of flowers and ears of corn, Chinchines dancers, wearing plumes and gaudy costumes, perform tirelessly from dawn to dusk.

SAN MIGUEL de Allende, one of the most charming cities in all Mexico, will be the site of a huge gathering of "conchero" dancers Sept. 29, the Day of St. Michael the Archangel.

And so it goes, with Morelia and Cuatla celebrating the birthday of independence hero Jose Maria Morelos on Sept. 30. This "windup" event is a big one, with bullfights, rodeos and concerts plus a military parade and grand ball in Cuautla.

Mexicana Airlines (CMA) and Western Airlines jet you to the Mexican capital from Los Angeles International Airport in about three hours.

SCANDINAVIAN Airlines System will inaugurate new low-fare economy class nonstop propeller flights between New York and Copenhagen on Oct. 17 aboard 86-seat DC-7Cs. Basic round trip fare will be $432.20, a reduction of $147.30 from the normal economy class fares in jet aircraft. Application of promotional fares will bring the cost down to as little as $311.20 for a wife traveling with her husband on a family fare. The new fares will be limited to bona fide residents of the United States, Denmark, Norway and Sweden.

NATIONAL Association of Travel Organizations' top 20 travel events for September include three in the West. One of these is the Rough Water Swim and Festival, starring the one-mile ocean rough water course event, at La Jolla next Sunday.

Other western events listed are the Pendleton (Oregon) Round-Up Sept. 11-14, and Lumberjack Days at Orfino, Idaho, Sept. 13-15.

WEEKEND GADABOUTS:

Palm Springs Aerial Tramway opens Sept. 14. Two tramway cars, each carrying 60 passengers, travel 13,200 feet in making the vertical ascent of 5,873 feet to the top of Mt. San Jacinto.

Palm Wells, in Morongo Valley resort about 25 miles north of Palm Springs, holds its Cactus Days and Weed Show Sept. 14-15. Featured will be glass colored by the desert sun, and unique arrangements of weeds and flowers from the surrounding area.

Fresh from a swim in one of many pools in the all-year resort of Phoenix, Judy Long dries off in preparation for working up a sun tan. Phoenix boasts sunshine, many pools.

This Is Living!

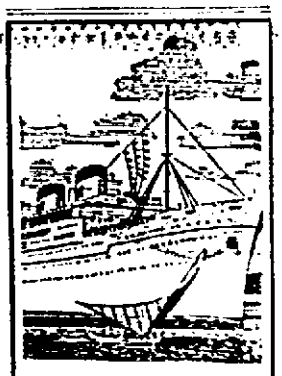

For the first time in more than two decades the widely-known 130-room St. Catherine Hotel on Catalina Island will remain open through September.

"Our magic island weather is at its best all through September, so we have decided to offer late vacationers a special weekday inducement rate for accommodations and meals," said manager Edward Maher.

For $24.75, a person may enjoy three days and two nights, 2 breakfasts and 2 gourmet dinners at the hotel, Sunday through Thursday, during September, according to Maher. Extra beds in a room are rated at $2 for children; $4 for adults. Reservations may be arranged by any travel agency.

BOOK REVIEWS

About People, Written for People

By Vera Williams
Independent, Press-Telegram Book Editor

PULITZER PRIZE winning historian Oscar Handlin brings a new treatment to the worn traditions of written history.

His new work, "THE AMERICANS" (Little, Brown & Co., $6.95) — is a history about people written for people.

Harvard man Handlin puts aside the dry and academic format that a history should be a chronological compilation of dates, battles, statistic and names.

Surveying 350 years of American history he focuses on the broad themes — the evolution of free political, economic and social institutions, the changes in basic ideas and assumptions and the pressures that have squeezed and molded the American experience.

His sole objective is to describe to modern Americans how and why they became the people they are today.

What is the "American Dream"? What is the so-called American character and how was it formed? How did the U. S. become the No. 1 world power, the greatest organized altruistic society in human history? What gave rise to the peculiar philosophy of individualism? Where do Americans go from here?

These are some of the questions that Handlin formulates and endeavors to explain.

FOR THE FIRST TIME, an entire book is devoted to the Carson & Colorado-Southern Pacific narrow gauge railroad. It is "SLIM RAILS THROUGH THE SAND" by George Turner (Crest Publications-Trans Anglo Books, P. O. Box 1562, Long Beach, $6.95), certain to appeal to railroad buffs and those with a flair for history.

Turner, 2037 Crestwood, San Pedro, who admits a lifelong fondness for railroads, recounts the history of the Owens Valley area of eastern California as well as the famed narrow gauge which was a picturesque contemporary of the Virginia & Truckee Railroad.

The author did a lot of research not only in Owens Valley but at UC's Bancroft library. The book has 200 illustrations, some in color, and engineering drawings to aid those who like to make model railroads.

THE BEST of modern Japanese writers, and Junichiro Tanizaki is among them, are obsessed with the same human problems as are their Western colleagues in art; the word colleagues is used advisedly, because all artists in all fields in all countries today are linked by their concern with the human race.

Consider Tanizaki's "SEVEN JAPANESE TALES" (Knopf, $5). The strange relationship of a youth with his stepmother makes "The Bridge of Dreams" one of the finest, most incisive studies of pathological behavior in any language. A typically Tanizaki-esque cruel beauty, blind and a musician, exacts a cruel sacrifice from her disciple and lover in "Portrait of Shunkin." In "Aguri" a Westernized beauty makes an old-fashioned weakling her slave. A man tortured by fear of trains is probed, mind and soul, in "Terror."

Tanizaki, born in 1886, is nonetheless as modern as the newest and youngest of writers anywhere.

A YOUNG French adventurer, Michael Peissel, struggled and hacked his way alone through the nearly impenetrable jungles of Mexico's Yucatan peninsula in one of the greatest archaeological explorations in history.

In his trek he uncovered vast ruins of a great Mayan civilization which occupied this tropical land more than 500 years ago.

Peissel tells of this daring one-man expedition in "THE LOST WORLD OF QUINTANA ROO" (Dutton, $5.95). Plagued by hunger and thirst, pursued by wild and murderous bandits, Peissel found a fabulous ruined city, Chunyaxche, temples and jungle-covered ruins at dozen of other locations.

He also found the survivors of this fabled pre-white man civilization.

FOR 50 YEARS Sam Seabury, a New Yorker of New Yorkers, kept his teeth sunk in that monstrosity, political corruption, shook it like a bulldog, and when he finally let go, had freed New York from the clutches of Tammany Hall. It was virtually a single-handed battle all the way, as Herbert Mitgang makes clear in "THE MAN WHO RODE THE TIGER" (Lippincott, $6.95.)

Samuel Seabury emerges from Mitgang's book as undoubtedly the most-inspired and determined investigator of municipal skullduggery in this century. We see Seabury, first as a young lawyer and then as a judge, starting in the 1890s as a muck-raking disciple of Henry George. Bravely he defends social legislation and labor unions when it was decidedly not the popular thing for young lawyers to do. These were the clashes which sharpened Seabury for the battle with Tammany, culminating in the famous unmasking and unhorsing of Mayor Jimmy Walker.

The book is not a dry record of investigations and political exposes; on the way up Seabury came into contact with a great gallery of colorful figures, from William Jennings Bryan to Polly Adler; from Teddy Roosevelt to Al Smith; from Fiorello LaGuardia to FDR; from Tammany's tin box brigade to Woodrow Wilson.

The titanic battle of wills between Seabury and Walker is the high point of the book, as it was of Seabury's life.

Peruvian Daffodil Is 'Different'

By Joe Littlefield

MANY gardeners like to have something a little different in their floral arrays, and Peruvian daffodil, an evergreen, summer-blooming bulbous plant is one such. Not every nursery will have them in stock but most will order them through specialists.

These plants, known botanically as Pancratium maritimum, produce large white flowers with lily-like fragrance in daffodil form, blooming from July through August. Each stalk provides from 5 to 10 blossoms, not all blooming at one time. Foliage is gray-green and wavy edged. Groups of three planted in triangular spacing 10 inches apart may be left undisturbed for about four years.

SHOWY blooming bulbs that are readily available at your local nursery and which may be set out now are freesias, sparaxis, and grape hyacinths, among others.

Freesias and grape hyacinths are fragrant. All of these bulbs are somewhat low growing and should be planted in the front part of flower beds, whether as edging plants or in clusters.

Apartment house dwellers who miss gardening, can't say its not for them due to lack of soil space. They can grow a number of different kinds of plants in pots, bulb types among them.

Stocks and snapdragons will bloom earlier for you next year if you set some out as soon as plants are available at your nursery.

Iceland poppies and calendulas, too, flower sooner if planted early.

Garden Talk

Joe Littlefield, garden writer and consultant, will speak at a meeting of Belmont Heights Garden Club at 1 p.m. Tuesday in Wesley Hall, 317 Termino Ave. Mrs. Josephine Woods will preside.

Mrs. Ruth Todd and Miss Dorothy Ellis will discuss briefly the Long Beach Diamond Jubilee. Tea hostesses will be Mmes. Merle Brindel, Ruth Burton, Minnie O'Toole, Minnie Belle Fox, Daisy Caldwell and Jo Ibbotson. Visitors are welcome.

SOLUTION TO TODAY'S PUZZLE
(See Page 26)

By Dorothy Jonson

Curling of the leaves of tomato plants is nearly always caused by the tomato mite. In my personal opinion, this vicious pest is frequently responsible for the condition we call tomato blight or wilt because the disease is more apt to attack leaves that have been broken down in vitality by mites.

Unfortunately, the gay little petunia that we all love to see growing in our gardens is a host plant for this mite and since that is the case, I advise you not to plant tomatoes and petunias in close proximity.

Fortunately, however, products containing Kelthane are safe to use on vegetables, including tomatoes. So you can spray your tomato plants with a Kelthane product as soon as you begin to see the signs of this leaf curl, and you can repeat sprayings with it as necessary. Don't let this evil get ahead of you or you will not have the nice crop of tomatoes you anticipate.

Sow bugs are not really insects but belong to the Crustacean family. They are sometimes called "pill bugs" because when disturbed they roll up into a ball or "pill." At any rate they are a nuisance in the garden and when prevalent in large numbers, can do a great deal of damage.

There are several materials, dieldrin for one, that can be sprayed over the surface of the ground to kill these pests, but I prefer a bait which contains all the natural food of the sow bug, combined with a killing agent. This kind of bait, scattered about once a week in the area where sow bugs are numerous, will begin destroying them as soon as it is on the ground. As you water and irrigate, the bait becomes part of the soil and will continue to attract and destroy them for several weeks.

Orchid Society

John Miller will discuss "Phalaenopsis Are Coming of Age" at a meeting of Long Beach Amateur Orchid Society at 8 p. m. Friday in Silverado Park clubhouse, 31st Street and Santa Fe Avenue. Miller also will show color slides of specie orchids of the Philippines where he formerly resided. Flowering orchids also will be on display.

Fuchsia Talk

West Garden Grove Branch, California National Fuchsia Society, will hear a talk on "The Fuchsia Society, Its Aims and Its Ills," by Carl Edmond, president of the Long Beach Branch of the organization, at a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Sun Garden School cafetorium. The public is invited. A plant table is planned.

Tips on Gardening

Garden tips for the week:

Dahlias should be watered regularly and deeply. Be sure to stake tall plants to keep them from toppling under the weight of their blooms.

Well-fed fuchsias will continue blooming into fall. Use an acid-type food or fish fertilizer.

Many of your favorite perennials can be sown in flats this month. Check the seed rack at your nursery.

Feed roses for continued bloom into fall. Blooms in November depend on good care now.

Plant sweet peas before the end of the month if you want blooms by Christmas.

Container-grown plants like more frequent watering than those in the ground. Plants in small pots can probably use a daily drink.

Feed chrysanthemums again this month. They can be fed at 3-week intervals right up to the time their buds show some color. After this, feed them no more.

Use weed killer to remove lawn weeds easily and completely. Be sure to read the directions!

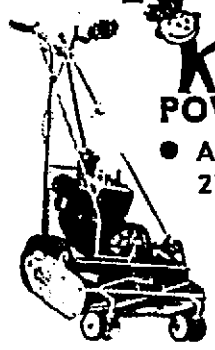

Spray tuberous begonias to prevent mildew. Feed them bi-weekly with fish fertilizer.

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have a brief genealogy on FRY and FRYE. — M.F., A.F., R.F., Long Beach; M.F., Norwalk.

FRY and FRYE are from the 13th century English word "frye" designating "free man." This term was used for one of the relatively few persons in the 1200s who was not under bondage to an overlord. The Frye lineage coat-of-arms from Devonshire, granted to them about 1470, has three running silver horses on a red shield. The same emblems appear on the Fry shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Can you explain CHIARO?—Mrs. F.C., Long Beach.

F.C.: CHIARO was first used by this family's progenitor from his baptismal name "Chiaro," meaning "clear-faced," that is, "honest." No coat-of-arms is recorded for Chiaro.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we learn about SAWYER?—E.S., Seal Beach.

E.S.: SAWYER is traced to 13th century Britain, where this word meant "sawer of wood." Progeny of the original woodsman became prominent among English nobility. The Sawyer coat-of-arms from Berkshire has three silver seapie birds (now known as oyster catchers) placed two above, and one below a horizontal stripe composed of checkered gold and black squares. These emblems are on a blue shield. The Sawyer motto "Cherches et tu trouveras" translates from archaic French as "Search and you will find." Somerset tax lists of 1272 recorded William Saweyer. Early American descendants include Jacob Sawyer who settled in Massachusetts in the 1620s, and George Sawyer who migrated to Maryland in 1650.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please analyze BRUMBELOW.—J.B., Long Beach.

J.B.: BRUMBELOW is a very unusual English name that originated as a property description. The source, "Brome-below," described "home among broom-bushes in a lower location than other land."

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the background of TERTELING. My 90-year-old aunt would so appreciate knowing. —C.A., Long Beach.

C.A.: TERTELING is German, and is a coupling of the north German word "Tertel," meaning "graceful or thin one," with the suffix "-ing" meaning "descendant of." Tertel also had the connotation, "weaver of coarse cloth."

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you give data on ISHAM and ISOM.—D.G., M.I., E.T., Long Beach; E.I., Torrance.

ISHAM and ISOM are of English origin, first used by ancestors who lived at the Northamptonshire town of Isham. This character-descriptive place name was formed from "Isan-ham" and deciphered as "estate of the iron-willed one." The Isham and Isom shield from Kent in southern England has three silver wedges on a green background.

DEAR MISS RULE: Isn't WEBER from Switzerland the same as Weaver? — J.W., Compton.

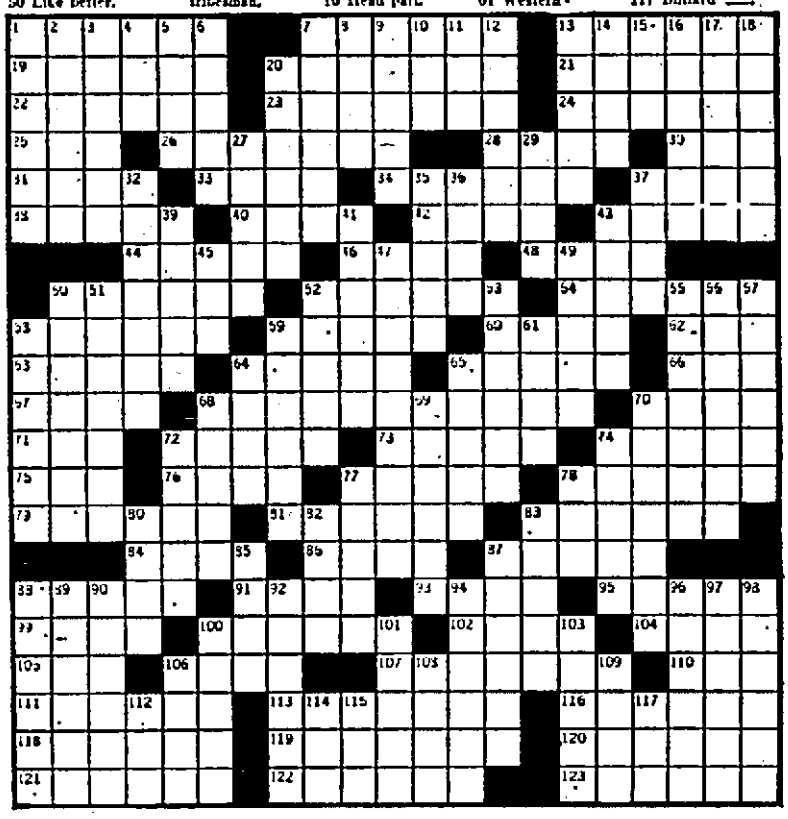

J.W.: WEBER is German and German-Swiss, and translates in English as "Weaver." Weber was given to a weaver of woolen yardage on a medieval loom. The Weber shield from Prussia has two black bands crossing a silver background, with an iron cross on a silver stripe above the bands. The most famous member of this lineage was the musical composer Baron Karl Maria Von Weber.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please analyze FEILER.
—L. F., Lakewood.

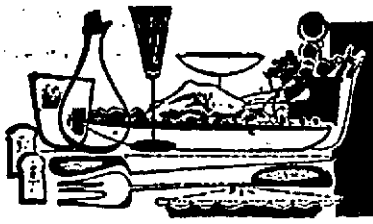

L. F.: FEILER when traced to its German origin, is revealed as meaning "file-maker." No coat of arms seems to be recorded for Feiler.

Corridor With a Purpose

PERFECT planning. Those words are an apt description of the remarkably thoughtful way Welch's, Atlantic Avenue at San Antonio Drive, takes care of its hundreds of well-satisfied guests.

Owner Rex Welch, currently attending to his hotel and restaurant operation in Tahiti, is one of the most skilled restaurateurs in Southern California. Welch's reflects his skill in many ways, some of them so subtle the average guest is unaware of why everything is so pleasing.

For example, did you know that the elegant entrance corridor to Welch's lobby was deliberately made extra-long? This enables the guests to straighten hems and neckties and attend to other personal details as they enter the restaurant, thus allowing them to present an unruffled appearance as they stroll into the serene dining areas. Other Welch's touches which make dining there a supreme pleasure are electric carts which keep the food warm as it's rolled to the table, dining rooms which convert easily into private banquet rooms and attentive service by some of the best-trained waiters and waitresses in town.

During Rex Welch's absences, the restaurant's myriad activities are directed by his right hand man, manager Arnold Vann. A pleasant, cheerful fellow with a great knowledge of restaurant techniques, Vann is responsible for several outstanding new items which grace Welch's extensive menu. Delightfully appetizing, these include mahi-mahi (dolphin) Tahitian ($2.50); unusual baked whitefish au gratin ($1.75) and marvelous brochette of beef teriyaki ($3.50). Another favorite of the throngs is the deviled northern crab casserole ($1.75). All include soup du jour or tossed salad, light hot rolls, potato and beverage.

Zimbalist: at Home on the Ranch

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Tweedy, pipe-smoking Efrem Zimbalist Jr. leads an off-screen life that contrasts sharply with his exciting television role as a private eye.

Zimbalist is a gentleman rancher.

His Norman-style farm house is quaint by Southern California standards, and old, too. Both Zimbalist and his home are 40 years old.

Single after two marriages, Zimbalist lives alone in the roomy house — six bedrooms — except during school holidays when his two children by his first marriage, Nancy 18, and Skipper (Efrem III), 15, visit him. A frequent visitor, too, is 6-year-old Stephanie, his daughter by his last marriage.

A visit with Zimbalist is a soothing experience, an oasis in the hurry-hurry, freeway existence of movieland life. The man himself is unruffled and relaxed to a fault.

* * * *

USING HIS PIPE as a pointer, the star of ABC-TV's "77 Sunset Strip" takes pleasure in showing guests about his "ranch."

At the moment he is busy converting a corral into a small lake on his 2½-acre estate. He plans to fill the area — about ¼ of an acre — with fresh water and stock it with fish.

It will be a welcome addition for the wild fowl which he keeps on the place; flamingoes, peacocks, jungle fowl and a few chickens. There are two barns, a small corral and a guest house in which live a couple who have worked for Zimbalist for almost five years.

A gardener appears thrice weekly to help the actor whip his property into shape. Part of the acreage is in wooded areas, another rarity in southern California.

* * * *

AT FIRST GLANCE it would appear that Efrem leads a lonely life. Frequently he dines alone and spends the evenings writing music—"unpopular music," is the way he

THE UNWILLING HOST OF 'TWILIGHT ZONE'

A Man Who Dislikes His TV Image

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rod Serling, the eminent five-time winner of the Emmy award, is a wiry slip of a millionaire with a nut-brown face, a twice-broken nose, a consuming enthusiasm for human beings, and a good reason for not liking his job of hosting his own shows:

"My wife says that I come over on the television screen looking like a constipated Sicilian prize fighter."

Matter of fact, he was once a fighter—a Golden Glove boxer at 121 pounds—and he was a paratrooper in the Pacific in World War II. ("I actually wanted to be in the quartermaster corps.") And he really does look tall on the screen.

* * * *

"THAT'S BECAUSE there's nothing on camera to compare me with," he explained. "But there I am, 5-feet-5 of solid gristle.

"I really don't like to do the hosting. I do it by default. I have to. If I had my druthers, I wouldn't do it. I just tense up terribly before going before the cameras. It's an ordeal. If I had to go on live, of course, I'd never do it. It's like boxing. I'm the only fighter in history who had to be carried both into and out of the ring.

"I got two broken noses and later I quit. I fought for the 11th Airborne Division championship in the war, and I lost.

"It's also like teaching. Recently I completed a term teaching playwriting classes at my alma mater, Antioch College. I wasn't a good teacher. I went back there to find out what was the truth, and I found out. The truth was at home, and I should have stayed there."

Rod Serling

* * * *

SERLING IS the inventor, executive producer and main writer of "Twilight Zone," which is getting ready to spook its way into a new psychle—if I may be so bold—its fifth season on television.

The show will be back down to a half hour this season, after one season as an hour-long production, and Serling has completed 10 of the 26 plays he will present.

"In my writing I work with a secretary and a recorder," he said. "I dictate everything. It's a free-wheeling thing. I act out all the parts. I do three or four drafts, but by the time I get through with the second, things are pretty well set.

"The first draft is right off the top. I do it very fast. I think about it three or four weeks, and then do the first draft practically overnight."

* * * *

BECAUSE Serling comes on screen and introduces each show, his face is an institution in itself now.

"Fame is short-lived," he said. "One year after this show goes off the air, they'll never remember who I am. And I don't care a bit. Anonymity is fine with me. My place is as a writer."

But he is proud of the show: "We're part of the language now. Archie Moore when he last got knocked out said he felt like he was in the twilight zone. Dean Rusk spoke of the twilight zone in international diplomacy. And there is a twilight zone defense in basketball."

A police car went by with one of New York's new-fangled sirens sounding (they beep and haw like some weird message from space) and Serling's eyes popped wide.

"They're playing our song," he said.

Zimbalist the Rancher

put it. He tinkers with classical music ideas, claiming that about 1 per cent of his famed violinist father's talent rubbed off on him.

"I like being alone," Zimbalist says. "I enjoy going out to dinner by myself and reading a good book or magazine."

He also enjoys occasional dates, primarily with Kay Gable, Clark Gable's widow, who is a neighbor of Zimbalist in Encino, a swank section of the San Fernando valley.

In addition to music, books and lake-building, Efrem collects pipes, some 40 of them, most of which he smokes. He's given up puffing exotic mixtures of imported tobaccos, settling for a Kentucky type.

"I fiddled around for 20 years mixing my own blends, but none of them turned out very well," he admits.

Even in old work clothes around his ranch Zimbalist looks well groomed. His hair has a magic way of staying in place and he's the only man I know whose hands look clean when they're dirty.

When Zimbalist does escort Mrs. Gable out at night it frequently is to dinner parties with friends. Sometimes they go to quiet, out-of-the-way restaurants where other diners let them pass unrecognized.

"I hate night clubs," he says with feeling. "I'd rather climb in the ring at a bullfight than go to a club."

Still, as a television detective, Zimbalist spends a good deal of his video life prowling the late spots for miscreants of all kinds, principally murderers.

* * * *

WHEN EFREM can't be found working on his lake, writing music or enjoying fine food he usually is in the comfortable den of his home with his modest collection of first editions and rare books.

"Sometimes, when the TV schedule is heavy, I think my life is somewhat frantic," he says. "But on the whole it's a pleasant way of life. My feeling is that in movie and television work if all your resources rely on the job you wind up with nothing.

"Therefore I have to furnish my life outside acting. Performing, after all, is a pretty thin diet to live on."

Thus Zimbalist continues to fill his days with small activities attuned to his way of life — which is as far as any star can manage to break away from the stereotyped image of the Hollywood actor.

BASEBALL, 11:25 a.m., ch. 9, with the first half of an Angels-White Sox doubleheader at Comiskey Park.

SPECIAL

WALTER CRONKITE—It's to be the year of half-hour network news shows, with an "in-depth" approach and more time for analysis. Cronkite kicks off the trend at 7 p.m., ch. 2, with Eric Sevareid, Charles Collingwood and Harry Reasoner reporting regularly, and KNXT's own "Big News" expanded to an hour immediately preceding. Next week NBC gets on the bandwagon with an expanded 30-min. "Huntley-Brinkley" report at 6:30 p.m. (Mike Wallace begins a half hour news series at 9 a.m. today.)

AMERICAN REVOLUTION '63—Frank McGee is anchor man for an unprecedented 3-hour prime-time examination of all the aspects of the civil rights issue, at 7:30 p.m., ch. 4. The movement's history is traced from the Emancipation Proclamation to today, with discussion by civil rights leaders and their critics, Administration representatives, members of Congress, governors, labor leaders and clergymen. Reports from more than 75 places across the nation will probe differing views on public accommodation, housing, voting, jobs and education.

JOHN L. LEWIS—A special Labor Day "Perspective on Greatness" hour looks at the loved, hated and respected granddaddy of the labor unions from the early coal mining days until the present. H. V. Kaltenborn narrates at 7:30 p.m., ch. 9.

THE ESTABLISHMENT — The irreverent, satirical revue popular in both London and off-Broadway, gets it's first TV showing at 9 p.m., ch. 11. Produced by talented British writer-comedian Peter Cook, the revue takes a dim view of most people and happenings, past and present. (Another off-Broadway success, "Second City," will be seen in a televersion Sept. 11 on the same channel.)

A TV Study: Beauty Title, How It's Won

A behind-the-scenes candid study of the experiences of a girl who aspires to the Miss America crown will be the subject of NBC's "Show of the Week" series this fall.

The story will portray the experiences of girls from normal backgrounds who become celebrities overnight by focusing on 21-year-old Jeanne Richey Amacker of Beaumont, Tex., who recently won the Miss Texas title.

Cameras now are following Miss Amacker as she prepares for the finals in Atlantic City Saturday, and will continue to film her activities until after the contest's conclusion — whether she wins or loses.

It is doubtful, though, if NBC cameras will film the telecasting of the finals by CBS cameras.

The Miss America finals will be telecast Saturday, will be telecast Saturday at 7 p.m. on CBS-TV.

TUESDAY WELD—A GIRL WITH NO REGRETS

Out of Her Teens, and Ready for Life

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Tuesday Weld celebrated her 20th birthday last Tuesday, which opened the floodgates to a welter of jokes about the girl with the funny name and precocious inclinations.

Tuesday arrived in Hollywood six years ago, and as a 14-year-old shocked the jaded movie colony with her antics, cute quotes and views on life.

She was dismissed lightly as being without talent. She She was excoriated for being a brazen teen-ager who smoked, dated and visited night clubs. She was a flash in the pan.

* * * *

BUT BLONDE Tuesday has survived in the Hollywood jungle to emerge as one of the town's finest young actresses. And, particularly, she has grown up with a special kind of wisdom.

Curled up on a couch in her dressing room, Tuesday shrugged off the beginning of her 21st year. "It's nothing special," she said. "Actually, I feel younger now than I did when I was 13 and told everyone I was 18.

"I imagine millions of mothers have told their daughters to behave themselves or they'd turn out to be like Tuesday Weld.

"Well, I have no regrets about my life. All the precocity I had at 13 and 14 is now a real part of me. I am strong-willed and independent. And I'm fortunate that I got all that silly junk out of my system at an early age. Now I can do some real living.

* * * *

"MOST GIRLS my age are getting their first jobs or moving into their own apartments for the first time in their lives—or getting married before they know what life is all about.

"Not me. I've been working (as a model and actress) since I was three years old."

In her six years in Hollywood Tuesday has appeared in 250 television shows and starred in 10 movies.

She is in tremendous demand by producers and studios.

* * * *

"I THINK I've done some good work," she said. "But nothing really great. When I make one really great and beautiful picture about love I'll probably quit acting and try something else."

Has Tuesday regretted not leading a normal teen-ager's life?

"How can you miss what you've never had?" she replied. "I would like to have had a better formal education. Yet I have an education of my own that most other 21-year-olds don't even know about.

"I've learned about human nature, people, and the ways of the world—things that have prepared me for life. Now I guess I'm like an abstract painting—people can make anything they want of me."

BARBARA NICHOLS stars in "All About Barbara," the story of a musical comedy star who gives up her career to marry a small-town college professor on "Vacation Playhouse" Monday, 8:30 p. m. on channel 2.

TUESDAY WELD stars in repeat of "The Legend of Lylah Clare" on the "Du Pont Show of the Week" Sunday at 10 p. m. on channel 4.
